Board plans mailing in face of questions

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Board of Education is developing an informational mailing that it will send to school district voters to combat what it claims are half-truths and false statements made by some community members.

School district superintendent John Sturock said that the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools and committee leaders Jeffrey and Nancy Porter do not want the new high school on the Marion Center Road site and will do anything to prevent it.

"The integrity of the board and the (facilities) committee has been attacked," Sturock said. "All this time they haven't come up with anything."

But the Porters say the board hasn't been truthful with the community. One instance they relate is the failure of the board to inform the voters of the deed restrictions required by the sellers of the 74-acre Marion Center site.

The restrictions include permission for the sellers, Stella Alexander and Susan Reese, to develop an 80-home complex adjoining the school land, with tap-in sewer fee rights. The school district will pay to have the sewer installed.

Sturock argued any tap-in fees will be reimbursed to the school district.

The Porters counter the deed restrictions were not disclosed to the voters prior to the election, and had the voters known, it may have in-

City gets a deal with lake-front land buy

Waterfront land that had been the subject of a lawsuit, is now owned by the city for a fraction of its cost.

In a settlement that involved the city, the owners of the land, the Little Traverse Conservancy and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the city paid $24,000 for a 100 x 170 foot parcel. The parcel is on Lake Michigan, near the U.S. Coast Guard station.

"This is a very attractive addition for the city," City Manager Mike Wiesner told city council at a special meeting Dec. 30.

The land will be kept for recreational public use. Plans are for a fishing spot with a shelter and handicap access, Wiesner said.

Tom Bailey of the Little Traverse Conservancy worked to bring the parties together to resolve the lawsuit and facilitate a DNR grant for the city. The conservancy's interest was to make the land public.

"This is a very exciting piece of property," Bailey said.

"It's an outstanding recreational resource for the community and a

County officials face jail overcrowding

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater was forced to declare a jail overcrowding state-of-emergency Dec. 7, due to an excess of prisoners.

According to a letter dated Dec. 7 from Lasater to Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas, the county jail exceeded its maximum rated capacity for over seven days.

"Without an immediate reduction of the current population of 25, 10 over the rated capacity, I feel we will have no choice but to declare a jail overcrowding state of emergency," he wrote.

In an interview last week, Lasater said the overcrowding at the jail has been taken care of since that letter. The overcrowding was partly taken care of through early-releases of non-violent prisoners who were close to their release-date anyway, he said.

As of last week, the jail population was at 29. Lasater said the jail currently has 25 bunks.

"We have some bunks we can put on the floor, so we are in a reasonable range right now," Lasater said.

Some of these former prisoners were placed on an electronic tether that monitors their activities, Lasater added. The decision of how to alleviate the overcrowding is placed on the county judges.

"It poses a great deal of difficulty," said Pajtas. "When you sentence an individual, you have to fashion a sentence to that individual, the crime and the situation. When you have to factor in jail over-crowding, you have to limit your options. It is not in the best interest of the community."

When the jail is overcrowded, Pajtas said he considers the arrest records of the occupants in the jail, their attitudes and talks to probation officers about his options. Generally, he knocks time off most sentences, but those who are in for an assault usually do not benefit.

"Someone who is (violent) is much more of a danger to society than somebody that steals property," Pajtas said.

This is not the first time Lasater has had to send a letter declaring an overcrowding state of emergency at the jail. He said he had to send similar letters two other times in 1999.

Pajtas said the reasons the jail keeps overcrowding are hard to really pinpoint. Part of the cause may be based on the increased population in Charlevoix County, while another factor may be new state laws that place more people in county jails.

Whatever the reason, county law enforcement officials must deal with it. While they really cannot control growth or new laws passed by the state, Pajtas and Lasater both said some of the overcrowding at the jail may be alleviated when the addition is built.

Lasater said construction of the new jail has been going on for the last six months and is expected to be finished by spring. This addition and a renovation to the old jail will increase the prisoner cap on the jail from 25 to 89 people.

Drug abuse among teens is on the rise in county

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Alcohol use is still the biggest problem among area teens, but drug use is on the rise, a local substance abuse counselor said.

"There's an incredible amount of drugs coming into the area," BASES Executive Director Scott Kelly said. BASES is the acronym for Bay Area Substance Education Services, an education and counseling center that also houses a teen center.

Some of the drugs are relatively new to the area and are potentially fatal with first-time use, Kelly added. He also sees more use of certain drugs that have been around a long time.

"Marijuana use is on the rise by teenagers," Kelly said.

"There's also a higher use of hallucinogens within the last six months."

Kelly supports his claims of increased drug use by the increased number of teens coming to the BASES center for counseling.

"The courts send about 80 percent of the kids over," he said.

Some of the drugs that are new to the area are GHB and Rohypnol, the "date rape drugs." The drugs intensify the effects of alcohol, impair memory and can be fatal.

"The date rape drug started showing up around here last summer," Kelly said.

"If kids say, 'I don't remember what happened,' and there is a suspicion of foul play, a blood test should be done."

The blood test should be conducted as early as possible.

A major concern for Kelly is that he sees a refusal by many in the communities to admit the area has substance abuse problems.

"The communities need less denial," Kelly said. "There's lots of kids with problems."

Yet, he said, there exists a resistance to intervention.

"I would definitely like to see Charlevoix and Emmet counties get over this denial of substance abuse by kids and adults."

Warning signs of substance abuse include:

- A drop in grades
- Changes in school attendance
- Dropping out of sports or other extracurricular activities
- Change in attitude

- Secretiveness about actions
- A change in friends
- Stealing of money from family members
- He or she stays in the bedroom most of the time when at home
- Eating becomes erratic
- Spends more time at friends' houses
- Neglect of personal hygiene
- Sleep pattern changes
- Bumps and bruises may occur from falls
- Disobeying traffic laws, public misconduct

BASES serves teens, parents and families in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. It offers alcohol and drug education classes, counseling, and holds seminars for teachers, counselors, parents and law enforcement personnel.

It was founded in 1993 by Scott Kelly and his wife Celia Kelly. The center is funded by federal, state, local community foundations and private donations.

The teen center provides a place for kids to get together to socialize with each other or to counsel. Activities include musical instrument instruction, ping pong and pool.

The teen center needs infrastructure renovations, including the heating system, the electrical system, ceiling and drywall work.

The Kellys want to build a $5 million endowment fund to allow for perpetuation of the programs in the counties.

BASES is located at 208 W. Lincoln in Charlevoix. Call 547-1144 for more information.

Island residents lose power Monday

BEAVER ISLAND — An estimated 950 Beaver Island residents lost power for several hours Monday due to a fault in an underground primary electrical line on the island.

The residents lost power around 9:30 a.m. and most regained power by 3 p.m., according to a press release from the Great Lakes Energy Cooperative.

A crew from the company was flown to the island Monday and began working immediately to restore power to the remaining residents without it.

Corrections

A word was left out in the editorial on page 4 of the Dec. 29 edition of the Charlevoix Courier.

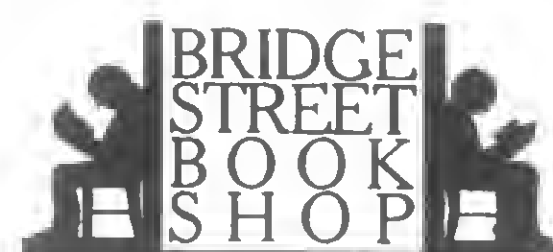

In a paragraph that stated "...in an interview with The Charlevoix Courier, School Board President Allan Telgenhof was asked if the entire cost of building the high school...would stay under $1.6 million."

It should have said, "...the entire cost for building the high school site...would stay under $1.6 million."

The high school building will cost much more than $1.6 million, but Telgenhof said the site work will not go over $1.6 million.

We apologize for this error.

OPINIONS

Let's make this new year full of peace

Regardless of whether this new year is the start of the new millennium or not, it is the beginning of something that can be wonderful.

The year 2000 represents a new beginning for the civilization of mankind. We have a fresh start and the ability to look back to the past for examples of how things should be done or not done.

While the past 2,000 years have been exciting for human civilization, they have also been bloody and rough. We have made great strides in medicine, technology and exploration, but we have also seen wars, famine, disease, death and hatred.

Millions of people have died in this century alone as a result of wars and hatred. Many of those people were innocent children who did not know or care about the political and social ideals of those starving them, gassing them or shooting at them. All these children wanted were food, water, love and laughter.

Now is our chance to make a change. Now is the time for the unified shout, "Enough!"

At this turning of the year, we must all work together to make this world a safer and happier place for all people.

Every individual on this Earth has the power to make this happen. It starts with each one of us living our lives with more love, respect and caring for our fellow human beings.

Life should not be looked at like a game of monopoly, where you try and make as much money as you can regardless of what impact it has on the other players. Life is more fun when you live it caring about others and making a positive impact on the lives of people around you.

Even if you are just helping a stranger in need or volunteering to be on a committee, you are making a positive impact on lives around you and living a great life in the process.

We believe if more people started living their lives like this, pretty soon we would have an epidemic of caring sweeping the world. The day when all mankind treats each other with respect and love is the day when we will see an end to wars, famine, disease, death and hatred.

In 2,000 years when future civilizations look back on our culture, wouldn't it be nice to be thought of as the civilization that started world peace, rather than the civilization that really messed things up?

We wish all of our readers a happy new year filled with peace, love and happiness.

It's another year before the actual millennium starts

Jeremy McBain

Let's get this straight.

It is not the new millennium yet and it is not a new century. The only thing that happened to the date this New Year's Eve was it changed from the year 1999 to the year 2000.

Put away the millennium t-shirts, millennium advertising and all that other hype for now, the millennium and the new century do not officially start until the year 2001.

Why is this? Simply because there was no year 0. The calendar most of us use today did not include a year 0 between the switch from B.C. to A.D. In a matter of two days, the date went from 1 B.C. to 1 A.D.

The position is even supported by United States Naval Observatory Master Clock, whose web page states we still must wait one more year until it is officially the new millennium.

"The end of the second millennium and the beginning of the third will be reached on January 1, 2001. This date is based on the now globally recognized Gregorian calendar, the initial epoch of which was established by the sixth-century scholar Dionysius Exiguus, who was compiling a table of dates of Easter. Rather than starting with the year zero, years in this calendar begin with the date Jan. 1, 1 Anno Domini (A.D.) Consequently, the next millennium does not begin until Jan. 1, 2001 A.D.," the site reads.

Read it for yourself on the internet at www.usno.navy.mil/home.html.

The Royal Observatory in Greenwich, England also supports this position. According to its website at www.rog.nmm.ac.uk/leaflets/new_mill.html, "In summary, the year 2000 will be a leap year, the new millennium and new century start at zero hours UTC on Jan. 1, 2001."

The Royal Observatory points-out

leap-years were introduced into the calendar by Julius Caesar to ensure the months of the year stay with the proper seasons.

"This is necessary because the Earth makes one rotation of the Sun in 365.24219, which is clearly not a whole number of days. Adding one extra day every 4 years would exactly correct for a year of length 365.25 days but will over correct for a year of length 365.24219. To make a more exact correction the Gregorian calendar, introduced in 1582, stated that a century year will only be a leap-year if it is divisible without remainder by 400, which is the case for the year 2000," the site proclaims.

Now, not to be a complete party-crasher it is fun to remember we have another year to plan a really cool millennium party.

The millennium is here

Josh Barnes

On reading the headline of the Greenwich Observatory website "2000 is the Millennium Year," I assumed the controversy was over.

I should have read the rest, which stated, "The new millennium officially starts on 1 Jan. 2001." The site points out that the millennium and every century ends at the end, not the start, of the 00 year, because the Romans had no zero.

Reading further, I find the supporters of this mathematical miracle resort to chastising those who do not accept what they believe.

"It is a silly, childish discussion and only exposes the want of brains of those who maintain a contrary opinion to that we have stated," stated a Dec. 26, 1799 supporter. More recent quotations are even less tolerant.

You and I both know that when historians, mathematicians and politicians start calling us silly, evil and mean spirited, it really means that they have their hand in the cookie jar. So, some further checking was needed.

The origin of the Christian Calendar, early in the 6 century, is credited to a monk, Dionysius Exiguus. He reset the system of counting years such that Christ was born on day 25 of the last month of the year preceding the start of the year 1 AD. Thus, 1 BC is missing the zero year.

Modern research indicates that Christ was actually born not later than 4 BC, when Herod died. Both the Royal Greenwich Observatory and the US Naval Observatory acknowledge this as fact, yet find it convenient to ignore it in calculating "their" millennium.

So, if you're a stickler for accuracy, the third Christian millennium actually began on, or before, Jan. 1, 1997. I missed that party.

On Friday, I read, "World enters new millennium..." on the front page of the Petoskey News-Review and later heard the Pope bless us on this, "the start of the third millennium." Knowing that he is kind of in charge of the monks and has a lot of respect in things Christian, I quit researching for this column and properly celebrated the new year, the new century and the third millennium.

I bet that the argued 2001 millennium doesn't get the support that our 2000 one did — but hey, invite us anyway — you came to ours.

Needs Photos

Editor:

I am attempting to build a scale model of the old Charlevoix lighthouse on the south jetty and wondered if you could help me. The only pictures I have of it are two of Bob Miles' photos that show it less than 2" high. Do you have any larger photos that would show more detail? I am especially interested in the supports for and the shape of the upper platform (square, hexagonal, octagonal?), the nature of the pipe-like structure on the lake side of the light, and the details and function of the other pipe-like structure on the channel side of the glass housing itself. I don't need engineering drawings; larger photos will suffice.

It's all the same

Editor:

An article from the Los Angeles headlines reads, "L.A. School District ignores public in picking new sites." Sure sounds like large cities and small towns do the same thing.

Why, in many cases, do our public officials neglect the citizens wishes? Aren't they there to represent ours?

Committee should back away

Editor:

Something most unusual happened to me last week. I had just finished reading the Charlevoix Courier, especially about the new high school location flap. I was just sitting there, somewhat dazed, when, across the room my computer flashed on and emblazoned across the screen was the word, "hindsight."

I sat down at the keyboard and had barely touched the mouse when a program titled "Charlevoix Year-by-Year" popped up. The mouse came alive in my hand and guided the cursor slowly down a list of years. Files of news articles appeared briefly as each year was passed. Somewhere in the 1970s the mouse stopped. A sub-file window appeared titled: "Charlevoix Public Schools." The mouse led me further and brought up the following news headline: "Charlevoix Schools Land Purchase Bond Passes."

My curiosity in high gear, I scanned rapidly through the well detailed article. In many ways the events were fascinatingly like what I had just finished reading.

Here is what I was able to recall from this mysterious hindsight look into a 20 to 30-year-old series of events with a familiar subject:

A gutsy, far-seeing school board had realized that the community was not only growing population wise, the educational, cultural and recreational needs for the youth and for the whole community were also expanding. The school system needed to be able to grow both ways and it needed to acquire suitable land space for this growth while it was still available and with a price tag the voters could accept.

When the public became involved, some fierce battles were aired, not only between those who were for and those dead set against, but among those who had strong feelings about where the site or sites should be located.

The board was able to negotiate a large 40 acre tract south of the bridge, mostly within city limits and extending into the township. The voters approved the bond issue by a narrow margin of 50 votes.

After the vote, a group of primarily north-siders, in a last minute desperate attempt for a north side location, failed to convince the city fathers to donate part of the city's golf course to the school district.

Letters to the editor

So much for hindsight. The school board of today is faced with making the most of a fix-it-now situation. They chose the most workable, reasonably priced site now available to them. Problems with the chosen site will be overcome with innovative solutions.

I call on the site dissidents to back away from their mission and redirect their activities towards other challenges.

A different approach

Editor:

From the very beginning of our new high school location issue, I have taken a sincere interest and have fairly studied both sides, Charlevoix or Marion Center Road.

At the Board of Education Town Hall meeting Dec. 13, I was unable to express my opinion because time did not permit and that is understandable due to such a large public meeting. I'm now asking if the board is still willing to listen with an open and reasonable mind to share and address more acceptable answers for the school location?

I am not connected in any way with a committee or as a member of an organized group. Being a registered Architect-Engineer (retired) for 45 years I offer my knowledge and experience for what it worth to the board.

For many good reasons already stated, I personally recommend a Charlevoix and not a Marion Center Road high school location. There is property with all existing utilities here in the city, and with proper negotiations, construction could start.

Try this one: The Charlevoix Golf Club owned by the City has four golf holes located south of Highway US-31 North. At a city planning commission meeting, June 1, 1992 a Golf Course Master Plan was presented to locate all nine golf holes north of Division Street. The commission accepted, then made a recommendation to the Charlevoix City Council to look into the acquisition of the required land purchase for the new nine holes as indicated on the master plan layout. The new nine golf holes north of Division is feasible and would provide the Charlevoix area with a fine safe golf course. The land, with all existing utilities south of US-31 would then be available for our much needed modern Charlevoix High School.

Thank you Charlevoix

Editor:

The food pantry is again filled well, thanks to the generosity and help of the people of the Charlevoix area.

While moving to the food pantry's new temporary location in Port Air Plaza, many people participated. Your donations filled the boxes and bags to overflowing, then taken by volunteers to the new location and sorted and put on shelves."

My task was to get the helpers for the sorting and putting on shelves. To this I would like to thank Rita Drew and her daughters, Amy and Renee' as well as five young people which came from BASES: Casey, Stephanie, Tyler, Adam and Andrea.

It took a little over two hours with many hands, days without. Thank you for your help.

BEACONS

By PASTOR DUANE NELSON
Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene

We are now into the new year. We have heard a lot of speculation about the year 2000. For some, it brought about anxiety; others, an opportunity to plan ahead for a better life. What has this new year given to you? I trust that no matter what, the year 2000 will be the year that we all become more dependent on the Lord for His leading and direction in life.

In Isaiah 30:12 it says, "Whether you turn to the right or to the left, your ears will hear a voice behind you, saying, 'This is the way; walk in it'" (NIV). Here is a verse of scripture which, if applied to our lives, will give us the confidence to allow God to direct our daily and future activities. But application is often difficult. Let me see if I can take out the difficulty.

First of all, let's understand the verse better. In the original language (Hebrew) of the passage, the word "right" has a root meaning of "south". The word "left" also means "north".

Now try this: Point your right side to the south and your left to the north. Which way are you facing? East. Keep this in mind and read on.

Secondly, let's consider the root meaning of "east" in Hebrew. It means "behind" or "events of the past". So that means whatever is ahead of us or whatever is our future we have turned our backs toward.

Life is much this way. We are very aware of the past - the good and the bad. When it comes to the future, our "backs" block off our view. We don't know what tomorrow will bring. No matter our plans or security in our present, the guarantee of the future isn't there. We will always walk backwards into the future.

Reread the above verse. "Your ears will hear a voice behind you, saying, 'This is the way; walk in it.'" The voice is from God. He is there to direct you. The choice to listen and follow. His instruction is ours to make. By doing so, we also make the choice to depend on God fully in and for all things allowing Him to control our every future activity. Let's take advantage of the new year. As we walk backwards into it, let's allow God to take full control of our lives. You couldn't be more secure in an unknown future than this.

Wayne W. Nix

Wayne W. Nix, 57, of Tecumseh, died Dec. 27 at his summer home on Beaver Island.

Visitation was offered at the Couture-Ochalek Funeral Home in Tecumseh Dec. 30.

A Mass of Resurrection was offered at 11:30 a.m. Jan. 3 at Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island. The Rev. Patrick Cawley officiated. Burial took place at the Holy Cross Catholic Cemetery.

Mr. Nix was born March 20, 1942 in Pittsburgh, Penn. He was the son of Clarence and Anna (Westner) Nix. He was raised in Pittsburgh and attended Langley High School, where he graduated from in 1960. Mr. Nix went on to attend Adrian College in Adrian and received a teaching certificate in 1965.

On Aug. 22, 1964, he married Sharon Ross in Berkeley. Mr. Nix began his career at Adrian Catholic Central, where he was a teacher and a coach. He continued to teach and coach in Adrian before moving to Tecumseh in 1970 and stayed until he had to retire for medical reasons.

Mr. Nix suffered from a kidney condition that caused him to need his first kidney transplant in 1974. Mr. Nix was very active in the National Kidney Foundation where he was instrumental in implementing a program called "Outreach: a renal rehabilitation and empowerment" which rehabilitated chronic kidney patients. Mr. Nix also served on several national renal network committees and published many articles — all aimed at improving care for all people diagnosed with renal failure.

He was also a member of the Michigan High School Coaches' Hall of Fame, St. Elizabeth Catholic Church and Holy Cross Catholic Church.

Mr. Nix is survived by his wife Sharon of Tecumseh; two daughters, Jennifer Leonard and her husband Steven of Chicago and Kathryn Gale and her husband Larry of Pittsburgh; one granddaughter, Anna Rose Nix; a foster son, Duy Dang of Philadelphia and a sister, Johann Polvay of New Jersey.

Memorial contributions may be made to the National Kidney Association. Envelopes will be available at both the Couture-Ochalek and Winchester Funeral Homes, as well as the Holy Cross Catholic Church.

Evelyn Ware Peters

Evelyn Ware Peters, 83, of Oak Park, Ill. died Jan. 1.

Mrs. Peters was born May 2, 1916, in Oak Park, Ill. to Robert R. and Elizabeth Ware.

She graduated from Oak Park High School in 1935 and attended Carlton College and the National College of Education.

Mrs. Peters was married to Wallace G. Peters, who preceded her in death.

She is survived by a daughter, Janet Peters; son, Richard Peters of Texas; son, James Peters of Texas and three grandchildren. She is also survived by her brothers, Robert Ware Jr. of Oak Park, Ill. and Ralph Ware of San Antonio, Texas.

Mrs. Peters was active in P.E.O.

— the First United Church of Oak Park and First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. She was a life-long summer resident of Charlevoix.

A memorial service will be offered for her at a future date in Oak Park, Ill. Her ashes will be interred at Mount Rainier National Park, as was her husband's.

School Board faces tough critics over deed restrictions

fluenced the election.

"The deed restrictions have a huge impact on the future of this community and its development, starting with the 80-home subdivision," Nancy Porter said. "The school board knew about it and did not inform the voters."

A school bond issue for $18,825,000 to make improvements for the elementary and middle school and to build a new high school on a new site passed on Oct. 11 by a 100-vote margin. The land site for the new high school was not on the ballot.

Sturock acknowledges that the site was not on the ballot. As for the deed and its restrictions Sturock said they were disclosed to the Potoskey News-Review and the Charlevoix Courier at the Sept. 17 special school board meeting.

Additionally, Sturock said that the deed restrictions were discussed with the Charlevoix Courier's former editor, Doug Drapal, in a meeting with Drapal the following week. Drapal could not be reached for comment by press time.

The Potoskey News-Review staff writer assigned to the story denied knowing about the deed or its restrictions at the Sept. 17 meeting. The writer said she was informed in November when Jeff Porter faxed a copy of it to the newspaper.

The board's mailing will address the issues, Sturock said.

"It will give the point of view of the board and the factual information," he said. "The information used by the board to make its decision. What people have had so far is what the committee has been circulating — the information they have given without factual information."

Deed Restrictions on Marion Center Property

•This property is to be used for the sole purpose of development of a Charlevoix Public School.

•Access shall be provided the Alexander/Reese adjoining property for public sewer connections that would accommodate 80 home sites with easements and pump ability.

•In the event that the Alexander/Reese family requests a relocation of Clark Road, said relocation will not be opposed by the Charlevoix Public Schools.

•If a school is not constructed on the property by January 1, 2006, the Alexander/Reese family and their heirs have the exclusive option to purchase back the property at net, less capital gains tax incurred as a result of this sale, within 180 days.

"They're not giving the full information," Sturock continued. "And they're leaving things unsaid."

The board's mailing will be out to the community within a week or two, Sturock said.

The Charlevoix Courier can be reached by calling 547-6558 or by email at charlevoixcourier@charlevoix-courier.com.

Senior coalition formed

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Seniors and senior advocates in Charlevoix county are banding together to explore the needs of the senior population and to present a united front to the county.

Senior Services Coalition was recently organized and is holding meetings. It includes representatives of the area's senior citizen centers, the housing commission, the Commission on Aging, adult day care centers and a county commissioner.

"I think that getting groups together to talk about services is great," said Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center Director Ginnie Schairbaum.

The Charlevoix center needs renovation of space on its lower floor. The area will be used for a computer room, exercise classes, craft activities and meetings. Renovations would include installing an elevator, she said.

Another need that Schairbaum sees for Charlevoix is transportation for seniors, such as the seniors at Pine River Place.

The coalition representatives agreed that a major need throughout the county is assisted living programs and chore services. Chore services include errands, lawn care, snow removal and minor home repairs.

A request for a county millage was also discussed at the meetings, said Susan Bergmann, director of the Commission on Aging.

Ideas for using funds from a millage are services for Beaver Island, homemaker and chore services, day trips and community activities, more adult education, medication assistance programs and improved benefits for nurses' aides.

The next Senior Services Coalition meeting will be noon Jan. 11, at the East Jordan Senior Center, located at 116 Main St. in East Jordan.

Clara Schmidt

Clara "Claire" Schmidt, 60, of Charlevoix, died Dec. 30 at her home.

A Mass of Resurrection was offered Jan. 4, at St. Mary's Catholic Church. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated. Interment will take place at Holy Cross Catholic Cemetery on Beaver Island in the spring.

Mrs. Schmidt was born Sept. 28, 1939, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Floyd and Katherine (Tookaloo) Genia. She attended Charlevoix High School and graduated in 1956.

On Dec. 20, 1958 she married Joseph "Tommy" Schmidt in Detroit. He preceded her in death on May 22, 1999. Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt made their home in Charlevoix where they worked and raised their family together on "the farm." Mrs. Schmidt enjoyed cooking for her entire family and always enjoyed having friends and family around her.

Mrs. Schmidt was a member of the Little Traverse Band of Odawa, Chippewa Indians, the Grand Traverse Band Elders Group and St. Mary's Catholic Church. In her spare time she enjoyed playing bingo and going to the casinos.

She is survived by her children, Joseph T. Jr. and his wife Sheila of Charlevoix, Patrick P. and his wife Peggy of Brooklyn Park, Minn., Barb and her husband James Kenwabikise of Charlevoix, Michael W. and his wife Darlene of Charlevoix and Steven F. and his wife Cynthia of Ann Arbor.

She is also survived by fourteen grandchildren, one great-grandson and one great-granddaughter, her father Floyd Genia and his wife Angeline of Charlevoix; two brothers, Anthony Genia and his wife Anne of Minn. and Floyd Genia Jr. of Charlevoix; a sister, Carole Prior and her husband, Dave of Holland; her grandmother, Rose Howe of Charlevoix; two aunts, Martina Starr and Dorothy Dyer and one uncle, Cal Peters, all of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Schmidt was preceded in death by her mother, Katherine Genia and an aunt, Lil Peters.

Visitation and a rosary was Jan. 3. Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Patricia Schultz

Patricia (Croff) Schultz, 56, of Potoskey, died Dec. 29 at her Potoskey residence.

Funeral services were Tuesday at Stone Funeral Home. The Rev. Walter Teske officiated.

Mrs. Schultz was born Feb. 9, 1943 in Potoskey, the daughter of Jv and Hazel (Dunshoe) Croff.

She grew up in Potoskey and attended Potoskey schools and graduated from Potoskey High School in 1961. Mrs. Schultz also attended Western Michigan University and Central Michigan University where she received her teaching degree.

On Aug. 19, 1967 she married George Schultz in Potoskey.

Mrs. Schultz loved life and enjoyed being with people. The most important aspect of her life was her family.

After her marriage she lived in Charlevoix, where she taught school.

Mrs. Schultz and her husband then moved to Brooksville, Fla. and she taught school until she retired. She moved back to Potoskey to be with her family and friends in 1994.

Mrs. Schultz loved to line dance and was a member of the Just for Kicks Line Dancing Club. She was also a member of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority and Zion Lutheran Church.

She is survived by two sons: Karl

Schultz and his fiancée Jennifer, both of Denver, Colo.; Erik Schultz and his wife Lisa of San Antonio, Tex. Mrs. Schultz is also survived by her parents: Jv and Hazel Croff of Potoskey; two grandchildren, Tyler and Alek; brothers and sisters: Norman Croff and wife Emma Lea of Engadine, Shirley Freeman and husband Bob of Traverse City, Lili Regmund and husband Don of Potoskey, William Croff and wife Gail of Potoskey, Phillip Croff and wife Juanita of Potoskey and many nieces and nephews.

Contributions in memory of Mrs. Schultz may be made to Hospice of Little Traverse Bay.

New doctor takes over Charlevoix eye-care practice

Dr. Steven Voci is taking over an eye-care practice in Charlevoix and East Jordan which was started almost 40 years ago by Dr. Robert Anderson. He and his family are moving from Grand Rapids to make a new home in Charlevoix. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

After forty years serving the eye-care needs of Charlevoix and East Jordan residents, Dr. Robert Anderson is passing on his optometry business to Dr. Steven A. Voci, formerly of Grand Rapids.

Voci began working at the offices — located at 103 Clinton Street in Charlevoix and 601 Bridge Street in East Jordan — Nov. 22. He has spent the last six years practicing in Grand Rapids.

Voci said he and his family are excited about their new northern Michigan home and becoming members of the community.

"My family and I have always wanted to live and work in north-western Michigan based on many vacations to the area," he said.

Voci is a 1993 graduate of the Indiana University School of Optometry and a 1989 graduate of Hope College. He is a Board Certified Optometrist, who practices comprehensive optometry care, including the treatment of eye diseases and eye injuries.

His areas of special interest are contact lenses, ocular disease and early preventative eye examinations for children. Voci is also offering his patients the ability to reach him 24-hours a day at (877) 997-3871.

He added that the offices will remain virtually the same, with the same office staff and Anderson will continue to see patients on a part-time basis.

Teams get ready for action

Fresh from the holiday break, many Charlevoix High School sports teams were gearing up for a week filled with challenges Monday.

While the Charlevoix ski-team was preparing ready for the first contest of the season, the basketball team came off a holiday break filled with lost practice time from sicknesses and family vacations.

Charlevoix Varsity Basketball Coach Keith Haske said his team did not really have any good practices over the break. Most of the time, half the team was out with the flu or off on vacation.

Haske said the team participated in a scrimmage during the break at Central Michigan University against St. Johns, Owosso and Danesville.

"I don't think we played well," he said. Haske had nine of his players at the scrimmage, but some of them were still feeling sick from the flu or had just gotten over it.

All of the players were back in school Monday and looking a little better than over the break, he added.

But due to these practices, Haske said Monday he was a little concerned about Tuesday's league opener against Harbor Springs.

"I don't think we are as prepared for this as they are," he said.

"It's an important game and I think Harbor Springs will be very prepared and fired up to try and beat us."

The results of Tuesday's game were unavailable before deadline.

Because of the late start the ski team had this year getting on the snow, Charlevoix Skiing Coach Sue Miller said she was unable to say how her team was looking as they prepared for the season opener Tuesday against Petoskey at Boyne Highlands.

Over the break, Miller said very few skiers were at the practices. Most were away on family vacations.

Miller was cautious about the season and said, "Our goal is just to make it as far as we can."

The Charlevoix High School ski team will compete at 1 p.m. Jan. 10 at Boyne Mountain and 4:30 p.m. Jan. 13 at Boyne Mountain. Varsity basketball has games scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Jan. 7 at home verses East Jordan and 7:30 p.m. Jan. 11 at home verses St. Ignace. (File Photos)

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of certain Mortgages made by HOWARD R. STONE AND CAROL A. STONE, husband and wife, whose address is 3445 Jaquay Road, Boyne City, Michigan 49712 to THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, acting through the Farmers Home Administration (now known as Rural Development), United States Department of Agriculture, with its District Office being located at 1501 Cass Street, Suite A, Traverse City, Michigan 49684, the Mortgagee, the first such Mortgage being dated December 13, 1983 and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix and the State of Michigan on December 13, 1983 in Liber 171 of Charlevoix County Records on Pages 559 through 562, inclusive, and the second such Mortgage being dated July 16, 1992 and recorded July 22, 1992 in Liber 241 of Charlevoix County Records on Pages 381 through 384, inclusive, and by reason of such default the Mortgagee elects to declare the entire unpaid amount of such Mortgages due and payable forthwith, on which Mortgages there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of NINETY-NINE THOUSAND SIX HUNDRED FIFTY-NINE AND 17/100 ($99,659.17) DOLLARS (being $67,695.13 on the first Mortgage and $31,964.04 on the second Mortgage), and no proceedings having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgages, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said the Mortgages has become operative;

Now Therefore, Notice is hereby Given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgages and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said Mortgages will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary, at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the front lobby of the Charlevoix County Building located at 301 State Street in the City of Charlevoix and County of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court in and for said County, on Thursday January 13, 2000 at 10:00 o'clock local time, in the forenoon of said day, and said premises will be sold to pay the amount so as aforesaid then due on said Mortgages together with 11.875 percent interest on the first Mortgage and 8.25 percent interest on the second Mortgage, legal costs, attorneys' fees and also any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee does pay on or prior to the date of said sale; which said premises are described in said Mortgages as follows, to-wit:

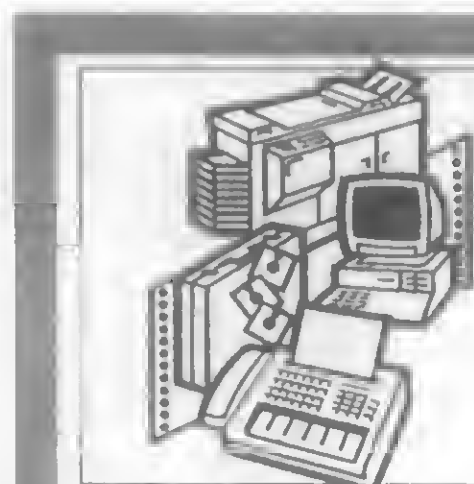

Lands and premises situated in the Township of Wilson, County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan:
Lot #1 of Amie's Acres, according to the recorded plat thereof as recorded in the Office of Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, in Liber 2 of Plats, Pages 281 and 282.

The redemption period shall be six (6) months from the date of sale unless the property is abandoned in which case the redemption period shall be thirty (30) days from the date of sale. This is an attempt to collect a debt. Any information obtained will be used for that purpose.

For further information with regard to this foreclosure contact the local office of Rural Development (formerly Farmers Home Administration), 7192 E. 34 Road, Cadillac, Michigan 49601, telephone (231)775-7681; facsimile (231)775-0938.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Charlevoix's Senior Center re-opened and resumed its normal activities. Throughout January there will be speakers every Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

Grandvue Auxiliary

Grandvue Auxiliary will not be holding its meetings in January or February.

Garden Club

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club is meeting at 7:00 p.m. on January 5, 2000 in the Charlevoix Hospital meeting room. Topic for the evening is "Not Tonight Deer" on how to deer proof your garden. Everyone is welcome.

BASES dance

BASES teen center announces the winter/spring 2000 dance schedule: Jan. 7, Jan. 21, Feb. 4, Feb. 25, March 10, March 24, April 14, May 5, May 19 and June 2. All dances run from 7 p.m.-midnight and feature D.J. "Big Daddy."

Admission is $5 and the dances are open to teens and young adults. The center features pool tables, a dart board, video games and more.

Freedom from smoking

The Community Health Education Center's popular "Freedom from Smoking" course will once again be offered this winter. The sessions will be Mondays and Wednesdays: January 10, 12, 17, 19, 24, 31 and February 7 from 7-8 p.m. The Community Health Education Center is located at 360 Connable Avenue in Petoskey across from the main entrance to Northern Michigan Hospital.

The sessions are structured to offer group support during quit-smoking efforts. "Freedom from Smoking" is a program that was developed by the American Lung Association to provide information on physical and psychological addictions, relaxation techniques, nicotine patches and weight management tips. There is no fee for this program.

For more information about "Freedom from Smoking," call HealthAccess at (800)248-6777.

Orchids for the year 2000 at the Charlevoix Area Garden Club.

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club will meet on Jan. 11 at the Charlevoix Public Library meeting room. Joan Knecht will present her fascinating orchids. The American Orchid Society has loaned Joan an interesting narrated slide presentation of our native Midwest. Hostess for this meeting will be Mona Bergeon with co-hostesses Ann Leverich, Carol MacKenzie and Cynthia Postmus. The Charlevoix Area Garden Club is a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan. For more information about the club, please call Jennette wonderful project for the public." The DNR agreed to grant $200,000 of the $315,000 land appraisal to the city. The owners agreed to donate $91,000 of the appraised value and the city paid $24,000.

Long-time summer residents, Stuart and Susan Kaufman, had owned the parcel for many years. "We acquired it for an investment," Stuart said.

But when the Kaufmans wanted to build a single-family home on the land, the city zoning board denied their request. After receiving the same answer from the zoning board of appeals, the Kaufmans filed a lawsuit against the city in circuit court in the mid-1990s. The case lingered in court for several years.

Then Josh Barnes stepped in. He was the mayor at the time and he and the Kaufmans came up with a settlement that would sell the land to the city if the city developed the land for public use. The Kaufmans liked the idea.

"We felt it was the right thing to do," Stuart said.

"We live in the community and we've gotten a lot out of it. We're giving back. I think everyone should give back to the community."

The parcel is valued higher than the appraisal taken by the DNR, he added. Their donation is in excess of a quarter million dollars.

The closing was Dec. 31. Wiesner expects preliminary work to begin this spring and the project to be completed by spring 2001.

Snowmobiles to be allowed in city

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The roar of snowmobiles means more ringing of cash registers, say supporters of the new Charlevoix snowmobile ordinance allowing the machines downtown starting Feb. 2.

Dorian MacGillivray spoke on behalf of the Convention and Visitors Bureau and the snowmobile club.

"Thank you for your attitude and your tenacity," she told council. Business will increase during the winter months when it is difficult for the downtown stores, she said.

The ordinance was passed unanimously by city council following a public hearing at the council meeting on Jan. 3.

The new ordinance designates two types of snowmobile routes and permits more routes, city attorney Jim Young said.

Resident Bob Irving of East Dixon Avenue spoke at the public hearing. He objected to allowing snowmobiles "anywhere in the city."

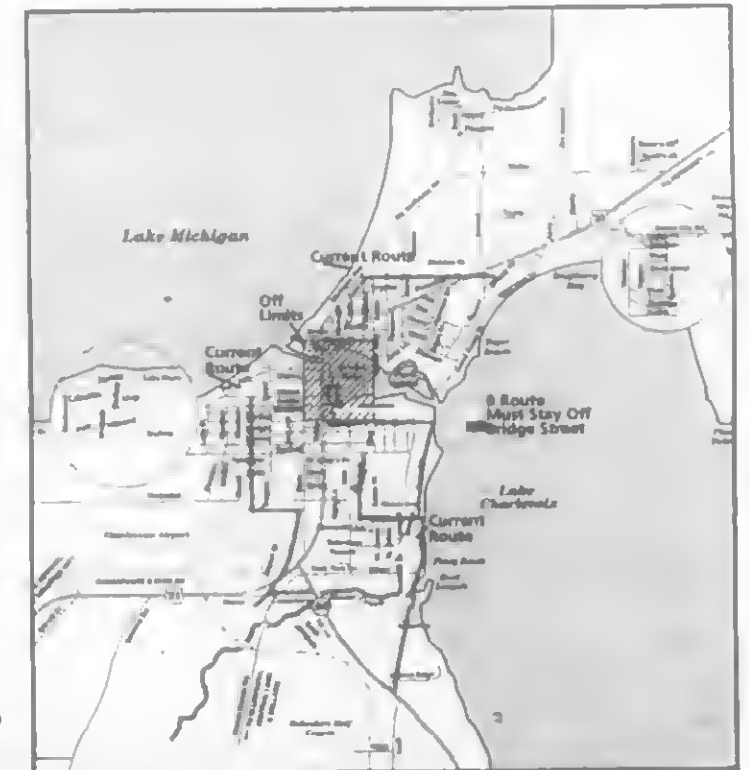

"I'm concerned about walking my dog," Irving said. He said he may not be able to do that with snowmobiles around.

"He counts on those walks, and if I can't take him, he'll be one unhappy dog."

Councilman Bill Bellows told Irving that no snowmobile routes were designated on the north side of town, other than Division Street from Michigan Avenue to Mercer Boulevard.

Few additional comments from the public were made, although councilman Norm Carlson said he had received numerous calls from his north end district residents.

Board may face recall over school land dispute

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Once again the high school study hall was standing-room-only with community members interested in the high school land site issue and once again the school board listened to both sides at its regular meeting Monday.

But when all was said and done, neither side had budged — prompting whispers of a recall.

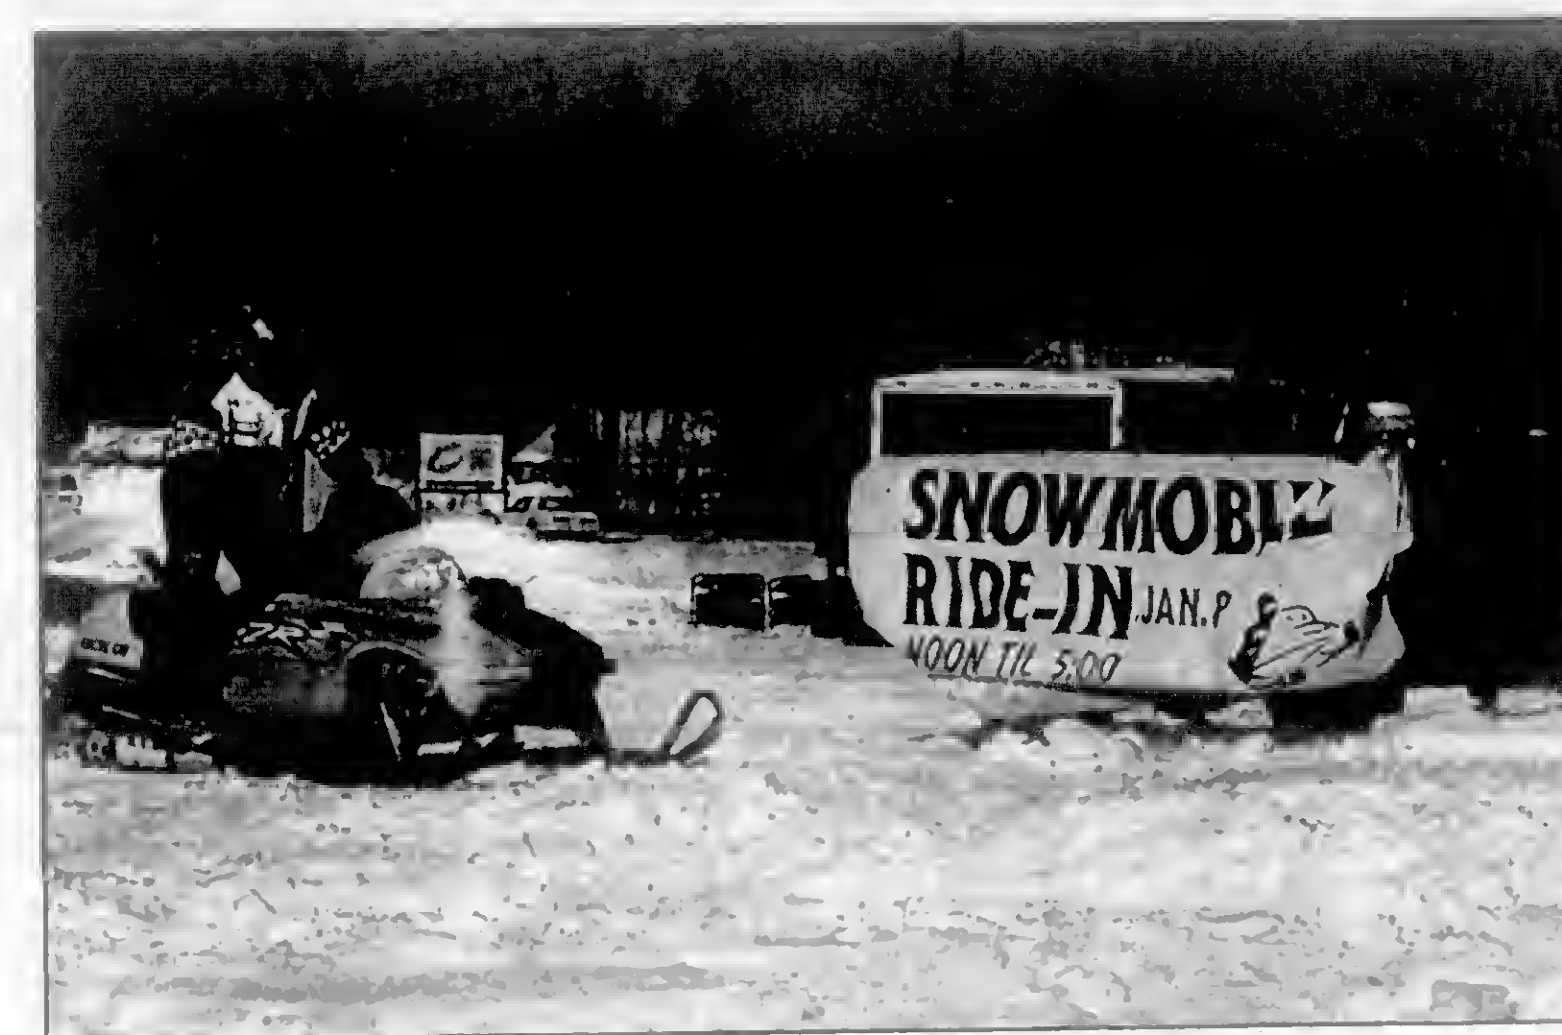

A member of the audience at a Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools meeting on Jan. 4, asked what the committee would do if it didn't get the response it was looking for from the board.

"We'll proceed with a recall," Committee Member Jeffrey Porter said.

Nancy Porter, Jeffrey's wife, said on Tuesday that they are ready to file for a recall of the seven board members, but a final decision has not been made.

"We're ready to go ahead with a recall," Nancy said. "But we're not going ahead with it unless we have the support."

Sheriff: Please keep snow out of the roadway

Charlevoix residents are being reminded to not push or leave snow in the roadway after plowing their driveways.

Sheriff George Lasater said the Michigan vehicle code states, "a person shall not deposit, or cause to be deposited, snow, ice, or slush on any roadway." These can create a hazardous situation on the roadways, which could result in a serious accident.

Lasater said generally his deputies give the offender a warning and time to remove the snow from the roadway. If they do not, they can receive a $60 citation. Sheriff deputies have been advised to make a special effort to enforce this law, Lasater said.

THE BEAUTIFUL

Local officials look ahead to the future at start of 2000

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

As the year 2000 began the Charlevoix Courier contacted city and school officials for their comments on the present and the future from their vantage point. Below are the replies.

Mike Wiesner, city manager

"The city has a multitude of construction projects coming up this year," Wiesner said.

The projects include:

- The Marion Center road extension.
- Constructing a new airport entrance.

The city is in a good financial position, Wiesner said. "Council sets money aside for new projects."

The city's fiscal year runs from April 1 to March 31. The city is in the process of finalizing its 2000 and 2001 budgets. Public hearings will be scheduled for February.

Regarding the city's population, Wiesner had these remarks:

"I would anticipate that the 2000 census will show less in population," he said. One reason is that summer people are buying second homes from permanent residents. Because these homes are not primary residences they would not count in the census. Wiesner sees this trend continuing.

"It's a desirable place to live," Wiesner said. "Especially the valley, the valley is becoming very desirable."

Another reason for the lower population is the tendency for people to move into the countryside.

"As this becomes a more popular area, people are moving farther out," Wiesner said.

As for challenges, Wiesner sees ongoing problems for the city in the hiring of summer employees.

"Hiring summer employees will get harder and harder," Wiesner predicts. A major problem is the lack of affordable housing for the young people who work during the summer.

The renovation of city hall is still in the plans, but Wiesner said the current high bid market is a factor in the delay.

A challenge for the city staff, Wiesner said, is getting the numerous projects built.

"The city should continue to encourage industry and add to its economy," he added as his direction for the city.

Alvin "Butch" Russell, Mayor Russell spoke about the city's business district.

"I think we have a council supporting business anyway they can," he said. "I'd like to see the stores downtown open year around and make it."

Tourism will grow, Russell said, and the summer activities that helps draw tourists are working well.

An important issue for the city

OPINIONS

Responsibility comes with new ordinance

The roars of snowmobile engines are coming to Charlevoix and so will money from the riders.

The passing of the new snowmobile ordinance allowing the machines in certain locations in the city, may bring some pretty good economic benefits to Charlevoix.

Snowmobiling is a growing sport in northern Michigan that brings new people to the area during a normally slow time business period. By allowing them to access the city, area businesses may see a little more money in their cash registers this winter.

However, we do recognize problems that may be associated with this new ordinance. The whine of a snowmobile's engine can be annoying at times and, unfortunately, some drivers are careless in the operation of their machines.

So, we appeal to snowmobilers to use common-sense when operating their machines near residential areas and to strictly follow the rules set forth by the ordinance. Charlevoix residents will be watching with a close eye, especially during the first few weeks of this ordinance's life. Snowmobilers must remember to drive their machines only on the designated routes and to use care when driving these routes. It does not do anyone any good when you drive at high rates of speed or try to show off by jumping your machine over snow piles, especially in populated areas.

EDITORIAL

They must also remember to respect private property and stay on the designated routes in the city. Whenever a snowmobiler damages private property, it ruins the image that property owner has about all snowmobilers.

And most importantly, it is vital that snowmobilers stay away from alcohol when operating their machines. Alcohol impairs your ability to use any type of machinery. Every winter we see many people injured or killed because they were drinking and operating a snowmobile.

City council still has the option of repealing the new ordinance and the first time someone is injured will probably spell disaster for it.

To keep this from happening, snowmobilers in Charlevoix will need to be on their best behavior.

Trees should be revered

Roger Knutson

Ancient people all over the world revered trees.

Were they just primitive in their understanding? Should we revere trees? Why? We are more likely to measure the worth of something in dollars and cents than in its spiritual value, so maybe putting a dollar value on trees would help us see whether they are worth our reverence.

We need to know exactly what it is that trees are doing in order to assign any sort of value. To the world's more ancient cultures, trees were spiritual beings, a constant and almost eternal presence. We know enough about how the world works to assign our own value to the activities of trees, although only ecologists are likely to measure the important things that trees are doing for us.

We will start with the obvious: it's cooler in the shade of a tree than it is out in the bright sun. How much cooler depends on how much breeze there is and just how warm the air is. Would Charlevoix be cooler in the summer if we had more trees? The answer is yes. And even if our town was just the slightest cooler, all those air conditioners working just a little less in the summer would not only save money for each of us, but help the world with its energy problems.

As chemical factories, trees and all other plants manage not only to produce wood, leaves and food, they also manufacture large quantities of oxygen while removing carbon dioxide from the air. Both those gaseous products are vital to our survival, but in different ways. Five minutes without oxygen and we perish. A world with too much carbon dioxide heats up and cooks itself. The predicted global warming is the product of a very small increase in the amount of carbon dioxide, caused at least in part by the removal of trees from large parts of the world's surface. How much are carbon dioxide and oxygen worth? A machine that increases the oxygen in the air for patients with breathing problems can be rented for $350 a month. And no imaginable number of such machines would be able to make the amount of oxygen that is released daily from a small stand of healthy trees. We can remove carbon dioxide from the air in similarly expensive ways, but cannot imaginably remove as much as that same small stand of trees.

As a side effect of being able to capture carbon dioxide, trees also are able to remove atmospheric pollutants like carbon monoxide. Carbon monoxide is a deadly poison. Trees and other plants remove it from the air.

A single corn plant during its short summer life may evaporate into the air 1,000 pounds of water and trees perform the same service on a much larger scale. Those of us who live very near a lake know how much more pleasant the air is with water vapor in it. Deserts are not as pleasant. Trees not only cool our air, but condition it.

The ancient people who revered trees were exactly right with their belief that trees held the world together. Without the binding effect of tree roots, devastating floods like those in Venezuela recently are a logical expectation. With trees, no floods. Without trees, uncontrollable floods.

Trees hold the world together and make it livable, even if we discount their aesthetic appeal. Does the world need more trees? Does Charlevoix need more trees? The answer has to be yes in both cases.

School board's process failed

Editor:

I have watched with interest the dispute over which property to locate our new high school on. In my opinion, the process used by the school board committee to select a site was flawed, therefore, the site selection was also flawed.

The site selection process was developed by the facilities steering committee on which I served. Several categories were chosen to facilitate a fair and unbiased selection.

Eleven properties were evaluated and Marion Center Road was selected as the number one site.

In my opinion, the selection was a mistake and was not a fair and unbiased process.

biased process. If a certain site was preferred, simply give it higher numbers.

Initially the school board charged the facilities committee to compile and present three facility recommendations. The board would then review and select one for a vote. When the board discovered the facilities committee favored a new high school, which was also the board's choice, they changed their request to our committee to then present them with only a new high school recommendation. The board did not seek the same recommendation from our committee relative to their site selection.

The new result is four people have chosen the site for our new $15,000,000 high school.

The solution is clear. We the voters need to go back to the polls and choose "our" site. My recommendation is a two-site ballot between the Marion Center site and the Hoffman property. Let the people speak.

Don't accept the dish being served by the school board

Dr. Jeffrey Porter

In regards to the editorial, "The decision has been made, leave the kitchen," in the Dec. 29 issue of the Charlevoix Courier, a discussion of the facts may lead the editor and the readers to a different conclusion.

Through the Freedom of Information Act the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools was able to obtain and piece together the story of the site selection process for the new Charlevoix High School.

"You say 'the school board did extensive research on finding a site.'" They did not speak to any realtors or owners about the Hoffman site or the Erber site. School officials only sought one site, selected in June, the Marion Center/Veenstra Road site.

"You say the site selection process included 'a public forum.'" In fact, at the Community Forum on March 9, 1999, there was overwhelming community interest in keeping the location of any new school in town.

"Subsequently, in June, a committee of four, three school board members and 'Chef' Sturrock — Charlevoix Schools Superintendent John Sturrock — made the final decision, a cornfield three miles south of town."

"In July, 'Chef' Sturrock sent a mailing to the public that reversed this public process. His report stated, 'Abandon the community survey...we feel that educating the public to make an informed choice on a survey is almost impossible. A survey...is very risky.'"

"Purchase of this property was authorized at a "special meeting" of the school board at 5 p.m. Sept. 17, 1999 — this is the only time a school board meeting was ever on a Friday afternoon. The public was given only the required 18-hour public notification and a small press notice that appeared the same day in the Petoskey News-Review. After discussing the proposed site in closed session, they returned to open session and a motion was made to purchase the property at 5:23 p.m. At 5:26 p.m. the meeting was adjourned. This was the only time, we are told, for the public to ask questions about the site and the pending purchase. Only two members of the public attended, both connected with the school and three invited members of the press. In essence there was no public meeting.

"Prior to the Oct. 11 bond referendum, Charlevoix school voters received information from the Board of Education through a fact sheet mailed to all postal patrons in the district, an article in a Traverse City newspaper, an article in the Charlevoix Courier and literature distributed by a committee assisting the passage of the bond — Citizens for Quality Schools — saying that the Board of Education had purchased the property for the proposed high school. In fact, they did not purchase the property until Nov. 15, 34 days after the election when the warranty deed was registered with the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds. The school board made no effort to correct this misinformation."

"The location of the site was withheld from the voters until the last minute. Instead, the public was first informed of the site by a Petoskey News-Review article dated Sept. 22, 17 days before the Oct. 11 election.

"The school board never revealed the terms of the deed to the public or the press. Only after the election did the public become aware that the warranty deed disclosed a number of restrictions and covenants."

"The school board has refused to publicly answer questions about the warranty deed and their relationship with the developer. It has also not publicly addressed concerns about safety of the site, the high utility costs and resulting impact of urban growth/sprawl on the Charlevoix community."

"Only through the Freedom of Information Act was this information about the site evaluation process obtained, but not until after the election."

According to municipal law specialist, Dykema Gossett, because the site location did not appear on the ballot and was not "voted on" by the taxpayers, the school board is not bound to any particular site. Only a bond issue was approved for $18.825 million or $33.1 million with interest.

"There is no current conflict of interest policy in the agenda at the school board meetings."

Instead of accepting the pap on the menu served up by these "Chefs," the public — who will pay the bill — is patiently waiting in the dining room and deserves respect, truth, information, service and the finest site available.

Thanks for the support

Editor:

On behalf of Charlevoix Children's House, a Montessori school, I would like to thank the many supporters who made our first Holiday Dinner and Auction a smashing success. Parents, school board, staff and community members all worked together, helping us raise money that will benefit the children through materials and supplies for our classroom.

It was great fun and it was all for the children.

Letter rebuttal

Editor:

Recently a letter to the editor by Nan Vandenberg intimated that we and/or our non-profit consulting firm, Porter & Associates, were being paid for our time and services in the campaign to seek a superior site for the new high school.

While it is true we have spent many hours on this project, neither Porter & Associates, Inc. nor we, individually, have been compensated by any individual(s) or compensated by the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools. We as volunteers along with committee members, attorneys, contractors, engineers, etc., have provided our time and expertise, pro bono publico (for the good of the public).

Our dedication and that of a thousand other people in the community stems from a true feeling of community concern and safety of the Marion Center/Veenstra Road site, compounded by the lack of credible information being provided by the school board and administration.

We would like the public to know, "At no time have I (we) received in the past or expect to receive in the future any monetary compensation or financial benefit from this campaign to seek a new site for the high school or from the chosen site. Our relatives have not financially benefited now, nor in the future will benefit for our actions or the actions of the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools. Our friends or business associates have not, nor will in the future, benefit from our actions."

50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Burke

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Burke celebrated their 50th anniversary at a dinner party hosted by their children and grandchildren. The Dec. 19 event was in the Pine Room at the Weathervane Inn.

Darleen Holecheck of Norwood and Edmund Burke of Charlevoix were married Dec. 19, 1949, at the Methodist parsonage in East Jordan by the Rev. Howard Moore. Their attendants were Donald Holecheck, brother of the bride, and Roberta Empey cousin of the bride.

Mr. Burke retired from the Michigan State Police as a sergeant in 1990. Mrs. Burke retired from Tube Fab of Afton in 1993, where she worked in the accounting department.

The Burkes have four children: son, Edmund (Vicki) Burke Jr. of Lansing and their children, Edmund IV and Shannon; son, Alan Layne (Sheila) of Charlevoix and their children, Tyler Alan and Kassie Ryan; daughter, Glenda (Ronald) Nelson of Dayton, Ohio, and their children, Jackie, Douglas, Katie and Kelly; and daughter, Kathy Ann (James) Boyer of Elk Rapids and their children, Drew Christopher and Dana, who is deceased.

Local housing organization gets awards to help needy

In response to needed housing in Charlevoix and Emmet counties for low income families, the Charlevoix Emmet Housing Coalition has been awarded about $269,000.

The money came from a $169,050 award from a U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and a $100,000 award from the Michigan State Housing Authority.

It will be used by the coalition to purchase two homes in Charlevoix County and one home in Emmet County. The homes will be used in the coalition's transitional housing program that provides a family with a home for up to one year, while teaching them self-sufficiency, said Vicki Morgan, executive director of the coalition.

The coalition will also use the money to pay for a full-time administrator to teach the participants: budgeting, employment training and placement, child care search and placement, education advancement, first time home buyer training and tenant responsibility training.

"There is just not enough affordable housing out there. We are seeing more and more families homeless in our area," said Morgan. "We have seen a very high level of housing and not enough affordable housing."

Morgan said there are some private developers who are interested in building affordable housing in the area, but they have, unfortunately, faced some challenges by local resident's who are not very receptive to outsiders building in their communities.

What people don't realize is low income housing may actually help those already living in their community.

Most of the people Morgan said she is seeing as homeless are not people from other areas, but locals who lost their homes and are sometimes forced to live in state parks during the winter. This award will allow the coalition the ability to help five of these families in Charlevoix and Emmet.

"Affordable housing also has a perception that low income people will live there and not take care of it. I can assure you, our people take care of their things," Morgan added.

Charlevoix's Gilbert authors wedding guide for today's couples

Edith Gilbert

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Edith Gilbert achieves another first with her new book, "The Complete Wedding Planner."

The second revised edition to her original wedding book published in 1983, is expanded to address second weddings — the first book to do so.

Gilbert's original wedding planner book was the first book to give advice on weddings since before the 1940s. That popular book has led to inquiries about second weddings.

"My motivation to update the book was receiving more than 4,000 wedding etiquette questions on the e-mail," Gilbert said.

The new edition addresses second wedding questions, such as involving children from previous marriages, divorced in-laws, and open adoptions.

This edition addresses practical second wedding questions and situations. Chapters include advice for "Children's Role in a Second Marriage," "The Wedding Gown and The Pregnant Bride," "Stepparents and Biological Parents," "If the Bride's Father is a Widower," and "If the Bride's Divorced Parents are Both Remarried and are Cohosting the Wedding."

Gilbert stresses that this edition, as with the original book, is written for the bride and groom as a couple, instead of addressing only the bride and her mother. Edith Gilbert is the author of five books. She is also a columnist for newspapers, including the Charlevoix Courier.

Official Notice

ORDINANCE #654

AN ORDINANCE TO SPECIFY DESIGNATED SNOWMOBILE ROUTES, TO ALLOW SPECIAL EVENTS INVOLVING SNOWMOBILES AND TO REGULATE THE OPERATION OF SNOWMOBILES WITHIN THE CITY BY AMENDING CHAPTER 10 OF THE UNIFORM TRAFFIC CODE WHICH HAS BEEN ADOPTED BY THE CITY. AMENDMENTS TO THE UNIFORM TRAFFIC CODE ARE FOUND IN CHAPTER 145 OF TITLE X OF THE CITY CODE.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. The following provisions of Section 10.3 Additional regulations of the Uniform Traffic Code and which is located in Chapter 145 of Title X of the City Code are amended or added as follows:

Section 10.3 Additional Regulations. In addition to State law which pertains to snowmobiles, the following provisions shall apply to snowmobiles operating within the City of Charlevoix.

(1) Snowmobiles may only be operated within the City of Charlevoix as shown in the map denominated "Designated Snowmobile Routes within the City of Charlevoix." That map shall depict two types of designated snowmobile routes which are Type A routes and a Type B route and areas where snowmobiles may park. Type A routes consist of the following streets:

(a) Division Street from Michigan Avenue to Mercer Boulevard
(b) Sherman Street to Charlo Street to Carpenter Street, along the east perimeter fence of the Charlevoix Airport to US 31.
(c) The Garfield/May Street intersection south on May Street to Eaton Avenue to Ferry Avenue to Stover Road

The Type B route consists of the following areas: Ferry Avenue from the intersection of Eaton Avenue and Ferry Avenue and Belvedere Avenue from its intersection with Ferry Avenue to the downtown snowmobile area. The downtown snowmobile area is located south of the Clinton Street right of way, east of the Bridge Street right of way, north of the Belvedere Avenue right of way and west of Round lake.

(3) When a snowmobile is normally stored at a location in the City which is not on a Designated Snowmobile Route, the snowmobile may be operated only on the most direct route to or from a Designated Snowmobile Route.

(5) A snowmobile may be operated on a Type A route only for the purpose of ingress to the City of Charlevoix or egress from the City of Charlevoix. A snowmobile may be operated on the Type B route to access a residence, a business or municipal parking area directly adjacent to the route or at the end of the route, or to return from a residence, business or municipal parking area directly adjacent to the route or at the end of the route.

(14) No Snowmobile may be operated on any street, including any Designated Snowmobile Route, from 11:00 p.m. to 7:00 a.m.

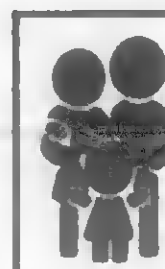

(15) A snowmobile may be operated on a City street or an area within the City open to the general public for a special event of limited duration conducted according to a prearranged schedule submitted to the City Council and after obtaining a permit from the City Council. The permit may designate which streets and/or areas may be used for snowmobiles, set hours of operation, and impose such other conditions as the Council determines are appropriate.

(16) From December 1 through March 31 of each year, snowmobiles may be parked on snow covered ground in the downtown snowmobile area.

SECTION 2. Sections 10.3(2), 10.3 (4), 10.3 (6), 10.3 (7), 10.3 (9), 10.3 (10), 10.3 (11), 10.3 (12) and 10.3 (13) are unchanged.

SECTION 3. Effective Date

This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its enactment.

BEACONS

By FR. JIM GUNN
Rector, Christ Episcopal Church

As I thought about the privilege of writing my first contribution to this series, I was struck by the very title - "Beacons of Blessings."

After deciding to look up beacon in my dictionary, I found that the following was given as one possible definition: "a source of light or inspiration." It seems to me that it would be a wonderful way to start into this new millennium by praying that each of our congregations would become a true beacon of blessing - a source of light and inspiration to all those around. Our churches may become that kind of source if each of us stands willing and ready to witness to the light, show forth the light and live under the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

In our lectionary for the Sunday after Christmas, one of the lessons we read is John 1:1-18. In this so-called prologue, John talks about Jesus' eternal presence with the Father before he came to dwell among us and accomplish the work of salvation. John also describes the ministry of John the Baptist - a ministry in which all of us truly share. "He came as a witness to testify concerning that light, so that through him all men might believe. He himself was not the light; he came only as a witness to the light." (John 1:7-8, NIV) When we speak of our Lord and the ways he has affected and blessed our life, then we are a witness to the light and a beacon of blessing to those who have not heard of the light.

There is a story about a little boy who was asked the question, "Who are the saints?" His answer was, "They are the people that light shines through." He meant, of course, that they are the people he had seen pictured in stained glass windows, but his answer was more true than he realized.

Saints in the biblical sense of those who are followers of Jesus Christ are most being saints when they are showing forth the true image of Jesus himself. In that same passage from John that I mentioned above, we are told, "We have seen his glory, the glory of the One and Only, who came from the Father, full of grace and truth." (John 1:14b, NIV) Paul tells us in 2 Corinthians 3:18, that we who have seen that glory are being transformed by it into the likeness of Jesus Christ. When the glory of Christ is at work within us, then we shine forth the light and are a beacon of blessing to those who live in darkness.

To live under the guidance of the Holy Spirit is to live with that new life within you that can only be brought by the Spirit. In 2 Timothy 3:16, Paul tells us that all Scripture is inspired by God but the New International Version actually gives the more literal rendering by saying, "All Scripture is God-breathed." God's word has had life breathed into it and we too receive the breath of new life when we respond to the message of salvation set forth in His word. That breath of new life comes when we receive the gift of the Holy Spirit, the "other comforter" of whom Jesus spoke.

When the Spirit guides and directs us by the new life that He breathes within us, then we breathe that new life into the world about us and are a beacon of blessing to those who are gasping for air.

So, in this new millennium, let us each proclaim the presence of the light in what we say, show forth the light in what we do and give spiritual CPR to the world so we may truly be beacons of blessing!

The two types of routes are known as Type A and Type B. Type A routes consist of the following streets:

• Division Street from Michigan Avenue to Mercer Boulevard.

• Sherman Street to Charlo Street to Carpenter Street, along the east perimeter fence of the Charlevoix airport to U.S. 31.

• The Garfield and May Streets intersection, south on May Street to Eaton Avenue to Ferry Avenue to Stover Road.

The Type B route consists of the following areas:

Ferry Avenue from the intersection of Eaton Avenue and Ferry Avenue to the downtown snowmobile area. The downtown snowmobile area is located south of the Clinton Street right-of-way, east of the Bridge Street right-of-way, north of the Belvedere Avenue right-of-way and west of Round Lake.

Snowmobiles are prohibited from operating on any street between the hours of 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. Snowmobiles may be parked on snow-covered ground in the downtown designated area from Dec. 1 - March 31.

The new snowmobile ordinance also allows for and regulates special events. A permit must be obtained from city council.

Copies of the ordinance and a route map may be obtained at the city clerk's office.

Charlevoix in the future

and the surrounding community is the eventual purchase of land for an industrial park. Russell said he does not know when a purchase may take place.

He blames this on "sky-rocketing" property values. Russell added he would like to see 40 to 70 acres of land for the park, saying it would help the area's youth.

"We want to create the park to attract manufacturing businesses so the kids can stay in town and have a job here," he said.

John Sturock, Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent

"I'm really excited, we have a lot of great changes happening at our schools," Sturock said.

"We're pleased with the opportunity to take care of the facilities improvements. The people have given a tremendous gift and opportunity to update the facilities that serve our students' needs for years to come."

Plans for the year 2000 include analyzing and working on the curriculum. The schools will plan for the future by using research and data trends for dealing with technology to keep the students competitive, Sturock said.

Sturock spoke about concerns for the immediate future and the land site for the new high school.

"We hope to work through the school site issue and move on, and bring the community together," Sturock said.

Steve Bennett, Northwest Academy Administrator

"I feel really good about the school," Bennett said. "About the direction we're going in, the kids we service, and the teachers. I'm really positive about the school and the staff."

The academy is working closer than ever with North Central Michigan College (NCMC) towards dual enrollment, Bennett said.

"We'll be working with NCMC more. We'd like to see a satellite at the school so classes can be held at the school," he said.

Bennett also sees a need for expanded buildings and constructing new buildings.

"Space is at a premium right now," he said. "There's no extra room and we're thinking of expanding to lower grades K through five."

Bennett hopes that Northwest Academy and Charlevoix Public Schools will have a better working relationship in the future.

"I have good communication with John Sturock," Bennett said. "But the school board ignores us. I hope we can work through this, because we're here to stay."

School board faces heat over high school

The committee will have a meeting soon to discuss a recall with its supporters and then make a decision.

Board president Allen Telgenhof noted at Monday's meeting, in three or four prior meetings prior the land issue was discussed.

Board member Barney Way agreed. "All of the facts presented were already reviewed," Way said. "We've looked at all of this — it's not new." Way said he was referring to the suggestions of the committee and its opposition to the board's choice of 74-acres of land on Marion Center Road, between Clark and Veenstra roads.

"It was a tough choice," Way said about the Marion Center Road site. "But we're looking at what's best for Charlevoix 10 to 15 years away. In the long-run, the whole community will benefit."

Jeffrey doesn't think so. He cites the urban sprawl that will occur in the area, and the infrastructure expenses to prepare the site, such as sewer and water.

Jeffrey and other supporters prepared a petition that stated dissatisfaction with the land site, and asked the board to consider a site closer to the City of Charlevoix. He told the board that they have 1,070 signatures of registered voters.

"I am disappointed that the board didn't answer any questions," Jeffrey said after the meeting. "I hope the board will seriously consider the two proposals, and seriously consider the fact that about 1,100 voters had enough interest to sign a petition and show up at the meeting."

Jeffrey said he will continue with the committee's campaign even though it's hard work, because he continues to see interest in the issue. "We're making in-roads," he said. "If I didn't think we were educating the people, it wouldn't be worth it. But we have the support of people who have been with the committee all along, and we're seeing new people."

Joanne Curtis is one of the supporters of the committee. At the meeting she told board members that many people voted yes on the ballot, even though they may not have liked the land site, because what was paramount for them were new school facilities for the students.

"Again, please reconsider the site on Marion Center Road," Curtis said. But Board Member Scott Boss said he is hearing from people who tell him not to reconsider.

"People tell me not to waffle," Boss said. "We'd be taking the vote away from people. The vote was for the land as well as for the facilities."

Board Member Dennis Halverson also stayed the course and spoke for the board's decision.

"I'm satisfied with the process we undertook and the level of input asked for and given," he said. The process used and the input came from the direction of the school facilities committee that worked last summer to develop a site criteria.

"They developed a method to keep politics out of it and do what's best for the kids and the taxpayers," Halverson said. "We used a format from the facilities committee and conducted an objective evaluation of what was out there. We used that criteria and it made it easy to work through the process. They (the committee) still haven't presented a comprehensive plan."

Halverson spoke about what was next for the board. "We're proceeding with an architect and having meetings to get the students out of inferior educational facilities. It's a tough issue, but we've done our homework — it's full speed ahead."

A school board informational mailing will be out shortly to the community. The mailing addresses some of the questions and concerns of residents.

School district voters approved a $18,825,000 bond issue October 11. The funds will go for a new high school on a new site, renovation of the former high school for middle school students, and renovations to the elementary school. The land site was not on the ballot. It was announced at a special board meeting on Sept. 17.

The committee is asking the board to reconsider its decision and to look at two alternatives it says are better and less expensive. One is the Hoffman property located on Waller and Martin roads near U.S. 31 North. The other is to build a new high school on its current site and rebuild the middle school.

GOOD FOUNDATION

What Charlevoix Can Show Up in Material Assets and Natural Advantages

Charlevoix has, approximately, 3,000 population, and for its size, claims to be fully up-to-date in all that constitutes a desirable town in which to reside or do business.

Charlevoix owns and operates its own lighting plant-- an establishment costing $15,000, modern in every feature, and more than paying running expenses.

Charlevoix has a water system second to none in quality of equipment, or in volume or quality of water supply -- in quantity it is practically inexhaustible, and in quality chemically perfect.

Charlevoix has public schools that are its pride and boast. It has school property of a value of $35,000, inclusive of a central school building costing, with real estate $25,000. It has two modern ward buildings, with large grounds and excellent equipment. The system has a corps of thirteen teachers.

Charlevoix has five church societies, all with good church edifices.

Charlevoix has forty-five business establishments, and all prospering.

This is for material assets.

Charlevoix has, besides these, the substantial basis for a greater wealth and prosperity than that now possessed.

Charlevoix has a fine harbor, under government control and care, and an interior navigable coast of nearly 80 miles.

Charlevoix has in with its excellent railroad facilities, a navigable coast line of two miles running parallel to the C. & W. M. tracks, nearly all available for manufacturing purposes.

Charlevoix is contiguous to a country that will furnish forest products for manufacturing purposes for the next quarter of a century.

Charlevoix possesses every advantage for a variety of business and manufacturing enterprises, and solicits investigation.

Charlevoix is a good town to live in, and a good town to live a long healthy life in.

Look the matter up! Come and see us!

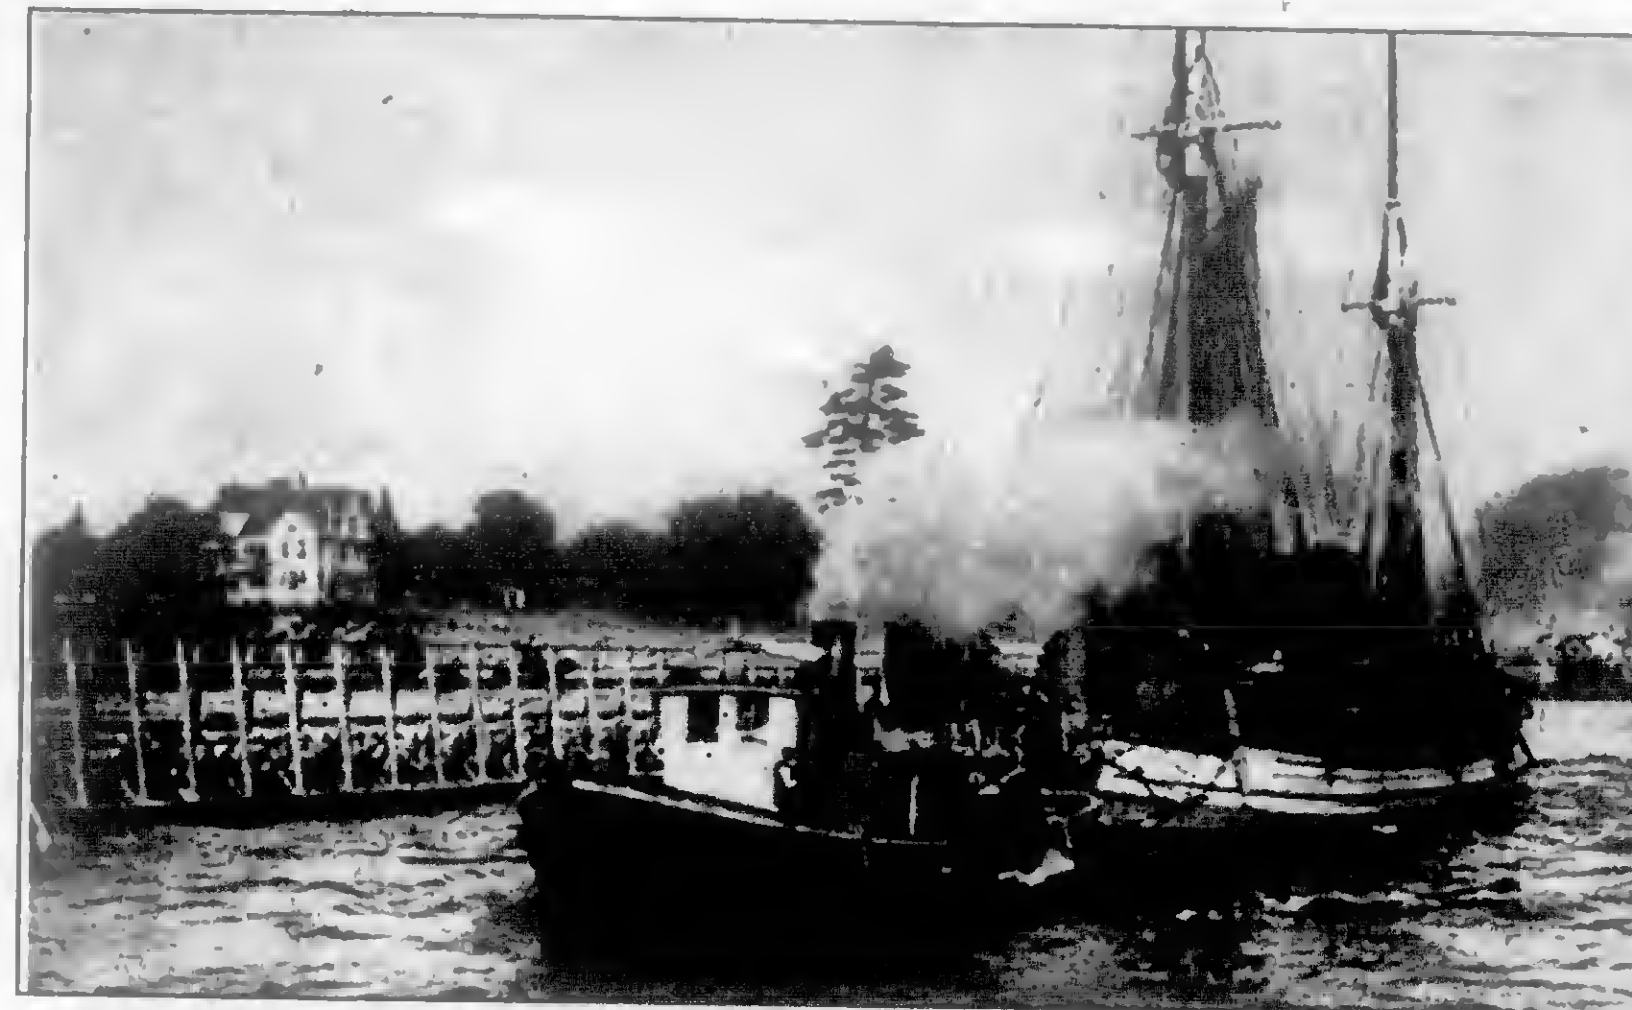

Marine Notes

The schooner Maine will, this winter, receive new decks and deck beams.

Capt. Wm. Cross, acting as ship carpenter for the occasion, is doing some good work on John O'Neill's tug Green. Her decks are being raised, which will be new, and other work will be done to make her nearly a new tug.

SCRAPBOOK

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, January 12, 2000 - PAGE 19

The steamer Joe came over from St. James Sunday on her last trip. She encountered a field of ice about half-way over, and in wrestling with it broke her rudder post. She made this port all right, made temporary repairs and returned Sunday night.

Capt. J. N. Gallagher left St. James last Wednesday with the fishing tug Ellen Gertrude for Au Sable. She laid in the ice all that night off St. Helena, reaching Mackinaw City the next day, from which point Capt. Gallagher wired. It is quite probable that the boat reached her destination all right.

After a fierce struggle with huge floating ice, two of the Grand Haven fishing fleet which got pinched in the ice last week were rescued and taken into port Thursday. The third was just inside the Harbor and jammed against the pier by the ice and was subsequently saved. The steamer Nyack started to their assistance Tuesday but could not get outside, as the harbor entrance was blocked with ice. During the night the wind shifted and started the mass of ice, with the three imprisoned vessels toward port. Early Thursday morning the ice crusher Field went out and succeeded in freeing two of the boats. Two of the tugs, the Augur and the Boas, had fish aboard and cooked some of them, but the Anna had none, so her men went without eating.

Editorial

— Don't deceive yourself with the notion that Dec. 31, 1899 closes the 19th century. It takes 100 years to make a century and Dec. 31st closes the 99th year. January 1, 1901 is the beginning of the 20th century. But, nevertheless, Jan. 1, 1900 is a good time to make partial amends for past foolishness. Try to be good the closing year of the century, and you will be in all the better shape for 20th century resolutions. You probably will not live out the century, but your children may and your grandchildren probably will. Leave to them the heritage of a good name. Then again, your example is an influence on the 20th century. You may think that is a joke; it is not. There is not an individual on earth who does not influence posterity, either along the lines of personal example or heredity. In the coming 365 days of the closing of the century, think less of yourself and the frivolities of life, and more of the happiness of others. Make the impress of your personality upon the dawning century good and not evil. Bring hope and peace and joy to the loved ones of your kin; wipe away tears, bring smiles; make others happy, thereby bringing happiness to yourself. Young man, daring 1900, be manly, and don't quit in 1901. From the aggregate of evil in the world, subtract yourself, and swell the good that blesses the world, by your manly personality. There is comfort, happiness, health, and money in it.

Editor's note: These stories and picture from the Charlevoix Sentinel were compiled by Cynthia Postmus of the Charlevoix library. The first story was published Jan. 10, 1900. The marine notes were from the Jan. 17, 1900 edition and the editorial is from the Dec. 27, 1899 issue.

YOUR CHAMBER MONTHLY

INTRODUCING Your Chamber Monthly

Yes! Once a month, in your Charlevoix Courier, you will be able to find out what's going on in the Charlevoix area business community. The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce will provide the content which will include such things as upcoming Chamber events; new members & directors; award recipients; a monthly poll or survey; results of contests, raffles, tournaments, & polls; and many other items of interest to the community. For more information on content or to add your event contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Advertising and layout will be handled by the advertising department of the Charlevoix Courier. For more information on advertising contact Kim Taylor at the Charlevoix Courier, 231-547-6558.

Thank you! to the Charlevoix Country Club and all of the contributing area businesses and individuals for the FANTASTIC New Year's Eve fireworks display!

KEEP THE CHAMBER INFORMED

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce produces a Calendar of Events, which is seen by both visitors and community members. The chamber needs to hear from businesses, clubs and organizations, churches, etc., who sponsor events in the area to keep us informed of such happenings. Please keep us in mind when you are involved in sponsoring or hosting a local event. Let us know all the pertinent details so we can include them in our events calendar which is updated regularly, so it is never too late to be included. Also, the Chamber lists your event on-line for even more exposure. As you can see, it is beneficial to your group or organization to inform the chamber of upcoming events so that we are able to get the word out and improve your event's attendance.

School board faces recall over land

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Board of Education members are facing a recall drive by a citizens' committee angered by the board's choice of a site for the new high school, and by its refusal to reconsider its decision.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools filed a request with the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office on Jan. 12, to recall five of the seven school board members.

Board president Allen Telgenhof took the recall news in stride.

"I'm not surprised," he said. Targeted for recall are Telgenhof, Dennis Halverson, Barney Way, Arden Wieland, and Scott Boss.

By state law two board members may not be recalled because they are too close to the end of their

"I think it's sour grapes and they're bad losers. I'd be surprised if there is a recall."

School board member terms, which end in June. They are Larry Levengood and Mike MacMillan.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools is against the 74-acre site on Marion Center Road chosen by the school board for building the new high school. It states that building the school at that site will cause urban sprawl and that students will be too far from the city. The site in Marion township is 2.7 miles from Charlevoix.

Committee Member Jeffrey Porter said that the group is concerned about the safety of students and others, stating that the Marion Center Road is unsafe for driving.

Another concern is the cost of bringing in sewer and electric, committee supporters state.

The committee has two alternative sites it wants the board to consider. Both sites will be less expensive and keep the students in the community, Porter argued.

One is known as the Hoffman property located at Waller and Martin roads, near U.S. 31 North. The other site is working with the current high school site.

But the board has declined to consider alternative sites.

"I think what we're doing is the right thing," Telgenhof said. "This board is doing a good job. No one says this is the perfect site. I wish there were 80 acres in town, but there isn't."

Porter states that another reason for the recall drive is that the board has refused to enter into a public dialogue at a board meeting.

"We would like certain questions answered," Porter said. "The board has said it will not answer questions (at a board meeting)."

When a board member is asked a question outside of a board meeting, they say they are speaking as an individual and not for the board, Porter said.

"We'd like the board members to stand up and answer questions as a board," Porter said.

But the board's policy manual does not require it to consent to that format.

Chamber names Citizen of the Year at annual meeting

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

After a lifetime of caring for his community, the late Donald "Meg" Meggison was honored Jan. 13 at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Annual Meeting as the "Citizen of the Year."

Donald's family was present at the meeting to accept the award. Donald, who died in July, was an extremely active lifelong resident of Charlevoix.

In addition to serving on the Charlevoix City Council from 1992 to 1998, Donald was a volunteer fireman for over 40 years, a basketball referee and football umpire, a diver, a member of the Lions Club, a World War II veteran and the owner of a gas station, repair and towing service in Charlevoix. He also helped load mail onto the Beaver Island boats for several years, was an avid bowler and fisherman and was well known for his chicken recipe.

"He did about everything a man could do in his lifetime," said his daughter Barb Swanson. "There isn't much he wasn't into."

Donald was so well known for the help he gave to people, whenever someone in town did not know who else to go to, they knew they could always count on Donald, said Helen, his wife of 53 years. And no matter what the challenge was in helping the person, Donald would face it.

His family tells of a time when Donald was called in to help pull a house out of Round Lake one winter. The owner of the house had been towing it across the frozen lake when it fell through.

Of all the people at the scene, Donald refused to give up and he alone with his wrecker, "The Beast," was the only one able to pull that house from the water, Swanson said.

Helen added Donald and his wrecker were always available when someone needed them. He rarely turned someone down and it didn't matter if they had money for his services, Donald still would give them help.

While he loved his family deeply, Donald had an additional love — Charlevoix. It was the town he was born in and later the town he would die in, throughout it all he stayed and was a vital part of its community.

"He never wanted to leave," Helen said. "We couldn't get him away, even for vacations."

In his effort to give to his community, Donald became interested in city government and served on the city council.

Garden Club announces winners of poster contest

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club recently announced the winners of its 1999 poster contest open to elementary school and middle school students in Charlevoix.

Sahr Siddiqi, a fourth grader at Charlevoix Elementary School, was the overall winner of the "In My Garden" contest and Nikki Bryant, also a fourth grader at Charlevoix Elementary School, was the overall winner of the "Smokey the Bear" contest.

Overall winners will receive a $50 savings bond.

The garden club sponsored two contests to conform to those of the National Federation of Garden Clubs. The traditional contest "Smokey the Bear and Woody the Owl" was included with the second contest, "In My Garden — Birds, Bugs and/or Butterflies."

Students from St. Mary's Elementary School, Charlevoix Elementary School and sixth graders at Charlevoix Middle School created posters depicting these themes.

First place winners from each grade were sent to the state garden club for judging. At the local level, each grade's first, second and third place winners will be honored with tea in May. The posters will be displayed in local businesses as part of Earth Day.

Over 170 posters were entered in this year's contest. The winners in each grade are as follows:

First Grade
•First place In My Garden went to Kathryn Snell of St. Mary's. First place in Smokey the Bear went to William Larsen of Charlevoix Elementary School.

Second Grade
•First place In My Garden went to Madeline Jeakle of St. Mary's. First place in Smokey the Bear went to Jake Waterman of Charlevoix Elementary School.

Third Grade

•First place In My Garden went to Jennie Withers of Charlevoix Elementary School. First place in Smokey the Bear went to Katie Withrow of Charlevoix Elementary School.

Fourth Grade

•First place In My Garden went to Sahr Siddiqi of Charlevoix Elementary School. First place in Smokey the Bear went to Corinna Parish of Charlevoix Elementary School.

Fifth Grade

•First place In My Garden went to Melanie Hawkins of Charlevoix Elementary School. First place in Smokey the Bear went to Corinna Parish of Charlevoix Elementary School.

Sixth Grade

•First place went to Jill Weihelm of Charlevoix Middle School.

Support services offered for parents with adopted children

Petoskey — Post adoption support services for parents who adopted children with special needs are available to residents of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau and Wexford counties.

The services are provided by Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan through a federal grant administered by the Michigan Family Independence Agency.

Participation is open to anyone who has adopted a child with special needs regardless of placement agency. Services are provided locally and include support and education groups, mentoring opportunities, recreational activities, conferences on adoption issues and resource information, such as books, periodicals and videos. For more information call Greg Schroeder, Post Adoption Services Coordinator, at (231) 946-8975, ext. 1001.

Land issue does not warrant a recall vote

In the world of democracy the tool of a recall is a very powerful thing.

A recall is an attempt to override a democratic election and remove an elected individual or individuals from a public office position. A recall is used when the elected official or officials break laws while in office, willfully undermine the office they hold or willfully hurt the citizens of the community.

A recall is very serious. It is currently being used against select members of the Charlevoix School Board by the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools.

Did these board members break any laws? Did these board members willfully undermine the office they hold? Did these board members willfully hurt the citizens or the community with their actions?

No. All they did was stick to a decision that they made and believe is right. In doing so they faced harsh criticism from the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools, but they stood their ground and believed they were making the right choice.

They committed no illegal activities and committed no wrongs that warrant something as serious as a recall. The only thing the board did was stand up to a group of citizens, who may or may not be a representation of the majority of voters in Charlevoix.

Now they face a recall initiated by the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools. This committee wants to overturn a democratic election not because these board members were involved in illegal activity or willfully hurt the citizens of Charlevoix, this committee wants to overturn a democratic election because the board did not agree with them.

It would be a sad day for democracy in Charlevoix if these board members were removed from office for this. It would be a sad day for democracy in general.

We urge the citizens of Charlevoix not to support this recall movement. A recall is only to be used for serious offense, not as a tool to punish the board for not following the orders of a special interest group.

It is time to move on and get a new school built for the students of Charlevoix.

Loeb was the place to be Dec. 31

Edith Gilbert

The private party at the "Big House" on Loeb Farms turned out to be the millennium event in Charlevoix.

Hosted by Gina and Dick Lepman, two hundred guests from New York, Illinois and California plus a close group of Charlevoix neighbors, sailing and tennis friends, danced from one century into the next. Gina looked ravishing in a long, black vintage gown trimmed with white lace that had belonged to her mother and Dick beamed as he greeted guests sporting his black tuxedo.

Family and friends toasted each other with golden caviar and tiny shots of vodka while milling about this historic estate. Giant logs blazed in tall fireplaces in every room and their reflection flickered on diamond studs and sequined gowns. The long dining room table was filled with delicious hors d'oeuvres provided by the New World

Café. In the game room Larry Wojcik's five piece orchestra played pop tunes that inspired three generations of Loeb's to dance the night away. Gina created a Charlevoix Millie Dance for a group who formed a circle, singing "Step right in, hi, Y2K, celebrate the millennium." Nancy MacArthur Smith was urged to sing with the orchestra "When I Fall In Love" to the delight of the guests. At midnight young Albert Loeb and David Florence were in charge of an impressive fire work display in the courtyard.

For those unfamiliar with our local national treasure, Loeb Farms was built in 1918 by Albert Loeb, an executive with Sears Roebuck. It was a showplace in its heyday. Run as a model experimental dairy and horse farm, it employed about 90 people who cared for the fields, animals, gardens and orchards. Its storybook setting of steep-roofed buildings, dormers, cupolas, towers and flying buttresses was a lively place to be on a Saturday afternoon. Here people could buy ice cream, cheese or flowers and on Sunday there was always a baseball game to watch. Even Ernest Hemingway was invited to play first base once despite his limp caused by a wound received in Italy during World War I.

In 1963 part of the Farm was sold to John Van Haver who later sold it to Art Reibel and for a number of years, there was an effort made to restore the crumbling farm buildings and develop a Community Center, but this attempt did not come to fruition.

The Lepmans fervently hope that this historic property can be maintained in the future as Grandfather Loeb had originally envisioned it—possibly as a farm museum or the like.

In the meantime, party guests will treasure the souvenir leaded glass paper weights that the Lepmans purchased on a recent trip to Czechoslovakia especially for this occasion. Each family received one with the date 2000. All those who attended the party are in agreement that nothing, but nothing could equal the warm and friendly spirit that ruled at Loeb Farms on this very special night.

Guest column rebuttal

Editor:

There are a certain number of people who are opposed to the new school, the site, the increased taxes, whatever. Don't bother reading any further. I am not going to change your mind.

There is a larger group of informed voters who read, attended meetings, and asked questions about the bond proposal then voted "yes" knowing exactly what was planned. I thank you and the students of Charlevoix will thank you. Take pride in what you did, but don't bother reading any further. You understood the issues and did your duty as a responsible citizen. To those who are confused by the rhetoric, I would like to suggest that you owe it to the children of Charlevoix, maybe your children or grandchildren, to become informed. Please read on...

It seems to me that the School Board has tried to take the high ground on this issue. We have patiently listened to comments and individuals as well as members of the Citizens Promoting Neighborhood Schools (CPNS). We have avoided engaging in an argument at these meetings because it will serve no purpose. Our silence has left a vacuum that has been filled with half-truths, innuendo, and outright lies from CPNS.

I read Jeff Porter's Editorial Rebuttal. Half-truth and innuendo. I can't say it any clearer. I am limited by space, however, there are several important points I would like to make.

There are no appropriate sites "in town." The selection criteria and process may not have been perfect but it gave some objectivity to an otherwise impossible project.

The School Board entered into the purchase agreement, a legally binding contract, to purchase the Marion Center Road property on September 17, 1999. We had a "handshake," we bought the property, it was ours, a done deal. The rest was paper work.

Jeff continues to raise questions about the integrity of the School Board members to cloud the issue. The truth is a Conflict of Interest Policy does exist (policy #1350). It is irrelevant, because I firmly believe no board member would vote on an issue that would benefit them financially. This is one of the most selfless groups I have ever worked with. The only compensation (to be accurate we get $150.00 per year) anyone on the Board receives is the knowledge that we are building a proud legacy for the children and community of Charlevoix. Remember, each of us was voted into this position because you trusted us to do a good job. I wonder why, all of a sudden, our integrity is in question.

Apology in order

An open letter to Dr. Porter: I am writing to confirm and follow-up on our telephone conversation of Jan. 10.

I was informed by a local newspaper that you had prepared a list of 23 questions and forwarded them to the paper, indicating that you would be presenting those questions at the Charlevoix School Board meeting later that night. After receiving this information, I telephoned you in an attempt to obtain these questions prior to the meeting so that I could obtain answers for you. In that conversation, you indicated that I was mistaken about the purpose of the questions and furthermore, that you would not provide me with a copy of the questions. Following our board meeting, you were quoted in the newspapers as saying we had refused to answer your questions. You know that this is untrue.

In our telephone conversation, you also informed me that "if you think the last two months have been bad for you, they will be nothing compared to the next two." You advised me to reconsider the board's decision not to change the location of the new high school, saying that someone "who wants to have a law practice in Charlevoix should think very carefully about reconsidering. Recalls can be very nasty."

You also made the statement to Dick Joseph that, to pick the Marion Center Road site, the board members must be either stupid or crooked.

I hope that you will consider an apology to myself and the other board members for these insults and threats.

Allen Telgenhof
Charlevoix School Board President

Committee inflammatory and deceptive

Editor:

If the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools says they deserve "respect, truth and information," then it would be wise for them to pay attention to their own propaganda that is being sent through the mail.

The gold plate that came to everyone's mail was inflammatory, incorrect and deceptive. Statements were taken out of context and information was twisted. For example, one statement that has been repeated is, "At the Community Forum in March there was overwhelming interest in keeping the location of any new school in town." This is absolutely incorrect. I was present at that meeting and the question the facilitator asked was, "What are the positive and negative points about the present schools?" Being close to town was just one good attribute.

However, that had nothing to do with the fact that in consideration of future schools, many people were there to support a new high school which would: 1) Have enough space for improved and updated facilities in all areas of education. 2) Have room for future growth. Improved education and facilities for all three schools was more of a concern than location.

The insinuation that the facilities committee and the school board are somehow out to deceive the public is totally absurd. Anyone who has lived in this town knows that the people on those committees are hardworking, honorable individuals who have spent hours in an effort to bring about the best possible solution for education in Charlevoix. I believe an apology is in order to these people.

For the last 20 years, while East Jordan, Boyne City and Petoskey have built new and improved schools for their communities, Charlevoix has spent most of the time arguing about what to do.

We have a wonderful plan, now let's support our present school board and superintendent to move ahead.

Cara B. Hochhalter
Charlevoix

Board should make peace

Editor:
"Now look what a fine kettle of fish you have got us into," Ollie used to whine to Stan.

That thought must be going through our school board's heads as they wonder at the huge number of protesters who crowd their meetings. From election success to recall petitions in just a few months. Pretty good record. "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars. But in ourselves..." said Cassius.

Who has lead you into this turmoil and chaos? Why have you let it get worse? Ego? Fear of admitting a mistake? Remember, "It is a bad plan that admits no modification," said Publilius Syrus.

Each one of you on the board and each of those people who jam your meetings and Dr. Porter's gatherings and those others with like concerns, are the pride of our community. Fellow tax payers, the salt of the earth, the life, the gusto and soul. Over the years, I have known and worked with many of you, voted for you and even worked on your behalf to get some of you elected.

I'm proud of you and I'm proud that I supported you.

So let us work toward a solution. First a few realities. Your apparent stone walling has dug you into this morass of community ill will. One direction though, and no offense intended, your actions have been unbelievably successful in creating some of the worst community relations that no one would wish on anyone, let alone you, Charlevoix's finest. Your moves would make a wonderful case study at a business school about how to mess up.

William Gladstone reminds us that, "The oppression of a majority is detestable and odious. The oppression of a minority is only one degree less detestable and odious."

There is no Captain Quig type aboard here. Why not break ranks and simply vote as individuals, for an in-town sire like the high school and abandon the Marion Center location.

Any solution for the board members must include making peace now, before more erudite examples can be added to that case study. You cannot put our community and yourselves through a recall. No one will win, but our spirits will be blighted for years. Stay the patient course, of little worth is your ire.

Act now. Call Dr. Porter now. Make peace. Prevent a recall and "let the song of the turtle and dove be heard throughout the land," as Ernie Harwell says.

Area students get to see politics first-hand at republican debate

By B.J. HETLER
Staff Writer

High school students from Northwest Academy and Charlevoix High School traveled to Grand Rapids to watch the six Republican presidential candidates debate last week at Calvin College.

The consensus of the students upon their return was that most of what they learned was about the politicians and their political posturing, rather than the issues facing the country.

The politicians dodged questions about issues by pointing fingers at the Democrats or at other Republican candidates, several students said.

Students were surprised at the reactions of some of the candidates' supporters in the crowd to other people's ideas and beliefs.

"Some of the people supporting the candidates seemed to hate others," Northwest Academy student Chris Collier said. "We were able to see other people's propaganda, basically it was a lot of bull."

"It was a tough crowd," Northwest Academy student Rachal Thanasiu said. "People wouldn't open their minds."

Charlevoix High School student, Jessica Halverson, summed up her experience with this comment: "It was an amazing opportunity that opened our eyes to the strange world of politics."

The trip was sponsored by candidate Steve Forbes. When they arrived at the debate it became clear that the Forbes camp expected the students to rally for Forbes by carrying signs and generally showing support.

"Basically we were bought off," Collier said.

Jon Tebeau of Charlevoix High School agreed. "The workers were prepared to the extent that we were hired out by Forbes."

Sponsoring their trip didn't make Forbes a favorite to these, students. Instead many of them were impressed by Alan Keyes who they say was straightforward and answered questions on his own. Sen. John McCain was also favored because he was easily able to admit to mistakes.

No one said they had made up their mind yet about a particular candidate or party, but all agreed the trip was worthwhile.

Charlevoix High School students Marilee Brooks and Laura Schairbaum say they learned by listening to the candidates and then discussing the debate with classmates.

Collier spoke for many of the students about the debate experience. "It's good to experience the different points of view and thoughts of other people."

BEACONS

By REV. PHILIP G. SCHAIRBAUM

First Congregational Church
United Church of Christ

As we enter another year, we once again remember that life can be different and more rewarding. It is never too late to begin a new habit, to recommit ourselves to the things of God, or name anew the responsibilities we have as people of faith. For starters, here is a list of suggestions. See if they strike a chord within you for these opening days of the new millennium.

1. Mend a quarrel.
2. Seek out a forgotten friend.
3. Invite a neighbor to go to church with you.

4. Accept a compliment.
5. Read a classic.
6. Do one thing you'll be proud of.
7. Daydream.
8. Find the time for you.
9. Get some exercise.
10. Share a task.
11. Lose a pound.
12. Resist the temptation to criticize.
13. Express your thanks.
14. Give something away that you don't use.
15. Keep a promise.
16. Talk to one new person in church.
17. Decide what's important to you today.
18. Watch the sunrise.

19. Visit a museum.
 20. Keep a secret.
 21. Learn a Bible verse by heart.
 22. Try a new road.
 23. Sing a song.
 24. Break a habit, just for today.
 25. Let go of a problem you can't solve.
 26. Share a favorite book.
 27. Sit in a different seat at church.
 28. Consider your good points.
- Someone once said, "You can never change the past. But by the grace of God, you can win the future." Remember those things which help you forward and forget those things which will only hold you back.

Obituaries

Darleen B. Hisey

Darleen B. Hisey, 82, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 15, of cardiac arrest at Sweetwater Hospital in Sweetwater, Tenn., while traveling to Florida.

Funeral service was Wednesday, Jan. 19, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Dale P. Ostema officiated. Burial will take place in Brookside Cemetery.

Darleen was born on October 29, 1917 in Charlevoix, the daughter of Rowley and Florence (Withers) Williams. She attended Charlevoix High School graduating in 1936.

She was married to James Hisey at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. The couple made their home in Wayne until they retired to Charlevoix in 1986.

Along with her husband, Darleen co-owned the Wayne Dispatch and published other suburban newspapers.

Darleen was a member of the Christian Science Church, Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel, of which she was acting secretary, the Master Gardeners', the Charlevoix Historical Society, the Michigan Farm Bureau and a GOP Member of the party and attended state conventions every year as a voting delegate. She served as a volunteer reader in the STAR program at Charlevoix Elementary School.

She was also a former member of several clubs in Wayne including the Women's Literary Guild and the Wayne Gardeners Club and Rotary Ann's.

Darleen is survived by her husband James, of Charlevoix; three step-sons, James II and his wife Martha, of Fairfield, Conn., Jon and his wife Carol, of Charlevoix, and Jerrold "Jerry" R. of Garden City; six grandchildren, Christopher, Joan and her husband Todd Stebbins, Jon C and her wife Regina. Jennifer, Jessica, Chad, Janelle and her husband Jeff King; five great grandchildren; Julia, Jon, Jenica, Clarke and Claire; one sister Geraldine "Gerry" Stephens, of Hamilton.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Darleen Hisey Memorial Fund at Citizens Bank, 201 State Street, Charlevoix, 49720. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Evelyn Ware Peters

Evelyn Ware Peters (nee Evelyn Pearson Ware) 83, of La Grange Park, Ill., died Jan. 1 in La Grange Memorial Hospital, La Grange, Ill.

Mrs. Peters was born at home in Chicago on May 2, 1916 to Robert Rea Ware and Elizabeth Dickerson Ware (nee Bessie Cummings Dickerson). She graduated from Oak Park and River Forest High School in 1935, attended Carleton College and graduated from National College of Education in June 1941. She was a lifelong summer resident of Charlevoix, her grandparents having vacationed here for the first time in 1883, and lived most of her life in Oak Park, Ill. She moved to Plymouth Place Retirement Community in La Grange Park, Ill. in 1991.

Although her employment as a teacher was limited to substituting, her training as an elementary school teacher served her well as a parent and active member of her community. A 56-year member of Chapter B1 of P.E.O., she was active in P.E.O. at the local, Round Table, and state levels and co-chaired the 1978 Illinois State Convention. She was an associate member of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, a long-time member of the Women's Board of Plymouth Place, and a lifelong member of the First United Church of Oak Park (IL). She was active there and in the local alumni club of National College of Education in June 1941. She was a lifelong summer resident of Charlevoix, her grandparents having vacationed here for the first time in 1883, and lived most of her life in Oak Park, Ill. She moved to Plymouth Place Retirement Community in La Grange Park, Ill. in 1991.

Carleton, in geology.

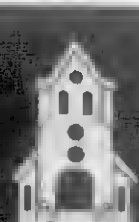

She is survived by a daughter, Janet E. Peters of Western Springs, Ill., two sons, Richard W. (Carol) of Bedford, Texas and James D. (Jeanette) of Hurst, Texas, three grandchildren, Dr. Kelly A., Eric G., and Lianna L. Peters, brothers Robert R. Ware Jr. of Oak Park, Ill. and Ralph "Mike" C. Ware of San Antonio, Texas, nieces, nephews, and their children. She was preceded in death by her husband of 25 years, Wallace Gilmour Peters, and a brother, John Dickerson Ware.

Memorial services will be Feb. 19 at 10 a.m. at Plymouth Place and at 3:00 p.m. at First United Church of Oak Park. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, First Congregational United Church of Christ of Charlevoix, or to the P.E.O. project of your choice. Private burial.

City looking for another industrial park in area

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The city is seeking land for a future industrial park and the number of acres desired means the search is outside of the city.

"We'd like to find about 80 developable acres," city manager Mike Wiesner said on Friday. "That would set us up well into the future."

The current industrial park, Charlevoix Industrial Park, on Taylor and Ance roads is at capacity, Wiesner said. Ten industries have lots on approximately 40 acres.

Obtaining land for another industrial park is primarily for Charlevoix's existing industries when they need to expand, he said.

"We're looking to retain our existing industries first," Wiesner said. "In the long-term we're looking to attract more industries. But had we not been able to provide land for Harbor Industries, they may have moved somewhere else."

Harbor Industries on U.S. 31 at M-66 recently purchased strips of land from the city to expand its facilities on its current site.

The city has been looking for new land for industry for a couple of years and so far has not been successful, Wiesner.

"There's the cost factor," he said. "We've got to look at what industries will pay for the lots and infrastructure."

City taxpayers should not have to foot any of the purchase price of the land when the city finds the site, Wiesner said. He hopes the city is able to work out tax-sharing with any potential site. The city has a quarter million dollars in the industrial park fund derived from the sale of industrial lots at the current park, he said.

The goal is to use that money and other money derived from the sale of lots at a new site, so any new land price would not cost the taxpayers, Wiesner said.

The city is at the stage of looking generally for land for an industrial park and no particular areas around Charlevoix are targeted at this time, he said.

"We're not in active negotiations at this time. We may not find a site that's affordable," Wiesner said. "But we're looking and hope we're successful."

Recall drive initiated by Committee underway

"I know I could waive that policy," Telgenhof said. "But I'm not sure it's the best way to go. I don't think it's constructive."

The board members have publicly encouraged residents to call them with their comments and concerns, but few calls have been made, Telgenhof said.

Board member Dennis Halverson argues the board has the public trust.

"We have no intent to do anything unethical," he said. "We did not skip anything intentionally."

Telgenhof has little hope that the matter will be resolved before a recall election, stating that the board has thoroughly researched the best sites and stands by its decision of the Marion Center Road site. The situation has gone too far and it's become personal, he said.

"You can recall me and I'll have some time with my kids," Telgenhof said.

hof said. "Now I'm doing this for other people's kids. Take away the $150 a year for working on the board, and I'll get back 1,000 hours a year of time for my kids."

Halverson said he has also seen the situation become unreasonable.

"I've seen some agitated people and I've seen some people undergoing personal attacks," Halverson said. "The democratic process was put in place to avoid this kind of anger, but the process is degenerating."

Speaking on his own behalf, board member Mike MacMillan, who is not up for recall, said he will work to help his fellow members.

"It certainly is the committee's right to do what they're doing," MacMillan said. "I don't agree with it, I don't think they have grounds. They should have made an issue of the property before the vote."

"I think it's sour grapes and they're bad losers. I'd be surprised if there is a recall."

Looking back, Telgenhof sees where the board could have made other choices.

"In hindsight we could have done things differently," Telgenhof said. "We could have selected two or three sites with options locked in and then gone to the steering committee."

The steering committee was made up of citizens who researched the needs of the schools last summer and then reported to the board.

But he said he believes the board stands behind its decision of the Marion Center Road, even under the threat of recall.

"We believe so strongly that we did everything the right way, that we were fair and objective in the site selection process, that there is no reason to reconsider," Telgenhof said. "We're trying to be fair to the people that voted for the bond issue and want the school opened in the fall of 2002."

The recall drive will not hold up the work process for the schools, Telgenhof said. The board is working on a conceptual plan. A public meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 19 for review of the school architectural designs.

The recall process for school officials is as follows:

- A request for recall petitions is filed with the Charlevoix County Clerk.

- The Charlevoix County Election Commission sets a date of no less than 10 days, and no more than 20 days, to review the wording of the petitions at a hearing. The petitions are then accepted or rejected.

- Board members sought to be recalled are served with a notice from the county clerk and with a copy of their petition.

- Provided that the wording of the petitions is accepted by the Elections Commission, the people seeking a recall have 180 days to collect approximately 1,000 signatures for each board member sought to be recalled.

- Upon completion of the requisite number of signatures, the completed petitions are submitted to the county clerk who verifies the signatures. The petitions are then sent to the relevant cities and townships where the board officials reside for verification.

- Upon completion of verification, an election date is set within approximately 60 days.

Group forms to support the school board against recall

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A new group of local citizens is forming to support the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education against a recall drive of the board by some local citizens.

Former Charlevoix mayor, Josh Barnes, is in the forefront of the group defending the board known as the Charlevoix Committee for the American Way (CCAW).

Barnes gave his prediction for the success of a recall as "Zero."

CCAW is comprised of local citizens who believe Charlevoix School Board members are effectively performing their duties, Barnes said.

The fact that a recall action is being pursued is disturbing to Barnes.

"The citizens of this community voted to approve the bond issue," he said. "Now, because school board members won't cooperate with the effort to overturn that vote, the recall committee is seeking to remove the board. That just doesn't seem right."

Bill Trubilowicz served on the facilities committee. That citizens committee researched the public schools' needs and made a recommendation to the board.

"I'm supporting the board," Trubilowicz said. "They tried to take the issues head-on and did the best job they could. It's unfortunate to me that people are trying to recall them."

Charlevoix school district voters approved an $18.8 million bond issue on Oct. 11 for the construction of a new high school, the relocation of the middle school into the current high school following renovation, and renovation and additions to the elementary school.

However, the new site for the Josh Barnes.

His prediction of how much support a recall will get high school chosen by the board on Marion Center Road in Marion Township was not on the election ballot. Therefore, the school is free to change the site, states the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools, which disagrees with the site.

But Barnes said the board came up with the best site available, and people knew what they were voting for.

"The fact that the citizens of our community passed a school bond issue after several rejections should be a reason to celebrate, not divide the community," Barnes said. "We are confident that the voters of this area will soundly reject a recall petition after reviewing facts as opposed to innuendo."

"The purpose of this committee is to support the quality work of the school board, regardless of how individuals may feel about the high school location," Barnes said.

Trubilowicz agreed. "Whether you like the Marion Center site or not, this is a board that worked to the best of its ability to do what's best for the community. People should not recall them just because they don't like the results of the election," he said.

CCAW is seeking members who share their belief that the board has done a good job, Barnes said.

For more information call Barnes at 547-2000, except Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings.

Louise I. Gill

Louise I. Gill, 76, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 10 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. A funeral was given Jan. 14 at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix. The Rev. Neil Turner officiated.

Burial was at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Gill was born Feb. 19, 1923 in Charlevoix, the daughter of Earl A. and Irene E. (Harsha) Young. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1940 and studied nursing at Henry Ford Hospital School of Nursing.

She attained a degree in nursing education at Wheaton College and served one year of residency at Presbyterian Hospital in Embudo, New Mexico. Mrs. Gill was later employed at the Charlevoix Hospital and Dr. Postle's office at the Burn's Clinic in Petoskey.

She was a longtime member of the Community Church of God, where she enjoyed the role of pianist and organist.

On May 28, 1949 she married Robert L. Gill in Charlevoix. She is survived by him, her daughters; Kathleen (Ronald Roth) Gill of Gaylord, Linda (Johnnie) Essary of Forsyth and a son, David (Jeanette) Gill of Charlevoix. She is also survived by her grandchildren, Bradford and Andrew Louiselle, Chad and Jennifer Essary and Christine West; great-granddaughters, Maureen, Michala and Sierra Louiselle; sisters, Marguerite M. Currie of Traverse City and Virginia Olsen of Charlevoix and numerous nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by a brother, Drew E. Young, Sr.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Community Church of God in Charlevoix.

Theodora Krauss Freidinger

Theodora "Teddie" Krauss Freidinger died in Naples, Fla., Jan. 8. She was born in Saginaw Sept. 28, 1916, to Hermann and Della Krauss. She graduated from Saginaw High School and Ward Belmont College in Nashville, Tenn. She married Lester M. Freidinger of Saginaw on Sept. 14, 1940.

Teddie was an active member of several organizations at various times. She was a member of the Saginaw Junior League and the Saginaw Garden Club, a director of Delta College and a member with her husband of the Saginaw Club and Saginaw Country Club. She enjoyed golfing, gardening, and reading, and with her husband, traveled extensively to numerous countries including Europe, Mexico and the Caribbean. Golf was always a part of their vacations.

She and her husband lived in Saginaw, Mich., until 1965 and enjoyed their summer home at Point Lookout during that time. They lived briefly in Cleveland, Ohio, and moved to Bloomfield Hills in 1967. She was a member of the Bloomfield Hills Garden Club, the Junior League of Birmingham, and The Village Club.

The Freidinger's retired to Naples, Fla. in 1978, where Teddie was active in the League Club and a member with her husband of Wilderness Country Club and Royal Poinciana Country Club.

They had several different homes since retiring, and especially enjoyed entertaining their children and grandchildren at Hemmingway Pointe in Charlevoix and their Naples condominium.

In addition to her husband of 59 years, Teddie is survived by four sons: William Freidinger (Elaine) of Bloomfield Hills; Reed Freidinger, MD (Janet) of Charlevoix; Ted Freidinger of Palm Harbor, Fla.; and Robert Freidinger of Lisle, Ill. She is also survived by seven grandchildren as well as her sister, Greta "Sis" Pendell of Saginaw.

Memorial donations may be sent to: Moorings Presbyterian Church Building Fund, 791 Harbour Dr., Naples, Fla. 34103.

Ruth Evelyn McKown

Ruth Evelyn McKown, 89, of Charlevoix and formerly of California, died Jan. 12 at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan. She was born on June 22, 1910, in Los Angeles, California the daughter of Theophile John and Ida Sophia (Reichert) Pellegrin.

On March 3, 1934 she married

John D. McKown in San Francisco. He preceded her in death on Sept. 10, 1977. In 1978, following her husband's death, Ruth moved to Charlevoix to be near her son, John D. McKown II and his wife, Vera, of Charlevoix;

She is also survived by a daughter, Lynn McKown, of Calif.; a granddaughter, Kimberlee Aguilar and her husband Jaime, of Laguna Beach, Calif.; three great grandchildren.

No services are planned. The family was served by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Send contributions to Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Carlton Howard Smith

Carlton Howard Smith, 86, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 9 at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

A funeral was Jan. 12, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. The Reverend Dale Ostema officiated. Burial will take place at Barnard Cemetery in the spring.

Carlton was born on July 22, 1913 in Charlevoix, the son of Clyde and Vera (Vance) Smith. Before his entrance into military service, he attended school in Charlevoix and helped his family on the family farm. Carlton served his country with pride during World War II. He achieved the rank of First Lieutenant and served with the 41st and 32nd Divisions of the US Army in the Pacific Theater. During his tour of duty he was awarded the bronze star and the purple heart. On March 10, 1942, he married Mary Ann Lilak in Ayer, Mass. After the war the couple returned to Charlevoix where he worked for the US Postal Service and was a farmer. He fought a courageous battle from complications of a stroke with strength and dignity. He loved the Lord and let that love shine through to all whose lives he touched. He will be remembered for his love of life and of the outdoors.

He was a member of the Charlevoix Methodist Church and was an active member of the Church Board for several years. He was Chairman and charter member of the Charlevoix Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service as well as charter member of the Charlevoix County Zoning Commission.

Carlton is survived by his wife, Mary Ann Smith; two sons, Donald and his wife Pamela and Carlton "Mick", all of Charlevoix; a daughter, Jeanne Hice, and her husband Gary, of Petoskey; grandchildren, Ryan and Jason Smith, Lindsay and Lauren Hice; three sisters, Dorothy Stool, Mary and Margie Warner; a brother, Clayton Smith and his wife Kay, all of Charlevoix. He was preceded in death by a sister, Helen Smith.

Memorial donations may be made to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility, Barnard United Methodist Church or the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

Local couple buys Acorn Cafe

The Acorn Cafe is under new ownership.

As of Nov. 17, the restaurant's owners are Rick and Liz Elzinga. The Acorn Cafe is located at 103 Park Ave. and offers customers home cooked breakfasts, lunches, and dinners.

The Acorn Cafe specializes in catering and consulting parties and can handle crowds as small as two people or as big as 200 people.

The couple said they bought the restaurant because they have always wanted to run a small family-owned establishment that offers home-cooking from scratch. They also want to give area residents a year-round place to get home-cooked meals.

Rick is a lifelong resident of Charlevoix and Liz has worked for about 25 years at many restaurants in the area before joining her husband in buying The Acorn Cafe.

Currently, the restaurant is offering a choice of roast beef or baked chicken, with cole slaw, mashed potatoes and stuffing for dinner. Dinner is served Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

The Acorn Cafe is open for breakfast and lunch 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday and 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday. It is also open from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Dinner hours are from 4 to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 to 8 p.m. Sunday.

Foundation gives over $81,000 to local projects

Performing arts, substance abuse education, ice hockey, historical preservation projects and more received some good news to start the new year.

The programs were among those chosen to receive grants from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. The local foundations and its Youth Advisory Committee recently announced grants totaling $81,100 to support a variety of projects benefiting residents of the area.

The following programs received grants:

From the Charlevoix County Community Fund

• Charlevoix County Multi-Agency Task Force received $3,265 to support projects helping area senior citizens.

• Citizen Dispute Resolution Service received $5,000 to support conflict mediation services in this area until long-term funding is available.

From the Charlevoix County Youth Fund

• American Legion Baseball received $500 to purchase new equipment and help cover program expenses.

• Beaver Island Community School received $500 to produce the school's first yearbook and publish a community literary journal.

• Boyne Area 4-H Soccer received $500 to host a week-long soccer skills camp in the Boyne area.

• Camp Quality received $2,500 toward a weekend support camp for children with cancer and their families.

• Charlevoix Area Community Pool received $750 to purchase swim-pace clocks for community and team use.

• Charlevoix County high schools received $5,000 to provide each high school in the county with a $1,000 grant for school/community enrichment projects.

The Community Foundation will accept and review grant requests again in April. Programs eligible for funding must serve residents of Charlevoix County and address issues such as health, human services, recreation, environmental concerns, youth enrichment, or promotion of the arts. Grant seekers are invited to call the Foundation office to discuss their projects and get additional information.

Charlevoix boys ski team gets its first win of the year

The Charlevoix boys' ski team swept up their first win of the season in a four-school meet against Boyne City, East Jordan and Elk Rapids.

The Rayders captured first, second and third places in both slalom and giant slalom. Troy Smith, who recently returned from a ski race in Winter Park, Colo., was the big winner with a first place finish in both slalom and GS. Todd Freidinger followed Smith with second place in both events, and Steve Pirie took third place in both events.

"The boys did really, really well," said coach Sue Miller. "It was nice to have Troy back. We missed him in our earlier high school races."

Other finishes for the Rayder boys were: Shaun MacMillan, ninth slalom, 13th GS; Brad Long, 12th slalom, 21st GS; and Joel Trubilowicz, 14th GS and 16th slalom.

The Charlevoix girls took second

"The flu has hit our team early this season...I'm sure once we get everyone healthy again, we'll come back really strong."

Sue Miller,
Coach of the Charlevoix ski team place in the meet, beaten by Boyne City and its dynamic sister duo, Andrea and Meghan Gerling. Tiffany Fisher led the Rayder girls with a third place finish in slalom and GS.

Andrea and Meghan Gerling captured first and second places respectively in both slalom and GS. Charlevoix's Lexi Wilson took fourth in GS and seventh in slalom.

Other finishes for the Rayder girls included: Kirsten Brendtro, sixth slalom, seventh GS; Alisha Johnson, seventh GS, ninth slalom; and Kristy Shindorf, 12th slalom, 16th GS.

"The flu has hit our team early this season," Miller said. "Roscoe Serrels, Lexi, Tiffany, and Lindsey Carland have all been sick. I'm sure once we get everyone healthy again, we'll come back really strong."

The Rayders' next meet will be Thursday, Jan. 20 at Schuss Mountain.

Varsity basketball remains undefeated in conference

Even though the team lost Jan. 11 to St. Ignace, Charlevoix varsity basketball remains undefeated in its conference following a Friday night win against Elk Rapids.

Coach Keith Haske said the loss to the St. Ignace team was because St. Ignace is "just a darn good basketball team." Even though the team lost 83-71, he was proud of the way the Rayders played, he added.

"I thought we really battled them hard," Haske said. "We really competed against them."

By the half of the game, the Rayders were down by just six points and starting to come back. But, St. Ignace came back hard after the half, increased its lead and kept the Rayders in check.

St. Ignace is not in the Rayder's conference. The team is currently in first place of its own conference.

"They are just beating up everybody," Haske said.

Leading scorers for the St. Ignace game were: Shay Hutchison with 17 points, Sean Stockman with 15 points and Scott Parrish with 12 points.

While the Rayders may have lost that game, it didn't slow them down when they faced Elk Rapids. The team dominated Elk Rapids in a 75-40 victory.

Haske said by the end of the first quarter, the Rayders led 19-0 and didn't slow down. By half-time, the Rayders were up 42-12.

"It was pretty much over right from the go," Haske said.

While the Rayders are leading the conference right now, Haske said it is facing a big schedule this week. Tuesday night the Rayders faced Petoskey and Friday the team goes up against Boyne.

The results of the Petoskey game were not available before press time.

Rayders spikers take another loss Thursday

The Charlevoix-High School Volleyball team lost Thursday against Elk Rapids, making its season conference record 0-3.

Coach Carolyn Loper said the girls lost 14-16, 5-15 and 2-15. However, she said she was impressed with the playing of some of her spikers.

Her top server was Crystal Casciani. Her top offensive player was Taya Drost and her top defensive player was Kate Madison.

Loper said the girls can win these games if they would just play like they want to.

"If we get a couple of wins under our belt, the attitudes will change," she said.

The Rayders will play Kalkaska and Boyne City on Thursday at home.

When electricity was a new commodity in Charlevoix

By GEOFFREY D. REYNOLDS
Special to the Courier

With most fears of Y2K over you can only wonder how long ago basic utility services in Charlevoix began to appear in our fair community. Eventually inhabitants, much like us, learned to depend on and expect them, regardless of what century we might be enjoying.

The introduction of basic utility services to the citizens of Charlevoix can be traced to January of 1881 as the first phone service became available. With this new means for communication, local merchant and pioneer M.J. Stockman had a line placed between his store and home.

The next major service made available to city taxpayers was water. O.M. Barnes of Lansing installed the water-works system during fall of 1892 while E. M. Guard was appointed waterworks engineer at $500 per annum. By the summer of 1893 water was flowing at 4,800 gallons/hour to city businesses and homes. From all accounts, the new water-works engineer was the first citizen to enjoy indoor kitchen and toilet facilities. The building was located on the south side of Round Lake on Newman Street (Belvedere Avenue). Although during peak demand, such as a fire, water was drawn through the water mains from Round Lake, causing much concern about disease, each time it happened.

Next came electricity in July of 1895. Under the supervision of Manager Charles Gabriel and promoted, water-works Superintendent Guard the Charlevoix Electric Company was formed. First they established an office in the Chamberlain Building on the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets. Once there they saw to the purchase of Ellsworth manufactured poles, wire, and the necessary hardware, as the power house, an annex to water-works building, was constructed. As the work progressed on the new facility local newspaper editor, Willard Smith, waxed eloquent the coming of a "halo of effulgent light over Charlevoix" from the 15, new 2,000 candle power arc-lights (street lights). The first building to be "wired" was the Noble House hotel on the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets in July with the rest of the business district wired in late August. Finally on September 4, 1895 the first electrical current charged the lights of Charlevoix and cast off a low, but steady glow, into the night sky. With the capacity to power 1,000 incandescent lamps of 16 candle power local merchants pushed a fine assortment of lamps. Rates for these incandescent lamps, for stores, were 50 cents each per month, with special rates for a large number in one place. In private houses, $18 per year for three and one dollar additional per year for each additional lamp.

Additional uses for this new source of power included automotive pioneer Robert W. Elston's battery powered "motor wagon." He would later switch to a more powerful, but less reliable gasoline engine, but even that wasn't enough to propel him into memorable automotive history.

As Elston crept slowly along the streets of Charlevoix with his car during 1895, so began the need for better streets not only for cars, but just to reduce the dust generated by horse dung and dirt streets. So in 1903 Charlevoix paved its most traveled thoroughfare, Bridge Street, and installed our last and maybe most important public utility:

Sewers. Yes, believe it or not Charlevoix had been living without a central sewer system until that time.

Unfortunately, they all led to Round Lake for final deposit along with the local fish processing businesses' garbage. No wonder the perch fishing was so good, and the smell so bad. But as Round Lake became attractive to resorters that practice began to change so that the sewage was eventually pumped to a central treatment center on Lakeshore Drive.

If you would like to learn more about how utilities have shaped Charlevoix's history please visit Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House Museum on Thursday nights from 5-8 p.m. at 103 State Street or contact Executive Director, Betsy Reynolds, at 231-547-0373 or P.O. Box 525, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

The above photograph was taken in July, 1892, from the cupola of the L.E. Allen home. The Allen home was located on Bridge Street on the south hill bluff overlooking Round Lake, now the Kroger parking lot.

The brick building on the far left was the new water works plant, just being completed (1). The next building (2) was the Washburn Machine Shop. Next was the Oscar Mason Boat Shop (3). The next building (4) was for ice storage, so located on because the building just east of it (5) was the planting mill, and sawdust from the mill was used as insulation to cover the ice in the summer. How To Kill A BUSINESS
... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

While he didn't always agree with other council members, he knew what was right, Helen said. City Manager Mike Wiesner added Donald was one of the most honorable men he had ever met and he was known for gathering facts before making a decision.

"He never jumped into decisions and I have never seen him overly influenced by special interest,"

Wiesner said.

Wiesner spoke about Donald at the Chamber meeting. He said when he found out about the award his immediate reaction was, "I had so much respect for (Donald) I hoped they would give me a chance to make some comments."

Donald is survived by his wife, Helen; his daughter, Swanson; his sons, Jerry Meggison, Thomas Meggison and Bruce Meggison; and three sisters; Frances Wilson of Charlevoix, Beth Dwell of Wyoming and Faye Alger of Charlevoix.

City clerk resigns

City of Charlevoix Clerk Jo Anne Patrick resigned from her position effective Feb. 14, to take a job at the Charlevoix County Clerk's office.

Patrick was recently re-elected as city clerk in November. She stated she would not have run for re-election at that time, had she known this opportunity was coming up.

City council announced the resignation in a letter prepared by Patrick at Monday's council meeting.

Patrick has been with the city for eight years. She said she wasn't planning to run again because she needed a full-time position, which the county job offers. The city clerk's hours average about 20 a week.

Venetian Festival directors named Ambassadors of the Year at meeting

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce announced the Venetian Festival Committee as its "Ambassadors of the Year."

Five members of the festival's executive board were at the meeting to accept the award. They were Dan Barron, Steve Andraea, Dave Novotny, "Brownie" Flanders and Dean Davenport. John Winn was not present at the meeting.

"It is satisfying that the work of our entire board was acknowledged for what was literally hundreds of hours of volunteer time this year," said Festival President Barron.

Barron said last year the festival was expanded from a three-day festival to an eight-day festival, that included several new events such as 12 different athletic competitions.

"That more than doubled our budget for the festival," Barron said.

1999 Chairman of the Chamber Board Jay Balasz said the award is given out to "an individual or individuals who most closely embody the missions of the Chamber of Commerce." The decision to award this to the Venetian Festival came after "very little discussion," he added.

According to Balasz, the Venetian Festival started 69 years ago and was run by the Chamber until last year, when it was taken over by volunteers from the community.

"The community has stated that they have come to enjoy the festival as a homecoming event and many families plan their vacations around the third weekend in July," Balasz said. In one year, under the Venetian Festival directors' guidance, the festival grew into a larger event full of new family activities, he added.

City taxes continue to go down

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

According to a recent city budget work session, Charlevoix property taxes will go down.

A proposed 2000-2001 city budget with a focus on capital projects and a reduction in property taxes was presented to city council at its meeting at City Hall on Monday.

City Manager Mike Wiesner and treasurer Rick Brandi followed the goals set by council in Dec. 1998 to budget for a number of long-term capital projects. A total of $6.4 million, or 44 percent of the $14.3 million budget is for capital expenditures.

A millage reduction of .64 mills results in a net change in taxes of minus 3.63 percent.

A home with a taxable value of $50,000 with $645.60 in property taxes in 1999 will pay $625.25 in 2000, or $20.34 less, Brandi said.

"This will somewhat offset the school increase in the taxpayers' property tax bill," Brandi said.

The millage rate has been reduced each year since 1990. Last year the general obligation bonds for water, sewer and road improvements were paid off and the city now has no outstanding debt for general obligation bonds, Brandi said. Some of the capital projects directed by council include:

• Water, sanitary sewer and storm sewer for the Harbor Industries' expansion at $1.3 million.

• City Hall renovation at $1.1 million.

• Airport terminal building at $585,000.

Plan for new high school presented

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Bringing ideas together from visits to other schools and from discussions with designers, school staff and others, the school board presented conceptual drawings for the new high school last week.

"We began the process with visiting schools, about 15 schools, to get ideas," steering committee member Bill Trubilowicz told the board and the public at a special school board meeting on Jan. 19. "We looked at their cafeterias, the gyms, the classrooms, and we observed the buildings in action to watch traffic flow and listen to noise levels. Then we interacted with Beta for input."

Beta Design Group is the architectural firm from Grand Rapids hired by the school board for the site plan.

"Next is the design phase," Trubilowicz said. "It's very important to have input from the owners — the students, teachers, support staff, parents, and others. We'll take suggestions by everyone for colors, styles, whatever."

Along the way, a steering committee comprised of board members, citizens and staff from administration, finance, maintenance, and technology will ensure that the project meets its $15.8 million budget for the 120,000 square foot high school. The school with the auditorium will cover 2.5 acres of land at its 74-acre site on Marion Center Road.

The new high school is designed for a maximum of 520 students, up by 88 from the 432 students at the current high school.

Board member Scott Boss asked whether the school district is building large enough.

Dick Pratt of Beta Design explained that the state uses birth rates and determines how large school buildings may be built. However, expansion design is included in the school project.

Young lifesaver honored

BEAVER ISLAND — Heather Cary, a 15-year-old Beaver Island resident, is a lifesaver.

Around 12:30 a.m. Dec. 3, Cary and her three younger sisters were asleep in their upstairs bedrooms of their home on Beaver Island when she was awakened by a smoke alarm.

A fire had broken out downstairs directly under the girls' bedrooms and blocked the only exit from the upstairs.

Heather awakened her sisters, then jumped out the second story bedroom window and helped her three younger sisters exit the window to safety. Once the girls were safe, Cary went to the front of the house and awoke her father, who was asleep in the master bedroom. Once her father was awake, she ran to the garage and called the fire department.

The residence sustained serious damage. Beaver Island Fire Chief Tim McDonough said in another five minutes the family would have been in serious danger.

Cedar Ridge requests landfill expansion

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The owners of Charlevoix county's only landfill are back in front of the county planners with another request for expansion of its solid waste disposal facility at Cedar Ridge Landfill.

Waste Management's Cedar Ridge Landfill Manager, Dave Barons, spoke to county commissioners at a Jan. 12 meeting.

"We want the board to reconsider," Barons said referring to a prior planning commission decision prohibiting expansion.

The planning commission's denial in 1998 stated that any expansion of solid waste disposal, known as "Type II" waste would be too close to Sear Creek.

Waste Management claimed that Sear Creek did not fit the description of a permanent body of water. But county planners based their decision on Department of Natural Resources' maps that showed it was.

Waste Management eventually switched gears and instead requested permission to build a Type III, or construction waste disposal facility at the site. A Type III construction waste disposal facility is not required to meet as stringent standards by the state as a Type II. Despite that, Waste Management offered to construct the Type III facility to Type II standards.

"Such design enhancements, although extremely expensive, are highly protective of the environment," said Waste Management's attorney David Domzal.

Waste Management then asked county planners for a letter of consistency that would notify the state that a Type III construction waste facility was in line with the county's solid waste plan.

County planners denied issuing the letter, having found that the facility must be within a six mile radius of Advance, and having determined that it was not.

Because Advance is not incorporated, it is difficult to determine where the six mile radius begins, Attorney Domzal said.

"It's a mystery why they would want a Type III closer, rather than further away," Domzal said. "It's an obscure rule used to deny applications. But the final determination for a letter of consistency is with the state."

Waste Management is going to the county planners at this time instead of the state, because state applications involve engineering studies and cost upwards of a half of a million dollars, Domzal said.

But now Waste Management has put its Type III disposal facility request on the back-burner and is repeating its request for a household waste expansion.

"We have USGS (United States Geological Survey) documents that indicate the maps (of Sear Creek) are in error," Domzal said. "It's not a permanent flowing creek."

The Type II request is on the County Planning Commission's agenda for February.

Fund set up to help couple out of a home after Jan. fire

A fund has been set up at Charlevoix State Bank to help a local couple make ends meet following a fire at their home Jan. 9.

Scott and Sheila Johnstone's are unable to stay in their Charlevoix home due to the fire which is creating a special hardship on Sheila. She used to run a day care out of the home before the fire, but is currently unable to do so until the couple's home is repaired.

To help them out, donations are being accepted at the Charlevoix

State Bank through the Johnstone Family Fund.

The couple are unsure when they can move back into their home. Currently they are staying at Points North Inn.

Neither Scott nor Sheila were home at the time of the fire.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is currently investigating a two vehicle personal injury crash that occurred on US 31 North near Mercer Blvd., in Charlevoix Township.

The incident began as a complaint of a reckless driver south bound on US 31 North near Petoskey. Shortly after that the vehicle rear-ended another vehicle that was stopped making a right hand turn. Several witnesses that were behind her stated, "She never touched the brakes."

The driver of the suspect vehicle was Alice Verna Okerblom, a 40-year-old Charlevoix resident. Okerblom was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital via Charlevoix City Ambulance where she was treated and released.

The occupants of the other vehicle sought their own medical treatment at Charlevoix Area Hospital, and were transported by a personal vehicle.

The Sheriff's Office was assisted at the scene by the Charlevoix City Police, Charlevoix City Ambulance, and Charlevoix Towing Service.

The crash remains under investigation.

OPINIONS

Charlevoix: Land of beauty or argument?

Things have started getting a little out of hand with the location of the new Charlevoix High School.

This school land issue is tearing this community right down the middle and creating bad feelings throughout. It is time for both sides to step back, take a deep breath and come back out of their respective corners nicer, friendlier and easier to live around.

The debate centers around the question: "Should the new high school be built on Marion Center Road or should another location be discussed?"

Lately, this question alone has created deep hatreds between members of both sides, escalating into personal attacks.

Like a civil war, people with friends on the other side of the issue are no longer speaking, sides have been formed and the sabers of battle have been raised into the air in preparation for the charge.

People...this is not a war. It is not even an issue that should be causing this much animosity between neighbors.

What we have is a question of land for a new school. It is not a life-altering debate like the death penalty, capitalism versus communism or if we should use a nuclear warhead on Canada. This is a debate about land use.

It is time to stop these petty arguments and personal attacks before Charlevoix's image among outsiders is turned from an area with a beautiful landscape to an area full of tempers and arguments.

This school land debate is heated and both sides have a right to state their case but each side should remember to stick to the actual issue and not make it personal.

Regardless of the outcome of this debate, Charlevoix will survive and the people on both sides of the issue will still have to live next to each other.

It would be nice to live next to a person you haven't personally insulted because of their position on the location of a new school, even if their view is different than yours.

Or we can just split the town in half with a huge cement wall covered in barbed wire to keep those who are for a Marion Center school apart from those against a Marion Center school. That way, neither side will have to deal with the other's view again.

A green winter wonder

Roger Knutson

We are nearing the middle of winter — half way from the winter solstice to the spring equinox — and should probably give thought to all the botanical activity going on out of sight.

I like winter as well as the next person, which is to say, I wish it were shorter and had more holidays. Even if winter is generally a pretty bleak time for the average botanist in this frozen corner of the world, it is not without its interest, if invisible, events.

Just last week I dug the snow away from a part of our lawn that has no winter traffic and the deepest snow cover. Under that white layer of frozen Lake Michigan fallout, the grass was green and the ground unfrozen. I have at earlier times measured the temperature under a one foot blanket of snow and found that even if the air temperature was below zero Fahrenheit, the grass was green and the temperature about 34 degrees. I am even willing to believe that the grass has grown just a bit since the first heavy snowfall protected it against the drying and cold of winter.

Grasses are not the only plants that may be busy while out of sight under the snow. The daffodils you planted last fall are most likely growing roots and developing the flower buds that will pop up so suddenly with the warmth of March or April. As the keepers of our local golf courses know, there are fungi that can live very nicely under a blanket of snow and do serious damage to the turf we all look forward to seeing in spring. My favorite local plant, the skunk cabbage, has not only developed the flowers that will emerge in early March, but is busy building the flowers that will not be seen above the ground until a year from this spring. Most of our perennial plants are more certain than we are that spring will come and that they will have to be ready.

Among other spring harbingers with plans for its future is an early blooming woods flower, the toothwort. You won't see them for a couple of months at least, but think about them now. When in bloom along with the Trilliums and other early spring plants, it has little white mustard-like flowers at the top of a short, slightly leafy stalk. Under the ground is the reason for its name. It has a rhizome shaped like a large canine tooth. Close examination of the growing end of that rhizome shows the next year's flowers already completely formed but about one hundredth the size they will be twelve months hence. And after you have found the next year's flowers, you can clean off the rhizome and eat it. It tastes like an early spring radish.

Watch for spring, but know that even now in the bleakness of winter, most of our perennial plants are busy growing beneath the snow and are already making plans for the next few years.

Letters to the editor

(Editor's note: In our letters to the editor we offer the opportunity to readers to voice their best opinions. Sometimes these opinions are emotionally charged, but we do our best to regulate the rhetoric; sometimes we are not successful, feelings are hurt and possible inaccurate statements are made.)

In letters appearing in the Jan. 19 edition and Dec. 29 edition, letters appeared from Allen Telgenhof and Nan Vandenberg which attribute certain statements and conduct to Dr. Jeffrey Porter. Dr. Porter said that these statements from both letters were taken out of context and/or are inaccurate.

We apologize to Dr. Porter for any such errors.)

Telgenhof letter untrue

The principal reason Allen Telgenhof called me was to apologize for the unprofessional e-mail messages being sent to townspeople. I accepted his apology.

Mr. Telgenhof's recollection of a pleasant and civil conversation about pressures I experienced while being on the Charlevoix City Council was inaccurate and taken out of context. Additionally, his interpretation of Dick Joseph's version of a private conversation he and I had was totally false.

Citizens of Charlevoix are not interested in petty conversations. They are interested only in one issue, an alternative school site. Let us focus in the future on the issue at hand: a future school site that is safe, convenient, affordable and chosen by a public referendum.

Jeffrey L. Porter
Charlevoix

Issue should be solved by a vote

The voters of the Charlevoix Public School District should be allowed to resolve the site selection for the new high school through a vote at the polls. As varying sides gather supporters and the sabers of war sound, it seems a simple, effective and fair solution, for the taxpayers of the district to be given the Error made

In a document to the people attending Monday's anti-recall meeting, I made a statement implying that the Belvedere Club letter to the school board denying further use by the cross country team was a result of their objections to the Marion Road site selection.

Mr. Conlan of the Belvedere Club has stated that the timing was coincidental and that the letter was necessitated by an incident during a school event at their golf course. I have seen a copy of the incident report and agree with his position. He has further stated, while the club is not in favor of that site, it is not active in its opposition.

I do, therefore, apologize to both Mr. Conlan and the Belvedere Club and will repeat this apology at the meeting next Monday evening.

I was especially pleased to hear that it will continue to support the Charlevoix High School Golf Team and its use of the course.

Upset with CPNS

I'm upset and angered with the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools.

A recall of our school board is not only disturbing, but unjustified. Our school board acted in what I believe to be the best interest of our children and community. If the board decided to change the site location because of some group's other preference, it would be unfair to the people who voted for the millage knowing the location. I believe that a large portion of this community feels the same way. By passing the millage vote, the community spoke. The location of the school was announced in many ways before the election. I was one of the many people who made phone calls just before the election, so people would know what they were voting on.

In October when the millage passed, I was overjoyed. Our community finally came together on the most important issue for the future, our children's education. Now the community is being misled by a committee who is unhappy with the location. I have visited many schools in Michigan, not because I was on a committee, but to attend sports and other events of my children, nieces and nephews. These schools were located outside their city limits. Yes, in cornfields and amazing as it may seem, the citizens all appeared happy with the situation.

Stating the school board misled the community is not only appalling, but untrue. They informed the public of the location they had just picked. Let's remember the school board is made up of citizens like you and me, who are basically donating their time and trying to do what's right. They found a site, the community voted. It passed. Hats off to the school board and the citizens of Charlevoix who passed this millage.

CPNS is wrong

This letter is in response to the recent flyer we received from the Citizens Promoting Neighborhood Schools. In the mailing, it stated that the Marion Center site is "extremely hazardous" and went on to say the traffic situation makes it "more dangerous." I am here to share with the group that the only thing "extremely hazardous and dangerous" is this committee.

It has attacked our underpaid school board with statements and accusations that simply are not true. The board did submit their evaluation on the school site issue. The committee is upset because it could not access their individual evaluations which is no ones business except the person who filled it out and the rest of the board.

I do not understand where the committee is coming from on this issue. The land they are trying to force the taxpayers to buy is 53 acres, however, only 23 acres of that is usable and it comes with a hefty price tag of about $21,500 per usable acre.

And what will the committee do if in 10 years we find ourselves in need of another school? The land the board has picked is 74 acres, it is all usable and came with a much more realistic price tag of $3,300 per acre. The site is adequate for another school should the need arise, as well as room for sports fields. I don't know about the rest of the community, but I wouldn't mind attending sport functions that are all in one place.

Without a doubt the final straw was when the committee stated the taxpayers were not aware of what they were voting for. We are not as stupid as you have implied. I make it a point to be informed on everything I sign or vote for. The committee does not know me or the rest of the community well enough to insult our intelligence and our board. Where were you when these meetings were held? From what I gather, the committee members were the only uninformed voters. The rest of us knew because we went to the meetings and listened to what the board had to say. As best as we can tell, the "extremely seasoned" committee did not expect the mileage to pass at all and now that it has, it is trying to force its "out of date" opinion on us.

The committee may believe that it has the vast majority of this community's support, however, everyone I have talked to think this is a joke. I for one am throwing away my propaganda flyers. I believe the only recall that is necessary is the one for lies and half truths the committee has told. My prayer is that our board does not quit. Thank you for keeping the best interests of this community at heart. Let's show the board our support Charlevoix and let's be sure to let the committee know that we can and will think for ourselves.

Resolve this conflict

Conflict resolution is taught in Charlevoix schools and many other schools in the country.

Why doesn't the Charlevoix school board set a good example and agree to a trained mediator to resolve the school site controversy as suggested in a Courier editorial a few weeks ago?

Barbara MacArthur

Board should speak up

I would like to address the school board meeting that took place Jan. 10. I was there to show my support of having a different location for a new Charlevoix High School.

Now I understand why people don't attend the meetings. Why set there and try to hear a word here and a word there when the board doesn't speak up. The board members talk with their heads down or with their hands up by their face.

When some board members do talk, it is so low you can't hear them. I'm not hard of hearing and I wasn't in the back row, I was in the middle.

So why waste our time each month to go to the meetings. Just publish the minutes in the paper along with the special meetings that take place. Also, they should use the microphone, so everyone attending the meeting can hear and understand.

Board forced the recall

As distasteful as recall is, Michigan law does not provide for public redress of school board actions. Only the school board itself can call for a referendum. When school boards refuse to put important issues to a vote, the only recourse left to the public is recall. Signing a petition for recall is not a vote for recall, but simply a process for putting the issue of recall before the voters.

The Charlevoix Board of Education's rush to select a school site and its subsequent refusal to reconsider the popular will for a location closer to the heart of the community, has forced a recall movement, and feeds further division within the community.

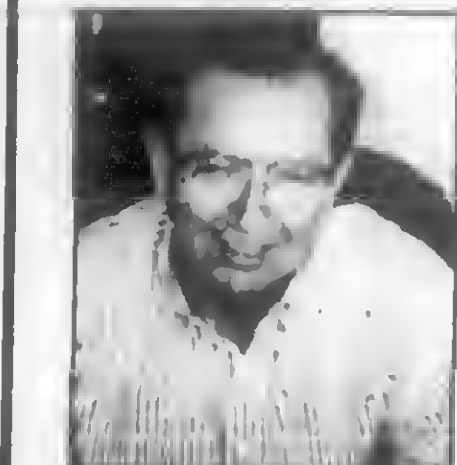

A full airing of the site is well overdue. The public needs to know more about the school site and the selection process.

Host families sought in area

The American Intercultural Student Exchange, a non-profit educational foundation, is seeking local host families for high school foreign exchange students for the 2000/01 school year.

AISE's students come from 25 countries throughout the world, and the program continues to expand. Every year, AISE places exchange students with over 2,000 host families throughout the United States. The students live with American families and attend local high schools during their 10 month cultural exchange experiences.

Host families provide these young ambassadors with a place to sleep, meals and a family atmosphere in which to live.

AISE students are eager to learn about our government, history and customs, while at the same time leaving a lasting impression of their cultures in the minds and hearts of their American host families and peers.

For information on hosting a student in your home call, (800) SIBLING, or visit the AISE web site at www.aise.com.

Breast cancer screening to be offered to area women

Breast cancer is a scary thought. But being scared won't protect you.

Early detection is the best defense against breast cancer. A cancer discovered early can usually be successfully treated. All women are at risk for cancer, and the risk of developing breast cancer increases with age.

Signs of breast cancer may include a lump or thickening of the breast, dimpling of the skin or a change in the shape of a breast. Any changes should be brought to the attention of your doctor. Some women have no sign or symptoms at all; the early cancer is seen only on a mammogram. The three steps to early breast cancer detection include self breast exam done monthly, a yearly exam done by a nurse practitioner or doctor, and annual mammogram.

Women who are 40-64 years old may qualify for the WOMANCARE Breast and Cervical Cancer Screening Program. This program has been in place through the health department since 1992. Last year the program screened 860 women in Northwest Michigan.

A nurse practitioner does a health history, breast exam, pelvic exam, and pap test. (The pap test is important because it is the only way to detect cervical cancer. Some women, however, only have the pelvic and pap test every three years, depending on their doctor's recommendation). The nurse practitioner then schedules a mammogram. A mammogram is a very low dose x-ray of the breast tissue. The mammogram is then read by a radiologist, and the results are sent to you and your doctor.

WOMANCARE is a free service for qualifying women (single person with an income under $20,600, two persons with income under $27,650, etc.). For more information or an appointment call 1-800-432-4121.

For those of you who have Medicare or an HMO insurance, the American Cancer Society recommends yearly mammograms, and Medicare and HMOs cover the cost of this. Your doctor can arrange this.

Taking care of yourself is the first step to good health. Just ask any cancer survivor.

"The man who fails to advertise just because conditions are a little uncertain is on par with the farmer who refuses to feed his cows because the price of butter has gone down."

Board president honored for work with education

Allen
Telgenhof

Allen Telgenhof, a resident of Charlevoix, was honored as the Clio Area Schools Alumnus of the Year for 1999 Jan. 22 at a dinner in Frankenmuth. Telgenhof graduated from Clio High School in 1981.

Over 280 guests were in attendance. The award is given by the Clio Area Educational Foundation each year to a graduate of Clio High School who has contributed to the betterment of his or her community in a significant way.

In 1992, while serving on the Clio Area Board of Education, Telgenhof co-founded the Clio Area Educational Foundation to provide a vehicle that would give "extras" to Clio students including college scholarships and teacher mini-grants. He served as president of this organization from its inception to October of 1994 when he moved to Charlevoix.

Telgenhof developed a love of education early in life, spurred by his father, a high school biology teacher, and his mother, a bus driver and cafeteria worker in Clio Area Schools.

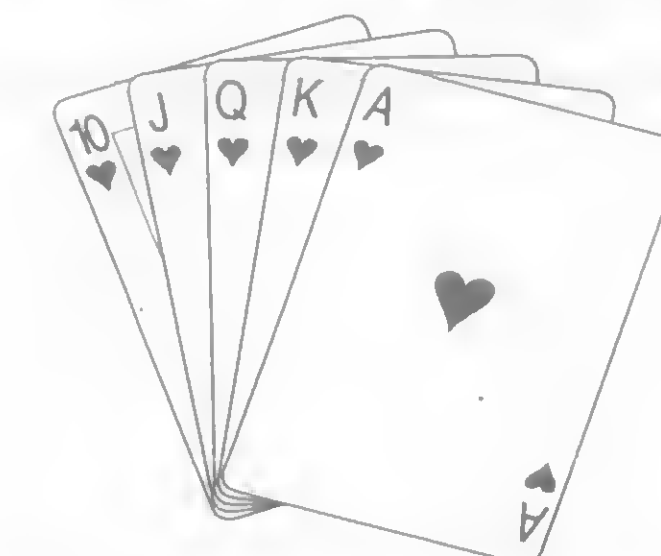

He has continued to work in this area of interest, previously serving on the Clio Board of Education from 1992 to 1994 and on the Charlevoix Board of Education from 1995 to the present, where he currently serves as board president.

Telgenhof also serves as a deacon and Sunday school teacher at Community Reformed Church, a Little League baseball coach, a city recreation t-ball coach and is a past member of the City of Charlevoix Planning Commission.

The Clio Area Educational Foundation has a permanent endowment of over $250,000 and has awarded more than $60,000 in scholarships and grants since its inception.

St. Mary's expansion complete

Parishioners of St. Mary of the Assumption parish gathered together at 4:30 p.m. Jan. 15 to celebrate the dedication of its new facilities.

After many months of planning, hard work and prayer, the new facilities at St. Mary's were completed and Bishop Patrick Cooney was present to preside at the Parish Mass of Dedication of St. Mary's School and Parish and Family Center.

Over a year ago, members of the parish began meeting to discuss where the parish was heading and what needed to be done to carry out the mission of the parish and school.

After many months of discussion and prayer, it was decided that the facility needed to be expanded to accommodate the needs of everyone. After this decision was made, a full effort was made by many persons to make sure that the goal would be met. Approximately eight months ago, the ground was broken for the new parish and the project was underway.

As a result of the work, the school was brought up to code, repainted and recarpeted. The school has also added a new Media Center, which includes a library, audio/visual room and up-to-date computer center. There is also a new pre-kindergarten room, three new parish offices for staff, a large meeting room, modernized kitchen and a parish and family center.

Parishioners celebrated after the Liturgy and dedication with a wonderful dinner in the new parish and family center. People who were integral in the planning of the new facility spoke at the dinner and praised the people of St. Mary's for their hard work and dedication at seeing this project through to completion.

BEACONS

By REV. BRUCE HAMILTON
(Former pastor of the Charlevoix Community Church of God, Rev. Hamilton moved to Florida from Charlevoix in December of 1998. This article originally ran Jan. 18, 1995)

It is the quiet of the night that brings me to write. The day was so full of noise and distraction. The business that had to be accomplished didn't find me getting home until well after dark. It is hard to unwind when your world has you going full tilt for 10 or 12 hours. For me anyway, it takes time to get my mind to shut down for the night.

I was on my way to Petoskey when the moon came up. Its huge orange glow seemed to fill the sky and signal that it was going to be a night to remember. Though the snow piles have shrunk dramatically, what remains crunches under your feet at eventide in a fashion that alerts you to the constant possibilities that surround you.

I had refilled the bird feeder over the weekend. I had been watching for new tenants to spread the word that a feast was waiting. I did not realize that the darkness brought visitors to the table as well. Two rabbits sat at the base of the feeder working on the spillage that has fallen from far above their heads. Even though the sky was aglow with the new silvery moon, stars galore filled the sky like crystals scattered across a black velvet cloth.

For whatever reason, God chose to wake me up to the particular night because I have been known to fill my days with all kinds of noise. I run the television at home sometimes not so much to watch anything but to just cover up the silence. I will play a tape or tune into radio in my study for the same reason. Driving in solitude never has tickled me that much either. I know for a fact that I am not the only one who has been known to do that. There is only one trouble with filling your work with noise. You may crowd out the very thing you need to hear most of all.

I cannot tell you how many times over the years that people have come to me and shared how they have trouble sensing God's presence in their lives and especially in hearing His voice. More often than not, the problem is that we haven't really made the effort to look for His presence or listen for His voice. In fact, if we are honest, we have gotten pretty good at crowding and drowning the Lord right out of our days. But, oh how quick we are to go hunting for Him when the going gets rough!

One of the more often quoted verses from the Psalm is "Be still and know that I am God." The Psalmist was writing about what the Lord can be like in the midst of a sea of troubles. "Be still" is God's command. "Know that I am God" is His way of bringing the peace that you need to the noisy work that so often surrounds us all. I know it seems easier to fill your life with distractions. But those distractions don't make what you need to face any easier. Look and listen for the sounds and sights of God's presence in your life. The power He brings to bear in your life will give you a peace you can really live with.

Hospice to offer grief counseling services

"Keep busy." "Don't think about it." "Take your mind off of it." Sometimes we offer these words to people who have suffered the loss of a spouse, family member or close friend. The problem is these may be our preferred coping mechanisms, but not the ones preferred by the person grieving.

To assist in that healing process, Hospice of Little Traverse Bay is offering a series of classes. The series recognizes the healing process involved in understanding loss in our lives. "Grief and the Healing Process: Understanding our Losses," will be held from 7-9 p.m. on six consecutive Tuesdays, beginning Feb. 1. All sessions are free and are at Emmanuel Episcopal Church, 1020 E. Mitchell St., Petoskey.

"Grieving over the loss of a loved one is very painful and at times can seem overwhelming. Many of us wonder whether we are grieving in the 'right' way and worry whether the feelings we are experiencing are 'normal'," said Bob Vance, a Family Counselor with Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. Vance and Family Counselor Jo Thomas will lead the sessions along with several Hospice volunteers.

The Grief and the Healing Process series provides a safe, supportive environment in which to share the practical problems of day-to-day living after the death of a loved one. By using the art of storytelling and expressive techniques, the series is designed to provide a deeper understanding of any loss and the means of reconciling the loss into normal, everyday activities.

Open to the families of Hospice patients as well as anyone in the community who has suffered a major loss, these weekly sessions help families and individuals come to renewed meaning and purpose through their pain and feelings of loss.

Preregistration for Grief and the Healing Process: Understanding our Losses is requested and can be made by calling the Hospice office at 231/487-4825.

Great Lakes Energy gives money for health center

BEAVER ISLAND — Customers of Great Lakes Energy Cooperative recently donated $8,000 to the Beaver Island Rural Health Center to help purchase and install a backup emergency generator.

The $8,000 grant awarded by the Great Lakes Energy People Fund Board of Directors represents another investment in supporting local charitable causes within Great Lakes Energy's service area that includes 24 Michigan counties stretching from the Mackinac Straits to Kalamazoo.

The funds have been used to purchase and install the backup generator at the island's sole source of medical services for residents and visitors. Additional funding for the project was provided by a private donor and the Peaine and St. James Townships.

The generator was purchased from and installed by Great Lakes Energy Electrical Services, the electrical wiring subsidiary of Great Lakes Energy.

The People Fund is part of Operation RoundUp, a voluntary charitable contribution program sponsored by GLE customers. Participating customer's monthly electric bills are rounded up to the next highest dollar with the extra few cents going into the program's People Fund. The People Fund is administered by a volunteer board of directors separate from the co-op's board, and funds are distributed to charitable organizations throughout GLE's service territory.

In the last 13 months, more than $176,500 in grants have been awarded to charities throughout the GLE service area.

All Operation RoundUp money collected from GLE customers is returned to charitable, non-profit organizations in their communities. There are no overhead expenses or administrative costs. Any charitable organizations interested in learning more about the People Fund should contact Great Lakes Energy at 1-888-GT-LAKES (1-888-485-2537).

Pro-board group collects over 700 signatures

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A drive to recall Charlevoix Board of Education members has lit the fuses of a group of residents who have formed a committee with one goal — to stop the recall drive.

"It's difficult enough to get people to serve in public office," Josh Barnes said. Barnes is a supporter of the Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way (CCAW).

"We have a board who does the research and is the first group to be successful in getting a major expansion for our schools, and the result is an attempt to recall."

"What does that say to the citizens and the community? It jeopardizes the whole future of public service in Charlevoix," Barnes

"It jeopardizes the whole future of public service in Charlevoix."

Josh Barnes
about a school board recall said.

Supporters of CCAW brought petitions with 775 signatures to Monday's meeting. The petition signatures had been gathered within one week.

"Continue to get signatures on our petition," Dick Joseph asked the group at the meeting. "Also write letters to the editors and write to Dr. Porter. Keep up the good work," he said.

The petition states in part that the signer supports the Board of Education and rejects the use of the recall process against the members of the school board.

The recall drive began during the second week of January by Jeff Porter and the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools. The committee is against the 74-acre site on Marion Center Road chosen by the school board to build the new high school.

Porter said committee concerns about the site include urban sprawl in a farm land area, the expense of bringing utilities to the site and bussing students outside of the community.

Unable to convince the board to consider alternative sites, the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools is attempting to recall Allen Telgenhof, Ardeth Wieland, Scott Boss, Barney Way, and Dennis Halverson. The other two members, Mike MacMillan and Larry Levensgood are too close to the end of their terms and cannot be recalled.

But the board members say they stand by their decision as the best of other options, and say they thoroughly researched all other possible sites.

Charlevoix school district residents voted for the $18.8 million bond issue in October for construction and renovation of the public schools. Voters knew about the site at the time, board members say.

Representatives of both sides of the recall issue will attend a Charlevoix County Elections Commission meeting at 9 a.m. on Friday, Jan. 28 at the county building. The language of the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools recall petition will be reviewed and the Elections Commission will accept or reject the recall petition language.

Student group forms to show support for Charlevoix school board facing recall

Student organizers who don't want the school board recalled are banding together in defense of board members.

Charlevoix High School seniors Shauna Barrett and Amber Williams helped to form the Students Opposing a Recall (SOAR). Through flyers and word-of-mouth they are recruiting other students to let the community know they support the board.

"I don't believe a recall is necessary," Barrett said. "We have a school board to do what's best for the students. I'm satisfied with what the board has done for us."

The recall drive was initiated by the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools in early January out of dissatisfaction with the site chosen by the board for building a new high school. The 74-acre parcel is on Marion Center Road, and is 2.7 miles from town.

The site location isn't ideal, Barrett said, but it's the best option the board had.

"It's the best property I've seen," she said. "I would have liked it in town, but there's no land in town." Barrett said she wants the community to recognize the students and seek their input.

"We want to make the community aware that we sit and listen and soak up information. We listen to the community, but no one wants our opinion," Barrett said. "But in 10 years we'll be raising our kids."

SOAR will be passing out flyers in support of the school board. It is looking for input from all of the students. Contact Barrett or Amber Williams at the school.

School design to keep future growth in mind

"The high school building has room for expansion," Pratt said. "And keeping the sports fields away from the school buildings helps with expansion (ability)."

Pratt and Brett Kronlein, also of Beta Design, described the lay-out of the school and its facilities.

"The north and northeast have good views of Lake Charlevoix and the high school building will be facing Lake Charlevoix," Kronlein said. "The west has trees, and the woods line with the valley to help with the winds." A greenbelt will be on the east side.

The school will have one entry located on the southwest side with the school's administration section next to it.

Board member Ardeth Wieland asked about the size and appearance of the entryway.

"It will probably have a canopy, and will be large enough for an open look," Pratt said.

A major part of design is the sports fields, Pratt said, naming softball, baseball, practice fields, a tennis area, football fields, marching band areas, and cross-country ski trails.

Approximately 8.5 acres of parking lots will hold 500 cars. Service buildings and loading areas are designed so that they unobtrusive, Pratt said.

The high school's interior on the north end will have two stories at the location of the classrooms. The remainder of the building will be one level. Plans are for more than a dozen general classrooms, each with between a 25-28 student capacity. Two science labs will be constructed and four science classrooms.

A media center will provide service for 50-60 students and additional computer rooms and a lab are planned.

The gymnasium may include a walking track and the gym's spectator capacity will be between 1,500-1,600 people.

A performing arts area will include band rooms, and a scene shop, and will be adjacent to a 600 seat auditorium.

A central courtyard and a common area near the cafeteria will provide natural light and an openness, Pratt said.

The school board hopes to provide schematic or more detailed plans and drawings at the March board meeting. Board president Allen Telgenhof said the board encourages comments from the public.

The new high school scheduled for completion in the fall of 2002.

Budget discussed by city

BUDGET

- Lake Michigan Beach improvements at $425,000.
- Michigan Avenue infrastructure at $424,000, and
- Marion Center Road for road and utility improvements at $345,000.

Some of the figures include grant monies.

"We'll get $1.7 million in state and federal grants to help with capital improvements," Brandt said. "We're fortunate to get as many grants as we've received."

Escalating health benefit costs necessitate a higher contribution rate from all funds to increase the fringe benefit fund.

"We've done pretty much what we can do outside of asking employees to contribute," Brandt said. "All employees are in a PPO. The goal is to have the fund break even. Workers' compensation rates are down a bit, which may help."

The increase in the Fringe Benefit Fund contribution rate for all funds is 56 percent from 52 percent of wages for full-time employees and is 13 percent from 12 percent for part-time employees.

A public hearing on the proposed 2000-2001 annual city budget is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 21 in City Hall.

The hearing's purpose is to inform citizens of the budget actions and to provide an opportunity to participate in the budget-making process.

The proposed property tax millage rate to be levied to support the proposed budget will be a subject of this hearing.

Copies of the proposed budget are available at City Hall and the library for public inspection.

Man's drug charge may be connected with October death

Marc Anthony Guzikowski, 31, of Onekama was arraigned on Friday in 90th District Court in front of Judge Richard May for allegedly delivering GHB, the "date-rape" drug to two men in October in Charlevoix.

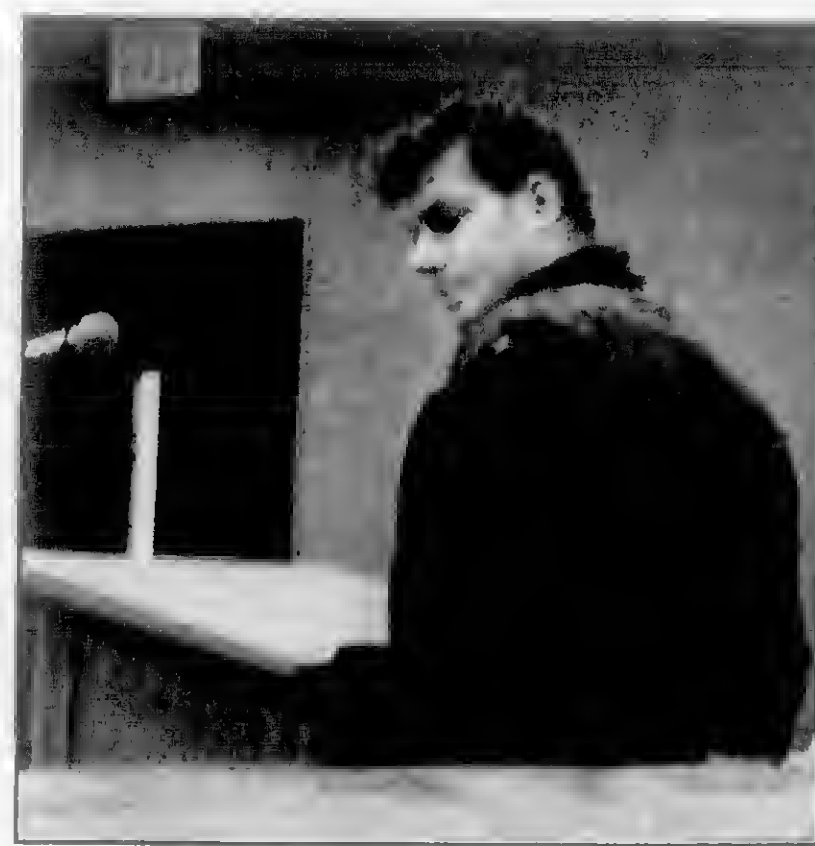

One of those men, David H. Hewitt, 44, was found dead on Oct. 22 in a room at Nanny's motel.

Hewitt had reportedly been socializing with co-workers from Skyline Erectors on the evening of Oct. 21. When he was discovered dead someone called 9-1-1.

At the arraignment, Charlevoix Prosecuting Attorney Mary Beth Kur said while Guzikowski does not have a criminal record, he should have some sort of cash bond set due to the seriousness of this crime.

May set the bond at $2,000 and scheduled a preliminary hearing in the district court at 3 p.m. on Feb. 3. Guzikowski has posted bond.

GHB (Gamma-hydroxybutyrate) is sometimes used as a party drug. It intensifies alcohol use and impairs memory. It can cause seizures, coma or death.

An autopsy and lab tests showed that the drug GHB was in Hewitt's body.

Community pool gets two $10,000 donations

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool's quest for financial independence gained some help recently from a $10,000 anonymous donation and a $10,000 grant from the Community Foundation.

According to Dr. Dave Smith the $10,000 donation is going into the operation budget, while the other will be given out by the Community Foundation. Smith said the pool relies on grants and donations such as this to help it cover costs.

Each year, he said the pool is short about $50,000 in its budget. That money must be made up through fundraising, grant writing and an endowment fund.

"In the whole North America there are maybe six pools like ours not supported by taxes," Smith said. "It is a small miracle. Thank goodness for the support of the people that use the pool."

If the pool does not get enough money to cover its expenses, Smith said there are contingency plans in place such as using lines of credit and more fundraising campaigns.

He stressed the income gap keeps closing every year. The cost to build the pool —

"In the whole North America there are maybe six pools like ours...."

Dave Smith,
 Community Pool president

$1.6 million — has already been paid back and people are really starting to make use of the pool, he said.

Many people are also getting into the endowment fund and taking advantage of the "huge" tax breaks that come with this type of donation, Smith added.

"There are more and more people coming on-board to support us," he said. "The community has solidly gotten behind us."

The pool was built in 1997 and has programs available for all ages, both recreational and health related. It is open seven days a week. Groups may arrange to use the pool for special events by calling pool director Al Gooch at 547-0982.

Rayders remain on top Boys basketball beats Boyne Friday

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Rayders conference winning streak continues.

While the team was beaten Jan. 18 by Petoskey in a 73-49 trouncing, the Rayders varsity basketball team came back to its winning ways Friday night in its conference game against rival Boyne City with an 80-56 triumph.

"I thought we played a pretty good game. Defensively we kept pressure on them," said Coach Keith Haske.

Offensive leaders for the game were: Sean Stockman with 19 points, Adam Wood with 19 points and Andy Granath with 12 points.

"I really thought Andy Granath and Russ Ward played a fine game.

I was real pleased with these two kids playing," Haske said.

He added Shay Hutchinson also had a very good game. While Hutchinson didn't score many points that night, Haske said he was handling the ball well and passing skillfully.

While some teams come off a big loss with a poor attitude, Haske pointed out the Boyne City game showed his players didn't let the loss to Petoskey affect them.

"I think when kids with character get pummeled, they will usually come back to a better effort," he said.

Haske added the team had to keep its winning attitude and playing ability at high levels when it faced Kalkaska last night. Kalkaska was expected to be the team to give Charlevoix problems in the Rayders quest for the conference championship, Haske said.

"Either Kalkaska or us are probably going to be the team to win the league," he said Monday. "If we win at their place, it will be a huge win."

The results of that game were unavailable before press time.

After facing Kalkaska the Rayders won't get much of a break when the team goes up against Traverse City St. Francis Friday night at home.

Haske said the Traverse City team is full of muscular kids that are going to be tough to handle.

"The key is we have to rebound the ball and handle their big kids on the inside," he said.

Frosh spikers win one, lose one

The Charlevoix High School freshman basketball team beat Grayling, but lost to Petoskey at a meet Monday night.

The freshman Rayders beat Grayling 15-5 and 15-8. However, the team didn't fair as well against Petoskey, who beat them 6-15 and 13-15. The Rayders did beat Petoskey in the first match 15-13.

The top setter was Lindsey

Miller. The best offensive player was Natasha Kleiber. The best defensive player was Beth Reeves.

Top servers were Miller and Krystal Meredith.

SCRAPBOOK

Stroll down Bridge Street continues into the 1940s

By MARILYN BOSS
Special to the Courier

As I continue our stroll of Bridge Street in the 1940's, the building located at the northeast corner of the bridge, heading south held the business of the Charlevoix Lumber Company. The Edgewater Inn is on the site today. E.J. Hiller owned the lumber company. At the time, it was an old barn-red building. In 1947, when the memorial bridge was built, the lumber company also rebuilt its building. It was a nice, white building which had a large sign facing the channel, which read "Quality materials since 1891". Hiller had a nice garden on this acreage, which he was very proud of. It was located to the east and was not being used for business purposes at that time. Dale remembers that he grew the most beautiful roses and always had a big bowl on the counter with a rose or two floating on the water. Their phone number was 22. They had one of the oldest businesses in town.

The old swing bridge had living quarters up in the air over the roadway. It was manned 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, by Elmer Johnson. The only time he had off was in the winter.

The first small building right next to the channel on the south side, was Sam Rose's barber and beauty shop. Sam would never allow anyone to take his picture. The only picture the Charlevoix Historical Society has is one of him in a diving suit, which he used when he worked on the 1901 bridge.

Next door was Robert Bonthron Plumbing, located at 104 Bridge. Mol Plumbing and Heating purchased the business later and Haggard's purchased it from John Mol in later years.

Fred S. Myers had his cigar store in the next building, which was located at 106. All of these buildings were located before the street which went to the city dock. They were very narrow, and fit in the space directly to the south of the bridge, which at that time was not as long as it is today. Mr. Myers also sold sundaes, and I remember him as a very ambitious man, who knew what was going on in his store at all times.

The municipal dock house was located on the water at the foot of the street on the south side of the bridge. Joe Howard was the dockmaster, and he presented a very dignified persona. He was always dressed in an official blue dress navy uniform, complete with hat and he smoked a big cigar. He was an excellent dockmaster and I am sure he was responsible for many of our good relationships with the yacht people.

In the cold months, he had to build a fire every morning in the old pot-bellied stove, as he was in charge of the goods which were shipped back and forth to Beaver Island. Dale remembers him calling the dairy, giving them less than 10 minutes at times, to get milk products to the boat before it left. Sometimes the lines were already thrown off the boat and they had to pass the products across to the man on the boat. The sewage treatment plant was also located by the water.

In 1940, there were three or four buildings which were torn down to open up a view of Round Lake, which is the site of the Bridge Park today. Peggy Disbrow from the Belvedere Club called me to talk about some of the businesses I had written about and she mentioned that as a girl she enjoyed going to the Majestic Theatre, which was located in this park section. I understand the old Majestic was operated by the late Bob Miles' father. In the forties, this piece of land where the Theatre stood, was used for the approach to the temporary bridge. It took almost as long to build the temporary one, as the permanent bridge did.

The road made a curve from Bridge Street and went up over the park and over a floating pontoon bridge, then continued up grade and connected on the north side at Nichols Street. The bridge was built on planks and was elevated on big 14 inch square timbers that were all bolted together. It was quite a sight to see and served very well for about 2 years until the new bridge was finished. The roadway came right next to Bob Bridge's house at 200 Dixon Avenue.

Throughout its history, Bridge Street has been through many changes. Such as this picture from the past as compared to now. (File photo)

The next building south, was the Martin Block Grocery store, which is now the first building adjacent to Bridge Park. Martin Block was one of several brothers who were raised in the Barnard area. He had the first self serve grocery store in Charlevoix. He lived over the store in the upstairs area. He was a very good businessman. People could call the store and he would deliver groceries to their home.

Martin was 100 percent Dutch. One day, when a nice Jewish lady from Michigan Avenue, by the name of L.E. Block, came in to order groceries he told her he was a Holland Jew, hoping to get her business, which he did. If Krogers, across the street, would put a sign in the window, "Bananas, 5 cents a pound", he would put up a sign for 3 cents a pound. It didn't matter what the cost was, he would always go lower. Nobody was going to beat him on price. The merchants of that day were very interesting and their stories memorable.

Area students can win cash prize in Arson Awareness Poster contest

LANSING — To draw attention to the devastating crime of arson, the Michigan Arson Prevention Committee and the Michigan Chapter of the International Association of Arson Investigators are sponsoring an Arson Awareness Poster Contest, open to students in grades seventh through twelfth grades. The deadline to enter is March 15.

Posters must emphasize the negative aspect of arson, such as: deaths, injuries, community decay, moral decay and/or property destruction, according to sponsors of the contest.

Prizes will be awarded in each of the two categories. In each category, the first place winner will receive $250; second place will be awarded $150; and third place will receive $100. Each winner's school will receive a matching cash award.

Posters must be approximately 15 inches by 20 inches and submitted on quality poster or illustration board. The work must be original and may be in any media with the exception of pencil, chalk, charcoal or glitter. No computer-generated artwork will be accepted. All posters will become the property of the sponsoring organizations. The artist's name, age, grade, home address and telephone number, along with the name, address and telephone number of the student's school and art instructor (if any), must be on the back of the poster.

School Board recall drive underway

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A recall drive is in progress by the committee seeking recall of five Charlevoix Public School Board of Education members and another committee is making a determined effort to stop it.

"We've started and we're well underway," said Bill Sherman of the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools (CPNS), the group seeking recall of school board

"Circulators will be put in the position of saying the circulator's view and people may sign based on what the circulator says."

Paul Beatty,

Attorney for school board members on petition language members. "We're making progress." On Jan. 28 a county elections commission made up of Judge Frederick Mulhauser, county clerk Jane Brannon and county treasurer Joan Balch, approved the CPNS recall petition language. This gave the go-ahead to circulate the petitions, which supporters of the CPNS began to do on Saturday.

CPNS is against the 74-acre site on Marion Center Road that the board chose for locating the new high school.

Attorney Scott Beatty representing Allen Telgenhof, Arden Wieland, Barney Way, Dennis Halverson and Scott Boss argued against the petition language before the elections commission.

"This is conclusory language, not fact," Beatty said. "The petition fails on clarity — it's not clear what occurred and when it occurred."

Winterfest remains a success in Charlevoix

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Charlevoix High School's Winterfest celebration strategically timed at the end of exam week and the middle of winter doldrums, was a rousing success for students, parents and alumni.

A 62-40 Rayder basketball win against Traverse City St. Francis highlighted Friday evening and at half-time the 2000 Winterfest Queen Winter Kyvik and King John Hughson were crowned by last year's Winterfest Royalty, king and queen Tom Cunningham and Juli Swenor.

Court members were Kirsten Brendtro, Beth Owens, Tiffany Fisher, Jill Ramsey, Sara Parrish, Brian Hater, Adam Wood, Andy Granath, Scott Pair, and Adam Kline.

Winterfest is a week-long event full of student activities of fun and friendly competition. The annual event was held during the week of Jan. 24 at the high school.

Students' imaginations were free to create snow sculptures, decorate the halls and to wear something different to school — their pajamas, for instance. Other themes were college sweatshirt and hat day and bad hair-clothes clash day. This year the cheerleaders chose the dress themes during the week.

Northwest to play in Great Britain

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Some band students at Northwest Academy will be showing off their skills in front of a British audience this February.

Several students at the school will be flying from Traverse City Cherry Capital Airport on Valentine's Day for a week-long trip to England, where they will be a part of an international concert along with students from England and a Detroit school.

In addition to playing in front of an English audience, the students will also be staying with English families during their trip.

"They will experience how the British live. It will be a great educational experience," said Band Director Gary Stutzman.

The trip is sort of an exchange for hosting English students last year at Northwest Academy, Stutzman said. Northwest students will be staying with the families of English students who came to Charlevoix last year.

Some of the student's parents are also going on the trip as chaperones. They will be staying in local hotels.

While in England, the students will join a massed band composed of the English students and a group of students from Detroit for a concert Feb. 18. The students will also have time to see the sights in the home-land of the Redcoats, including a visit to Leeds Castle and an afternoon shopping in London.

The cost of the flight over will be about $600 for each student, Stutzman said. The responsibility of raising money to cover that flight was the responsibility of the individual students, he added.

To help raise money, students had a fruit sale and a magazine sale at the beginning of this school year. A Valentine Dinner Dance at the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus Hall is also planned to help raise money for the students.

Dinner is served before the dance from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Dancing starts at 8 p.m. and ends at 11 p.m.

The public is invited to purchase a ticket for the event. The cost of the tickets are:

*$12 per individual for the dinner and dance.

*$24 per couple for the dinner and dance.

*$30 per family for the dinner and dance.

Separate prices are available for just the dinner or just the dance.

Tickets can be purchased from the band students or by calling 547-9000.

Charlevoix man dies in snowmobile crash

A 37-year-old Charlevoix man was killed in a two-snowmobile accident around 11 p.m. Saturday in a private field off of Barnard Road in Marion Township.

Jeffrey Paul Renaud was killed when the 1995 Ski-Doo snowmobile he was driving collided with a 1988 Polaris snowmobile driven by a 34-year-old Norwood Township resident, as it crested a hill in the field.

Renaud was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix Ambulance where he was pronounced dead.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater said neither alcohol nor excessive speed were a factor in this accident. The incident is still under investigation.

The driver of the other snowmobile did not sustain any injuries as a result of the accident.

This is the first snowmobile fatality this year in Charlevoix. Lasater said there were no fatalities in the county last year as a result of snowmobile accidents.

Warning

Open water maintained around dock on the shore of Lake Charlevoix between Pine Point and Oyster Bay.

Deputies investigating second snowmobile crash over weekend

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is investigating a personal injury crash at approximately 5 p.m. in Hayes Township in a field near the intersection of C-56 and Quarterline Road.

Timothy J. Graham, a 33-year-old Redford Township man, lost control of his 1998 Yamaha when he hit a bump at excessive speed. Graham was ejected as the snowmobile rolled and vaulted numerous times.

He was transported by Charlevoix ambulance to Charlevoix Area Hospital before being transferred to Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Graham remains in the Intensive Care Unit with multiple injuries, including several fractured vertebrae. The crash is under investigation.

OPINIONS

Count yourself into this year's census

It's time for northern Michigan to start counting its population for the 2000 census.

Every 10 years everyone in America must participate in this process. Everyone must count everyone in their household and let the government know the number.

And almost every census in the past has shown inaccurate numbers for northern Michigan. Some people say they forgot to send in the census forms, they lost their forms, they didn't have time to fill it out and some conspiracy-minded people even say, "I don't want big government knowing something as personal as how many people are in my house."

What these people don't know is what their forgetfulness, laziness or hard-headedness does to the rest of the people living in northern Michigan.

Each person is worth about $250 in just federal aid to the area, let alone state aid. If northern Michigan does not get an accurate count on this year's census, it can cost us needed federal and state money for our schools, streets, hospitals, police and fire departments. It can also cost the area, and the state, representation in the U.S. House of Representatives. The number of representatives each state can have in this governmental unit is based on the state's population as determined in the census count.

If northern Michiganders fail to fill out their census forms, the population will seem to be lower than in the past and perhaps cost the state a representative to the House.

The census is an important task we all must undertake every 10 years that is vital to the welfare of our community and our state.

So, when census-takers appear at your home this spring to deliver the census form, take the form, fill it out and make sure you send it in.

It doesn't take that long and its benefits will be with us for at least another 10 years, until the next census.

For more information about the census visit www.census.gov on the internet or call (888) 325-7733.

More people are learning the joys of living in town

Edith Gilbert

Have you noticed how neighborhoods are changing — even in Charlevoix? I am sure many realtors have. Take the area we refer to as "the valley" — that stretch of land from the bridge to Oleson's Shopping Center. These homes used to be occupied by local year-round residents, but gradually they have been bought up by summer people.

Why are retired residents from down state remodeling these frame houses inside and out, installing double pane windows, repairing chimneys, resurfacing driveways and planting petunias? I spoke to Ann Woodward for example, about this current trend. She and her husband moved here from Ann Arbor and bought a home on Clinton Street because she enjoys walking to the drugstore, browsing in the bookstore or just sitting in the park and looking at the boats. She doesn't need to get in her car and buck traffic while running small errands.

Another Dixon Avenue resident, Fran Hack, tells me with delight that she has discovered the same pleasures of in-town living. Walking to town in Charlevoix has become such an enjoyable part of her lifestyle, that she said to her husband, "Why not live like this down state?" Consequently, they decided to sell their home in Bloomfield Hills and move instead to downtown Birmingham just so she didn't have to get in her car and drive to the library, go to the movie or buy a bottle of milk.

A newly transplanted professional greeted me on Bridge Street last year with a big smile. "I can walk to my office in town and walk home for lunch! Don't have to look for a parking space," they said.

It's easy for me to understand this attitude. We have always lived in town. From where I live, it's a stone's throw to walk south for an ice cream, walk west to watch the sunset on Lake Michigan, or east for a game of tennis. In the summer the children can spill out of the house to meet playmates without me getting into the car. I can sit on my porch and watch them use tricycles on the sidewalk, or roller blade in the street. In the winter, they can walk to school without hassle with the bus, but that's a whole other col-

From what I hear, people are discovering the joys of not bothering to drive in and out of suburbia. By the year 2030, the number of people over 64 will grow from 39 million to 69 million. Given the poor quality of public transportation, these senior citizens will need to depend more and more on relatives for transportation. Advocates for the elderly fear the nation is ill-prepared to deal with the transportation problem. According to an article in the Detroit Free Press, Audrey Straight, an AARP policy analyst says, "What we're seeing is that when people depend on others to drive, the number of trips they take drops and that's trouble because people are cut off from social activity that keeps them healthy and thriving."

Undoubtedly in the foreseeable future, in-town property will become more desirable than ever by trendsetters for the aforementioned reasons. If only we could stretch Charlevoix like a rubber band and accommodate the growing demand for in-town housing.

Letters to the editor

CPNS in error

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools has been an interesting study in rhetoric since its inception. Because it is impossible to detail in fewer than 300 words the array of logical errors made by the CPNS, I'll limit myself to three examples.

In a flyer criticizing the Charlevoix Board of Education's selected site for the recently approved high school, the CPNS warns that "students living near Bay Shore will travel almost 9 miles to school." Consider the data they omitted: students living near Norwood would travel almost 13 miles to school if the CPNS-supported site were chosen. The same Norwood students currently travel about 11 miles to the existing centrally located high school.

The same document states, "The Marion Center Road is dangerous." No objective data is attached to this assertion; as such, it is simply an emotional appeal. This is a very effective persuasive device (ask an advertising executive), but it's not especially productive in planning a project of such importance.

Perhaps the best example of the CPNS's unsound reasoning is its own name (Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools). Who, in fact, would not support a neighborhood school if it were a viable option? The erroneous suggestion that the board believes out-of-town schools to be better sets up a straw man fallacy; it's an easy argument to win because no one opposes it.

Oddly enough, the CPNS promotes a school site located 2 miles north of downtown, outside the city limits, beyond an industrial park and most easily accessible via a 55-mile-per-hour stretch of US 31. Please consider these and other relevant issues very carefully before signing the CPNS's petition to recall the Board of Education.

The price is right

Editor:
To say that the situation in Charlevoix regarding the site selection for the new high school is interesting is certainly an understatement.

I know several of the people who are opposed to the current site and they are good, hardworking, conscientious, taxpaying people.

The price of land, any land, in Charlevoix and adjacent to Charlevoix is high-priced. So let's look at what is being proposed.

The "Hoffman" parcel in Charlevoix Township, north of town, is 55 acres and the asking price is $1.2 million — that puts the price per acre at $21,818 with no water and no sewer. A significant portion of that property is considered wet land and thus is not usable for development without a long expensive battle with the DNR. (My understanding of the property)

The "Erber" property, near the township hall, is 26.3 acres and the asking price is $600,000. Thus, the price per acre is $22,814.

Both of these properties are cited by the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools as alternatives to the site purchased by the school board. This Marion Center Road site is 74 acres, purchased for $250,000, which is $3,378 per acre. No utilities on site, but all that expense was covered in the bond issue which voters passed.

The school board has acted within its responsibilities and authority, to which it was elected by the voters. We were dissatisfied with the performance of the previous board regarding both school expansion and site location.

Even if the "after the fact" anonymous donation of $500,000 is applied, the Hoffman property would cost $12,727 per acre and the Erber property $3,802 per acre (no room for expansion there).

The comparison tells me that the school board acted responsibly with our tax dollars at $3,378 per acre and obtained a site large enough, not just for current needs, but future requirements as well.

If the neighborhood school group succeeds in recalling the present board, their next step would be to put their candidates up for the board. Do you want your tax dollars spent at over $20,000 per acre? I don't think so.

CPNS to give spin

Editor:
Last Tuesday night I attended the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools meeting regarding the recall of five school board members. There, I had the pleasure to hear, first hand, the latest spin that the group intends to relay to you, the citizens of the Charlevoix School District.

Specifically, when circulating the recall petitions, they intend to say to you — if you show any hesitancy at all — that "signing the recall petition does not mean that you are in favor of a recall."

This is a spin that is worthy of the Clinton White House. You remember, "I never had sex with that woman." I didn't believe that spin and you should not believe the latest spin from the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools.

The fact of the matter is if the group collects 996 valid signatures on their recall petitions, there will be a recall vote, whether you want one or not.

The fact of the matter is, if there is a recall vote, the school district — meaning you the taxpayers — will pay for the election. This is a terrible waste of tax dollars.

The fact of the matter is, if the recall election delays the school building project at this stage — by even one or two months — it will result in a delay of the opening of the new high school for one year.

The fact of the matter is, if there is a delay in the construction by one year, and costs of the construction increase by only 5 percent — a conservative estimate — over that one year period, the net result will be a cost to the taxpayers of nearly $1,000,000.

The base of the entire recall issue comes due to the fact that the Charlevoix Board of Education has not committed any unlawful, unethical or immoral behaviors. They have stuck to their decision, held their ground and continued to focus on the future of the Charlevoix Schools. And furthermore, contrary to popular belief, the recall of the Charlevoix Board of Education will not result in the reversal of the Oct. 11, 1999 election.

The only thing that the CPNS is going to accomplish from attempting to recall the school board is to prolong the building of our new school.

So CPNS, do the community and the students of Charlevoix Schools a favor, and stop the unjust and unfair recall petition.

Letters to the editor

Student speaks out

Editor:
As a student of Charlevoix High School, I would like to take a minute to relay my feelings on the current recall petition of the Charlevoix Board of Education. The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools (CPNS) has not been able, in my opinion, to come up with any concrete evidence to any wrong-doings of the board that would constitute a recall. The only job that they have successfully completed is the dividing of our community and the distribution of half-truths.

I attended the court hearing where the recall petition was brought in front of a committee to decide whether or not the wording was stated clearly on the petition. Much to my disappointment, the committee decided to allow the CPNS to move on with its petitions. I guess that providing very ambiguous words and rather misleading facts is OK to do when you want your own way. I also want to say how proud I was of Scott Beatty for holding his composure throughout the entire hearing. Mr. Beatty was able to get his point across without hurling sarcastic insults.

The base of the entire recall issue comes due to the fact that the Charlevoix Board of Education has not committed any unlawful, unethical or immoral behaviors. They have stuck to their decision, held their ground and continued to focus on the future of the Charlevoix Schools. And furthermore, contrary to popular belief, the recall of the Charlevoix Board of Education will not result in the reversal of the Oct. 11, 1999 election.

Marion Center is dangerous

Editor:
Ten or so years ago the Marion Center Road was the scene of a tragic accident that took the lives of a school teacher, Maxine Drenth, and her husband, Bob Drenth, a member of the school board. Lest they be forgotten and we condemn generations of school children so dear to our hearts, their teachers, support staff and bus drivers to travel this route to school. I challenge the Charlevoix School Board and those supporting them, newspaper editors Ken Winter and Jeremy McBain, and all those in favor of this site for the new Charlevoix High School (children excepted) to drive this route to the site during these wintry days before they utter or print another word on the subject.

The Marion Center Road was never meant for heavy traffic; its hills and dips and curves are difficult to negotiate, especially in winter. It's a lovely, scenic road; let's leave it that way.

Dennis Halverson has put together some inconclusive statistics about the number of accidents there as compared to the intersection of Garfield and Bridge Streets, Bridge Street being US 31, heavily traveled by every type of vehicle and huge truck. He finds there were far fewer accidents on Marion Center Road.

That's because there isn't much traffic out there — as yet. Those statistics will change rapidly if the high school is built on that site.

I challenge you to put your own safety on the line before endangering the lives of others.

Thank you

Editor:
On behalf of Charlevoix Children's House, a Montessori school, I would like to thank the many supporters who made our first Holiday Dinner and Auction a smashing success. Parents, school board, staff and community members all worked together, helping us raise money that will benefit the children through materials and supplies for our classroom.

It was great fun and it was all for the children.

Deb Sayers Hobbs
Director of the Charlevoix Children's House

Thank you

An open letter to the Northern Michigan Community:

Thank you for the outstanding support shown during our Safe Home Harvest Food and Supply Drive this past holiday season.

Literally thousands of items and numerous financial gifts were donated to the Safe Home by area businesses, service groups, schools, churches, agencies and individuals.

These donations will allow the Women's Resource Center to provide safety and emergency shelter to abused women and their children from Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Winterfest activities put some life into January

On Friday afternoon students and alumni crowded the gym for an assembly. The band played and students entertained the audience with competitive games.

A dance on Saturday night brought this year's Winterfest to a close.

The results from competitions are:

- Banner Competition: First place-sophomores, Second place-juniors, Third place-freshmen, Fourth place-seniors.

- Snow Sculpture Competition: First place and Second place tie-juniors and seniors, Third place and Fourth place tie-freshmen and sophomores.

- Hall Decoration Competition: First place-sophomores, Second place-freshmen, Third place-juniors, Fourth place-seniors.

- Spirit Week Dressing Up Competition: First place-seniors, Second place-sophomores, Third place-freshmen, Fourth place-juniors.

- Assembly Talent Competition: First place-juniors, Second place-sophomores, Third place-freshmen, Fourth place-seniors.

- Overall winners: First place-sophomores, Second place-juniors, Third place-freshmen, Fourth place-seniors.

Student adviser and Winterfest organizer Gail Cherry said the event's activities were enjoyed by all.

"The snow sculptures hadn't been done for several years," Cherry said. "The seniors out-did themselves with the luck dragon Felcor and the juniors were very creative burying a car (in the snow) and turning it into a tank."

The assembly games were a hit with the students and the audience.

"The students always enjoy performing themselves at the assembly," Cherry said.

The new king and queen entertained everyone after their crowning.

"Winter and John did a free-spirited dance," she said.

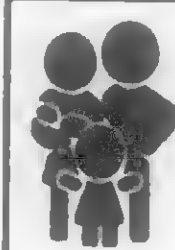

Winterfest evolved from winter homecoming about five years ago. It has an emphasis on all extra-curricular activities as well as sports.

"It's a great spirit-filled way to begin the new semester," Cherry said.

BEACONS

By REV. LOWELL
ANDERSON
Charlevoix Assembly of God

"Your account has been credited," the statement reads.

It's always great news. It's good to learn that you have more than you thought you had. It's especially good news when it's unexpected, or better yet, undeserved.

The Bible talks about an unexpected and undeserved credit on someone's account. The first time it's mentioned is the very first book of the Bible. Abram is the name of the fortunate individual. The Bible says, "Abram believed the Lord, and He credited it to him as righteousness."

God credited Abram's "account" with some very unexpected and undeserved "righteousness" simply because Abram "believed" God. The Bible word for this kind of a transaction is "grace."

Grace is simply undeserved or unmerited favor. Abram's account was credited with righteousness because he believed.

Another time the Bible tells about someone's "account" being credited with righteousness for just believing is the book of Romans. The fourth chapter of Romans refers again to the original transaction of grace that God made with Abram and then goes on to say that God is prepared to make the same gracious credit to our accounts.

In Romans 4:23 and 24 it says, "The words 'it was credited to him' were written not for him alone, but for all of us, to whom God will credit righteousness — for us who believe in Him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead." Earlier in the chapter (verse 5) it says "...To the man who does not work but trusts God who Justifies the wicked, his faith is credited as righteousness." We do not become righteous in God's sight by our own efforts — that's self-righteousness. We are credited for righteousness by believing God and receiving Christ as personal Savior. It's a "credit," an unmerited, undeserved act of God's grace.

God wants to credit your account with righteousness. Will you believe Him?

Obituaries

Joy J. Mudge

Joy J. Mudge 70, of Ellsworth, died Jan. 25 at home.

Joy was born March 14, 1929 in Cleveland, Ohio, the daughter of John E. and Doris I. (McKinnon) North.

She was raised in East Liverpool, Ohio and graduated from high school there in 1947. She received a Bachelor of Arts from Beaver College in Pennsylvania and a Masters in Library Science from Wayne State University in Detroit. She was a member of the Phi Lambda Theta Sorority.

She began her career as a teacher in East Liverpool, followed by becoming a librarian, working at Wayne State University, Oak Park High School and the Charlevoix Public Schools, where she was the director of school libraries from 1968 to 1992 when she retired.

She was listed in Who's Who of American Women and selected as the Girl Scout Career Woman of the Year of 1990.

She was a long time volunteer for the Central Lake Twp. Library and the writer of the articles "I Love This Book" and "So Many Books—So Little Time" for local newspapers.

Surviving are her cousin Carolyn

"Kay" (John) Michaels of East Liverpool, Ohio and many dear friends.

She was preceded in death by her husband Glen R. Mudge in 1977, her parents and her step father Frank Farnsworth.

A Memorial Gathering was given Jan. 29 at the Central Lake Twp. Library. The Rev. Estel Clark officiated.

Memorial Contributions may be made to the Central Lake Twp. Library, P.O. Box 397, Central Lake, MI 49622.

Arrangements were made by the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes.

COMMUNITY

Foundation names new officers

East Jordan — The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently named a new board chairman and three new trustees.

Larry Mattox of Boyne City was named the new chairman, while Barbara Malpass of East Jordan, Tom Hanna of Charlevoix and Josh Barnes of Charlevoix were named trustees.

Mattox is the recently retired community executive of Huntington Bank. He replaces Bill Lorne, a founding trustee whose term expired.

Malpass has previously served on the East Jordan Board of Education, the board for Raven Hill Discovery Center and the Charlevoix

Tom Hanna

Area Hospital's development committee.

Hanna served as the Charlevoix City Administrator from 1969 to 1973 and recently retired as general manager of the area's rural electric cooperative, Top O' Michigan (now Great Lakes Energy), after a 22-year career with the organization. Hanna is committed to environmental issues and is a board member of the Lit-

Josh Barnes

Barnes is very active in Charlevoix and works with many community projects and nonprofit organizations.

The Community Foundation was started in 1992 by a group of local citizens. It is a charitable organization dedicated to enriching and improving life for those who live in the area and to investing in the region's future.

The Foundation accepts donations from individuals and organizations, which it places in permanently endowed funds that are dedicated for specific needs. Each year, investment income from the funds is used to make grants in support of a variety of nonprofit programs and community initiatives.

To date, the foundation has built an endowment of nearly $6.8 million and holds 103 separate funds. Grants to benefit the area now total $1.7 million.

Equalization Ratios as shown are the percentages of assessed valuations to true cash value as determined by a survey of individual assessments. The Multipliers are those necessary to bring the Ratios to the required 50% of estimated true cash value.

The Multipliers as shown are tentative and subject to change as the result of possible adjustments by individual assessing officers. Assuming that no adjustments are made, the Multiplier may be applied to each individual valuation.

Note: THESE MULTIPLIERS REPLACE THOSE OF 1999 AND ARE NOT AN ADDITION TO OR SUBTRACTION FROM THEM.

Big Rock updates county on its clean-up status

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

At the beginning of its third year of decommissioning Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant and restoring the land that hosted the plant for more than 35 years, county commissioners heard a status report at its Jan. 12 meeting.

"The site will be as clean as your backyard," said Tim Petrosky, spokesperson for Big Rock Point.

Petrosky said the Consumers Energy plant is scheduled to close in 2004. By that time the only thing remaining will be seven dry canisters of spent fuel. With the fuel safely in dry canisters, the containment sphere can be dismantled, according to a statement from the plant.

The canisters will be stored on a specially designed and highly secure concrete pad until the Department of Energy takes the fuel and canisters off of the site scheduled for the year 2012. The dry storage canisters will be shipped to the Department of Energy's storage facility.

The cost of restoration to return Big Rock Point to a green field is estimated to be more than $350 million, according to the plant's statement.

Petrosky told commissioners that safety and environmental concerns are always paramount and noted that the soil surrounding the plant is analyzed on a regular basis.

The 600 acres owned by Consumers Energy will be a green field with no environmental restrictions, Petrosky said. The plant sits on approximately eight of those acres.

The 600 acres on the shoreline of Lake Michigan will be up for sale by Consumers Energy in the year 2004.

"There's been no decision made on the Big Rock property," Petrosky said.

But developers and environmental groups are making inquiries about the land, he said. Consumers Energy is seeking input on the future of the acreage.

Big Rock Point is the longest-running nuclear power plant in the country. It has produced medical isotopes and electricity for more than 35 years. The aging plant's decommissioning procedures are being shared with other nuclear plants.

Petrosky told commissioners that future presentations will be scheduled when the county desires them.

Conservation design to be focus of February forum

The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful will host a conservation planning and design lecture at 5:15 p.m. Feb. 15 at the Charlevoix City Hall.

"Putting Conservation Design into Practice," will be the topic of the newly revived "Focus Forum" sponsored by the two groups. Maureen Radke will present a step-by-step guide to conservation planning and design and answer questions on how citizens can be involved in the planning process.

Radke has a masters degree in planning from Michigan State University and has been Land Use Program Director for Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council for the past year. Prior to that, Radke was assistant planner for Emmet County for 17 years.

The public is invited to attend. For more information, call the Charlevoix Land Conservancy at 237-9335.

Best-Way warehouse offers a lot of storage

Businesses needing a lot of covered and heated space to store supplies can now go to Best-Way Storage south of Charlevoix on US 31.

The building was recently built by the owners of Way Transportation and hails as one of the biggest indoor heated warehouses in northern Michigan.

According to co-owner Denny Way, construction on the warehouse started about three months ago and has been complete for just about two weeks.

Already the 12,000 square foot warehouse is storing several large industrial items such as brass bars and even a full-size yacht. Even with these items already inside, the building has plenty of space left.

While the size of the building is one selling point, Way points out people who store items in the warehouse do not have to worry about frost or snow getting on their property. The building is completely covered and has "in-floor" heating.

Best-Way Storage Co-Owner Denny Way shows what can fit in his company's new warehouse. The building is one of the biggest in northern Michigan. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

To make loading and unloading into the warehouse easier, the building also has a loading dock.

Way said the warehouse was built because the owners saw a need for a place in Charlevoix for businesses to store parts and finished goods. Businesses can store their property in the warehouse for both long and short terms.

For more information about the warehouse call Way Transportation at 547-9660.

Charlevoix firefighters respond to two calls

City firefighters responded to a call at about 1 a.m. on Jan. 27 from the Scott Adler residence where a fire had started in a wall near the fireplace.

There were no injuries. The Adler residence is located at 624 Petoskey Ave.

Wood wall studs caught fire, due to close tolerances between the fireplace and wood, according to the fire department statement. The department used the thermo-imaging camera to locate the heat-intensive areas.

"We had to cut a hole in the wall to gain access to the two-by-four studs," firefighter Joe Schwartzfisher said. The insulation was pulled out of the wall and the area was doused with about 10 gallons of water.

The Adler family waited outside until firefighters ventilated the house of the smoke. They were then able to return to the house. Firefighters were on the scene about 45 minutes.

At 7:46 a.m. on the same day firefighters responded to a call reporting gas odor at the Margaret Landman residence at 105 Cherry St.

They found that a gas cooking stove was not completely turned off, allowing a small amount of natural gas to escape. The burner was turned off and the house aired out. There were no injuries. Firefighters were on the scene for about 15 minutes.

Sheriff gives safety tips to follow while out in winter

There are few things as exciting as cruising along a wilderness trail on your snowmobile. But, without proper safety precautions, a fun outing could quickly turn to tragedy.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater urges residents and visitors to follow proper safety procedures when enjoying the beauty of the area. Follow common sense and rules and you can have a great outing.

First, make sure that you are dressed properly, including wearing a helmet with a face shield or goggles. Carry some basic safety equipment with you, such as a flashlight, first aid kit, matches in a waterproof container and a blanket that will retain body heat.

Michigan has tough laws regarding snowmobiling while intoxicated and the "implied consent law" applies. According to the sheriff, one of the leading causes of snowmobile crashes is the combination of alcohol and speed.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department does conduct a snowmobile enforcement program and will be patrolling designated trails. The sheriff encourages snowmobilers to cooperate with the law enforcement and not try to avoid them.

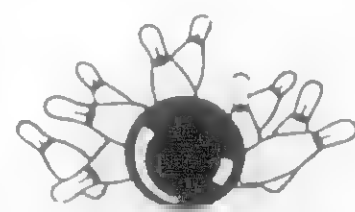

The sheriff suggests that you ride with at least one other person and always let people know where you'll be heading and what time you're expected back. He also encourages everyone to take advantage of snowmobile safety courses offered through the sheriff's department.

Delinquent taxpayers have less time before land sale

Property owners with delinquent taxes now have less time to pay them before losing their property to foreclosure.

Public Act 123 of 1999 reduces the amount of time to pay delinquent taxes from approximately five years to approximately three years. For example, people who fail to pay their 1999 delinquent property taxes will lose their property to foreclosure in March 2002.

"The most important factor for taxpayers who are behind is that they will have a shorter time period to pay delinquent taxes — from approximately five years to two-and-a-half years," county treasurer Joan Balch said. "So the time is cut in half."

Formerly, if the taxes went on sale people had a year to redeem those taxes, she said. Now, it will be a land sale and once the property is foreclosed in circuit court people will have only 21 days to redeem the property.

"It's critical for people to know this," Balch said.

The state's motive for the changes in the property tax law is to clean up urban areas of vacant property and run-down housing districts, Balch believes.

"The state can get property back on tax rolls in a shorter time frame," she said.

Property owners who have multiple tax years owing may have to pay as many as three years (1997, 1998 and 1999) by March 2002 to avoid losing their property.

Balch states that higher fees and interest are allowed under the act. Taxes that are more than two years old will have an interest rate of 1.5 percent per month, up from one percent. After two years, taxes will also have a $175 forfeiture fee and additional administrative fees tacked on.

- Property Foreclosure Time Line
- July/December 1999: 1999 property taxes billed by city or township treasurer.
 - March 1, 2000: Unpaid 1999 property taxes are forwarded to county treasurer for collection. County treasurer adds a four percent administration fee and one percent per month interest.
 - October 1, 2000: County treasurer adds $15 fee to each parcel.
 - March 1, 2001: Property is forfeited to county treasurer. County treasurer adds a $175 fee. Interest increased from one percent per month to 1.5 percent per month, back to the date the taxes became delinquent.
 - March 1, 2002 - March 10, 2002: Circuit court enters a judgment of foreclosure. From the date of this judgment, property owners have only 21 days to pay the taxes or lose their property.
 - March 22, 2002 - March 31, 2002: Clear title to the property passes to the county or state.
 - July 2002: Property is sold at public auction.

Source: Charlevoix County
Treasurer's Office
Public Act 123 of 1999

"People really need to get it (property taxes) paid within the first year," Balch said.

Under the old law property owners with delinquent taxes were sometimes given "second chances." Under the new law if taxes are delinquent for three years, that's it — the owners have lost the property.

The county treasurer's office stresses that once a foreclosure takes place, an owner cannot get the property back because foreclosure is final. Property that has been foreclosed will be sold at public auction.

By state law, property owners with delinquent taxes will receive five notifications from the county treasurer. Two notifications will be by first class mail, two by certified mail and the last notification will be made by personal service.

Charlevoix county will do more than the law requires, Balch said.

"We'll be making an extra effort to give more notification in the last six months of delinquency," she said.

Rayder skiers take top spots throughout week

It was a week of top finishes for the Charlevoix Rayder veteran skiers and a week of impressive personal achievements for newcomers to the team.

With three ski meets packed into the last week, the Rayder skiers had ample opportunity to shine.

The week started with an 11-school invitational meet at Caberfae Jan. 24, where both the girls' and boys' teams finished in second place, yielding the first place position to Cadillac. Tiffany Fisher led the girls' field with first place finishes in both slalom and Giant Slalom, followed by Lexi Wilson, with a third place finish in GS and a sixth place finish in slalom.

For the boys, Troy Smith was also a double winner, finishing first in both slalom and GS, followed by Todd Freidinger, who finished second in slalom and fourth in GS.

In Thursday's meet against Harbor Springs and Traverse City-St. Francis, the Charlevoix boys came away with first place. Freidinger was the double winner in the meet, followed by Steve Pirie, who finished third in slalom and second in GS. Freshman Brad Long captured a top 10 finish with sixth place in GS, while Shaun MacMillan broke into the top 10 with a seventh place finish in slalom and a 10th place finish in GS.

For the girls, Lexi Wilson finished fourth in GS and fifth in slalom, followed by Kirsten Brendtro, who finished sixth in slalom and ninth in GS and Alisha Johnson, who finished eighth in GS and ninth in slalom. New team member Kristy Shindorf nearly made it into the top 10, finishing 11th in GS.

The nightcap for the week was an evening race Jan. 29 at Boyne Mountain against Detroit Country Day, Boyne City, Bellaire and Inland Lakes. Freidinger again took home top honors with two, first place finishes for the boys, while Wilson earned her first top finish of the season, coming in first in GS and second in slalom. Overall, both the boys' and girls' teams finished in second place, helped by increasingly fine performances from new team members.

"I'm really happy with the results our new team members are getting," said coach Sue Miller. "Brad, Kristy, and Lindsey (Carland) are really progressing well in preparation for the regional meet."

At the meet, Long came away with a seventh place finish in GS and an 11th place finish in slalom. Shindorf came in 14th in slalom and 15th in GS, while Carland was 19th in GS.

Other finishes for the Rayder skiers during the week were: Boys, Caberfae Invitational: Roscoe Serrels, fifth, slalom, DQ, GS; Shaun MacMillan, 20th, slalom; Brad Long, 28th slalom; Joel Trubilowicz, 39th, GS; Steve Pirie, fifth GS, 40th, slalom.

Boys, Harbor Springs, TC-St. Francis: Joel Trubilowicz, 12th slalom, 11th GS; T.J. Christiansen, 15th, GS; Jim Dilworth, 14th GS, DQ, slalom.

Boys, Boyne Mountain meet: Steve Pirie, third slalom, 28th GS; Shaun MacMillan, 10th, slalom, 17th, GS; Brad Long, 11th slalom, seventh, GS; Joel Trubilowicz, 19th slalom, 15th GS.

Girls, Harbor Springs, TC-St. Francis: Lindsey Carland, 14th GS, DQ, slalom; Jessica Halverson, 16th GS, 14th, slalom.

Girls, Boyne Mountain Meet: Alisha Johnson, fourth, GS, 12th slalom; Kirsten Brendtro, 12th, GS, eighth, slalom; Kristy Shindorf, 15th, GS, 14th, slalom; Lindsey Carland, 19th, GS, DQ, slalom; Jessica Halverson, 20th, slalom, 24th, GS.

Stingrays debut in Gaylord

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool's Stingrays finally got its chance to showcase its talent Jan. 22 at a swim meet hosted by the Gaylord Gators at the Otsego County Sportsplex in Gaylord.

The meet, which was also attended by teams from Rudyard and Sault St. Marie, introduced Charlevoix's age group swimmers to competitive swimming after more than a year of preparation.

"It's good to give our swimmers the opportunity to show everyone what they can do," said Pool Director Al Gooch. "They were excited about the meet and it showed."

The Stingrays took fourth overall not far behind third place finisher Sault St. Marie.

"I really didn't expect to win with 11 swimmers," said Coach Jim Rosemurgy. "We were the smallest team there and still every one of us placed. I'm very proud of that."

If you have any questions about the Stingrays or you would like to sign up a swimmer, please call the Charlevoix Area Community Pool at 547-0982 for more information.

Rayder boys out-finesse strong Traverse City team

They may have been bigger and stronger, but the Rayders varsity basketball team held its own and stayed patient against Traverse City St. Francis Friday night and walked away with the win.

The final score of the game was 62-40. Leading shooters were: Sean Stockman with 15 points, Scott Parrish with 13 points and Adam Wood with 12 points.

The game was a hard-fought physical match that sent players from both sides crashing to the ground after loose balls several times. Regardless, from tip-off the Rayders kept Traverse City's size in check with a sizable lead throughout the game. Coach Keith Haske said he was not surprised at the roughness of the game.

"I got a chance to see them play against Harbor Springs and that's the kind of game they want to play. We just tried to have a little more finesse and put pressure on their guards," Haske said. "We did a good job of keeping pressure on them and staying patient."

The Rayder boys had to keep their cool throughout the game to combat the big Traverse City team's tendency to play a slow game. This patience paid off toward the end of the game when the Rayders forced Traverse City to speed up and make more mistakes.

"That helped increase the score," Haske said.

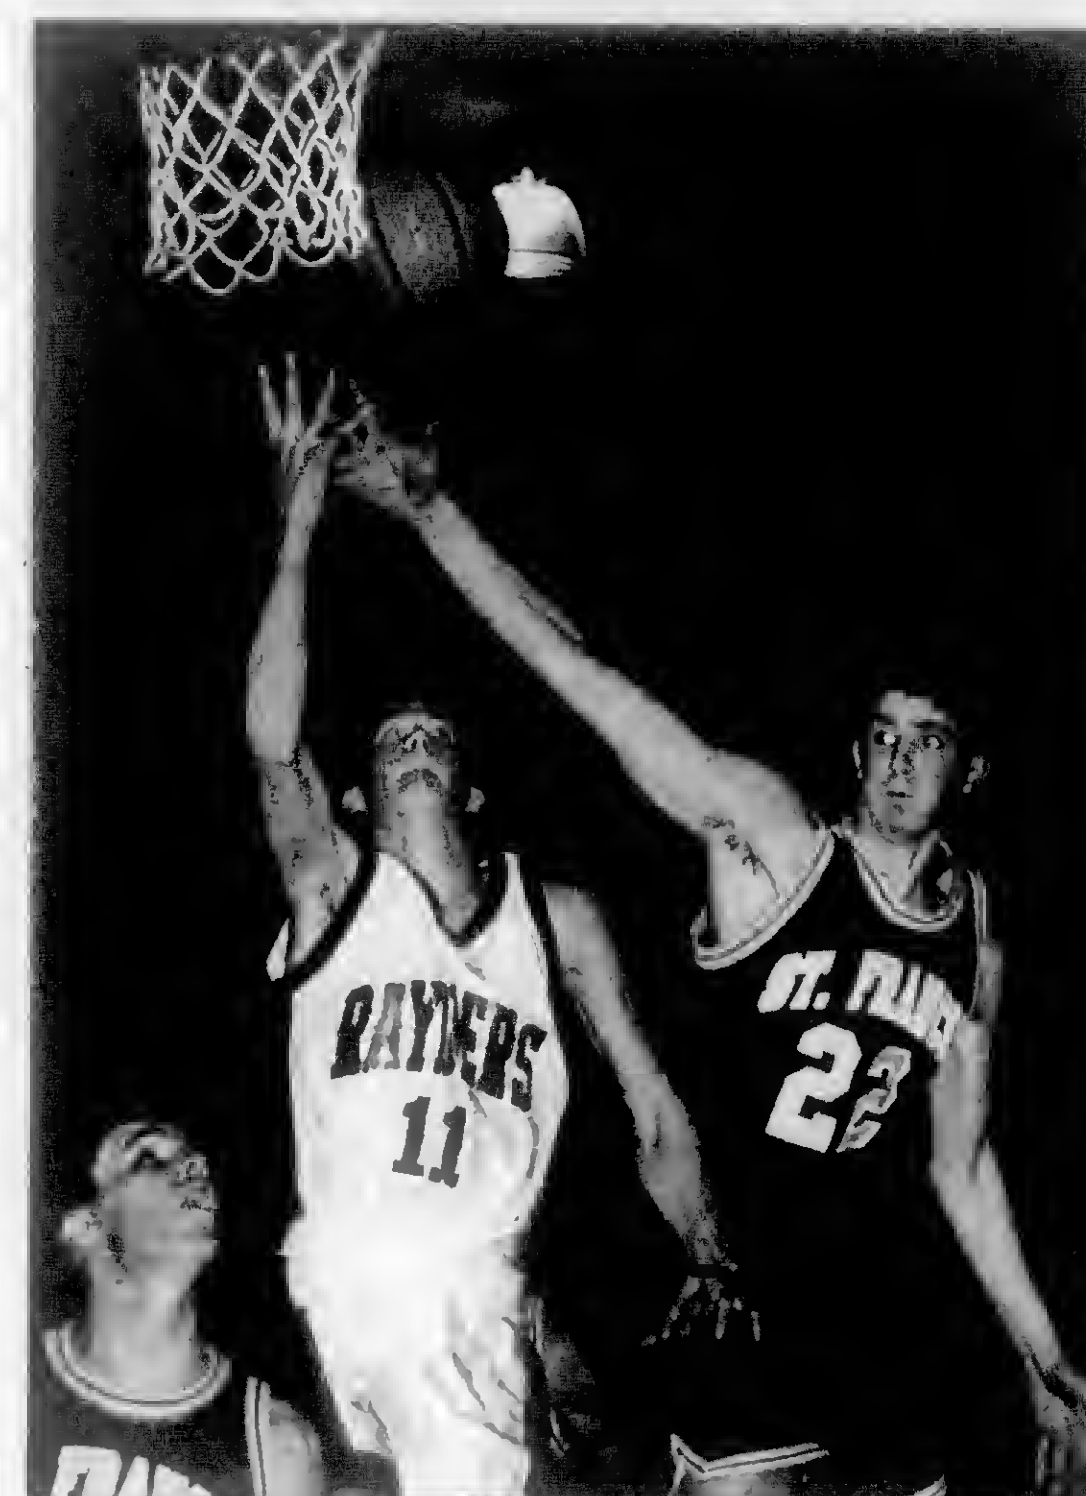

Haske was particularly impressed with Stockman's game and said he did a great job of working hard to get the ball and get open.

While the team may have beat Traverse City Friday, the game came after a close 76-73 loss Jan. 24 against Kalkaska.

"I don't think we played as well as we have been (against Kalkaska)," Haske said. The loss has left the conference with a three-way tie for first place between Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Kalkaska.

"I think it makes it exciting. It makes the race interesting," Haske said of the tie. "Kalkaska and Harbor play each other this week, so one of them is going to have two losses (in the standings)."

The Rayders will travel to Lincoln-Alcona this Saturday.

Area Dentists Observe National Children's Dental Health Month February 1-29

Local dentists observing National Children's Dental Health Month will be involved in many educational and preventative dental activities during February. Included among these activities is the "Dentist With A Heart" program, sponsored by Vacationland Dental Society, an affiliate of the American Dental Association. This program provides free dental care for children who are not covered by dental insurance. The schedule reflected below highlights local activities as well as dentists participating in the "Dentist With A Heart" Program:

♥ Dentists will be holding dental screenings at Charlevoix Elementary School:

Dr. Strawbridge February 4
Dr. Balasz February 11
Dr. Merrill February 18
Dr. Suckert February 23
Dr. Paramo February 25

♥ Dentist will be at Charlevoix St. Mary's:
Dr. Balasz February 25

♥ February 25, 8:00 am - Noon, Dr. Strawbridge will provide free exams, X-rays, fillings and extractions to anyone with financial need. Free cleanings will also be available for children. Please call to reserve time, 231-547-4148.

To Ensure Your Child's Dental Health, You Should ☒

- ☒ Brush and floss your toddler's teeth.
- ☒ Supervise your child's brushing until he or she is 8 years old.
- ☒ Make sure your child uses a fluoride toothpaste, but only a pea-sized amount.
- ☒ Make sure your child visits the dentist every six months.
- ☒ Make sure your child uses a fluoride rinse if recommended by your dentist.
- ☒ Check your child's teeth for white, yellow, or brown spots, which are a sign of decay.
- ☒ Teach your child to brush after snacking.
- ☒ Encourage your child to avoid sweets and sticky foods.

Petitions for recall being circulated in the city

Beatty said the petition language accuses board members of disregarding the public's desires concerning the schools that were voiced at a community forum, failed to inform voters of the costs of site preparation, failed to address traffic safety issues and failed to give accurate utility costs, among other charges.

He argued the language isn't clear and therefore it's impossible for the board to respond.

"On traffic safety — who failed and what traffic safety concerns are they? The speed limit, the road configuration, the kids not wearing their seat belts? There's no hint of what those traffic safety concerns are," Beatty pointed out.

Another example Beatty gave, was language about utility costs.

"What utility costs? If they told us we could answer," Beatty said. "Sewer costs? Water, electric, gas — we don't know."

Beatty objected to words contained in the petition language, such as "overwhelmingly" and "meaningful."

"What is that? There can be many answers to this. We need more factual language. The voters have a right to know what they're signing."

People may ask the petition circulators what is meant by some of the language, Beatty said.

"Circulators will be put in the position of saying the circulator's view and people may sign based on what the circulator says."

Paul Richards, a CPNS supporter, said Beatty failed on his point of clarity and stated that people know what the language means.

"The site is the issue the board disregarded," Richards said. "People wanted the schools in town."

Traffic safety is a real problem and CPNS doesn't believe it has been properly addressed. The utility estimates obtained by CPNS differ from the school board's estimates by a significant amount, Richards said.

A manly impersonation

A Charlevoix High School student lip-syncs to a Shania Twain song Friday afternoon during the Winterfest assembly. Each class put on a skit to music during the assembly. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

"We got an estimate on sewer and there was a gap of $1 million," he said. "Of course there are questions. That's a lot of money to the voters."

CPNS supporters are also disappointed that the board did not have more public hearings on the site so that people could compare sites.

"A recall is the only vehicle we have," Richards said. "I don't like recalls, but a recall is our only recourse. If they (the board) would have a referendum on the sites, we would drop the recall today."

A referendum may only be called by the school board. A referendum could allow various sites to be considered and decided by popular vote of the school district voters.

But the Marion Center Road site and the Hoffman property site on Waller and Martin roads near U.S. 31 North are the only properties up for discussion, Telgenhof said.

"We are not considering a referendum because it would be the Marion Center site versus the Hoffman site and the Marion Center site is superior to the Hoffman site," Telgenhof said.

Petitions for recall are out for school board president Allen Telgenhof, vice president Ardeth Wieland, treasurer Barney Way, and trustees Dennis Halverson and Scott Boss. The remaining two board members, secretary Larry Levensgood and trustee Michael MacMillan, cannot be recalled because they are too close to the end of their terms in June.

Supporters of the recall want the board to consider alternative sites they think are better, but the board has refused, saying that extensive research pointed to the Marion Center Road land as the best site available.

The U.S. Census needs a few good counters

The U.S. Census 2000 wants more than a few good men and women in Charlevoix county — try 300 of them to work as census-takers.

"Every 10 years the census is taken as mandated by law," recruiting assistant Jack Viront said. "This year Northern Michigan is being singled out because it's never had an accurate count."

The census count is important for many reasons, Viront said. The number of representatives in federal and state government that a district is entitled to depends on the number of residents. The census is also used to determine federal and state funds to cities for public works, such as streets, and for hospitals, schools, police and fire department funds.

"Each person is worth $250 a year in federal aid," Viront said.

The majority of the work is in March and April. A day or two of training and a test for census-takers will take place in the Charlevoix area in mid to late February. The work is part-time temporary and pays $11 per hour, plus 32.5 cents per mile. The work is performed on evenings and weekends. Workers must have a high school degree or equivalent and be able to drive.

"We try to keep people working in the areas in which they live," Viront said. Enumerators, as census-takers are known, will hand-deliver census forms to each house in their given area. People fill out the forms then mail them in.

Jack Viront may be reached in Traverse City at 231-932-1425. The toll-free number is 1-888-325-7733. On the Internet visit the website www.census.gov/jobs2000.

ACACIA's 'Sailor of the Quarter' named recently

Petty Officer Jason C. Horton was recently selected as Coast Guard Cutter ACACIA's "Sailor of the Quarter" for the period of Oct. 1 through Dec. 31, 1999.

This distinction hallmarks Petty Officer Horton's exceptional job performance as well as the highly noteworthy dedication he has demonstrated towards his shipmates and the United States Coast Guard. The "Sailor of the Quarter" award recognizes one individual that has excelled in every aspect of performance as determined by his shipmates. The coveted selection represents the "best of the best" for a given quarter in terms of job performance and embodying the Coast Guard's core values of "Honor, Respect and Devotion to Duty."

As a Quartermaster, Petty Officer Horton's primary duties revolve around the safe navigation of the ACACIA and the highly accurate positioning of 135 aids to navigation that the ship maintains throughout Lake Michigan and Northern Lake Huron. Petty Officer Horton is also responsible for maintaining all nautical charts, navigational publications and related equipment onboard. His commitment to improving ACACIA was evident as he prepared for two major morale events; reviewed and updated many crew-members' training records and as he diligently assisted others through their qualification processes.

Originally from Stafford, Va., Petty Officer Horton reported aboard ACACIA in September 1999 from Coast Guard's Training Center in Yorktown, Va. He plans to stay in the Coast Guard and pursue his Bachelor's degree in Management.

Poster contest announced for National Dental Month

February is National Children's Dental Month and to celebrate the Michigan Dental Association and Crest are sponsoring a statewide coloring contest. Children in grades kindergarten through sixth are eligible for the contest and prizes will be awarded. The contest runs through March 6, 2000.

There is no purchase necessary nor any cost to participate. Children are encouraged to be creative by using crayons, pencils, markers, beads or even paint to color the special coloring sheet. All entries must be received by March 6 and winners will be notified by March 31. "Healthy Smiles Are Out of This World," is the theme for this year's national Children's Dental Health Month. Parents are encouraged to help their children brush and floss each day, eat nutritious foods and visit the dentist regularly.

For a copy of the coloring contest picture and entry form, contact a Michigan Dental Association member dentist, or April Stopczynski at the Michigan Dental Association: 230 N. Washington Square, Suite 208, Lansing, MI 48933-1392 or phone (517) 372-9070, ext. 417.

Man faces life for GHB death

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Almost eleven days after the case against an Onkama man accused of giving GHB to two Charlevoix men was dismissed, he is back in police custody facing the more serious charge of poisoning — which could mean a life term.

Marc Anthony Guzikowski, 31, was arrested in January for one count of delivering a controlled substance, but Charlevoix County Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur dismissed those charges for "prosecutorial discretion" Jan. 27. But, another warrant was issued Monday for Guzikowski on three more charges, which also included manslaughter and the reinstatement of the delivery charge.

In explanation of the dismissal Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said last week, "There were some things in our findings that will lead to probably more serious charges being filed against (Guzikowski). He was charged with delivery of GHB (Gamma-hydroxybutyrate) and if he pled guilty then things could not go further."

Guzikowski was accused of giving GHB to two men around Oct. 21. One of those men, 44-year-old David H. Hewitt of Charlevoix, was later found dead in a room at Nanny's Motel on Ferry Avenue. Police started an investigation immediately, which led to the arrest of Guzikowski on the delivery charge, that was later dropped. Kur's decision to dismiss the charge against Guzikowski paid off Monday when police received the results of an autopsy which indicated GHB as the cause of Hewitt's death.

Halverson immediately reissued a warrant for Guzikowski and faxed it to Manistee County, where Guzikowski is residing.

Upon the issuance of this new warrant and three new charges, Halverson further explained the rationale behind the earlier dismissal.

Appeal filed over recall petition's language

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Charlevoix Public School board members filed an appeal of the county elections commission's approval of the recall petition language Friday.

The appeal filed with the 33rd Circuit Court seeks review of the elections commission's Jan. 28 order approving the language, stating that the language does not meet the state statute requiring clarity. That statute is MCLA 168.952(6).

Attorney Scott Beatty filed the appeal on behalf of school board members Allen Telgenhof, Ardeh Wieland, Barney Way, Dennis Halverson and Scott Boss, the five members who are targeted for recall by the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools (CPNS). The CPNS does not agree with the board's choice of a site for the new high school, and wants the board to consider other sites.

"It would seem that the statutory requirement for clarity is really a result of a desire to provide fundamental fairness and due process to the recall mechanism," Beatty stated in the papers filed with the court.

"It is important that an individual being requested to sign the petition be able to identify from the face of the petition what acts are alleged," he continued.

Sheriff looking for men who helped an injured woman

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater is looking for two unknown men who went out of their way to help an injured woman around 9:30 a.m. Jan. 26.

The woman was hurt when her vehicle was involved in a roll-over accident on Marion Center Road. After the accident, the woman said the two men — who were in a dark colored truck — stopped to render aid and contact help for her.

They stayed with the woman until help arrived.

Lasater said the woman is recovering from her injuries and would like to personally thank the good samaritans.

Sheriff under investigation by state

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater is being investigated by the Attorney General of the State of Michigan over allegations of misconduct.

George T. Lasater

The incident revolves around Kent McNeil of Bellaire, who was facing a court trial for allegedly cheating an elderly couple out of their Charlevoix County property. According to an agreement over the land.

However, during the investigation by the Bellaire man's attorney for his defense, evidence of wrongdoing on the part of Lasater was allegedly found.

"I was extremely disappointed and my confidence in the system was shaken," said the McNeil's Traverse City based attorney Doug Donaldson about his alleged findings.

According to Donaldson, he found evidence receipts and other items that were not given to either him or Charlevoix Prosecuting Attorney Mary Beth Kur by Lasater, that would have helped McNeil's defense.

Donaldson said he turned over this evidence to Kur after the case was dismissed.

"I didn't disclose what we uncovered (during court hearings) because at that stage I wasn't sure if I was

"I was extremely disappointed and my confidence in the system was shaken."

Doug Donaldson,

Attorney who allegedly discovered evidence of wrongdoing going to have to put Lasater on the stand," Donaldson said.

Upon receiving the information, Kur said she turned it over to the state Attorney General. Kur added any type of allegation about a law enforcement official she works closely with on a day-to-day basis — such as this — would be sent to the attorney general, regardless of the allegation's merit.

"It's not really realistic to expect the prosecuting attorney to investigate the sheriff," she said.

Donaldson praised Kur on her decision saying, "(Kur) has been operating at the utmost honesty throughout the entire process." When questioned about the matter, Lasater said it would be inappropriate for him to comment at this time.

McNeil was originally charged with false pretenses of $20,000 or more and a habitual offender—second offense in October 2000 before the matter was dropped in January.

He was accused of cheating Paul Lambert, 90 and his wife, Evelyn, 84, out of their land and some personal property. McNeil allegedly tricked the Lamberts into selling him their land and house on Loeb Road in Marion Township and another 60 acres on US 31 near Burgess Road in Hayes Township.

However, in a letter dated Jan. 10, the Lambert's attorney Roy Hayes requested that the criminal charges against Lambert be dropped. He said both parties reached an acceptable settlement of the lawsuit.

The settlement included the return of the Lambert's most valuable property in the dispute.

"The Lamberts would like to bring to a close this sad and trying chapter of their lives and avoid further entanglement with Mr. McNeil and the court system," Hayes wrote.

Court documents on the matter also included a letter from Lasater, in which he stated, "I'm comfortable with the decision of the criminal investigation and charges being dropped against Kent McNeil in exchange for a civil remedy that is agreeable with the Lambert family."

A front page pull-quote last week incorrectly identified the speaker as Paul Beatty. It should have identified the speaker as Scott Beatty.

Plus, a cutline on page 7 below the "Felcor" photo, incorrectly identified a student as "Brain" Cornett. It should have identified him as Brian Cornett.

Signers should know the whole school story

Enough of the euphemistic reasoning of the recall drive of five school members over their decision to use property on Marion Center Road for a new high school.

It's time for the voters to understand all the consequences of signing their name on this petition.

Lately the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools has been arguing that the recall drive is conducting is really just going to be used as a way to get the board to have a referendum on the site. This reasoning is like arguing to use a flame-thrower to kill a single fly.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools should say what this petition drive really is, removing elected school board members from their office over their stance on a school property issue. It is actually asking for support from voters in the community to overturn a democratic school board election.

However, the group is saying it really just wants a referendum on the Marion Center site and it is using the number of signatures it gathers to get the board to bow to the group's wishes. So, the question is, "Is a referendum the way to go?"

The answer is, "No." When the community voted for the bond Oct. 11, it voted to approve the use of a certain amount of bond money to pay for a school. Voters have a right to expect that money to be used in a timely manner.

But, with a referendum, construction of a school will be held up for an unknown period of time. First the school board has to announce a referendum, then a date has to be scheduled for the vote, then enough time must be allotted for both sides to get information to the voters and only after that is complete, a vote is held.

If the vote shows enough people do not like the Marion Center site, say good-bye to any thoughts of getting that school construction going this year; a whole new search must be done to find a new site.

While this is going on, construction costs are going up at least 5 percent, thus giving the voters at least 5 percent less of a school. On top of this cost, the taxpayers will be paying for a referendum vote initiated by a group saying they want the school to use the bond money more wisely.

We wonder if the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools is telling potential signers of its petition these little tidbits after they knock on their doors?

Our civic responsibility

Roger Knutson

As we are overwhelmed by the primaries and as a presidential election year approaches, the obligations of citizenship extend considerably beyond simply voting or even working actively for the candidate of your choice. An additional obligation is placed upon the conscientious citizen by the present process of candidate selection and campaigning.

That obligation is to lie to any pollster who contacts you and asks you to assist in taking the political pulse of the nation.

Political campaigns are currently fueled and forged by the information gathered in daily polls. Determining what the citizens think and what will please them most is an absolutely essential part of the current political process. Who is ahead in the polls and what they should say to remain ahead is the mother's milk of political life. All this manipulation of us, the voters and citizens, is at least mildly disturbing and it will become only more intense as election time approaches.

What can a good citizen do to help keep an election honest and encourage the candidates to tell us what they believe rather than what they think we want to hear? We can lie.

In general lying is a despicable act and one that should not be condoned by a good citizen. However, in the case of political polls, the electoral health of our nation requires that carefully crafted, undetectable lies be communicated directly and confidently by anyone who is contacted by a political pollster.

If as few as 10 percent of respondents — potential voters — could successfully lie to pollsters, the results of any political poll would have a margin of error too large to be useful in manipulating us and our votes. And if 50 percent of us could lie with conviction, the poll as a political device would necessarily lose all its value.

Ear to the Ground

Pollsters need not know that people are going to be lying to them in larger numbers than usual. If we can lie with confidence and conviction we can win. Lying could be more successful than any third party in restoring political power to the voters. Talk about an October surprise: Imagine the election night astonishment when all the poll data turns out to have been badly flawed by the heroic actions of citizens who knew the importance of setting aside their minor moral qualms to restore the country to its democratic ideals. We can wrest the political process from the cynical hands of pollsters and return it to the voters.

Vote of course, but don't just vote; lie with conviction to any pollster who contacts you.

Student looking for help

Editor:

An open letter to the Charlevoix community:

My name is Kathryn Romig and I am a junior at Charlevoix High School. A few months ago, Mrs. Betty Henne took a special interest in me and my goals for the future. I was a student in Mr. Roger Gowell's Anatomy and Physiology course, which was a great motivation towards my present intrigue with the medical field. Mrs. Henne soon nominated me for a program that would offer me the experience and interaction with renowned doctors and scientists in the medical field and the surroundings in which they work. I was thrilled that this chance of a lifetime was given to me.

The name of the organization is the National Youth Leadership Forum on Medicine. It is in Los Angeles, Calif. and takes place over an 11 day period in June. It is a detailed look into the medical field with access and hands-on experiences that are beyond comparison. The cost of the trip is $2,500 and I would like to ask the community for support. I greatly appreciate the thoughtfulness and attention that both Mrs. Henne and Mr. Gowell have invested in me and my future goals. I would also like to thank the community for your support in helping achieve the highest potential.

Board actions baffling

Editor:

Great! The Charlevoix Board of Education finally had a hearing under the guise of Citizens for the American Way. The meeting was Jan. 31, which is months after the site committee made its recommendation and purchased the Marion Center site.

It is beyond me why the board did not have hearings prior to the purchase of property that is costing us $18.8 million. It also bothers me that the board did not trust taxpayers to be on the site selection committee — it was comprised of three board members and the superintendent of schools. It is also beyond belief that board members have either lost or misplaced all the evaluation sheets of other sites except the Marion Center site.

Why doesn't the board have a referendum and let citizens vote up or down on the Marion Center site? The bond money is in the bank collecting interest — what is there to lose? It seems like the Committee for the American Way should act accordingly and ask for a democratic vote or are they Americans only in their way?

I guess they would condemn me as being un-American because I recommend a referendum, but the sooner a referendum is called, the sooner we can drop the recall and begin to work together.

Community should decide school site

Editor:

The people who write the letters which have been printed in the Charlevoix Courier stating, "The community voted, now leave the site alone," should reconnoiter and reconsider.

A 100 vote majority is not very definitive, especially considering the fact that the ballot was written so poorly and so ambiguously that in order to vote for a new high school the electorate had to vote to put it in a corn field without water, sewer, fire protection or any other commodities or equipment — not even a safe road. If these people feel so confident of this community's wishes, let them accept a referendum and then we will all listen to what the vote says. The ballot will be clear and concise, with explicit directions:

1) Do you want a new Charlevoix High School?
2) Do you want it in the city area of Charlevoix?
3) Do you want it on the Marion Center Road site?

The only purpose an elected board serves is to pass laws compliant with the will of the majority of the taxpayers who elected them. We acquire wisdom through our own and other's experiences. Napoleon should have thought of a treaty before Waterloo. General Custer might have considered amnesty before Little Big Horn.

Perhaps this board should think about a referendum before recall.

Lyla Arvilla

Recall inappropriate

Editor:

Here are some simple reasons why the drive to recall members of the Board of Education is inappropriate.

1) Recalling members of the Board of Education will not remove our legal obligation to pay $18.8 million for new school facilities in Charlevoix.

2) Recalling members of the Board of Education will mean paying more tax dollars for a new school board election.

3) Recalling members of the Board of Education delays the building process. Any delay means that the budgeted $18.8 million will buy us less than it would without the delay.

4) The recall is not a process to recall the site. Don't let petitioners fool you. The recall is meant to replace current board members.

5) The site selection process would be up to the new Board of Education to decide after the election process takes place. Anyone guaranteeing that a new board would move the site is speculating.

6) The recall petition language expresses only the opinion of those supporting the recall; the language does not have the weight of the law of the state behind it.

7) Members of the Board of Education have not committed any illegal, immoral or unethical actions.

Remember these simple reasons as you politely decline to sign a recall petition.

Recall too ugly

Editor:

I urge the citizens of Charlevoix to reject the attempt at the petition drive to recall five of the Charlevoix School Board members. Please look at the big picture. Board members were elected to provide leadership and leadership mandates making decisions for the good of the community. We place our trust in their integrity and good will. The bond election to build a new high school set the voter turnout record with full knowledge that the site selected was Marion Center Road. The issue passed. The board is now engaged in the process to build a new school and renovate the elementary and current high school. They are carrying out the democratic mandate set by the vote.

Letters to the editor

This recall business is ugly. It is divisive and is polarizing the community. A recall election is a waste of school tax money, time consuming and non-productive. Did any of the five board members act in an unethical, immoral or illegal manner? No, they did not. They acted with integrity and responsible leadership. There is a lot more involved here than just a recall election. It is a question of community trust. The board appointed a site selection committee of 26 citizens. It consisted of a broad base of responsible citizens. I followed their deliberations and stayed informed throughout the entire process. This blue ribbon committee came to the right decision in regard to site selection for the new high school. The board trusted the integrity of their committee.

Let the board do its work. There is a great deal of time and effort involved in this large capital improvement project and yet the daily operation of the schools must continue to be carried out. Let us show them the respect and consideration they deserve. When the recall petition person knocks on your door, just say no.

MacArthur death brings back memories

Editor:

The recent death of Mrs. Douglas MacArthur brought a memory of a Charlevoix friend, Esther Miles.

Bob and Esther Miles bought the house at 109 Park Avenue probably in the late 1930s and it remains the Miles residence. Some time later, they remodeled to make the first floor Bob's studio and workroom and the second floor a pleasant apartment for themselves. Esther told me this story of an unexpected visitor she had one summer.

Her caller was Mrs. MacArthur, who as Jean Faircloth of Murfreesboro, Tenn., had spent summer vacations in that house as the guest of her uncle, Richard Hammet, at that time the owner of the house. Her bedroom had been the room Bob and Esther had converted into their kitchen, and she wanted to see her childhood room, which Esther gladly showed her.

Later, Esther said if she ever became a guest on the Garry Moore TV show "I've Got a Secret," popular in the early 1960s, her secret would be: "Mrs. Douglas MacArthur slept in my kitchen." I'm sure her secret would have been intriguing enough to get her on the show, and it was a good anecdote in itself.

Note to David Miles — If my facts are not correct, feel free to correct me!

Environment important

Editor:

As citizens of Michigan concerned for the well-being of our fellow citizens and our environment, we urge your readers to actively oppose not only the shipment of plutonium, through the State of Michigan, but the use of mixed oxide fuel (plutonium and uranium called MOX) for electricity production. The Department of Energy has stated that the shipment through Michigan is only to a Canadian reactor site. The purpose is to conduct an experiment to determine if MOX is usable in Canadian reactors. However, that will not be the end of the plutonium. Once plutonium is "burned" it leaves radioactive waste nobody wants and half of the original plutonium will remain. These wastes need to be stabilized and stored essentially forever. Once the Canadians are done with the plutonium experiment, what will happen to the waste product? It most certainly will be returned to the USA — and by what route?

The use of MOX for commercial generation of electricity at the Canadian site sets a dangerous and unnecessary precedent. All plutonium and associated waste can be immobilized in glass, called vitrification, which involves fewer steps, reduces risks of proliferation, and is 250% less expensive than commercial burning which is heavily subsidized by we taxpayers. Use of plutonium at the Canadian reactor foretells future shipments not only to this site, but to other sites as well, and sets the wheels in motion for plutonium shipments around the country — and the return shipments of radioactive waste for storage.

Plutonium is a potential carcinogen. Inhalation of one-millionth of an ounce causes lung cancer. Logic and economics dictate that immobilization of plutonium in glass is by far the best alternative to an intractable problem. Creating an economy that utilizes plutonium is senseless.

We encourage your readers to call/write their state and national legislators to voice their opposition to the commercial use of plutonium and the shipment of it through their cities, neighborhoods, and the "great outdoors." We must all get involved, because one thing is for certain: If a method for burning plutonium is perfected the political pressure to go to a plutonium economy will be intense.

Charlevoix to host festival conference in April

The City of Charlevoix will be bustling with activity April 7-9, when a convention comes to town.

Downtown merchants and hotel managers are usually quietly making the transition from winter visitors to summer tourists in early April. But this year, for one weekend, the town will play host to hundreds of delegates attending the Michigan Festivals and Events Association (MFEA) spring convention in Charlevoix, thanks to the Venetian Festival Inc. board of directors.

"This is probably the largest group to visit Charlevoix in years, maybe decades," said Venetian Board President Dan Barron. "It should be a real boon to businesses and restaurants in town. The Edgewater is already completely booked for the weekend and the Weather-vane Terrace is filling up rapidly."

It was largely due to the role that Venetian Festival delegates took in the state festival group's fall convention that Charlevoix was chosen as the location for the spring convention. Venetian Festival Inc. will act as co-sponsor for the event.

Delegates from every festival and event hosted in the state of Michigan will be in attendance at the spring convention, along with delegates from the neighboring states of Ohio, Illinois and Indiana.

Of key interest to everyone involved with festivals that include a fireworks display will be a seminar April 8 which will address many aspects of having a safe and successful fireworks shoot. Several of the nation's leading pyrotechnicians will be speaking during the afternoon session.

Captain Wally Schroeeder, the Fire Marshal for Traverse City, will attend the event, along with Gregg Smith, who trains technicians on how to be in compliance with federal state and local requirements for shooters.

One of Zambelli's premiere fireworks designers and pyrotechnists, Ron Greco, will address topics such as going above and beyond safety and site advantages and disadvantages and Jim Brown of Fireworks by Grucci will talk about utilizing fireworks as a way to draw people to a festival or event, as well as the importance of hiring a reputable company.

While the fireworks seminar is garnering a great deal of interest, there will be other seminars during the weekend convention designed to help festival organizers all over the state.

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is working closely with the Venetian Festival board and the state festival director to ensure that the weekend will be a smoothly run, successful event for everyone in attendance.

The Charlevoix Country Club will host the daily seminars and workshops.

Under consideration at this time is a fireworks display at the country club Saturday, April 8.

"Since we'll have some of the nation's premiere pyrotechnicians attending the convention as guest speakers, we'd like to have them do an actual demonstration of their fireworks displays as a way to cap the event Saturday night," Barron said.

Plans for the fireworks display will be finalized later this month.

Calvin College Dean's List

Calvin College has announced its fall 1999 Dean's List. To earn a spot on the list at Calvin requires that a student maintain a 3.5 grade point average for the semester and has a 3.3 cumulative grade point average. Area students on the list are:

- Diane D. DeKorte of Charlevoix. DeKorte is a freshman majoring in art.
- Candice M. Vandergriff of Charlevoix. Vandergriff is a sophomore majoring in physical education.
- Amy N. VanGuilder of Charlevoix. VanGuilder is a senior majoring in psychology.
- Jessica R. VanGuilder of Charlevoix. VanGuilder is a junior majoring in elementary education.

Alma College Dean's List

Michael Staton of Charlevoix was recently named to the Alma College Dean's List for the 1999 fall term. Students must achieve a 3.5 or better grade point average during the term, while carrying a minimum of 13 credits, to be named to the Dean's List.

Western Michigan University Dean's List

Western Michigan University recently announced its Dean's List for the fall 1999 semester. To be eligible, students must have compiled at least a 3.5 grade point average in at least 12 hours of graded class work. Students from the area on the list are:

- Thomas R. Cunningham of Charlevoix. Cunningham is majoring in general business.
- Mary E. Gagnon of Charlevoix. Gagnon is majoring in psychology.
- Lisa A. Hoadley of Charlevoix. Hoadley is majoring in nursing.

Scholarship announced for members of Michigan Retailers Association

The Michigan Retailers Association (MRA) will award at least six college scholarships for the 2000-2001 academic year to benefit members and their employees. Applicants must be the dependent son or daughter of an MRA member or a full-time employee at an MRA-member firm. Full-time students who work part-time at a member company may also apply. High school seniors and college freshmen, sophomores and juniors are eligible.

Scholarship amounts range from $500 to $1,000 and are not based on financial need. Employees at MRA-member businesses may contact their employer for an application request form. Applications must be submitted by April 1.

Just Married

Kristin Johnson and Christopher Pair

Kristin Nicole Johnson and Christopher Scott Pair were united in marriage at First Congregational Church, Greenville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jerry Jones.

The bride is the daughter of Tom and Ginny Johnson of Greenville. The bridegroom's parents are Scott and Roxanne Pair of Charlevoix.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore an ivory satin gown with a beaded bodice and chapel-length train. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and pale yellow roses.

Kathy Van Horn was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sara McNear, Carrie Rickabaugh and Andrea Pair, sister of the bridegroom. They wore dark green floor-length gowns.

Don Jess was best man. Groomsmen were Gilbert Ice, Scott Pair, brother of the bridegroom, and Joe Johnson.

A reception was held at North Pointe Banquet Center.

The couple took a wedding trip to the Bahamas.

The bride graduated from Greenville High School in 1994, attended Grand Valley State University for four years and is in her second year at Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine. The bridegroom is a 1994 graduate of Charlevoix High School and attended Grand Valley State University. He is employed by Brighton Interior Systems.

New deputy to patrol trails for reckless snowmobilers

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater, announced recently the award of a Department of Natural Resources Grant for a Snowmobile Patrol Deputy. The Charlevoix County Commissioners supported this grant in order to provide the citizens of the county a better response to complaints regarding snowmobilers.

Sheriff Lasater reports that his office receives numerous complaints each year of snowmobilers being operated in a reckless manner, speeding, trespassing, and damaging property. Those type of complaints in the past were difficult to handle without the use of a snowmobile.

The sheriff further said that he has received complaints from people stating they are fearful of taking their families on the trails due to the speeding, careless operation and intoxicated operators.

The sheriff stated "that we will make every effort to take our trails back from those snowmobilers that abuse the privilege of operating a snowmobile in Charlevoix County."

Sheriff Lasater has instructed the snowmobile deputy to have a "zero tolerance" in regards to these complaints. He has been instructed to arrest violators and issue citations — without warning — depending on the violation.

Sheriff Lasater appointed Deputy Chris Rosser as the Sheriff's Snowmobile Deputy. Rosser will be patrolling the county trails along with answering complaints of snowmobile violations.

Rosser was recently hired to fulfill this post. He has an associate's degree in law enforcement and is certified with the State of Michigan.

Recently in Charlevoix County the sheriff's department responded to a fatal snowmobile accident and one serious snowmobile accident. These tragic accidents reflect the need for additional patrol and enforcement.

In 1999, the sheriff's department

Sheriff's Deputy Chris Rosser shows the snowmobile he will be using to patrol the trails this winter. Rosser has been instructed to have "zero tolerance" with reckless snowmobilers and snowmobilers who have been drinking. (Photo by Jeremy McBain) logged 98 snowmobile related complaints in the county. The areas with the most complaints were Boyne Valley and Marion Township.

If you have an emergency complaint, please call 911. If you have an ongoing problem with snowmobiles, you are encouraged to contact Sheriff Lasater at 547-4461.

Sheriff offers suggestions to stay safe on the trails this winter

There are few things as exciting as cruising along a wilderness trail on your snowmobile. But, without proper safety precautions, a fun outing could quickly turn to tragedy.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater urges residents and visitors to follow proper safety procedures when enjoying the beauty of the area. Follow common sense and rules and you can have a great outing.

First, make sure that you are dressed properly, including wearing a helmet with a face shield or goggles. Carry some basic safety equipment with you, such as a flashlight, first aid kit, matches in a waterproof container and a blanket that will retain body heat.

Michigan has tough laws regarding snowmobiling while intoxicated and the "implied consent law" is in effect. According to the sheriff, one of the leading causes of snowmobile crashes is the combination of alcohol and speed.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department does conduct a snowmobile enforcement program and will be patrolling designated trails. The sheriff encourages snowmobilers to cooperate with the law enforcement and don't try to avoid them.

The sheriff suggests that you ride with at least one other person and always let people know where you'll be heading and what time you're expected back. He also encourages everyone to take advantage of snowmobile safety courses offered through the sheriff's department.

Obituaries

Jean B. Clarke

Jean B. Clarke, 83, of Charlevoix and formerly of Sarasota, Fla. died Jan. 28 at Munson Medical Care Facility in Traverse City. Mrs. Clarke was born on June 25, 1916, in Superior, Wis., the daughter of Thomas and Mabel (Kontz) Bruden.

She married Morton A. Clarke in Superior, Wis. He preceded her in death on April 23, 1998. Mrs. Clarke lived in Florida until 1999 when she moved to Charlevoix to live with her daughter, Sharon Clarke, who survives her.

A burial will take place at Arlington National Cemetery.

Stanley Lord

Stanley "Stub" Lord, 86, of Norwood, died Feb. 2 at his home surrounded by his family.

A funeral service was given Feb. 5 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Robert Bellairs officiated. Burial will take place in Norwood Cemetery in the spring.

Mr. Lord was born on April 18, 1913, in Atwood, the son of Ervin and Pearl (Santos) Lord.

On May 8, 1937, he married Catherine M. Richardson in East Jordan.

Except for a short time in the 1940s, Mr. Lord spent his entire life in the Charlevoix area. He worked at the East Jordan Iron Works until his retirement in 1975. He also worked as a stone mason on several Earl Young homes.

Mr. Lord served as the Justice of the Peace for Norwood and worked as Caretaker of the Norwood Cemetery. As a young man he played catcher for the Charlevoix Indians baseball team and was an avid raccoon hunter. He was a member of the Norwood United Methodist Church. Survivors include his wife, Catherine and his daughter-in-law, Sally Mae McNamara.

Sally Mae McNamara

Sally Mae (Campbell) McNamara, 69, of Charlevoix and Lake Havasu City, Ariz., died Jan. 28 at Sunrise Hospital in Las Vegas, Nev. No services are planned at this time. A memorial service will be given in Charlevoix in the spring.

Mrs. McNamara was born Nov. 18, 1930 in East Jordan, the daughter of Robert and Mildred (Schlienz) Campbell. She graduated from East Jordan High School in 1948 and from Central Michigan University in 1952.

She married Edward McNamara in East Jordan in 1952 and they moved to Monroe, where she taught kindergarten until they returned to Charlevoix in 1961. She taught school in Charlevoix and retired in 1984. Mrs. McNamara was an active member of the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair Committee for 30 years. She enjoyed golf, reading and playing bridge.

Survivors include her husband, Edward McNamara, of Charlevoix and Lake Havasu City, Ariz.; daughter, Susan McNamara of Charlevoix; son, Thomas McNamara of Kennebunkport, Maine and a sister and brother-in-law, Jean (Campbell) and Joseph McNamara and their children.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorial contributions be made to Charlevoix Area Hospital or to Lake Havasu Hospital.

Jeffrey Paul Renaud

Jeffrey Paul Renaud, 37, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 29 in Marion Township.

A Mass of Resurrection was given Feb. 2 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated. Burial took place in St. Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Mr. Renaud was born Dec. 13, 1962, in Woodhaven, the son of Melvin and Madelyn (Wojan) Renaud.

He moved to Charlevoix in 1969, where he graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1980. He was the type of man who was everyone's friend and someone you could always turn to when you needed a hand. His personality would not allow anyone he knew to be in conflict. He was truly the eternal peacemaker.

Mr. Renaud worked for 16 years at LexaLite International Corp. in Charlevoix as a mold technician. When he wasn't working, you could find him out on the lake fishing or enjoying the hunt of whatever was in season. His love of the outdoors was apparent to all who met him. Just the mention of fishing or hunting would start him on a conversation that could last for hours.

Survivors include his parents, Melvin and Madelyn Renaud; sister, Kari Curtis and her husband, Casey; his fiancé, Kristina Ruhl; his godson (nephew), Tyler Dean Curtis and Travis Allen Curtis; two special uncles, Tony and Al; many other aunts, uncles, cousins and friends and his dog, Misty.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Jeff Renaud Memorial Fund for the Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament and other local outdoor events and sent in care of the Charlevoix State Bank.

Emma Zednick

Emma Zednick, 85, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 3 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A funeral service was given Feb. 5 at Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Michael Teuscher officiated. Entombment will take place at Oakwood Memorial Mausoleum in Saginaw.

Emma was born March 15, 1914, in Saginaw, the daughter of John and Anna Weitz.

On May 2, 1936, she married Frank Zednick in Saginaw. They moved to Charlevoix in 1962.

Mrs. Zednick was employed by Saginaw Shade Roller Company and also worked as the hosiery department manager at Montgomery Ward.

She was a member of Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix.

Survivors include her husband, Frank, of Charlevoix; one son, Ronald and his wife Judy of Charlevoix; two grandsons, Michael and his wife Theresa of Sault St. Marie and Jeffrey and his wife Dee, of Petoskey; three great granddaughters, Savannah, Jennifer and Jessica and one sister, Dorothy of Clare.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to Bethany Lutheran Church Building Fund or to Charlevoix County Hospice.

Get signed up for CSA for summer harvest

As the garden seed catalogs begin to arrive in the mail, thoughts of vine-ripe tomatoes and fresh tender lettuce dance through the thoughts of many northerners in anticipation of the growing season to come.

In East Jordan, the staff, at Wagbo Peace Center is already planning your first spring salad. This is their third year as "CSA" farm - or - in other words - a farm that sells its products by subscription. Last summer, 20 families subscribed to Wagbo's Community Supported Agriculture - hence, CSA - gardening program and received weekly baskets of freshly harvested produce, cut flowers, herbs and a little maple syrup to sweeten the deal.

CSA is a partnership between a local farm and the surrounding community in which subscribers pay for a share of fresh, organic garden produce grown on the farm. Within the partnership is the belief that purchasing locally grown food is far better for health, the environment and the local economy.

Subscribing to a CSA means more than purchasing food directly from a farm. It also involves an "investment" perspective. Subscribers are committing to purchase their summer's vegetables in advance of the planting season and are assuming the risks and benefits of that investment.

On the first pick up at the farm, the baskets included one quart of maple syrup, a multitude of salad greens from everyday to exotic, sugar snap peas, radishes, five types of herbs and other early season goodies. The produce is picked by the farm's staff and packed in garden baskets built with help from their youth-at-risk apprenticeship students, using lumber from the farm's woodlot and mill.

Subscribers choose a scheduled day to pick up for the season and exchange their empty basket for a full one each week. This summer a variety of workshops will also be offered for subscribers including canning, food dehydration, herb vinegars, and medicinal plants and foods.

Wagbo is now taking subscriptions for next summer. The program is growing by 50 percent again this year, with 30 family subscriptions to be sold.

To reserve a share, a non-refundable deposit is required along with a subscription form. For further information or subscription forms, contact Wagbo Peace Center (231)536-0333.

Donate old cars to foundation

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan has a great way for you to do something sweet for your community.

With the Kidney Cars Program you can get rid of an unwanted vehicle, clean up your community and help the NKFM all at the same time.

Not only will you donate that unwanted vehicle, you may be eligible for a tax deduction. Participating in the Kidney Cars program is easy, call (800)488-CARS (2277), fill out the paperwork and your car will be towed from anywhere for free. The NKFM accepts unwanted vehicles on a year-round basis. They can be running or non-running cars, trucks, motorcycles or vans.

The proceeds from the Kidney Cars Program helps to fund programs and services of the NKFM, which include patient services, education and research.

More than 700,000 people in Michigan have kidney and urinary tract disease. Thousands of others are at risk. The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan helps more people prevent, treat and cure kidney and urinary tract disease than any other voluntary health agency.

Poisoning charge filed in GHB death

He said when the autopsy on Hewitt originally came back from the lab, there was an error in the unit of measurement used to find the amount of GHB in Hewitt's blood. While the number of the measurement was right, the lab had accidentally described it as a smaller unit than what it really was.

When the report was looked at by the state police, the error was discovered, Halverson said. But, officials already had Guzowski in custody and had charged him with delivery.

Seeing that they could get bigger charges against Guzowski, Kur dropped the charges and Halverson sent some more of Hewitt's bodily fluid back to the lab for another study.

This time, the lab results came back with the proper measurement that also showed GHB levels that could cause death, Halverson said.

Guzowski was arrested on this second set of charges Tuesday morning. An arraignment was expected for Tuesday afternoon.

A Short History of the School Board's Selection of Marlon Center Site

The widespread outrage toward the School Board, expressed by so many voters of the Charlevoix School District, is well known to all. The primary reason for that voter anger is often obscured.

The deeply felt outrage expressed by voters challenging the Board derives from one very important fact. THE VOTERS HAVE BEEN DENIED BY THE BOARD THEIR VOICE THROUGH THE BALLOT.

THE BOARD INITIALLY AND NOW REPEATEDLY HAS DENIED THE VOTERS THEIR FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT TO VOTE THEIR INDIVIDUAL PREFERENCES FOR A NEW HIGH SCHOOL SITE.

Here is how this denial of voters' rights has happened. On July 5th of last year Dr. Sturock wrote for the Board a circular entitled "A Vision for our Schools." The first paragraph in this circular stated that the Board adopted option 3. Option 3 contains this remarkable admission: "...it is very clear that this option accommodates curriculum growth far into the future and should provide adequate facilities to support the long-range plan." Option 3, as we are all aware, "includes building a new high school with an integral auditorium, establishing a 5/6 upper elementary and 7/8 middle school in the former high school and providing selected upgrades to the elementary school that becomes a K-4 building." NOWHERE IN THIS OPTION 3 IS THERE ANY CHARGE TO THE BOARD TO COMMIT TAXPAYER MONEY TO BUY EXPENSIVE UNDEVELOPED LAND IN A VERY LARGE 74 ACRE TRACT, TO BE USED IN UNCERTAIN WAYS OVER THE NEXT 25 YEARS.

Importantly, the final paragraph of this "Vision for our Schools" says the following: "Abandon the community survey...We feel that educating the public to make an informed choice on a survey is almost impossible. A survey conducted under these conditions is very risky." Remarkably and presumptuously the statement concludes as follows: "The response of the public at the first public meeting and the feedback following our first presentation indicates the communities trust in the results of the in depth work of the committee." Nowhere in this remarkably presumptuous statement is there any further explanation of what this "very risky" condition consists of, upon whom these risks might fall, and just how any public trust whatsoever might be measured for a School Board that abandons community surveys and finds educating the public to be, in effect, impossible.

And so the Board, in a rush to acquire an unnecessarily large and totally undeveloped tract of land, entered into a flawed contract to purchase the 74 acre tract on Marion Center Road. The important, ultimately costly details within the deed involving 80 homesites and the moving of Clark Road were never revealed to the public until well after the October ballot. This very important October ballot stated only that a bond issue be raised to pay for the much-needed new school construction. No mention of the Marion Center site was made in the ballot. CONFUSION WAS WIDESPREAD AMONG THE VOTERS. QUESTIONS CENTERED ON HOW A VOTER COULD VOTE APPROVAL OF THE INCREASED TAX MILLAGE, which was needed and wanted by many. AND YET VOTE HIS OR HER DISAPPROVAL OF THE MARION CENTER SITE, a sentiment obviously very widespread.

It is obvious, of course, that we taxpayers were not then and have not since been given the opportunity in the voting booth to register our approval or disapproval of the Marion Center site. WE FEEL STRONGLY THAT THE BOARD HAS GRIEVOUSLY DECEIVED THE PUBLIC IN SELECTING THAT SITE. ENORMOUS CONCERNS ABOUT DEVELOPMENT COSTS AND SAFETY CONCERNS ABOUT A SITE THAT HAS ONLY ONE ACCESS ROAD THAT IS HIGH-SPEED, DANGEROUS, AND EXTREMELY HAZARDOUS IN WINTER WERE WIDELY EXPRESSED. TO PUT A NEW SCHOOL AT A SITE WHERE HUNTING AND FIREARMS ARE ALLOWED CLOSE TO THE SCHOOL SITE INFURIATED MANY VOTERS. TO CONCEAL FROM THE PUBLIC THE COSTLY DETAILS OF THE FLAWED DEED RESULTED IN THE ANGER AND OUTRAGE OF SO MANY VOTERS.

THE ULTIMATE OUTRAGE AROSE AND CONTINUES BECAUSE THE PUBLIC, THE TAXPAYERS RESPONSIBLE FOR PAYING FOR THE MUCH-NEEDED NEW SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION, WERE DENIED AND CONTINUE TO BE DENIED THEIR ABSOLUTE RIGHT TO VOTE ON THE SITE OF THE NEW HIGH SCHOOL/AUDITORIUM COMPLEX. A school board, elected by the voters and ultimately answerable to the voters, cannot and must not deny to those voters their absolute right to express their preferences by the ballot as to where and in what way tax dollars are to be spent for the much needed new school construction.

It is because of this denial of our voters' inherent rights that the Board has brought the community to a disruptive and distasteful impasse. As unwanted as any recall is, as distasteful as this recall is, it is the only recourse now open to the voters to express their deeply felt opposition to the Marion Center Site. It is the feeling of a large majority of the voters as follows: A MAJORITY OF THE VOTERS, THE MAJORITY CALLING FOR RECALL, FEEL MOST STRONGLY THAT THE PRESERVATION OF THEIR RIGHTS TO EXPRESS THROUGH THE BALLOT INDIVIDUAL PREFERENCES FOR THE SITE OF THE NEW HIGH SCHOOL IS THE BASIC AND UNDENIABLE ISSUE IN OUR STRONG DISAGREEMENT WITH THE BOARD.

It is because of the Board's continued denial to the voters of their basic rights of expression through the ballot that we ask your continued support. We still seek a referendum whereby the voter preferences may be expressed as to the site for the new school. It is only because the Board denies the public this right of expression that we pursue the only recourse open to the public, namely the current drive for recall of the members of the School Board.

We sincerely hope that reasonableness and good sense and a dissolution of much anger may be given to the community by the Board's instituting a referendum so that the voters may indeed, by the ballot, express their rightful preferences and concerns. Thank you.

City-invented snow plow design a hit in Michigan

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The city's snow-covered sidewalks are cleared better by its side-walk snow plow because of a mechanism designed and created by the street department.

The machine's front-mounted blower did a good job of blowing the snow off of the sidewalks, but an inch or so of snow was left over the cement. Often the residue snow would soften during the day and later freeze, leaving a hazardous walkway.

"We've got to come up with something else," Street Department Superintendent John Martin told employees. Martin knew there must be a better way, and worked with department mechanics to find the solution.

A small plow in the shape of a "V" was invented to drag behind the plow's tractor. It catches the remaining snow and pushes it off to the sides of the walk. Snow can also be directed toward the curb in the downtown business district. The configuration has been used for several years.

"I made a sketch and we made a prototype," Martin said. "We came up with a design that works quite well. The weight and configuration gets that inch of snow that's left."

So well, in fact, that other cities have called asking for the design and permission to use it, which Martin grants.

The city's sidewalk machine, made by the Holder Company, earns its $61,000 price tag by being put to use in other seasons as well.

the spring we attach a rotating brush to sweep the sidewalks and we plow the petunia beds," Martin said. In the winter the machine also comes in handy for loading the snow plow trucks.

"It's a machine that adapts to many different uses," Martin said.

Charlevoix skiers place high at Thursday meet

The Charlevoix boys' ski team again showed their strength and depth at a three-school ski meet last Thursday when they skied a nearly perfect race.

The boys captured the top four out of five places in both slalom and GS against conference foes Boyne City and Traverse City-St. Francis. Led by Troy Smith, who took first place in both events, the top Rayder finishes were: Todd Freidinger, second slalom, second GS; Roscoe Serrels, third slalom, fifth GS; and Steve Pirie, fourth slalom, third GS.

"It's amazing to see a squad dominate a meet like that," said coach Sue Miller. "I'm really proud of them."

Tiffany Fisher nearly earned two first places at the meet, taking first in GS and second in slalom, behind Boyne City's Meghann Gerling by only 18 one-hundredths of a second. Charlevoix's Lexi Wilson tied Meghann Gerling in GS for a fourth place finish, and Wilson also took fourth in slalom.

"Both our boys and girls are skiing strong and steady," Miller said. "I think we are in a good position for the upcoming regional and conference meets."

Other finishes for the Rayder boys

"It's amazing to see a squad dominate a meet like that."

Sue Miller,
Charlevoix skiing coach

were: Brad Long, 14th slalom, ninth GS; Jim Dilworth, 17th slalom; T.J. Christiansen, 17th G.S.

Alisha Johnson and Kirsten Brendtro both had top 10 finishes at the race, with Johnson taking ninth in GS and Brendtro taking ninth in slalom. Johnson took 14th in slalom, while Brendtro came in 12th in GS. Other finishes were: Kristy Shindorf, 16th slalom, 14th GS; Lindsey Carland, 17th slalom; Jessica Halverson, 17th GS.

The girls' teams were closely matched, with three points separating the teams in both slalom and GS. Charlevoix finished second in GS, behind Boyne City, and second behind a tie, first place score between Boyne City and TC-St. Francis in slalom.

The Rayder ski team will ski at 11 a.m. Feb. 11 in an invitational meet at Boyne Mountain.

Rayder boys get another win added to their record

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix boys basketball team continues to rack up wins in its bid for dominance over the Lake Michigan Conference with a 74-61 victory over Lincoln-Alcona Saturday.

This win leaves the Rayders about a half-a-game behind Kalkaska, who currently holds the top spot in the conference.

Coach Keith Haske said he was very happy with his team's performance Saturday.

"We jumped out a little bit ahead. It was 36-29 at the half," he said.

The Rayders made another run in the third period, giving them a 16 point lead at one time, Haske said.

He added he was particularly impressed with Scott Parrish's playing.

"He had a real good game on both ends of the floor," Haske said. Parrish led the team in scoring with 19 points. He also added 10 rebounds and seven blocks to his statistics during Saturday's game.

Also playing well were, Sean Stockman with 14 points and Adam Wood with 12 points.

While Haske praised his team for its skill Saturday, he added there are still more areas he needs to work on in order to take the lead away from Kalkaska.

"I am still not pleased defensively. Especially with the defensive fundamentals," he said. "The big thing is we really have got to work on rebounds."

In the upcoming days the team will be working on these skills as it gets ready to take on Elk Rapids Friday night for the second time this season.

While the Rayders beat Elk Rapids the first time around, Haske remains cautious. He said Elk Rapids has two big players who like to take shots from the inside. The Rayders will have to neutralize these two players and eliminate Elk Rapids' inside game.

"We will take it one game at a time and then we should win the league," he said.

Recall petition faces further scrutiny

"It is equally important that an officer whose recall is sought have the reasons for the recall stated with clarity."

Beatty noted that although allegations in a recall petition need not be true, it is required that they be clear enough for those persons charged to be able to argue the merit or lack of merit of those allegations.

The recall petition language presented to the county clerk by CPNS on Jan. 12 is as follows:

"That in choosing the Marion Center/Veenstra Road site for a new high school, outside the City of Charlevoix, he (she): Disregarded the results of the Board of Education sponsored Community Forum, held March 9, 1999, that overwhelmingly favored an in-town site. Refused to involve the public in a meaningful way in the site selection process. Failed to inform the residents of Charlevoix School District of the responsibilities and costs arising out of the purchase of this property. Failed to consider and address traffic safety concerns of the public. Failed to disclose accurate utility costs to the taxpayers. Refused openly to respond to public questions about this site at Board of Education meetings."

The elections commission members were 7th Probate Court Judge Frederick Mulhauser, county clerk Jane Brannon and county treasurer Joan Balch.

In rendering their order approving the language the elections commission felt that the wording as presented on the petition was of sufficient clarity so that a person being asked to sign would have an understanding of the language, Brannon said.

Paul Richards of the CPNS steering committee agrees arguing the language is clear and the first ruling is correct.

The CPNS would drop the recall petition drive if the board were to have a referendum on the Marion Center Road site to vote it up or down, Richards said. If people voted the site down, then the committee wants a new site selection committee with citizens as well as board members to search for other sites.

"All we want is something not given originally, which is public input into a site committee and hearings on the sites," Richards said.

The board members' appeal argues that no dates are stated on the petitions for any particular conduct, there is no identification of any particular conduct being challenged and that the petitions contain words that are not clearly defined.

The petition language charges a refusal to respond to public questions about the site at board meetings, but does not give specific dates of those meetings, the appeal brief states.

In other language the petition charges a failure to disclose accurate utility costs to the taxpayers. Beatty argues in the appeal brief that because the language doesn't specify which utility costs are referred to in that language, the board members cannot make an informed response.

The board members take issue with words contained in the petition language, such as "meaningful" because words such as that could be interpreted in many different ways, the appeal brief states.

"...the unclarity of the language will leave it to each of the petition circulators to interpret the petitions to the voters," Beatty said.

"The purpose of the requirement of clarity is to ensure deliberate action by the electors and to discourage frequent, vexatious or ambitious elections," he said.

The recall petition for board president Allen Telgenhof also fails to meet the statutory requirement that the recall effort be based upon conduct during his current term of office. Telgenhof is currently serving a term that began in July 1999, yet he is charged with action at a March 9, 1999 forum, Beatty stated.

He also takes issue with the names of board members Barney Way and Scott Boss on their petitions because those are not their official names and not the names as they were elected. Way's official name is Mark A. Way and Boss is K. Scott Boss.

The board members asked the court to declare the petitions lacking in sufficient clarity and to disallow their circulation.

"To allow these petitions to go forth in their current state would deny fundamental fairness and due process to both the electors of this county as well as the officials charged with recall," Beatty said.

The county prosecuting attorney's office will respond on behalf of the elections commission.

Charlevoix residents may soon be recycling

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Charlevoix county residents may soon no longer have to cringe when throwing glass and plastic into their trash, or drive to another county to use its drop-off bins.

Following the results of a survey showing that county residents support a recycling program, the county sanctioned a committee to research the needs and formulate a recycling plan.

"We're meeting two times a month," committee vice chairperson Nancy Ferguson said. "We'd like to have something in place by the summer."

The committee is talking with other counties that already have recycling plans.

"We're getting advice from the other counties for the best way to do things and then find the best way for Charlevoix county," Ferguson said.

Some of the factors under consideration are sites for drop-off bins, the cost of the bins, what items would be recycled and the location of recycling centers.

"At this point we're not looking at a center in Charlevoix, just drop-off sites," Ferguson said. The county may use a center in Petoskey or Traverse City.

The committee is looking at a once or twice a year pick-up of hazardous waste and materials such as used oil.

The committee members are looking forward to a program for Charlevoix county.

"We'll have a better world that we can hand on to our children," Ferguson said. "Things don't have to go in a hole in the ground, they can be recycled."

Plastics are being recycled into park benches, fences and decks. Printer cartridges can be recycled and tin and glass are melted down and reused, she said.

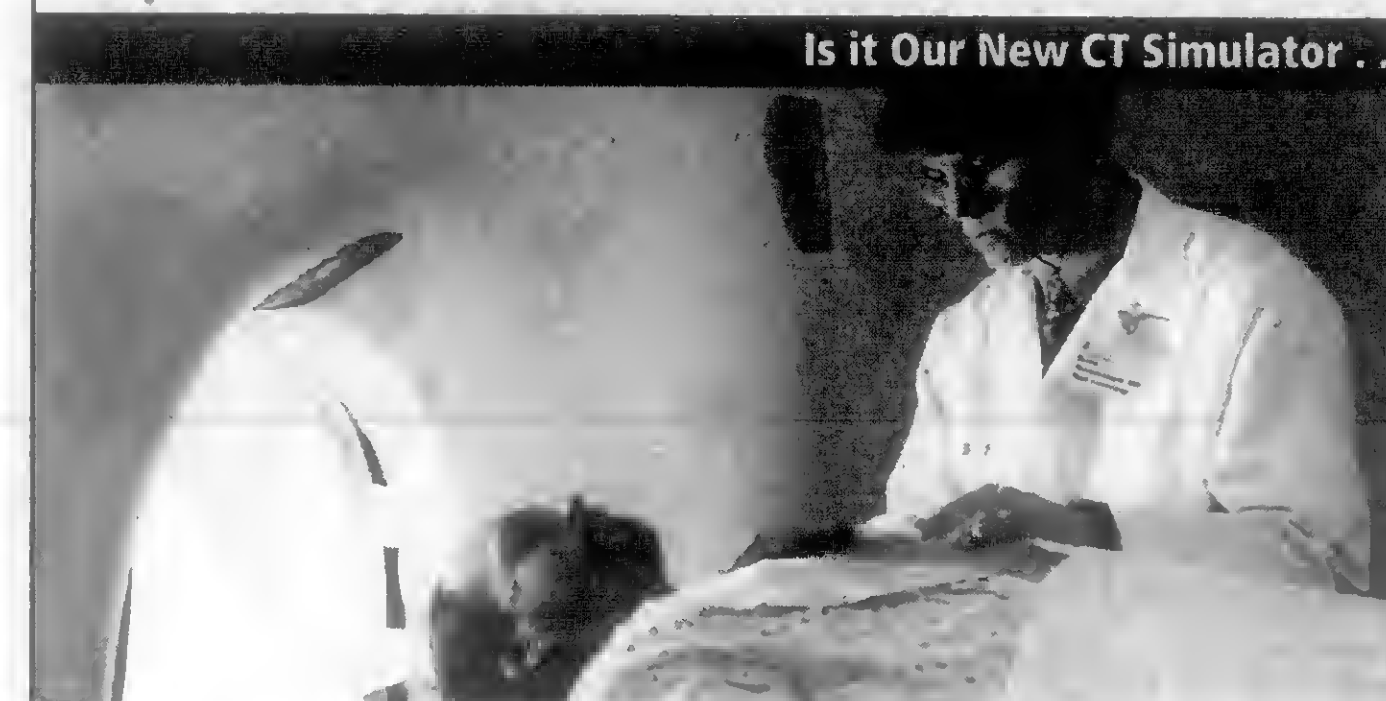

Call Nancy Ferguson at 547-2285 or Michelle Biddick at 547-4369 for more information.

Construction bid accepted for new airport terminal

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A $495,000 construction bid for a new airport terminal building at Charlevoix Municipal Airport was accepted by city council at its meeting on Monday.

Jess Construction out-bid six other companies for construction of the 3,200-square-foot terminal building.

The city must obtain the Bureau of Aeronautics' approval, but then it may enter into a contract with the Charlevoix township company.

"It looks promising," airport manager Loraine Luepnitz said.

Luepnitz and an airport terminal committee recommended that council accept the bid after they had conferred with architect James Nichols.

The project was rebid following a call for bids in late 1999. All of the bids at that time were too high.

The rebidding of the project, with minimal revisions and an improved bidding climate saves the city approximately $68,000, Luepnitz told council.

The city's capital plan for this year has earmarked $585,000 for this project. The architect's budget totals $570,950.

The new terminal building will be approximately twice the size of the current building which was built in the 1960s. It will include a security system, a video surveillance system, automatic doors and a heated sidewalk in the winter.

Jess Construction would start construction in late March or early April. The project is expected to be completed in October.

In other action Monday, city council presented Jo Anne Patrick with a plaque of appreciation for her eight years with the city. Patrick's last day as city clerk is Friday. She is joining the county clerk's office.

Former city clerk, Arlene Staley, will work on an interim basis until council hires a permanent employee.

Council scheduled public hearings for Feb. 21 for input on the proposed amendment to the 1999-2000 city budget and for input on the proposed 2000-2001 city budget.

Council approved Omega One, Inc.'s request for a liquor license to serve patrons on the premises. Omega One owns Chee Peng Chinese Restaurant on Bridge Street.

A request by Police Chief Dennis Halverson for a new patrol car was approved. The purchase price is $20,561.00. The car will replace a vehicle that has been used for three years.

Halverson recommended that council purchase the patrol car through the state of Michigan purchase plan.

"This method has proven not only to be cost-effective, but we are also accessing a special series of patrol cars, that has met or exceeded rigid testing standards from the Michigan State Police," Halverson said.

City of Charlevoix seeks volunteers for open boards

The city is asking for residents who may be interested in serving on a number of boards. The purpose, terms and meeting times are listed below:

Zoning Board of Appeals

Three year terms. Meets the third Wednesday of each month.

The Board of Appeals is a quasi-judicial board that hears appeals from the Zoning Board. It has the authority to grant variances from zoning requests.

Downtown Development Authority

Four year terms. Meets the second

Wednesday of each month.

The DDA oversees development in the downtown development district. It is a governing board and has executive authority to make decisions according to its finances. The DDA receives money from the capture of tax revenues, has a city millage, and may receive grants. It may own and purchase property.

City Planning Commission

Three year terms. Meets the second Monday of each month.

The planning commission has the responsibility of preparation of the city's comprehensive plan — the plan that addresses land use and public facilities. It drafts the city zoning ordinance and makes recommendations to city council on development plans and rezoning issues.

Housing Commission

Five year terms. Meets once a month.

The Housing Commission operates Pine River Place.

Anyone interested in serving on these or other city boards is asked to call the City Manager's office at 547-3270.

Make an inventory of your home's contents

If your home was destroyed by a tornado or burglarized, would you be able to list all of its contents and the dollar value of each? An inventory of all personal possessions in your home is essential if you ever have an insurance claim, according to a statewide insurance industry group.

"The insurance claims process is more efficient when an insurance company official can review documentation that attests to the value of the damaged or stolen property," said Leanne Snay, executive director of the Insurance Information Association of Michigan. "Although we hope that homes are not burglarized or destroyed by fire or tornado, it is important to have an inventory 'just in case.' Most people could probably describe the basic contents of their homes, but would have a difficult time remembering every possession — especially after the trauma of a fire or burglary."

Taking stock of what you own will also help determine how much coverage you need on your homeowners or renters insurance policy. A ready-made inventory form can usually be obtained from your insurance agent or by contacting IIAM at (517) 482-1643.

The insurance industry spokesperson suggests the following for your home inventory:

• Include not only a detailed description of each item, but its price and date and place of purchase. Jot down or photograph serial numbers of major appliances. Attach sales receipts, credit card invoices or canceled checks to the inventory.

• Consider photographing or videotaping your possessions. Use this method in addition to a written inventory. Don't forget to include items like curtains, rugs, lamps and wall decorations.

• Get your more valuable items appraised. Appraisals will let you know if you need additional coverage known as an endorsement. An endorsement is an addition to your policy that allows you to insure items for higher amounts than provided by a standard policy.

• Make sure your inventory remains up-to-date. Add new items when they are purchased. At the very least, update your inventory on an annual basis.

• Keep the inventory in a safe place. Store the inventory and photographs in a safe deposit box or fireproof safe. Consider keeping a copy of everything at home and the originals in a different location.

Remain cautious when venturing out on ice

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to warn citizens and visitors of Charlevoix County that the warmer temperatures and especially the fluctuation in temperatures can cause ice to weaken on the lakes.

Ice can form in several different conditions and some more perilous than others. Clear ice is the strongest, formed by a long hard freeze and can vary in color from green, blue and black depending on the water color beneath the ice. Snow ice is milky looking and is formed from refrozen melted snow. Snow ice is low in density and is very weak. Layered ice is just that, many layers of frozen and refrozen snow, giving it a striped appearance.

The notion that ice thickness is the only factor determining ice strength should be discarded once and for all, according to the sheriff.

Because ice seldom freezes at the same rate in the same body of water, it is not uniformly thick from one location to another. Ice can be one foot thick in one location and only one inch thick just ten feet away.

If you do break through the ice, there are some things you can do to avoid serious injury or death. First, try not to panic and thrash about. The air in your clothing will help you float. Yell for help. Turn toward the direction that you came from, the ice is likely to be stronger there. Place your arms on the edge of the solid ice. Keys, a pocket knife, ice pick or a belt buckle will help you grip the ice. Once you've got a grip on the ice, kick your legs hard and pull yourself up on the ice. If the ice breaks, move forward and try again. When you are out, do not stand up, but roll away from the break and stand up only when you have reached solid ice. Then get to some shelter and warm up immediately.

Marilyn Boss

As I end the stroll we have taken down Bridge Street in the 1940s, I recall a little nine foot wide building which housed the Star Restaurant.

It was located at 214 Bridge, on the east side of the street heading north and was later known as the Chatterbox Cafe. Next door, at 216 Bridge was the Edward Goldstick Store. Ed sold shoes and had a good shoe repair business there. Next, was the Sugarbowl Cafe, owned by George Glados. He had a very good restaurant and ice cream business. His wife, Mary, worked with him. George had quite an accent, having come from Greece. He had two daughters, Mary and Julia, who also worked there. Dale recalls George had a nice automobile he wanted to sell and Dale's dad was interested in it. He wanted to try it out and George said to him, "Just a minute. Julia, he got the keys." That was always one of Dale's dad's favorite stories. George was the kind of guy that everybody in town liked.

The Palace Theater was the next building. Elizabeth Moon and her sister Mrs. Regan owned it. They were the Galster sisters from Petoskey, whose family owned the Petoskey Portland Cement Company. They drove over every evening from Petoskey, always in the latest model automobile available, to run the theater at night. Bill Wallace, a local contractor and businessman, built it for them in 1927. When it burned in 1945, they hired Bill to rebuild it. The City of Charlevoix tried to stop them from rebuilding it, because they had an ordinance that said if any building on the east side of the street burned over 50 percent it must be torn down. The plan was to make everything on the east side of the street into a park. Well, guess what happened. They had money and so they told Bill to go ahead and rebuild it, as they said it wasn't damaged 50 percent. I remember there was controversy over it but they continued to run the theater for years.

Next door was Earl Young's Real Estate Office, which today is the Apple Tree. The building was very unique — as was everything Earl built. An apple tree was growing in the back yard and is still there today. Mr. Young had the largest real estate business in town and is remembered for all the beautiful, unique homes he built in town.

Originally, Major Green had his private home on that site and the house was moved in two pieces.

One half was taken to 906 Bridge Street and the other half was placed on the property at 101 E. Garfield, where the late Henry Supernaw lived.

VanAllsburg's Market was located at 226 Engle. VanAllsburg owned the store and had a meat market there, as well as groceries. I remember a very kind, likable person who worked there named Nelson Tillotson. He always had a ready smile and a good word to say as he waited on customers. On the corner of Clinton and Bridge, where Murdick's Fudge is today, was the Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Company. Robert F. Sloan was the president and his wife Isabelle was the secretary-treasurer of the company. He also owned the Charlevoix Insurance Agency. The abstract business is one of the oldest in Charlevoix County.

In a court case over the ownership of the land, about 15 years ago, Mary Feindt, the present owner, produced a daily log book that David Nettleton used 100 years before. In it was information pertaining to the dispute involved.

Turning left from Bridge Street at Clinton, toward Round Lake, on the north side of the street, was the location of a little house occupied by Ed and Thelma Boss. George LeBlanc remodeled it and used it as his insurance office in later years. Cornelius Geiken told George to be sure to leave 51 percent of the building standing, due to the city rule concerning that side of Bridge Street. George tore down one half and left the chimney, so he always had 51 percent standing. The building is there today, as an insurance office.

Next to the water, the Model Home Laundry stood. It was owned by Sam Sorenson. The laundry did a thriving business, washing and ironing all the sheets and linens for the big hotels in town. They had many people employed, ironing the white goods. Sam was a little white haired man, who always shuffled down the street and had a big smile on his face.

In earlier Bridge Street stories, I covered the area on the east side from Clinton to Belvedere Street and Belvedere Avenue on the south hill, where Seven Eleven is located today. W.H. Wallace owned a gas station and he also delivered bulk gasoline and other fuels to customers. He was also a builder and lived on the lot on the bluff beside 7-Eleven, overlooking Round Lake. On the back of his lot, facing Hurlbut Street, was his building headquarters and racks to hold lumber.

Bill had a big Collie dog who rode around in the front seat of his truck. It is my understanding that Bill was the spark plug for getting the stone walls and the chapel built at Brookside Cemetery.

We had many movers and shakers in those days and I have many fond recollections of the businessmen of downtown Charlevoix.

Cooperation the key to ending TB

Farmer, hunters, deer feeders and state urged to combine efforts

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

It's a problem that can't be ignored and one that will need a long-term solution involving many different groups, but it's a problem that doesn't call for panic reactions, say the experts.

The problem is bovine tuberculosis discovered in deer, raccoons, coyote, and cattle.

Bovine tuberculosis is infection caused by mycobacteria. It is spread primarily through the air and shared feeding areas.

From a TB-free state in 1979, within the last few years 11 counties have been declared TB-infected by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR).

The focal points have been the southeastern counties until a few weeks ago. But now the disease has crept into Charlevoix county, by way of Antrim county. A TB-infected deer was discovered in Antrim county and the 10-mile radius of caution imposed by the MDNR includes several farms in Charlevoix county.

The Wieland farm is one of the farms within the radius. Other farms include the Bud Boss and Doug Warner farms.

But there are safeguards against the disease for humans who drink milk and eat beef.

"I don't see any problems for people to get upset about, because the milk is pasteurized and the (slaughtered) beef is inspected," Farmer Tom Wieland said. He and his wife, Ardeth, own 85 cattle at their Paddock Road farm.

A joint report from the Michigan Department of Agriculture, MDNR and others, verifies there is low risk to humans.

Consumers have no reason to worry about the safety of their milk and meat supply, the report states. All Grade A milk in Michigan requires pasteurization, which kills bacteria and all beef sold to consumers is inspected as part of USDA's safety inspection.

The report states, however, that precautions should be taken. Thorough cooking of venison, as well as any other meat, is important to reduce the likelihood of any bacterial disease. All meat, including venison, should be cooked until the meat is no longer pink and the juices run clear.

Signatures still being gathered in recall drive

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The recall petition drive to recall five school board members continues and supporters say the number of signers is growing, while supporters of the board say most of the community does not want the recall.

"I think it's going very well," Nancy Porter said. "Many are willing to sign the petitions. Some don't want to put their name on the petition, but if it comes to a vote they say they'll vote for the recall."

Porter is treasurer of the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools (CPNS), the committee seeking recall of board members Allen Telgenhof, Ardeth Wieland, Barney Way, Scott Boss and Dennis Halverson.

Veterans Park to get a new look in spring

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Veterans Park is slated for a fresh new look this spring, after years of falling into disrepair.

The small park dedicated in the 1930s to Charlevoix's World War I veterans sits on the corner of Belvedere Avenue and Bridge Street. It was the first piece of land chosen to open up the waterfront area, city planner Gerry Harsch said.

The estimated $80,000 park renewal is a project of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA). The DDA has worked with the city and local veterans on the development plans.

World War II veteran Charlie Butcher said he and other area veterans are pleased with the project.

"We're glad the city and the DDA are doing this. The city has kept in touch with the veterans to get our suggestions and we appreciate that," Butcher said.

Two brick sidewalks will lead visitors to the center of the park where a large rock displays a plaque dedicating the area to the World War I veterans. A new flagpole will stand in the center and benches will be placed around the circle for seating.

New stairs leading from Belvedere Avenue into the park will replace the present crumbling stairs and stairs will be built on the opposite side leading down to the waterfront. New lighting will be installed.

Eight maple trees were planted many years ago for the eight World War I veterans from Charlevoix who died in the war. One tree died and Butcher hopes another maple will be planted to replace it.

The eight veterans who gave their lives were; Leslie T. Shapton, Dean C. Scroggie, Harry Potter, Joe Hollecek, Joseph E. Powers, Ray F. Solomon, George Crouter and William Burns.

Veteran Charlie Butcher knows that spring will bring not only a weather change for Veterans Park, but a renovation. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

Historical Society offers $500 scholarship to area students in essay competition

The Charlevoix Historical Society is sponsoring the Benona Jane Kohler scholarship essay competition. The competition seeks student essays or projects relating to some aspect of the history of Charlevoix. The winner of the competition receives a $500 scholarship.

The scholarship is open to Charlevoix High School seniors. Entries can be papers or projects done for class credit during the current school year or specifically for the competition.

The deadline for entering the contest is March 31. Students are encouraged to use the Historical Society's Museum and the library for research. To make arrangements to use the museum or for additional information, phone 547-0373 or 547-4640 after 5 p.m.

Corrections

Last week an article on page 3 about an investigation on the Charlevoix County Sheriff, gave an incorrect date for charges filed against Bellaire native Kent McNeil. It should have stated McNeil was charged in October 1999. Those charges were later dismissed.

Keep an eye on your drinks in Charlevoix

Charlevoix may be a small town, but that does not mean we shouldn't play it safe when out and about.

Recently, the town has seen the emergence of the drug Gamma-hydroxybutyrate or "GHB." It is known to be a lethal drug when ingested even in small amounts and is almost undetectable if it is mixed with a drink.

GHB can be in either powder or liquid form. In liquid form it is clear and has a slightly salty taste.

While it is known as a "date-rape drug," there have been no documented cases proving GHB was a factor in a Michigan rape, however this does not lessen its danger to the citizens of Charlevoix.

Just because there have been no documented cases of the drug being involved in a rape in this state, that doesn't mean that it is never going to happen. It can be easily slipped into an unattended drink at a tavern or party and incapacitate the drinker, leaving them open to assault.

GHB can also send a person who drinks it into a coma or kill them. It has been seen in Charlevoix twice by police.

EDITORIAL

and may be responsible for the death of a Charlevoix man.

This is a dangerous drug and every precaution should be taken to protect yourself and others around you. To protect yourself when at the local tavern, keep an eye on your drink at all times, never leave it unattended and never accept a drink from anyone but a bartender or other employee of the establishment.

If you do suspect you have been drugged, don't take chances, get to a hospital for help. There are no "home remedies" to get this drug out of your system; only medical assistance can help you.

But, don't take this warning as a suggestion to stay inside your homes with all your doors and windows locked on a Friday night. As towns go, Charlevoix is still a safe place to live and work in, but that doesn't mean you should take unnecessary chances with your life.

It is still all right to go out and have a little fun, just use a little intelligence when doing so.

LexaLite CEO a welcome addition to Charlevoix

Edith Gilbert

The next time you take a walk along the channel to the lighthouse remind yourself that the optical lens that casts its warning light over Lake Michigan is manufactured in Charlevoix.

at LexaLite International Corporation—and so are the street lights on Bridge Street, the reflectors at Mt. McSaubia, the pool, the Shell gas station, Ferry Beach and the new lights illuminating the LexaLite parking lot.

In addition to the above sites, the company chose to donate improved lighting to the high school gyms in Charlevoix and Boyne City in honor of the children of the 280 employees who work there. (Improved lighting was also donated to the high school gym at the LexaLite branch in Tennessee which employs 112 people.)

You will be interested and perhaps surprised to know that LexaLite not only lights up Charlevoix, but lights up the world.

Just ask CEO Jeff Roski, who travels regularly to meet with representatives based in England, Germany, Italy, Brazil, Mexico, Australia, Tokyo, Hong Kong and Singapore. Six new patented products have been developed at our local Science Center that are sold world-wide and have become standard in the industry. An example is the improved lighting we shop under in large stores like Home Depot, Sam's Club and Sak's Fifth Avenue.

Three years ago Roski, an engineer, accepted the appointment as CEO of LexaLite. He and his wife, Pat, commuted back and forth from California for a time, but recently they decided to make this their permanent home. They bought a house in Charlevoix and have happily settled in and become active in the community. They have added an office for Jeff, a sewing room for Pat, as well as guest rooms for two grown visiting daughters and friends.

Roski was born in Kankakee, Ill., won a naval scholarship from the University of Illinois and in 1962 was shipped out to Vietnam on a carrier as a naval officer. Later he was transferred to a small mine sweeper in the Pacific. He met and married Pat in 1963, while she was attending the University of San Diego, where she earned a degree in both Home Economics and Costume Design. Roski didn't resign his commission until 1966. Over the next 30 years, he handled research and developing, marketing, sales, operations and logistics for several major corporations, including Capital Records and the American Hospital Supply Corp. Later he formed his own "turn around" company, Summa, located in Torrance, Calif. which is the patent company of LexaLite, which later invited Roski to head the Charlevoix corporation.

Still with all these solid accomplishments behind him, we are amused when Roski grudgingly admits—with a boyish smile on his face—that he had the honor of graduating at the top of his class at USC in the MBA program. His friendly—yet courtly manner—that is drilled into all naval officers, stands him in good stead; not only in this community, but also during his far flung travels around the world. Welcome aboard Jeff!

Letters to the editor

Support the school board
Editor:

I celebrated on Oct. 11 when the taxpayers of the Charlevoix Public School District approved the bond election. Although no child of mine will have the privilege of attending the new high school, my community will reap the benefits for years to come. I attended several school board meetings after the election where discussion occurred. I chose to listen and not to speak or write a letter to the editor. I reasoned that the majority had spoken and the tempest would soon blow over.

However, since a group has decided to recall all board members as the law permits, I have decided to join the former mayor, Josh Barnes, and oppose the recall. To recall our friends and neighbors serving on the school board because they do not follow the wishes of a special interest group is unfair. These five are ethical, law-abiding and moral citizens. If they are recalled, what decent voter would dare run to fill their vacancies?

Finally, about the group calling itself the "Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools." This is a misnomer for most of our school children because 68 percent of the schoolchildren live south of the bridge. The future site of the high school is two miles from my M-66 neighborhood while the Waller Road site is four miles away. The large parcel of land purchased by our current board will accommodate another school, when needed, and spare our community another divisive land fight due to the foresight of this board.

I would urge the good citizens of Charlevoix to join with Josh Barnes and the Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way and support our school board. Please do not sign a petition for an unjust recall.

Improve the beaches

Editor:

I think that Charlevoix's main beaches, such as Ferry Beach and Michigan Beach could be improved. First, the beaches should be cleaner than they are right now. Next, the lifeguards aren't on duty long enough. Their hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. They should be at least 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. On beaches there isn't very good equipment. On Ferry Beach a couple of the basketball hoops are split in half. It's sort of hard to make a basket. On Michigan Beach there are too many dead fish floating around. It's not fun to swim with a bunch of dead fish. There should also be bike trails on the beaches. A lot of people think it's fun to ride on trails by the beach.

We should pay more attention to the garbage on the beaches. People should try to pick up the dead fish with nets or anything. Everybody should pitch in to fix equipment. We could make our beaches a lot better.

Build the school

Editor:

I am tired of waiting for the new school to be built. They should hurry up the building because the Middle School is falling apart. Then the kids will have more and better activities because we will have an auditorium. Also, we would like a chance to be in the new school and to graduate from it. Another reason is that it wouldn't be so dangerous going to school in town because there would be only one school in the city limits. It's dangerous especially when some tourists are still here because the traffic is heavy on Bridge Street. The longer it takes to build the more it costs, too. We will have better facilities when it is built. That is why they should start building the school. Thank you for your time.

Build a park

Editor:

A lot of people and I would love to have another park downtown, maybe across from Subway and down the hill a little. You wouldn't have to pay to go have fun either. Teens would love to do fun things free, like go play basketball, maybe even toss a football or kick a soccer ball. Also it would be great for skateboarding, rollerblading and hacky sack.

Letters to the editor

The reason I want the park to be downtown is because Shanahan Field is way out in the country and if you have it in town you could just go to Subway to have some lunch. Teens are allowed there too. Cause they don't like little kids around. They might hurt them or hit them, not on purpose. Finally the last reason is, it's cool to have a park downtown so that in the winter you could go ice skating on a rink. How fun. I hope you listen to my suggestion.

Golf fee too high

Editor:

I think the municipal fee for one round of golf is too much for students. First the price for one round is $14. Secondly, if a student wanted to play two times a week he or she would have to pay $28 a week. I also think students should have a lower student rate. The rate should be around $7. If the price would go down, probably more kids would play and you would still make a profit. Most kids my age don't even have a job yet. If the price stayed the same, less kids would play. If the price went down, there's a pretty good chance more kids would play. If they lowered the price, I know I'd go because I don't have to pay as much. Hopefully, the municipal golf course would change its mind about the price after reading this letter.

Soccer league needed

Editor:

I am a sixth grade student and I enjoy playing soccer. In my opinion, there should be a U-14 4-H soccer league. I think this because if there is not an opportunity for kids to play soccer, they will not be practiced up for high school. After awhile, kids will lose some of their skills. Having an opportunity to exercise and play sports with four friends keeps kids out of trouble. Also this would give kids something constructive to do.

Being on a soccer team would teach kids teamwork. Playing soccer also teaches how to be a good sport, win or lose. Being on a soccer team gives kids a chance to meet new friends and to learn to get along with other people. In conclusion, this would help kids develop athletic skills for high school sports and gives kids something to do instead of destructive activities.

Mercer/US-31 too dangerous

Editor:

I strongly feel that safer traffic conditions should be enforced on the Mercer Boulevard and US-31 intersection. I feel that it is one of the most dangerous intersections in town. Around 5 p.m. rush hour traffic gets very dangerous, with cars speeding through the intersection. It is a hazard with golfers walking across the road. They could be hit very easily. Also, I think that a patrol car should be placed near here to stop violations by drivers.

Therefore, with the speed limit being what it is, golfers and the growing commercial activity, a traffic light should be placed on this dangerous intersection. Another way to make this section safer would be to lower the speed limit so that people would be safer.

Please consider the above suggestions, so that people will be secure on this intersection.

Young Careerist

At a recent dinner meeting, Amy Phillips, a graduate of Central Michigan University and Charlevoix High School, was honored with a "Young Careerist Award" by the Business and Professional Women's Club of Dowagiac.

Phillips is the news director of WVHQ 92.1 FM and WDOV 1440 AM radio, in Dowagiac. She was nominated for this award by her employer.

During the dinner, Phillips was one of the featured speakers talking about "My Career in Broadcast Journalism," which finished with her favorite quote, "Shoot for the moon, even if you miss, you're still among the stars."

New director

Elizabeth Gertz has been appointed executive director of the North Central Council (NCC) of the Michigan Health and Hospital Association. The NCC, located in Gaylord, is a regional council made up of 13 hospitals, including Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Prior to joining NCC, Gertz was the government relations specialist for Northern Michigan Regional Health System (1996-1999); and a health care specialists for a US senator.

NMC Dean's List

The following students of Charlevoix County have been named to Northwestern Michigan College's Dean's List for Fall Semester 1999: Kimberly Cunningham, Chad Draper, Hugo Jimenez, Jessica Seibert.

The Dean's List recognizes outstanding academic achievement of full-time students who do unusually well in their studies. Published at the end of each term, the list includes the names of those students who have achieved a current grade point average of 3.5 or above out of a possible 4.0.

Tickets are going fast for the First Annual Charlevoix Firefighters' Association's Ball planned for Feb. 26 at the Charlevoix Country Club.

"The response is overwhelming," Lew Kline said. Kline is organizing the event, along with Jeff Stevens and Doretta Anderson.

About half of the 350 tickets for the ball are already sold, Kline said.

The Firefighters Ball will be at Mahogany's restaurant from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m. Music will be provided

Win money with poetry

The International Library of Poetry has announced that $58,000 will be awarded this year.

Deadline is April 30. The contest is open to everyone and the entry is free.

To enter, send one original poem, any subject or style, to: The International Library of Poetry, Suite 19908, 1 Poetry Plaza, Owings Mills, MD 21117. The poem should be 20 lines or less and the poet's name and address should appear on the top of the page.

by DJ the D.J. for dancing, and hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar will be available. A raffle, silent auction and door prizes are also planned.

The association first asked area businesses to donate funds to promote the fundraiser ball. Kline said the response from businesses was great and provided the money needed for promotion of the event.

The firefighters and EMT staff and volunteers have had fundraisers as needed in the past, but this is the first organized event they plan to continue for years to come.

"Proceeds will stay with the association and be used for equipment we need, for training, and for continuing education," Kline said.

Tickets may be purchased from association members and from the fire station. The price is $25 per person.

The firefighter's association has 28 members composed of firefighters, EMT personnel and the dive team. The Charlevoix Fire Department has a Fire Chief and three other paid staff. It has a total of 39 volunteers.

Road closing requested

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A 345-foot strip of road that shoots off from Petoskey Avenue going at a southwest angle past Uhrick's Motel to Mercer Boulevard is the subject of a request for abandonment.

Jim Uhrick who owns the eight acres of land on either side of that road has requested that the city abandon the road so that he may own it. Uhrick wants to make it into a part of his land and then develop the area or sell it.

Uhrick said the road is dangerous because people travel too fast on it. Another problem is that drivers disobey the "do not enter" sign at the south end of the road, he said.

If the city abandoned the strip of road, traffic intending to travel on Mercer Boulevard or Division Street would proceed to Mercer Boulevard before turning right.

Uhrick made his request to city council in early January. Council has stated that because of the potential impact on the entrance to the city, it has sent the request to the planning commission for a recommendation prior to proceeding with a public hearing.

City planner Gerry Harsch is asking the Michigan Department of Transportation and police chief Dennis Halverson for their opinions before making a recommendation to council.

Christ Episcopal Church Rector

Jesus calls us to let our light shine before men so that they may see our good works and give glory to our Father in heaven. However, sometimes it is hard to let your light shine if you feel low on fuel!

If the light that shines within us is the light of Christ, then we need to spend time with him to make sure our light is at full power. Jesus did not go about doing the ministry for which God had sent him without renewing his communion with the Father.

One of our recent Sunday readings was from the first chapter of the Gospel of Mark. It told of Jesus healing Peter's mother-in-law and then ministering healing and release to many people who were brought to him at Peter's house.

What did Jesus choose to do after such an intense time of ministry? Verse 35 tells us: "And in the morning, a great while before day, he rose and went out to a lonely place and there he prayed."

If our Lord, Jesus Christ, felt the need to go and spend time with The Father to be renewed and prepared, then how much more should we feel that same need? Unfortunately, we live in a society that places a high value on action — on always being busy. "Don't just stand there, do something." That is not a good prescription for nurturing our spiritual life.

Sometimes we need to be told, "Don't just do something, stand there." Henri Nouwen, a Roman Catholic priest and a powerful writer on the spiritual life, said something simple yet profound in one of his books: "We need to learn to waste time with God."

In the process of taking time apart and encountering God, many things can happen. In Psalm 46:10, God says, "Be still, and know that I am God." When we see Him, we come to know Him. When Elijah heard "the still, small voice" on the mountain, he received comfort and correction and calling. Being in

OF BLESSINGS

God's presence also can bring strength and healing. It is put so beautifully in Isaiah 40:31 - "They who wait for the Lord shall renew their strength, they shall mount up with wings like eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint."

We never know when God may call us to an intense time of ministry. I've heard a little story about a young Christian boy who was taken by his parents to his grandfather's farm. His grandfather was showing him around and they were out in the middle of a field when they realized that something had angered his grandfather's bull. The bull started to charge toward them and his grandfather told the young boy to run for the fence. As they ran, the boy had a thought and said to his grandfather, "Shouldn't we stop to pray?" The grandfather replied, "No sonny, I stay prayed up just for emergencies like this!"

Let's take time apart with God and get prayed up for whatever emergencies He may send our way.

Obituaries

Dr. Kingsley C. Bennett

Dr. Kingsley C. Bennett, 71, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 9 at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

A funeral service was given Feb. 13 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Scharbaum officiated. Burial will take place in Rockford.

Kingsley was born on Aug. 7, 1928, in Sand Lake, the son of Lyle and Frances (Taylor) Bennett.

On June 17, 1951, he married Velma H. Muntz in Cass City.

Dr. Bennett graduated from Central Michigan University in 1951 and served as class president. He continued his education at Northern Illinois College of Optometry in Chicago where he completed his studies in 1954. Dr. Bennett worked as an optometrist for 40 years, first in Hastings for 30 years and then in Grand Rapids where he worked at East Paris Optical for 30 years and then he retired in 1994. Kingsley was also affiliated with the Sun-glass Shoppe in Charlevoix for the last 10 years.

Following his graduation from college, Kingsley served during the Korean conflict with the US Army.

His passion was spending time with his children and grandchildren and his hobby was playing tennis.

Terence Donegan

Terence Donegan, 78, of Charlevoix and formerly of the Saginaw and Flint areas, died Feb. 6 at his home in Charlevoix.

Mr. Donegan was born on April 14, 1921, in Kearny, N.J., the son of Thomas and Catherine (Campbell) Donegan.

He attended college in Alameda, Calif. receiving a bachelor's degree. He later worked in sales management in the trucking industry.

From 1942 to 1945, Terence served as a sergeant with the US Army Air Corps, Air National Guard.

On Aug. 18, 1973, he married Janet Grams in Toledo, Ohio.

Throughout his life he was very active as a mason and achieved Master Mason, Saginaw Council #20 and the rank of 33rd degree mason. Memberships and honors include: Blue Lodge Saginaw Valley #154 (past master), Royal Arch Masons Chapter II (past high priest 1993-94), Council Royal/Select Masons #20 in Saginaw (past Thrice Illustrious Masters), Pontiac Commandery #2 (past commander), York Rite Sovereign College in Flint (past governor and Order of the Purple Cross), Allied Masonic Degree Pythangers 66, (past sovereign master), Knights of the York Cross of Honour #22, Knight Mason of the Year, Council ODCP, Allied Masonic Grand College of Rites-Order of Cork, Traverse City Chapter #102, Grand Masters Council #82, Scottish Rite, 32nd degree in Bay City, Great Chiefs Council in 1981, Grand Convention - Order of High Priesthood Chapter #183, District Deputy Instruct Emeritus (Grand Council) and Honorary Member of Royal Order of Scotland, Yeoman of York, Angola, Indiana and Councils in Flint, Alma and Cass City.

Mr. Donegan was most proud of receiving the Cryptic Mason of the Year for the State of Michigan in 1996.

Survivors include his wife, Janet of Charlevoix; children, Randall Elliott of Portland, Ore., Lynn Maher of Washington state, Kinley Jon Elliott of Saginaw; eight grandchildren, Jon, Katelin, Jillian, Shawntelle and Aaron Elliott, Christa Smith and Connor and Kimberly Maher.

The family prefers that memorials be directed to the American Heart Association or Hospice of Little Traverse Bay.

Just who is behind this?

Making sense of the recall

As with many issues that present themselves in the history of a community, learning about the people behind them help in understanding it.

Some people say an issue is one generation against the other, one social class against another or one type of business against the other. To understand if this is the case in the current issue surrounding the site of a new high school, Charlevoix Courier Staff Writer B.J. Hetter gathered information on some of the main people involved.

That information indicated this is an issue that goes beyond one side against the other. Each side has a representation of every type of person living in Charlevoix.

Everyone from life-time residents to new-residents, educators to business people and north-end people to south-end people, have representation on both sides of this issue.

To show a cross-section of the people involved in this school issue, we chose three people on each committee who are in leadership roles.

We have also included a profile of the five Board of Education members sought to be recalled and the school superintendent to give a face to the people who made the decision to use the Marion Center/Veenstra site for a new high school.

The Rayders' quest for dominance over the Lake Michigan Conference remains intact following two wins last week.

The Rayders' varsity basketball team beat East Jordan Friday 85-79 and Harbor Springs Feb. 8 in a 99-67 shellacking.

Haske said he was happy with the talent his players showed in both games, but he was particularly impressed with the fight East Jordan put up Friday.

"I thought East Jordan played a great game against us, compared to the first time we played them. But our kids made some key baskets down the stretch and pulled ahead, particularly in the final minutes," he said.

Leading the Rayders in scoring at Friday's game were: Sean Stockman with 30 points and 17 rebounds, Adam Wood with 26 points, nine rebounds, four steals and seven assists and Shay Hutchison with 10 points and eight assists.

Haske said his team is doing a real good job of getting the ball to point-maker Stockman who muscles his way inside to the basket, usually getting a foul for free-throws or putting two points on the board with a basket.

However, he said the team still needs to work on its defense.

"We are making too many fundamental mistakes," Haske said.

The Rayders faced Roscommon Tuesday night in Roscommon. Results of that game were unavailable before press-time.

The team will also go against Elk Rapids next Friday at home.

Currently the Rayders' league record is 7-1 and 11-4 overall. Charlevoix is tied for first place in the Lake Michigan Conference with Kalkaska.

Charlevoix skiers taking strong finishes at meets

The Charlevoix boys' ski team is racing to an outstanding season, as seen in its second place finish recently.

In an eight-school invitational meet hosted Feb. 10 at Boyne Mountain, the Charlevoix boys' ski team finished second and the girls finished third, demonstrating their readiness for the regional meet at Boyne Mountain Thursday, Feb. 17. The boys' team could easily have taken first place had it not been for a few small errors and mishaps.

The boys took second place behind Gaylord, which became a class B school this year, moving down from the class A division. The second place finish came from strong skiing by sophomore Roscoe Serrels and senior Todd Freidinger. Serrels took second in GS and second in slalom, while Freidinger finished sixth in GS and first in slalom. Steve Pirie had a first place finish in GS but lost a ski in slalom and was disqualified. Freshman Brad Long had a solid, 15th place finish in GS but also was disqualified in slalom.

For the girls, Tiffany Fisher captured second place in both slalom and GS, yielding first place in both events to Andrea Gerling of Boyne City.

Charlevoix's Lexi Wilson finished fourth in GS, beating out Boyne City's Meghan Gerling for the fourth place position, and also took sixth in slalom. The GS course tripped up Charlevoix seniors Kirsten Brendtro and Alisha Johnson, both of whom were disqualified. In slalom, Brendtro finished 19th and Johnson finished 20th.

The invitational meet was a good test of the teams' mettle, since the teams were racing on the same course, Superbowl, that will set the stage for the regional meet Thursday.

"It was a good experience for them, a nice opportunity to learn the challenges of the terrain before the regional meet," said coach Sue Miller.

At the regional meet, the boys will be helped by Troy Smith, who was out of town during the invitational meet.

Other finishes for the boys were: Joel Trubilowicz, 24 GS; Jim Dilworth, 25 GS, 34 slalom; and Shaun MacMillan, 28 slalom.

Other finishes for the girls were: Kristy Shindorf, 23 slalom, 21 GS; and Lindsey Carland, 36 slalom, 31 GS.

This Thursday, 14 regional teams will compete for the chance to ski in the state championships. The top three boys' teams and top three girls' teams will move on to the state championships, which will be hosted at Nub's Nob Feb. 28. Top 10 individual skiers may also move on to the state championships if they don't qualify with their high school team.

Freshman spikers net win against Boyne Falls

The Charlevoix Freshman Volleyball team took the win Feb. 9 in its match against Boyne Falls.

The team took two out of three games. The score for the first game was 15-3, Charlevoix; the second game was 1-15, Boyne Falls; the third game was 15-13, Charlevoix.

The top Charlevoix server for the game was Natasha Kleiber.

The Charlevoix player named for best offense was Lindsey Miller.

The Charlevoix players named for best defense was Kaylee Kughman and Beth Reeves.

The team's next game will be at 6 p.m. Thursday at Elk Rapids.

Games this week

Thursday — Varsity, Junior Varsity and Freshman Volleyball starting at 6 p.m. at Elk Rapids.

Friday — Varsity and Junior Varsity Basketball starting at 6 p.m. versus Boyne City at home.

TB outbreak in area can be beaten with work

It will take a corroborative effort by government agencies, farmers, hunters and consumers to eradicate the disease.

Some of the circumstances contributing to the TB problem are sportsmen who want plenty of deer to hunt, farmers who grow corn, sugar beets and apples to sell as deer bait, people who feed deer in their back yards and agencies that strive to please too many different interests.

Initially the MDNR was moving too slowly because it was trying to please the hunters, Wieland said.

"We've got to get the deer herd down to a size we can handle," he said.

Lately the MDNR has declared that it will allow "block" permits, allowing hunters to hunt at will in certain areas. The agency is also putting a state-wide ban on baiting and feeding of deer.

Congressman Bart Stupak is stepping in at the federal level by seeking emergency funding because of the disease "to conduct research into bovine TB's modes and ease of transmission, to expand testing of deer and cattle herds for the presence of the disease and to increase reimbursement paid to affected farmers for the loss of herd and income."

Hunters can help by cooperating with the ban on baiting and by turning in the deer heads for free tuberculosis testing.

The Farm Bureau is working with other agencies to educate farmers and the public.

Wieland said he and his farming neighbors are eager to cooperate with the testing.

"Farmers don't want to sell a contaminated product," Wieland said. "We want to clean this up as fast as anybody."

Youth orchestra to give benefit concert Feb. 12

A Benefit Concert for the Northern Michigan Youth Orchestra will be presented at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 12 at the First Presbyterian Church of Harbor Springs. The "Winter" and "Spring" Concertos from Vivaldi's "Four Seasons" will feature visiting artist Alan Rawson as soloist and conductor of the Chamber Orchestra. Student members of the Northern Michigan Youth Orchestra will join with their teachers and other professionals from the community to perform in the Chamber Orchestra.

Vivaldi's Violin Concertos, "The Four Seasons," were published in the 1720's as part of a collection titled "The Contest Between Harmony and Invention." The works were originally written for the orchestra, composed of young women, at his conservatory in Venice.

These concertos are deservedly among his most famous works with their programmatic appeal and brilliant, virtuosic demands on the soloist.

The Rawson Duo, Alan Rawson, violinist, and Sandy Rawson, pianist, also will perform "Hungarian Dances" by Brahms, the Sonata for Violin and Piano by Respighi, and "Three Paganini Caprices" by Szymanowski.

Alan Rawson is concertmaster of the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony and professor of music at Moorhead State University in Moorhead, Minn. Sandy Rawson, an active accompanist in Minnesota and North Dakota, studied at the Musik Akademie in Vienna, Aspen School of Music and the University of Minnesota. The Rawson Duo, specializing in Romantic and early 20th century works, has given numerous recitals on college campuses and community performing arts series across the United States and Canada.

The public is encouraged to support the Youth Orchestra by attending the concert and participating in the free-will offering.

Recall drive may be causing tempers to flair in Charlevoix

But, Josh Barnes, chairman of Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way (CCAW) — the committee that organized to fight against the recall of the board members, disagrees.

"We have enormous support from the community," Barnes said. The board put a lot of work and research into finding a new high school site and decided on the best site available, he said.

"The site was known to all when they voted," Barnes said.

The site chosen by the board is 74 acres on Marion Center Road, between Clark and Veenstra roads.

To see the division in the community caused by the actions of those against the site is disturbing, Barnes said.

"I cannot believe how people are upset nowadays. When I think about how much all of this time, effort and money could be put towards getting the schools done, it's

"As far as I'm concerned — it's war."

Josh Barnes,
Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way

pathetic," Barnes said.

The CPNS has about 24 people circulating the petitions for recall. Spokesman Paul Richards said he wasn't sure of the number of signatures collected so far, but he said the committee will collect more than the required number to allow for duplicates and such.

Approximately 890 signatures are needed for each board member's petition. The CPNS has 180 days from Jan. 28 to collect the necessary signatures.

"We hope to have this wrapped up in the next couple of weeks," Porter said.

In the meantime, in response to CPNS' promoting of the current high school site as an alternative choice, the CCAW is checking into whether that site could be legally used. CCAW believes because the voters' ballot from October didn't provide language for a new building on that site or the removal of any structure or athletic field, it may not be legal to choose that site.

"As far as I'm concerned — it's war," Barnes said.

Author revisits 1936 ice tragedy

By GEOFFREY D. REYNOLDS
Charlevoix Historical Society

"Two Dead, Third Survives Floe Ordeal" read the headline in the Charlevoix Courier, February 12, 1936. So marked the end of an event still unmatched in Charlevoix's long and tenacious relationship with Lake Michigan.

February 8, 1936 began with fair weather for fishing partners, Cleo LaPeer and son Lloyd, Eugene Bearss, Claude Beardsley and his son-in-law, Clayton Brown as they made their way out onto the ice near South Point. By early afternoon the fishing had turned deadly as the ice platform they stood on broke loose as a southerly wind started building. Soon their predicament was spotted by United States Life Saving Service Surfman William Woods from the station lookout tower and the push was on to rescue the stranded anglers.

Acting Captain George Kelderhouse assembled his men and rushed with a small skiff to South Point. Once there Surfman Quinton Duha started out onto the ice with the rescue craft and into the water. Soon he was able to reach the floe and secure Bearss and LaPeer and his son, leaving Beardsley and Brown behind for another attempt. Not to worry, a boat would return for them shortly and one did with Boatswain's Mate Earl Cunningham volunteering to make his way to the remaining two men. Unfortunately he would not return from the attempt as a blinding snowfall and rising waves forced the three mariners to forfeit to the wind and let their oars rest in the boat and wait for rescue.

While the men drifted Captain Kelderhouse and his crew rushed back to the station to retrieve a small power boat to attempt a rescue of the rapidly drifting men. Back to South Point they went with the new rescue craft on a horse-drawn sleigh, towing it across rough ice to open water.

Once in the water and under way they searched throughout the night, but to no avail as the men had steadily drifted to the north. Sunday was also spent looking for the lost trio, but again, no sign of life was found as the men moved farther up the lake, becoming colder and losing hope for rescue.

Around 6 p.m. on Sunday, Cunningham succumbed to the cold and died in Brown's arms. Conversation between Beardsley and Brown now turned to their families as they struggled to keep their blood flowing by pacing around the ice-bound boat. At 10 p.m. Beardsley laid down on the ice and died. Brown covered him with a tarp and kept pacing around the boat until dawn.

Then he decided to head for shore.

He had waited until then because of the treacherous conditions of the ice and its varying levels of thickness, but he also knew that he had to move east toward shore soon, or die. After stumbling almost 9 miles, sometimes crawling over thin areas of ice, he reached the cabin of an amazed George Andrews at Good Hart that afternoon. Andrews knew of the lost trio and could not believe Brown's appearance at his door. A telephone call was made and soon authorities and friends learned of his survival and rushed by ambulance to Good Hart. There they learned of his ordeal and his companions' deaths due to exposure.

The next day the bodies of Cunningham and Beardsley were spotted by a Coast Guard charted search plane and recovered by searchers on the ice. Later that week Cunningham was laid to rest at Wolverine and Beardsley at Charlevoix's Brookside Cemetery, while Brown lay recovering from frostbitten feet. Both left grieving families and a shocked community that marked this as the worst ice tragedy in the history of the village.

In late March, Brown lost both of his feet to gangrene, brought on by cold and the bruises received as he beat them with an ax handle to keep the blood flowing. Members of the Life Saving Service received commendations for their "highest type of courage" including Cunningham.

Remember to test your well water

Every day we depend on our water systems for clean and safe water in our homes, places of employment and in public facilities.

While federal/state standards and regulations assure us that public or municipal water supplies are safe, owners are responsible for the safety of the water that their family uses.

Susan Lahti, Americorps

Member with the Michigan Groundwater Stewardship Program suggests regularly testing your drinking water well to safeguard family health. The signs of drinking water contamination are not always obvious; testing is the only way to assure a safe supply.

Testing water for every contaminant is impractical and unnecessary, but testing for relevant indicators of water quality - at a minimum, total chloroform bacteria and nitrates, is recommended.

The total chloroform bacteria test determines if the water has been contaminated by human wastes that may have entered from septic systems, livestock manure or by other sources.

A high nitrate test indicates septic systems, livestock facilities, fertilizer storage or handling sites or other nitrogen sources may have contaminated your well. A nitrate level greater than 10 parts per million, may indicate that there are other contaminants in the water, and if there are agricultural activities in the area, testing for pesticides is advised.

Your local district health department can test well water. The residents of Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties can actively protect their private wells from contamination by participating in the Michigan Groundwater Stewardship Program. To learn more about the Michigan Groundwater Stewardship Program, contact Lahti at the Antrim Conservation District, Bellaire, (231)533-8363.

Prosecutor warns of dangerous drugs in the area

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur is warning residents to be on the lookout for two dangerous drugs recently seen in the community.

The two substances — GHB and GBL — have been seen in at least two criminal cases in the past year, Kur said. In one case, a man died after drinking a drink laced with GHB and in another, two men lost consciousness and required hospitalization.

Gamma-hydroxybutyrate or "GHB" is an illegal drug that comes in a powder or liquid form. Gamma-butyrolactone or "GBL" is a substance that is illegal under federal law only as of two weeks ago. Legislation making it illegal under Michigan law is pending. GBL is also available in liquid or powder form. When taken orally, GBL is converted in the body to GHB and has the same deadly effect.

One year ago the Food and Drug Administration asked that companies that manufacture products containing GBL to voluntarily recall them. Some brand names include:

Renewtrient, Reviviarant, Reviarant G, Blue Nitro, Blue Nitro Vitality, GH Revitalizer, Gamma G, FX, Regenerize, Zen, Serenity Tunder Nectar, Gen X, Soma Solution, Pine Needle Oil and Remforce.

GHB and GBL have both been referred to as the "date rape drug," Kur added. This is a misnomer, she said.

To characterize these substances solely as a means to incapacitate young women to take advantage of them sexually is misleading, she said. In fact, according to Julia Pearson, a forensic toxicologist with the Michigan State Police crime lab, to date there have been no reported cases of rape using GHB in this state.

Pearson added claims made by manufacturers of GBL that it builds muscle mass, increases protein and makes people sleep better, are false.

GHB and GBL are deadly, regardless of if they are found as a white powder or dissolved in water. Because water remains clear even after mixing GHB or GBL, it is impossible to determine the concentration.

When mixed with alcohol, they produce an immediate intoxicating effect that may be followed by dizziness, nausea and vomiting, decreased heart rate, difficulty breathing, coma and in some cases death. These substances are easily slipped into drinks and can be consumed by a person unknowingly.

"I believe that the public is largely uninformed about GHB and GBL. Citizens, and especially young people, should know that this stuff is out there and that it is poison," Kur said.

Man out on bond charged in connection with GHB death

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

An Onekama man charged in connection with the October death of Charlevoix resident David Hewitt is free on bond following his Feb. 8 arraignment.

Marc Anthony Guzikowski was charged with death by poisoning — which may bring life in prison, delivery of Gamma-hydroxybutyrate (GHB) and involuntary manslaughter.

Guzikowski stood mute at the arraignment while a pretrial date was scheduled for Feb. 22 and a $5,000 bond was set. He paid that bond and was let out of jail that day.

Guzikowski was arrested following an investigation into the Oct. 22 death of Hewitt, whose body was found at Nanny's Motel in Charlevoix following a party he attended with several co-workers.

According to an affidavit signed by Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson, during the course of the investigation, officers learned that Guzikowski allegedly supplied Hewitt and another man with GHB while they were at the motel.

Guzikowski allegedly offered Hewitt a drink of GHB which was in a clear liquid form and allegedly referred to it as "a protein drink."

According to an autopsy report, an overdose of GHB was the cause of Hewitt's death.

This was Guzikowski's second arrest on this matter.

Police picked him up in January and charged him with delivery of GHB. However, police discovered an error in the original autopsy report that indicated the level of GHB in Hewitt's body was lower than it actually was.

Another test was conducted whose results showed the GHB in Hewitt's body was high enough to cause death.

While police waited for the results of this second test, the delivery charge against Guzikowski was dismissed "with prejudice."

However, with the new results supporting police findings, Guzikowski was arrested again and charged with more serious offenses of manslaughter and death by poisoning. The original delivery charge was reinstated.

Charlevoix versus the state

The boys' ski team is on its way to the finals

After a day of ups and downs that left both racers and spectators breathless, the Charlevoix boys' ski team accomplished what it set out to do — win a berth in the state championships.

The team grabbed its spot at state by finishing in second place at the class B-C-D Regional meet Feb. 17 at Boyne Mountain. The Rayders entered the regionals as an unranked team, a virtual darkhorse amidst a field of 14 teams, five of which were ranked as state title holders.

"I'm very pleased that the boys are going to the state championships," said Ski Coach Sue Miller. "It will be interesting to see how well they do there. Every one of the boys are capable of skiing better than they did at the regional meet."

Success for the Rayders did not come easy. The team's shining moments of glory were also accompanied by lessons in team spirit.

In order for a team to qualify for the state championships, four out of six skiers must finish each race. The boys accomplished that handily in Giant Slalom, with a first place finish by Troy Smith, followed by Roscoe Serrels at tenth, Steve Pirie in eleventh, Todd Freidinger in twelfth, Brad Long taking fiftieth and Joel Trubilowicz in fifty-fifth place.

After the GS event, the Rayders were in second place, trailing the powerful Petoskey Northmen by a mere four points. They only needed four solid finishes in slalom to take the title.

That was when the situation got dicey.

Freidinger bobbled in his first slalom run, finishing further back in the pack than expected. Pirie turned in a fine performance on his first slalom run. Then came Roscoe Serrels, who had the potential to finish in the top five.

Charlevoix's Roscoe Serrels makes a run down the hill at the regional ski meet Feb. 17. Serrels later showed the crowd what kind of ambition it takes to win. While making a slalom run, Serrels fell and slid through five gates on his face. Even though his face was bleeding and his legs were badly bruised, Serrels fought on. He got up and hiked back up the hill to the spot where he fell and continued his run. This show of strength by Serrels gave the Rayders a needed finish that would send them to the state championship Monday. (Courtesy photo)

Classic car to be raffled off to raise money for hospice

For just $100 a ticket, you can get a chance at winning a running 1930 Model A Ford Sedan being raffled off by the Charlevoix County Hospice.

The car was donated to Charlevoix County Hospice by Eastport resident Reginald Bird. It is reportedly in perfect running condition and has been valued at $7,000.

This year there will be 250 tickets for the raffle available at $100 each. A winner will be chosen at the annual hospice auction June 9 at the Boyne Mountain Convention Center. The winner does not have to be present to win.

Tickets are available at Great Lakes Motor Works and Ace Hardware in Boyne City, Don's IGA in Charlevoix and the hospice office in the East Jordan Family Health Center.

The Charlevoix County Hospice, Inc. is a non-profit group providing volunteer and bereavement care, at no charge, to the terminally ill and their families in Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim counties, as well as materials for community outreach programs since 1983.

Recall hearing set

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A hearing on the school board's appeal of the language on the recall petitions is set for 1 p.m. on March 2 in the 33rd circuit court.

Judge Richard Pajias will render a decision following the oral argument hearing. He has asked the prosecutor's office to file its brief on behalf of the county elections commission by Feb. 28.

The elections commission approved the recall petition language in late January, after hearing from a representative of the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools. That committee is seeking recall of five school board members in a dispute over the board's choice of site for a new high school.

Attorney Scott Beatty had argued against the language on behalf of the board, claiming that the language lacked clarity. He filed an appeal with the circuit court after the elections commission approved the petition language.

City gives final approval to budget Monday night

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

City council approved the city's budget for fiscal year April 1, 2000 through March 31, 2001 at its meeting on Monday, following a public hearing.

The new budget will give an average city residence, with no recent improvements, approximately a 3.6 percent reduction in the city taxes.

The $2,470,300 general fund budget will receive most of its revenue from taxes in the amount of $1,219,600. Its largest expenditure is public safety, health and welfare at $937,200.

"This includes police, fire, parking enforcement, planning department and ambulance," city treasurer Rick Brandt said.

The city tax levy is 12.2719 mills on all real and personal property in the City of Charlevoix for the fiscal year. Of the total mills the city operation will take 8.5 mills and infrastructure will take 3.7719 mills.

The tax levied is a reduction of .64 mills because of the decrease in the general obligation bonds.

Additionally, the city levies a tax not to exceed 1.3631 mills on all real and personal property in the Downtown Development District.

City council also approved rate increases of 3 percent for sewer and 2.5 percent for water rates effective April 1, 2000.

Major budget items include the electric fund at $6,079,612, sewer fund at $1,414,500, the water fund at $1,083,300 and the city hall improvement fund at $1,100,000.

Other budget items of significance are the major street fund at $953,000, the employee fringe benefit fund of $923,100, and the airport fund at $913,900.

"The biggest challenge for this fiscal year will be completing the many major projects, such as Marion Center Road, the electric substation, the airport terminal, Lake Michigan beach and Harbor Industries," Brandt said.

More detailed information may be obtained in the Budget Details document at City Hall or the library. The budget may be viewed on the internet at: www.ci.charlevoix.mi.us.

OPINIONS

Something to cheer about in the school

Just mention the word "schools" in Charlevoix and people will sigh and look to the ground in disappointment.

Residents have been so inundated with negative thoughts over the issue of a new high school site from both sides, that just the word "schools" gives them a dark outlook on the community.

But, last week some good news emerged on the scene.

While we were all arguing over a high school site, students on the ski team got their chance to go to the state finals. Plus, students on the high school basketball team continue winning game after game.

While our pride has lately revolved around the question, "Which side do you support? The school board or the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools?" The student's pride with their school has remained and flourished, culminating in what is shaping up to be another successful season for the sports teams.

These students have shown us once again that in the midst of the stress, mistrust and anger created among adults over where to put a high school, good things are still taking place in our schools.

Charlevoix High School is a place all residents should be proud to have — regardless of where a new one ends up being built. All of the students of this school — not just sports teams — are something for the community to boast about.

Regardless of the natural beauty that makes Charlevoix unique, the achievements of the students in its schools are constantly showing the rest of us where the good in Charlevoix is.

The community as a whole — both school board supporters and non-school board supporters — should come together and support the work of its students, especially as they show the state what Charlevoix really is made of.

Congratulations to the Rayder ski team for your run to the state finals. We at the Charlevoix Courier wish you the best of luck.

Caffeine, popular South American import in detail

Roger Knutson

At a season of the year when a cup of hot coffee in the morning is synonymous with getting up and getting going, it might be worthwhile to consider just what it is we are drinking.

Coffee is one of a number of plants from around the world that produce the alkaloid caffeine. Among the other alkaloids that various plants produce are cocaine from Coca plants, heroin from Opium poppies, nicotine from the tobacco plant and scopolamine from Jimsonweed.

There are hundreds of alkaloids found in different plants. What distinguishes caffeine from many of the other alkaloids is that it is not outlawed as a drug.

Most alkaloids produced by plants are poisonous and the plants produce them partly because they provide a measure of protection from animals that might eat them. Alkaloids are generally bitter and are likely to be avoided by grazing animals. Children usually avoid bitter things, but as adults we learn to enjoy at least some of them.

Humans have been using coffee as a stimulant for at least 1800 years; first in the Arabic countries of the middle east and later all over the world. At present we in America consume on the average about 30 gallons of coffee per person each year, slightly less than the average consumption of beer.

Coffee did not arrive in Europe until the 1600s, but then spread very rapidly until no city in England or France could call itself up-to-date unless it had coffee houses where men — almost always men — congregated, socialized and conducted the business of the time.

All the coffee came from Arabic countries until about 1700 when plantations were established in much of the tropical world, first by the Dutch and later by the English. Most countries in South and Central America, and many of the Caribbean Islands grew and exported coffee and many still do.

One of my sources states J. S. Bach composed a coffee cantata in honor of this precious stimulant. And Bruce Catton says in his history of the Civil War that the war could not have been won without the daily ration of coffee that was provided to every Union soldier.

Caffeine is a perfectly legal, non-addictive drug, but we should not think that it is completely harmless. Caffeine is habituating, which means that as we use it we need more of it to get the same effect.

We can also feel the very mild effects of withdrawal; A heavy coffee or tea drinker — tea has the same alkaloid as coffee — is likely to feel they have a slight cold if they are deprived of their usual fix for a few days. If both are taken in pure form, a lethal dose of caffeine is just about twice the lethal dose for cocaine. Fortunately, caffeine is legal and as a result is imported in the very dilute form of coffee or tea and is added to soft drinks in amounts that produce only mild stimulation and increased heart rate. In the forms usually available it is nearly impossible to consume a lethal dose of caffeine.

Enjoy your morning coffee and your afternoon tea and don't worry as much about the caffeine in soft drinks, remember there are other more dangerous drugs that we can get from Colombia.

Letters to the editor

A recall is democracy in action

Editor:
The query, "What does recall show our children?" deserves an answer.

Hopefully, it shows them that 225 years after the fact, we are nevertheless still descendants of those 1,000 colonials who willingly battled 12,000 Englishmen and Hessians at Philadelphia because they were being unfairly legislated against.

I don't feel "mean-spirited and vindictive." I only want an honest ballot that shows a true majority. The way the previous ballot was written, it was impossible to vote for what you wanted. I had to vote "no" for the new high school I wanted in order not to have it built in Marion Center. I wanted it built in Charlevoix.

Truth, justice, honesty and right are always worth the battle. If the members of the board don't believe that, then they walk a different road than George and Abe and Theodore and Woodrow.

A referendum — or recall — would show our children that they don't live in an oligarchy, they live in a democracy.

Investigation on Lasater is wrong

Editor:

It has come to my attention that Sheriff George Lasater of Charlevoix County is under fire for something like withholding evidence in a case of fraud involving an older couple in the Charlevoix area.

I lived in Charlevoix for over 10 years. This is the most outrageous suggestion I've ever heard of for this individual.

He is the most conscientious public official one could ever hope to find. He is concerned with every person whose path crosses his. He has always been a pillar of the community and the backbone of a positive role model. He is fair and open minded, but doesn't back down when he needs to stand his ground.

One could always approach him with any concern or query without fear of persecution or intimidation. I was fortunate enough to have several conversations with him. He has always been most gracious.

The very thought that he would obstruct justice in any way is laughable. It would seem that an investigative committee would better spend their time looking under a rock that would bear deserved rewards rather than chasing their own tails.

I hope other citizens of Charlevoix County will extend their strong support to this gentle man.

Sturock not being recalled

Editor:

Your article, "Just who is behind this?" appearing in the Feb. 16 edition, intimated in the sidebar that John J. Sturock was one of the individuals being recalled from office. This information is incorrect. Although he was a voting member of the four-man Site Selection Committee that actively worked on the acquisition of the Marion Center/Veenstra roads site for the proposed high school and ultimately recommended the purchase of the property on Sept. 17 1999, he is not facing recall. He is a public employee. Those facing recall are school board president Allen Telgenhof, Barney Way (a.k.a. Mark Allen Way), Dennis Halverson, Ardeth Wieland and Scott Boss (a.k.a. K. Scott Boss).

As a public employee of the school system, Dr. Sturock is under contract and subject to removal only through termination of his contract or dismissal by a majority vote of the Board of Education.

Jeffrey L. Porter, DDS
Charlevoix

(Editor's note: In the opening story to the project in question, we stated, "We have also included a profile of the five Board of Education members sought to be recalled and the school superintendent..." He was grouped in the story with school board members facing a recall because of his position in the school district. At no time in the article did we state that Sturock was facing a recall. We apologize if it was not made clear enough to our readers.)

Money doesn't add up

Editor:

I read, with great interest, the investigative report by B. J. Hettler on the people on both sides of the school site issue. I am in total agreement that understanding the people involved helps to gain clarity on the issues.

One of the facts that struck me about the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools (CPNS) was that the group states that it was formed on Jan. 12 and that they had collected only $235 in donations. This strikes me as a misrepresentation of fact since we know the following to be true:

•CPNS conducted a postcard survey in November 1999 along with a bulk mailing that had to cost at least $500.

•CPNS sent out the "goldenrod" bulk mailing in December 1999 that also cost a minimum of $500.

•On Feb. 9 and on Feb. 17, Robert Mossman, a vocal CPNS member and the person who owns the farm that borders the Marion-Center school site, placed and paid for advertisements in the Charlevoix Courier and Petoskey News-Review that have an estimated cost of $2,500.

Regardless of the official date of organization, the CPNS has been actively working to discredit the Marion-Center school site and to discredit the work done by the school board since the bond issue was passed by voters last October.

They have collected and spent money that greatly exceeds the amount that they declare in this article.

Why would CPNS choose to hide these facts?

Bill Trubilowicz
Charlevoix

(Editor's note: The article in question stated the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools collected $235 "since Jan. 12." The group did not say how much it had raised before it was formally organized on Jan. 12, therefore the $235 total indicated in the article did not reflect what the group spent or raised in the months of November and December.)

Lower movie prices

Editor:

I think the owner of the Charlevoix Cinema 3 should decrease the price of the tickets for a movie. One reason is for a family of five to go to the movies, it costs around $25. If you were to lower the ticket prices, families could go more often. Also, most kids and young teens don't have stable jobs yet and parents don't always like to give them money.

If you were to decrease the price of a ticket then the people who have more money could get more popcorn, candy, pop, etc. That way, you would be making around the same amount of money. Also, you could show more movies to get more people to come. I hope you will take this into consideration and decrease the prices of tickets.

Stop speeders on Belvedere

Editor:

I strongly feel that the law of speeding should be enforced more on Belvedere Avenue. I agree that the speed limit is low enough, but people just violate it. I live on Belvedere Avenue and every day I see people flying by at way over 25 mph. There are not enough speed limit signs on the street and I rarely ever see patrol cars. I think you should put the solar powered sign that reads your speed on Belvedere Avenue sometimes.

The school site: point and counterpoint

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

On Feb. 18 the Charlevoix Courier conducted separate interviews with Richard Tunison representing the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools, and Josh Barnes representing Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way to gather statements from each committee. The following is the result of those interviews.

Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools

Point: The reason for the recall by this committee is because the board didn't exercise good judgment in selecting a site for the new high school, Tunison said. The board did not give the public a chance for its input or to have a question-and-answer session with the board, he said.

Counterpoint: The board and its consultants thoroughly researched and evaluated the site possibilities and chose the best site available, Barnes said.

"The board members were truly comfortable with the decision," he said. "They said 'yes,' it was unanimous and they were under no duress."

Boards can answer factual questions only, Barnes said. "The board answered questions regarding costs," he said. "They tried to answer whatever else they could. I think they did a good job."

Boards do not respond to other types of questions, no governmental unit will, Barnes said. Boards have no right to answer as a whole, but must answer as individuals, he added.

The public is free to call individual board members with questions or concerns, Barnes said.

Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools

Point: We don't have an alternative site, but there are alternative sites. We don't have a favorite site, but most people like the current site, Tunison said.

Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way

Counterpoint: "Where is this mystical in-town site they keep talking about?" Barnes asked. The current high school site cannot be used for a new high school because the election ballot language calls for renovation of the current high school into a middle school. The current site is not large enough for two schools. In addition, the current high school cannot be demolished because that was not a part of the bond language on the election ballot, he said.

"The die is cast," Barnes said. "I'm not saying they can't go to Congress and get Bill Clinton to sign special legislation. But these bonds are sold and that cannot be changed. People have a right to rely on what they voted for."

Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools

Point: We would set up a committee of five people of the board's choice and five people from the community. These citizens would not choose a site, but would recommend a site, Tunison said.

Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way

Counterpoint: "Do you really want the public in site selection?" Barnes asked. The general public is not qualified to evaluate and decide on a site or what to do about a sewer, he said. The board's site selection committee did the research and consulted the experts to make its decision.

Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools

Point: "A lot of people did not know where the Marion Center site was when they voted," Tunison said. He added he did not see the posted map and sign showing the site when he was at the voting booth.

"Putting a small sign up on the back of a door is not disclosure — a public hearing is disclosure," he said.

Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way

Counterpoint: The (pro-board) committee has not heard from anyone who didn't know where the site was when they voted, Barnes said.

The sign showing the location, with a model of the new high school, was approximately two feet by three feet in size, he said. It was placed directly in front of people entering the voting location, Barnes added.

Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools

Point: The committee has no one in mind to run for the board if there is a recall and board members are ousted, Tunison said.

Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way

Counterpoint: "If Porter runs, I'll run against him," Barnes said.

Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools

Point: The board did not disclose the terms of the deed for the Marion Center Road site. One of those terms was that the school board would not object to an 80-home development nearby.

That development would be able to tap-in to the sewer that the school district paid for, Tunison said.

Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way

Counterpoint: If the school district pays the entire cost of the sewer line, everyone along the line will pay a proportionate tap-in fee, a major portion of which goes to the school district, Barnes said.

The school district is not obligated to put the sewer in, he said. The language states that the school district won't object to an easement so a pipe can connect to the new sewer. The sewer will not increase taxes because it's included in the bond budget, he added.

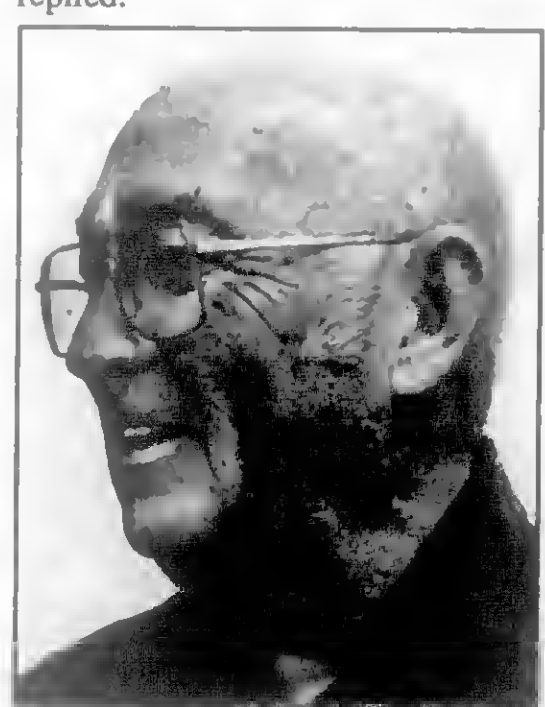

Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools

Point: The committee states that it obtained nearly the number of required signatures for the recall petitions in about four weeks.

"The board has this notion that we're a disgruntled minority and we're not," Tunison said.

Charlevoix Citizens for the American Way

Counterpoint: "They lost the election..." Barnes replied.

Josh Barnes argues the best school site has already been chosen. It is Marion Center. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

Richard Tunison believes a referendum on the school site should be called. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

Engagement

Gibbard — Reed

Renee Elizabeth Gibbard and Jason Christopher Reed, both of Bellaire, recently announced their engagement to be married.

Gibbard is the daughter of Marc and Donna Cross of Charlevoix and Ed and Mitzi Gibbard of Traverse City. Reed is the son of Phillip and Christine Reed of Bellaire.

The couple are planning a wedding on Sept. 30, 2000 at Christ The King Catholic Church in Acme. An evening reception will follow at Shanty Creek Resort in Bellaire.

Gibbard is a 1993 Charlevoix High School graduate. She received an associate's degree in travel/tourism management from Johnson and Wales University in Charleston, S.C. She is currently in her fifth year of employment at Shanty Creek Resort, where she is a group services manager and conference coordinator.

Reed is a 1988 graduate of Kalkaska High School. He received a bachelor's degree in art from Alma College. He is currently the vice president of Reed's Services, a home restoration and building company in Bellaire.

Oh boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments of Charlevoix area people.

North Central Michigan College recently released the names of area students on its Dean's and President's lists. Students named to the President's List are full-time students who have earned a 4.0 grade point average for the semester.

The Dean's List includes full-time students who have earned a 3.50 to 3.99 GPA.

Laurie Jean Cornett of Charlevoix has been named to the President's List. Charlevoix students on the Dean's List are: Jessica Carroll, Jonathan Ryan Ellis, Patrick Edward Koby, Laura Nichole Maltese, Jonathan Michael Purdy, Debra C. Robinson, Carl Kenneth Schoenheit, Christine Ann Sweeney and Sarah Marie Vanloo.

DON'T LET ONE NEIGHBOR'S BIG MONEY CLOUD YOUR JUDGMENT

Dr. Robert Mossman has purchased over $3,000 in ads in the Charlevoix Courier and Petoskey News-Review to encourage you to recall the Charlevoix School Board.

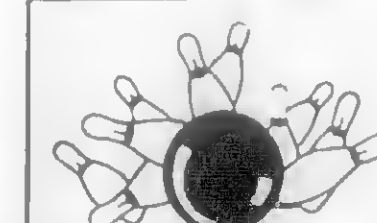

Did you ever wonder why Dr. Mossman is so concerned? He wants a new site for Charlevoix High School he says. One that is closer to town.

Dr. Mossman's property is next door to the school's Marion Center Road location. That is the one and only reason he is opposed to the site and throwing his personal fortune behind the recall effort.

If he cares so much about the school system, WHY DIDN'T HE AND HIS WIFE REGISTER AND VOTE IN THE OCTOBER 11 SCHOOL ELECTION??? The county's records indicate that Dr. and Mrs. Mossman weren't even registered to vote on this issue they now care so deeply about. Don't let big money cloud your judgment.

Frenchie Novotny Holm

Frenchie Novotny Holm, 82, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 8 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. A funeral was given Feb. 12 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated and burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Frenchie Novotny Holm

Frenchie was born May 3, 1917 in Leetsville, the daughter of Willard and Anna Martha (Schmidt) Calvin. She attended school in Mancelona. In 1933 she came to Charlevoix to work for Frances Durance. She worked eight years for Lewis and Gertrude Brant at their grocery store. Frenchie and her husband Chuck Novotny bought the store from the Brants and later sold it to Bud Russell who then sold it to Andy Esenbourg, who named the store, "Andy's." Frenchie later worked at Andy's and retired from Staley's grocery in 1982.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix, VFW Auxiliary #1153 and the Charlevoix Historical Society. She worked on many campaigns for the Charlevoix County Republican Party and served on the board of directors of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful for the Petunias. She was also very instrumental in the founding of the Bergmann Center in Charlevoix.

Frenchie loved to crochet. She had a wonderful wit about her and had a wealth of friends. Frenchie was great lady and will be sadly missed.

She is survived by her three daughters, Charlene M. Novotny of Charlevoix, Toni and her husband Bernie DeVries of Charlevoix and Darlene Ann Novotny of East Jordan; grandsons, Jeffrey J. DeVries of New Port Beach, Calif., Chadwick W. DeVries of Scottsdale, Ariz. and James William Gaskin of Neenah, Wis.; a brother, Giles Calvin of Muskegon; special friends, Lindy, Scott, Christian and Libby Groves; Sandy, David and Niki Heintz; Connie Maxfield and Bill and Sandy Maxfield. She was preceded in death by three husbands, Charles Novotny, Fred O'Neil and Louis Holm.

The family has requested that memorial contributions be directed to Grandview Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Robert James Ramsey

Robert James Ramsey, age 78, a 12-year resident of Charlevoix and formerly from Romeo, died Feb. 13 at the Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Complex in Charlevoix.

Mr. Ramsey was born June 9, 1921 in Romeo, the son of Hosea and Nellie (Miller) Ramsey. He married the former Susan Moran at the Romeo Congregational Church on Sept. 17, 1948 and she preceded him in death in July of 1979.

After his marriage, along with his wife, they owned and operated a gas station in Marlette. He then worked for MoPar in Detroit for a few years, then he went into meat cutting, first at the A&P in Romeo and then, until his retirement, at Alward Market in Romeo. After he retired, he moved to Charlevoix, where he helped his sons in the grocery/party store that they owned.

He served in the Marines during World War II and his hobby was driving his car to see all the sights of wherever he lived.

Mr. Ramsey is survived by two

F. Carl Schumacher

F. Carl Schumacher, 88, of Charlevoix died Feb. 13.

Mr. Schumacher was married to the late Althea Hickey Schumacher.

He was the father of Nancy S. Dennis of Corvallis, Ore. and F. Carl Schumacher Jr. of St. Louis. He was also the grandfather of; Irene Allen, Michael S. Dennis, Andrew C. Dennis and John Schumacher.

Mr. Schumacher was a graduate of Washington University in St. Louis in 1932. He also received an honorary Doctor of Law Degree from Westminster College in Fulton, Mo. Mr. Schumacher also served in the U.S. Navy as a lieutenant commander during World War II.

He was a founding member of Ladue Chapel and formerly served as the president of the Board of Deacons, Ruling Elder and Clerk of Session and president of the Board of Trustees.

He spent his entire life in the insurance business in St. Louis. Mr. Schumacher worked at the Mercantile Insurance Agency; served as president and chairman of the board of Hickey-Mitchell Company (1966-1979) National Bonding Insurance Company (1967-1982), past director of National Liberty Corporation (Philadelphia), Nationwide Corporation (Columbus, Ohio), Pacific Life Insurance Company (San Francisco), Commerce Bank of St. Louis.

He was formerly an Alderman in the City of Clayton (1956-1960) and active in numerous organizations in the St. Louis area, including the Girls Home (now Edgewood Children's Center), St. Louis Country Day School, St. Luke's Hospital, Child Guidance and Evaluation Clinic, Family and Children's Service Agency, Health and Welfare Council and the St. Louis Council on Alcoholism (past president).

He served as chairman of the Board of Trustees of Westminster College in Fulton, Mo. and the Winston Churchill Memorial, also located in Fulton.

He maintained a home in Charlevoix, where he was a past president of both the Belvedere Golf Club and the Belvedere Club. He was also a former member of the Bogey Club, Bellerive Country Club (past president) and the St. Louis Country Club.

There was a memorial service at 11 a.m. Feb. 19 at Ladue Chapel. Memorial contributions may be made to Charlevoix Hospital, Lake Shore Drive, Charlevoix, MI 49720-9981.

Nuclear medicine available at Charlevoix Area Hospital

Charlevoix Area Hospital opened a new department this month that helps save lives.

Nuclear Medicine is the newest service available to patients at the hospital. Nuclear Medicine provides accurate images that help health-care professionals study organs and tissues. It also provides valuable information about how organs and tissues work and it is used in diagnosing several diseases and disorders.

"Nuclear Medicine is the injection or ingestion of low-level radioactive isotopes — about the same level of radiation as a chest X-ray — for diagnostic imaging of various things," said Michelle Potter, Nuclear Medicine technologist at the hospital.

"It can diagnose coronary artery disease and damage to the heart muscle after a heart attack; bone scans for cancers and staging of cancers and bone fractures and infections; gall bladder disease and lung scans."

Potter recently joined the hospital to work in the new department. She brings with her 13 years of experience in Nuclear Medicine. Prior to working at Charlevoix Area Hospital, she was at St. Mary's Hospital in Grand Rapids in their Nuclear Medicine department. She earned her degree in Nuclear Medicine from Ferris State University. In 1997, she became certified in bone densitometry.

With the new department now open and serving patients, Potter expects to be performing between five and seven scans a day. The majority of the procedures are myocardial perfusions, bone scans, thyroid scans and scans of the gall bladder.

The scans are then read by radiologist Dr. Carl Harlan.

Patients should be assured that Nuclear Medicine, while it sounds scary, is a safe and effective form of diagnostic and therapeutic medicine. Only tiny amounts of short-lived radioactive material are used. Most isotopes used lose their radioactivity very quickly, usually within hours, and are passed out of the body within 24 hours.

Nuclear Medicine also can help detect a wide variety of cancer, heart disease, arthritis and infection. The sooner problems are found, the better the chances for successful treatment or cure.

The procedure used in Nuclear Medicine basically has five steps:

- The patient receives a radioactive material, called an isotope, by injection, IV, capsule, liquid or inhalation.

- The isotope travels to the target organ or tissue. Different isotopes are matched with different compounds that go to specific organs and tissues.

- The isotope gives off gamma rays — a form of radiation that can be seen only with special equipment.

- Special equipment provides images and readings of target organs and tissues. The equipment does not give off any radiation. Images may be taken with various types of equipment, including: stationary gamma cameras, single photon emission computed tomography or rotating gamma cameras.

- The images and readings are studied by a radiologist and the patient's physician.

For more information about Charlevoix Area Hospital's new Nuclear Medicine department, call Michelle Potter in Imaging at 547-8672 or visit the hospital's web site at www.cah.org.

Business brief

Sumner celebrates 30 years at plant

After 30 years of service to Hoskins Manufacturing Company, Judy Sumner has no plans on leaving the job she loves.

Hoskins Manufacturing recently honored Sumner for her longtime service to the company that began in 1969.

The entire plant serenaded her with a song, while accompanied by co-worker Gene Farkas on the accordion, and Plant Manager Norm Batchelder presented Judy with a dozen long stemmed roses, a gift and a coke in her honor.

Sumner is now looking forward to completing 40 years of service before retiring when she is 65 years old.

Sumner was born and raised in Charlevoix. She graduated from high school in 1968 and started working at Hoskins soon after.

Charlevoix boys' ski team in line for state championship

But, during his run, Serrels took a wicked fall, sliding head first through five gates and coming to a rest face down. His chin bleeding and legs badly bruised, Serrels got up and proceeded to hike uphill to the place where he fell in order to finish the race.

While it is typical to hear spectators cheer wildly for a racer going downhill, in this case, the crowd was cheering and clanging cowbells while Serrels hiked uphill.

In a matter of minutes, Charlevoix skier Brad Long came tearing through the same slalom course, hooked a ski tip and lost a ski. He was out of the race, disqualified.

Charlevoix suddenly wasn't looking so good.

Ten seconds later, Troy Smith embarked on his second run of the slalom race. All he had to do was complete the race in the top 10 to give the Rayders the solid finish they needed to go to the state championships.

But, Smith was late for a gate near the top of the course and chose to ski out of the course, intentionally disqualifying himself. After his run, Smith also incurred five penalty points against the Rayders for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Freidinger, Pirie and Serrels maintained their composure and completed outstanding second runs in the slalom event.

The race came down to Charlevoix's last skier, Shawn MacMillan, who couldn't afford to make a single mistake in his last slalom run.

He didn't. While his time wasn't among the top contenders, MacMillan's performance gave the boys' team the fourth-skier finisher in the slalom event that they needed.

With impressive performances by Petoskey, Iron Mountain, Harbor Springs and Gaylord, it was anyone's guess if Charlevoix would even finish among the top three teams.

However, with Charlevoix's second place finish in GS and a sixth place finish in slalom, this gave the team an overall finish in second place.

"We didn't have enough strong finishes in slalom," said Miller. "In these big meets, it always comes down to your third and fourth seed skiers."

Overall, a mere 10 points separated the fourth place team and the second place team. Charlevoix finished with 158 points, behind first place Petoskey with 48.5 points. Iron Mountain finished third with 167 points and Harbor Springs was in fourth place with 168.5 points.

Freidinger took seventh in slalom, followed by Pirie in ninth, MacMillan in fortieth and Serrels in sixty-third. Long and Smith were disqualified in the slalom.

The state championships will be hosted at Nub's Nob Monday.

Tough competition takes girls' team out of running

The Charlevoix girls' ski team lacked the depth needed to take them to the state championships, but they still skied a fine race at the regional meet, finishing sixth in slalom and seventh in Giant Slalom out of 14 teams.

But, senior Tiffany Fisher will be going to the state meet after qualifying as an individual with a fifth place finish in GS and a sixth place finish in slalom. Fisher has gone to the state championships all four years of her high school career.

"I'm very, very pleased with the girls," said Coach Sue Miller. "They skied very steadily, very consistently, but there was extremely tough competition at the meet."

Sophomore Lexi Wilson finished seventeenth in slalom and eighteenth in GS, not quite good enough to get her to the state championships. Other finishes for the Rayder girls were: Kristen Brendtro, thirty-seventh in slalom, fortieth in GS; Alisha Johnson, forty-first in slalom and tied for forty-first in GS; Kristy Shindorf, fifty-fourth in GS, she disqualified in slalom; and Lindsey Carland, sixty-third in slalom and sixtieth in GS.

Area girls' teams definitely dominated the regional meet, with Harbor Springs girls taking first place, followed by Boyne City in second and Petoskey in third.

It is the first time for the Boyne City girls' team to ever qualify for the state championships. They were led by strong performances from Andrea and Meghann Gerling. Andrea was the double champion, finishing first in GS and slalom, while Meghann captured fourth in slalom and seventh in GS.

The Rayders' Lexi Wilson makes a turn in her run at the regional meet Feb. 17. Wilson finished seventeenth in the slalom and eighteenth in the Giant Slalom. This was not enough to send her to the state championships. The girls' ski team will be sitting this year's championships out. (Courtesy photo)

Manker strives to give his players a passion for soccer

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix Soccer Coach Hagen B. Manker doesn't just teach his players about the fundamentals of soccer, he shares his passion for the sport and his love of coaching.

"If I can take something that was such a big part of my life and give that to the kids, maybe they can have as much fun as I did," he said. Manker added that is also the way he feels about sports in general and stresses to his players the importance of athletics.

"You have to pay attention to your physical being as well as your intellectual being," he said.

Manker, who has coached soccer in Charlevoix for about 20 years, was recently honored for his skill and passion by being inducted into the Wabash College Athletic Hall of Fame.

In its reasoning for inducting Manker into the hall of fame, college officials said Manker's leadership as captain of the college's soccer team when he was a student in the early 1970s, helped the team overcome its record of one win in four seasons to a season with an 8-3 record.

"It was humbling and exciting. I'm only the second soccer player that was inducted into the hall of fame," he said. "The hall of fame is reserved for people who have done some pretty significant accomplishments, at the time I didn't think it was anything particularly significant in the history of Wabash College."

Manker's love of soccer began at an early age when his father's job with the State Department forced the family to live in various locations overseas. At one point, Manker lived just down the block from a soccer stadium in Spain.

"Soccer is everything in Spain. So I played there. That is all a kid does in just about every other country than the United States," he said. Upon returning to the states, Manker's father took a job teaching Spanish at Wabash College and Manker soon enrolled as a student there, joined the soccer team and soon became captain.

He reasoned soccer isn't as big in the United States as it is in these other countries, because there are so many other sports kids can take part in, such as basketball, football and baseball. Plus, if they are good at these sports, kids have seen that they can be a success story and make money, he added.

But, this doesn't discourage Manker.

"Soccer is getting that way, especially women's cup soccer," he said.

In order for soccer to be introduced to more children, Manker said, "One of the problems I see with soccer is you don't get that democratic blue collar work ethic."

Because of this, he said the United States has not fielded a superstar soccer player.

"But we are getting better..." he said. So, Manker positions himself at the forefront of the struggle to produce a good United States soccer player by coaching Charlevoix children each spring.

And to give his players more information about soccer, he recently completed an Advanced National Diploma Course for coaching at Nova Southwestern University in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The program brings soccer coaches across the country and world together for 50 hours of lessons on how to train players.

But, the creation of a great soccer player is not the primary reason Manker coaches Charlevoix children. For Manker, coaching his players is the best entertainment around.

"I have fun with the kids. They crack me up. I look forward to each new season," he said.

Charlevoix's soccer season starts in April. This first game for girls soccer is scheduled for April 13 against East Jordan.

Rayders beat Elk Rapids Friday in 73-31 trouncing

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix varsity basketball team just keeps on winning.

The team's latest occurred Friday when it dominated Elk Rapids at home in a 73-31 win.

"They (Elk Rapids) are struggling this year," said Rayders Coach Keith Haske. The Elk Rapids team has not won a game this season.

Added to the fact the team is win-less this year, was the Rayders were playing a great game Friday and had four players score 10 points or more.

"Everybody seemed to play together pretty well," Haske said.

Leaders for the game were: Adam Wood with 12 points, Shay Hutchinson with 11 points, Sean Stockman with 11 points, Scott Parrish with 10 points and 11 rebounds, Andy Granath with nine points and Russ Ward with eight points and 6 assists.

While this may have been an easy win for the Rayders, the team will be facing some tough competition in the next few games.

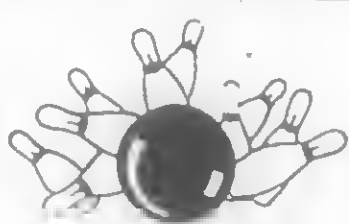

The Rayders will face Boyne City Friday and league-leading Kalkaska Tuesday.

Haske said he will be concentrating on getting the Rayders' defensive game consistent before Friday's game.

He pointed out while Charlevoix did beat Boyne City the first time the two teams met, Boyne has been playing better and seems to have picked up its game. To stop them, Charlevoix will really have to keep a hold on Boyne's inside shooting and bring up its defensive skills.

"I think if we get the defense ironed out and get everybody on the same page, we'll do fine," Haske said.

"The kids have been working hard. We are excited and we have some big games coming."

Another year goes by. First, a new baby, and now, not only a new year, but a new century has come along. Christopher and Cassidy are growing and changing so quickly it seems. Life is happy and busy for us, but we will never lose sight of where we have been. Each day we miss you and ask God to watch over you. We thank Him for our blessings which include your love, courage and inspiration. Even after six years, you continue to be a special part of us and we know you are with us. You will be alive in our hearts forever.

We will always love you.

Students to perform 'Ragged Child' play

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Department presents The Ragged Child, a musical, in the gym at 7 p.m. Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Connie Ford directs the musical written by Jeremy James Taylor and Frank Whitley.

It is set in London in the 1850s. It portrays the plight of the poor and destitute, mirrored in the tragic lives of Joe Cooper (Chris Meredith) and his sister Annie (Emily Stover).

Lord Shaftsbury (Tyler Lieberman) fights for the education of the ignorant and illiterate poor in the House of Lords.

The "Ragged Schools" are founded with Lord Shaftsbury as president, but it is too late for Joe and Annie.

Based on an important chapter in social history, The Ragged Child is a stark and moving account of child deprivation.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Prices are $3 for students and seniors and $5 for adults.

Keeping an icy watch

The lighthouse at the end of the pier in Charlevoix was once again covered in its winter blanket of ice last week as it looks out over a frozen Lake Michigan. This week's warm temperatures will probably change the scene. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

Keep a healthy heart this winter

If you're like most women, you're pretty relaxed about heart disease.

You might worry that the men in your life could get it, but not you. Everyone knows it's only a man's disease. The trouble is, everyone is wrong.

Heart disease and stroke are women's biggest health threat. Heart disease is number one killer, stroke is number three killer and leading cause of serious, long-term disability. Cardiovascular diseases kill more women than the next 16 causes of death combined and nearly twice as many as all forms of cancer.

How women can take charge of their heart health: stop smoking, control blood pressure and cholesterol levels, maintain a healthy weight: be physically active & eat low-fat, reduced-calorie foods, control diabetes, discuss their risks with their doctor at regular check-ups.

For additional information contact your Health Care Provider.

$200,000 donated to hospital from tribe

The Tribal Council of the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians approved a grant of $200,000 to Charlevoix Area Hospital to expand the Emergency Department.

As part of the grant application requirements, the hospital needed the support of a local branch of government. The hospital turned to the Charlevoix County Commissioners. The county commissioners fully endorsed the hospital's grant application, and the band allocated the funds to the hospital.

County commissioners were thanked in person at their regular meeting Feb. 10 by Kathy Johnson, Director of Development and Volunteer Services for Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The not-for-profit hospital plans to expand the Emergency Department this year as part of a $6 million hospital expansion project. The expansion will increase emergency room patient rooms from two to eight, provide two large trauma units and add a family waiting room in the Emergency Department. To ensure that patients receive the fastest possible care and life saving opportunities, a helicopter pad above the emergency department and drive-through emergency vehicle bay are also planned.

The hospital also is planning to expand the Obstetrics Department, and to relocate and renovate the Intensive Care Unit. Charlevoix Area Hospital opened the first single-room birthing center in Northern Michigan in 1994 with four LDRP (labor, deliver, recover and post-partum) rooms. Plans include doubling the number of rooms. The ICU would be moved closer to the medical/surgical nurses station and expanded, and would include a family waiting room. Other improvements also would be made to the hospital during the construction of these three major projects, including adding more conference rooms and office spaces, something that currently is a challenge for staff to work without.

Vote delayed on college's annexation of Charlevoix

North Central Michigan College will delay asking voters to approve joining Charlevoix county to its college district. An election was planned for May 16.

"We need more time to communicate all the benefits of joining the North Central Michigan College district," college president Robert Graham said.

"That's where we will be focusing our energy. We want to make sure everyone has all the information they need to make an informed decision before we get into an election."

The college will work with its Charlevoix county citizen's advisory group to plan for a future election. A new election date will be set after further market research and input from county residents, Graham said.

The election will include two ballot proposals. The first will ask if Charlevoix county should be annexed to the college district.

The second proposal will ask for approval to levy a maximum of 2.5416 mills in property taxes for college operations, building and renovations. Emmet county residents pay the same amount. By law all residents of a community college district pay the same amount in property taxes to the college.

North Central Michigan College plans to expand programs and services. It has already added 10 new associate degree programs within the past three years.

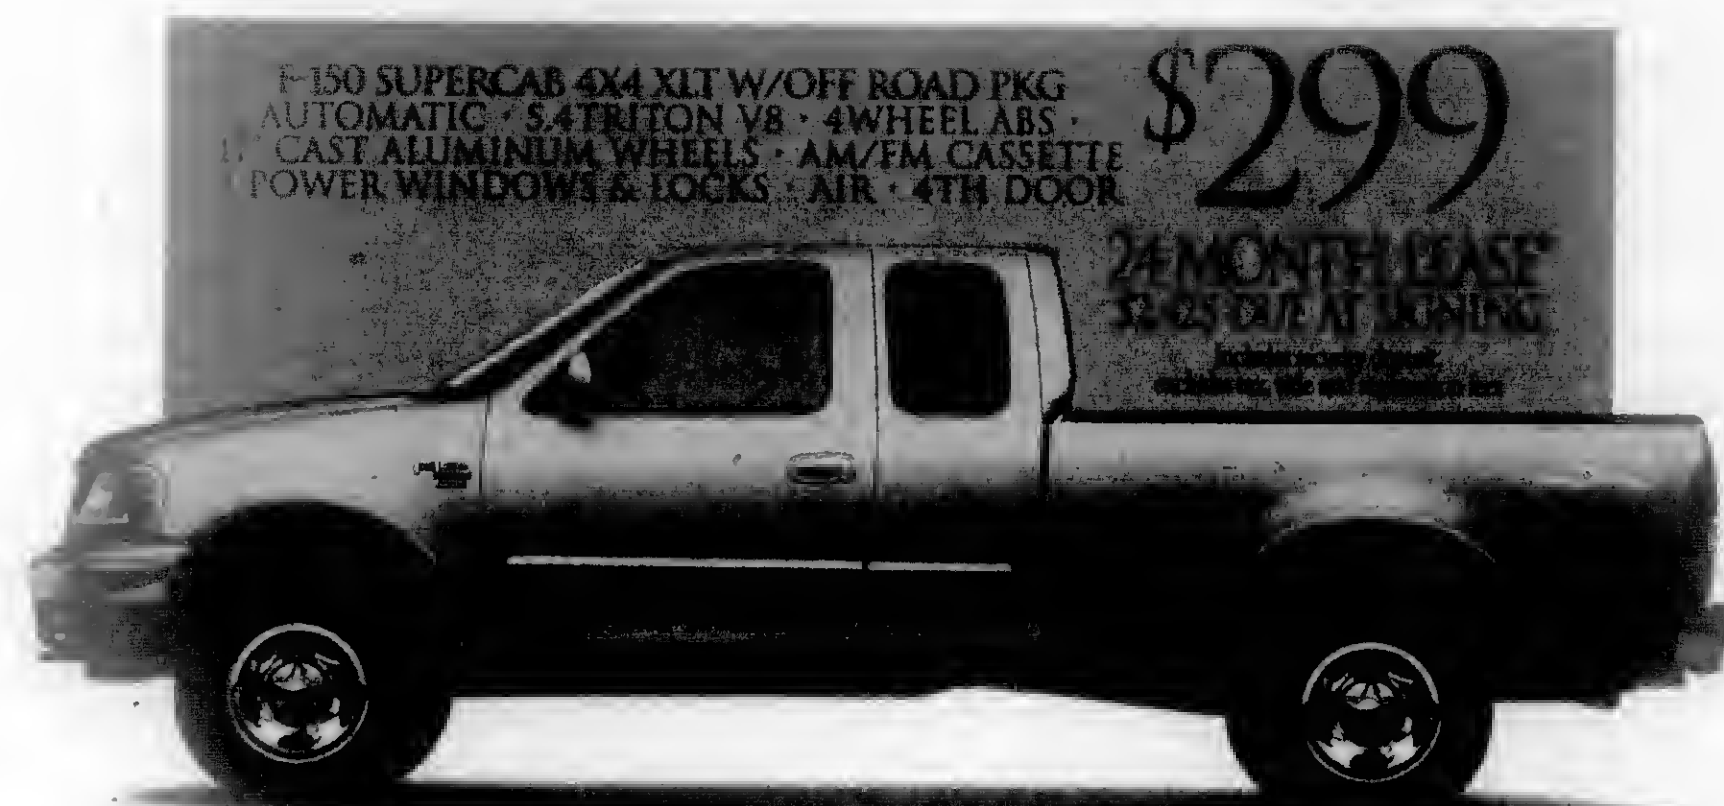

The college is working with several four-year colleges and universities to develop a university center to offer a wide variety of bachelor's and master's degree programs.

Charlevoix Kiwanis start new service club

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club is sponsoring a new community service club known as the Aktion Club.

The Aktion Club is a group of adult citizens who are mentally and physically challenged. It works in cooperation with the Bergmann Center.

The purpose of the club is to help its members develop initiative and leadership, to provide experience in living and working together, to serve the community and to prepare for useful citizenship.

Members strive to return to their community the benefits, help and caring that they have received, while at the same time developing living and working skills.

The Aktion Club meets from 11:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. the first and third Monday of each month at the Charlevoix Senior Center.

SCRAPBOOK

HILLS ROCKED AND GROANED

Skating Tournament an Event That Will Long Be Remembered

At one o'clock, fifty of the high school students equally divided between the stronger and fairer sex and accompanied by their ever ready and watchful instructors, "hiked" for the hills. With a northwester coming across Michigan at "forty per" and a storm well underway that put all other weather out of sight, these half a hundred fought their way. Determination does lots when it is put into operation outside a red brick building.

An hour saw the party on the east slope of McSaubia with fifty pairs of skies and several toboggans. For two hours the hills rocked and groaned with the howls of multitude. Every body fell and limped and groaned. Even the faculty took some long to be remembered drops and slides. There would be very little real sport about the whole affair if a few didn't do a few new stunts. Three hours saw the entire crowd "digging in" to one of the finest suppers that could be put together by human hands. Another hour and the gaping vitals were appeased. The band hall was the scene of the next festivities. At a reasonable hour everyone made for home satisfied that they had a most pleasant day. Everybody said, "exams" come next week so here goes for a "finisher" before the death.

One very glorious fact about the whole afternoon of play was that not one person was injured, however so slightly. Again, not one person went hungry, and again, there wasn't a disagreement during the day. Everything went as had been planned and all were happy.

(Editor's note: This story originally appeared in the Jan. 27, 1915 edition of the Charlevoix Courier. The story and photo were submitted by Cynthia Postmus of the Charlevoix Historical Society.)

County planning chair honored

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

It's been 33 years since Tom Wieland was appointed chairman of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission and he sees the county facing the same challenges today as it did in the late 1960s.

"It's more of the same," Wieland said. The biggest challenge is land use, as it was years ago, except now growth is faster and more intense.

Wieland received an award for

"If you hang around long enough, they either boot you out or give you an award."

longevity on the planning commission from the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments on February 18. The first annual regional planning awards were presented in Traverse City to individuals and organizations throughout the Northwest Michigan region.

The council of governments hosts a committee of county planners from its 10-county region who meet to coordinate efforts, pursue common interests and share successful practices. It was this group that selected this year's award winners.

"We wanted to begin recognizing some of the great planning that is taking place in our counties, and some of the wonderful people that dedicate their time and expertise," Don Smith said. Smith is the chairman of the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments and a Charlevoix county commissioner.

Two new committees formed in recall effort

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Two committees have been formed by a local resident to support the recall of five Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education members.

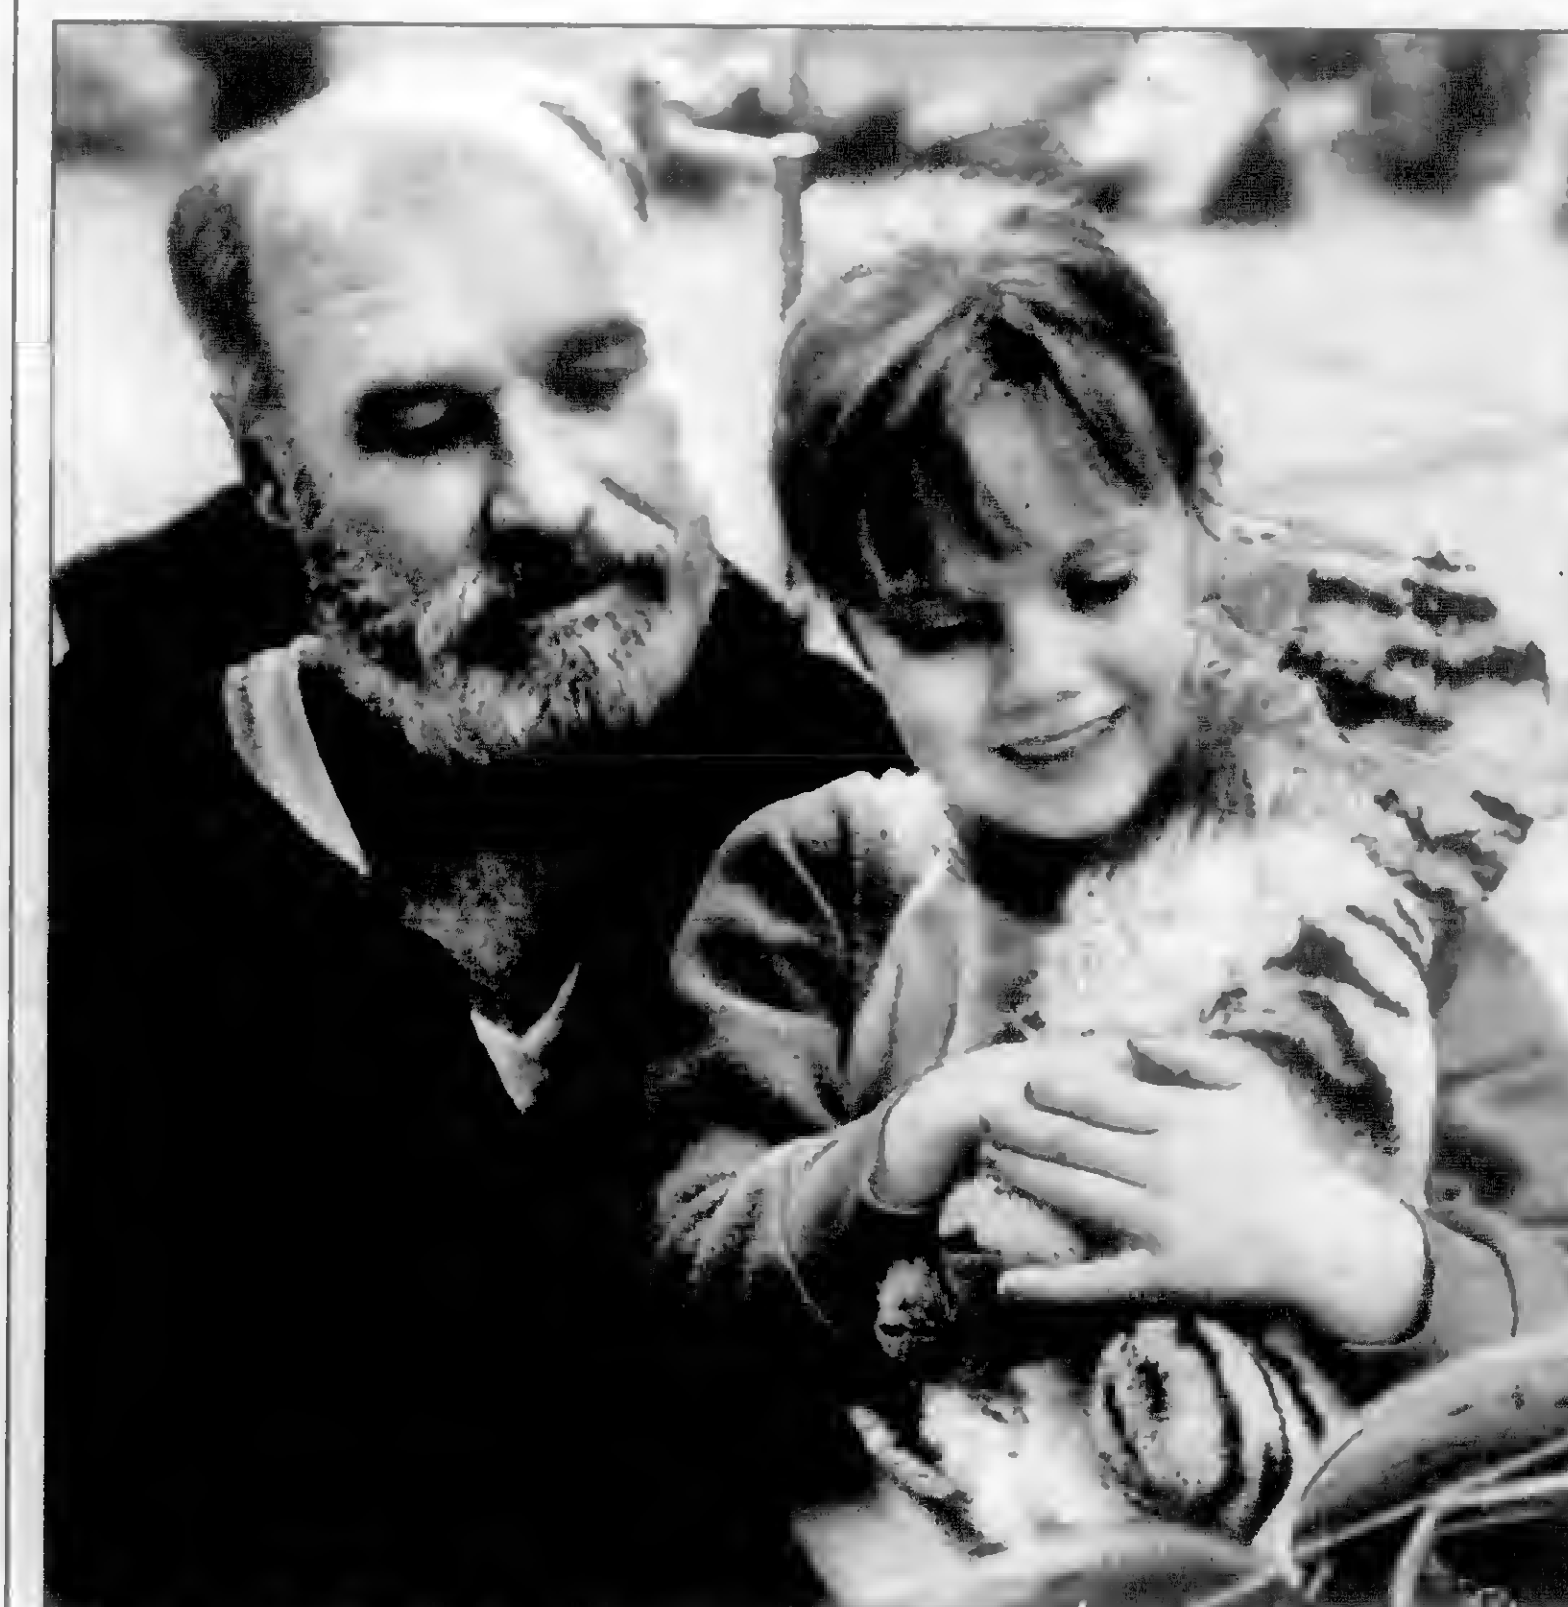

Robert G. Mossman said he formed the Committee for Supporting Neighborhood Schools on Feb. 9 and The Committee for Supporting Neighborhood Schools on Feb. 17, and filed both committees with the county clerk on Feb. 18.

The first committee was formed to give a voice to the neighbors on or near Marion Center Road who oppose the 74-acre site on Marion Center Road chosen by the school board as the site of the new high school, Mossman said. The second committee was formed for the same reason and also to conduct educational and public relations campaigns for that goal, he said.

"Many Marion Center Township people feel strongly about the error of the site," Mossman said. "I've filed on my own initiative, but I have the support of many other people."

Mossman added his committees have the same goals as the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools — to reject the Marion Center site and to recall the board members who voted for that site.

Petitions for recall filed with county

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Signed recall petitions to recall school board members were filed on Feb. 22 with the county clerk's office. The petitions are being forwarded to the cities and townships where board members reside for signature verification.

The cities and townships have 15 days to verify the signatures. The petitions are then returned to the county clerk and the board members have eight days to review them.

The county clerk will set a recall election if the recall proceeds.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools is conducting the recall drive. It is seeking recall of Allen Telgenhof, Ardeth Wieland, Scott Boss, Barney Way and Dennis Halverson. The committee is against the Marion Center Road site chosen by the board for a new high school.

At least 891 signatures were required for each board member. The committee reports that it obtained more than 1,000 signatures each.

An appeal by the board members of the petition language will be heard at 1 p.m. on Thursday in the courtroom of Judge Richard Pajtas, 33rd Circuit Court.

State contract approved for Marion Center Road project

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

City council approved a contract on Feb. 21 with the Michigan Department of Transportation that designates who pays what on the $336,000 Marion Center Road extension project.

The city will pay $152,000 and state and federal funds will cover the balance of $184,000.

The state is receiving bids in early March, and construction may begin as early as March or April.

The Marion Center Road extension will run between Stover Road and U.S. 31. Stover Road will no longer exit onto M-66. A temporary U.S. 31 section from the corner of M-66 to just beyond the airport will be constructed for use while the area is under construction. The project will include a new airport road farther south of its present location.

Historical Society receives $10,000 grant from tribe

The historical society was granted $10,000 by the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians for repair of the train depot roof. The depot is used for special events and exhibits.

The check was received in February and historical society president Mike Bergeon said it is greatly appreciated.

"We were pleasantly surprised," Bergeon said. He was notified in January of the grant and began lining up a roofing company to do the work. "We're planning to get started as soon as the weather allows it," he said.

The roof has leaked for some time. The shingles need to be replaced and the chimneys repaired. Bergeon also hopes to replace a dormer that has been missing for many years. The restoration work will be as authentic as possible, he said.

The entire cost of the project is $40,000.

Enjoying a bit of spring

Janet Troppman of Charlevoix and co-worker DeWayne McCave of Kalkaska took advantage of the spring-like weather early this week to get outside for some fresh air in Charlevoix during a lunch-time break. Warm temperatures in Charlevoix melted most of the snow and relieved some of the cabin fever area residents were suffering. Many people could be seen outside walking, jogging or just playing in the sun. (Photo by Jeremy McBain)

OPINIONS

Trying new things always takes a lot of work

Jeremy
McBain

There is one thing in this world that is a constant — change.

Everything at one time or another will undergo some sort of change. This change can be a large, grandiose type of change or small, almost unnoticeable changes.

In keeping with the spirit of change, readers of the Charlevoix Courier will see — and may have already noticed — a few minor and major changes taking place. These changes will be as small as the way we tell you who wrote what story, to as big as the addition of new sections to the newspaper.

Some of these changes will be successful and some of these changes will not.

Many of you might have noticed the changes we have done to the layout of the front page and the editorial page. This column is also the result of change and trying new things.

Most of the time the editorial page will contain a short editorial written by me, a column by one of our contributing writers and the letters to the editor. However, to mix things up a little, I am going to try and write a column once a month for this editorial page, instead of the usual short editorials I write.

In these columns I will expand on some of my editorials, unload my latest gripe, tell the readers a piece of little known news or just try and make my readers laugh. The bottom line to this column is, it is meant to be fun to write and hopefully fun to read.

Let's be frank. Yes, I am the new editor, yes, I am from a different town and yes, I am young. Each of these facts has been thrown into my face by some people in Charlevoix as if they are some past criminal convictions.

I don't look at my experience that way and I hope a majority of my readers don't either. Being young and new, I want to bring freshness and excitement to the Courier. I want to bring new ideas and new ways of presenting information to readers of this paper.

To get this, I am not afraid to try new things and I hope you are not afraid to see them.

Each new item you have seen and will see in the Courier has been planned and thought out, but the only way we can find out if our new ideas will actually work is to try them. If something works, it will stay. If it doesn't, well, we will get rid of it faster than a politician trying to cover up a drunk driving conviction.

In order to understand the impact of these changes on the readers, I will need input from you. Feel free to give me a call, send me a letter or write me an e-mail on what you think of the new items you see in the Courier.

Also, don't be afraid to let me know what you think the Courier needs more of. If we are missing some news you think we shouldn't be, let us know.

All I ask is that you please make your comments intelligent and mature. Comments like, "The editor is really stupid and doesn't know anything about journalism," will be laughed at and filed in the trash.

Don't snicker, I have already received mail along those lines from people I can only presume are very bitter and complain about everything they see or read.

Regardless, we are going to try some new things here and we hope you like them. Let me know what you think.

Charlevoix residents are always divided over issues

Edith
Gilbert

If you had just moved to Charlevoix and heard the uproar over the location of the new high school, you too might jump to the conclusion that we're a contentious divided group.

The fact is this town has always been divided on key issues.

How many of us can recall the uproar over taking down the water tower? Varied people pointed out that it was a beacon for boaters, that it was historic and that by all means it should be preserved. What about the controversial issue over removing the old railroad bridge located between Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix? That caused quite a clamor! People who fished there for decades were adamant that it should remain. Railroad buffs claimed it was a bit of history of the area and should be preserved. The water tower is gone and so is the railroad bridge and Charlevoix is still flourishing as a scenic resort.

A few years ago the Charlevoix Courier was filled with angry letters on the pros and cons of planting trees on Bridge Street; and then there were long meetings regarding replacing the old lamp posts with new; and there was a squabble whether a fish cleaning station should be built at Ferry Beach.

These projects all passed approval without any negative results.

More recently there was the heated issue over preserving the Park-side Restaurant building on Bridge Street. After it was torn down, many of those who opposed agreed it was an improvement.

Long before that, I remember when the movie theater on Bridge Street had a serious fire. An influential group wanted the theater torn down to add a panoramic view of the lake. Another group claimed that since 51 percent of the building remained, it should not be torn down. It remained.

The result of all these passionately divided opinions is that the people of Charlevoix have continued to work together on improving our town. Groups who opposed each other on one issue, regrouped and you will find them addressing new issues without bearing any ill will. Old-timers wisely taught me that in this small community we will need each other's support for the next round in the battle to "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" and therefore it's best not to hold personal grudges.

This is the lesson some of our folks could take to heart today!

A divided community with a difference of opinion is not all bad. Arguing over the pros and cons of an issue, asking questions, opposing or supporting ideas, substantiating facts, challenging decisions is a desirable democratic process that should be embraced — not opposed. The Declaration of Independence was not written by a bunch of nambic pambies. These patriots fought long and hard for their beliefs and in the end they all needed to compromise for the good of the country.

As I understand it, it is not too late for the school board to call for a referendum and let the public decide on a more desirable in-town site for the new high school. There are better and cheaper sites available. After that, let the chips fall where they may.

Letters to the editor

Try two high schools

Editor:

Over the past few months we have seen the democratic principal of majority rule degenerated to the point of absurdity. It is with this in mind that I offer the following "solution" to the issue.

Last October, a majority of voters approved funding for the building of a new high school on Marion Center Road. Yet, a citizens group says a majority of the residents would prefer an in-town site (on the northern fringe of the city). Which majority should we believe? Clearly, not only is there a need for new facilities, but also for an emphasis on math.

Pardon the pun, but the answer is academic.

We need two high schools; "Charlevoix North" and "Charlevoix South."

Think of all the money that could be saved on bussing alone. Indeed, the bus fleet could be cut in half since the "North" students would have a nearby "neighborhood" school to walk to. Only the "South" students would require bussing to the "rural" site on Marion Center. The money saved could be used as gas money for teachers who would need to commute between two schools.

Competition would breed academic excellence. And if one school posted higher MEAP scores, you could simply transfer your child into that school, provided you'd be willing to travel that lengthy 1.3 miles extra (or whatever it is).

And what about the sports rivalry between these two schools? Can't you just picture a crisp autumn evening when the helmeted combatants of the "North" line up to face their arch rivals, the "South," in football? Of course there'd only be 15 kids on each squad, but heck, they could play both sides of the ball. That's how Ray Kipke would have wanted it!

Then there's the Memorial Day parade with the 26 member marching "South" leading the parade, while the 23 member "North" brings up the rear.

"North" kids hang out at the Taco Bell. For "South" kids it's Mickey D's and B.K.'s.

Rivalry, jealousy, gangs and turf wars...After all, don't our children deserve to experience the same divisiveness we adults seem to relish?

George Baier
Commissioner, subject to recall, of Citizens for the Reform of Area Public Schools (CRAPS)

Let the board do its job

Editor:

In the past weeks, I have observed the effort to recall members of the Charlevoix School Board. I, along with many of you, support all of the members of the Charlevoix School Board.

Our school board was elected by our community with the understanding that they would represent us by making well-researched decisions on our behalf. They worked countless hours to understand the pros and cons of the new high school location. After researching all possible site locations, in town and out, they voted unanimously on the Marion Center location.

It is one thing to question a controversial decision; it can even be healthy for a given situation. Recalling our school board for doing what we elected them to do is wrong.

As you are asked to sign the recall petition, please remember, you shouldn't sign if you question the school site. You shouldn't sign if you are upset with the bond issue passing. A recall is designed to remove board members that have acted illegally, immorally or unethical-

A community is important

Editor:

Why is a sense of community so important? A community is not just a commercial strip with ample parking. It includes publicly owned commons such as city hall, fire station, police department, post office, parks, museums, libraries, all surrounded with homes and shops and then sprinkled throughout with schools and churches.

It reflects history and earlier purpose. As we go through our community we should be able to see what our parents and grandparents toiled for. Our children should intuitively feel a sense of belonging, of where they come from and know they are a part of this continuum.

It is in the community that they develop a sense of shared responsibility beyond self interest. This maturity is not likely to come during the cohort rivalry at the mall, on the school bus or hanging out. It's personal. In the community, they will learn the meaning and principles of American democracy, as they match words with deeds.

"...America, America, God shed his grace on thee and crown the good with brotherhood: (not thy good-looking, not thy ethnic group, not thy moral majority, not thy political ideologs, but thy men of goodwill) "...confirm thy soul in self control," (not thy self interest, not thy self promotion, not thy self indulgence) "...thy liberty in law," (not thy liberty in loophole, not thy liberty in plea bargaining, not thy liberty in deregulation) "...till all success be nobleness and every gain divine." (not all success be quick buck, special interest or insider deals).

But, I suppose that when the schools, library, auditorium and churches have all followed the post office out of Charlevoix, we can fill the empty spaces with condos and parking lots and teach our children "virtual community" at the Marion Center Township Campus.

Board does not deserve a recall

Editor:

Last night as I drove down Marion Center Road on my way to vote, I had to pull over when I reached the site of Charlevoix's new high school. As I let my mind wander, I could almost see the new building there.

How sad it is that instead of rejoicing over last October's election we must now be faced with the other facts. According to the Feb. 21 Petoskey News-Review, the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools has reached its goal in obtaining enough signatures. I was disappointed to read this, but not surprised. The way this group received some of their signatures was appalling. For instance, the woman who came to my house told me it wasn't to recall the school board, only the site. How can the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools be proud of this victory when lies and deceit were its strong points?

Charlevoix school board did its homework. They, with the aid of a steering committee, looked at many sites before buying the land they did. This land has so much potential for future growth. The cost per buildable acre out-weighed by far the Hoffman Road site. Thank you, Charlevoix school board for "thinking of my hard earned tax dollars. However, it is impossible to please everyone. The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools must not care what they get for their tax dollars.

Charlevoix band headed to state competitions in April

Another group of Charlevoix students are going to state competitions.

The Charlevoix Symphony Band earned enough points at the District 2 Band Festival Saturday in Petoskey to advance to the state level contest April 22 in Gaylord.

The band, under the direction of Raphael Rittenhouse, earned superior ratings from each of the four judges overseeing the festival.

"The kids were absolutely awesome. They really performed well," said Rittenhouse.

The competition is very competitive, Rittenhouse added. "You might have 25 bands performing and have only four or five go to state. A lot of the groups got weeded out on Saturday," he said.

As an example of the band's skill, Rittenhouse pointed to the group's performance of two previously unseen pieces of music during the contest. As part of the competition, the band was given seven minutes to discuss these two unseen pieces of music and then had to play immediately following the discussion.

"I've never had a better sight-reading group," Rittenhouse said of the band. He added several people in the audience asked him if the band had practiced this music before the competition — which would be against the rules — because they had played it so wonderfully.

They had not, Rittenhouse said. In addition to the sight reading, the band practiced several musical pieces for about two months before the competition. They included: The march "King Cobra" by K. L. King, and two concert overtures, "Nenu-susato" by Jay Van Der Roost and "Gathering of the Yeomen," by R. W. Smith.

While there are 60 students in the band, Rittenhouse said six students had solo portions during

Yoga class offered Saturday at Charlevoix Area Hospital

Many back aches and pains are the result of immobility on the spine, specifically in the region of the hips, sacrum and tailbone.

For anyone who has felt pain in the center of the lower back or down the leg, Yoga is sure to help.

Yoga is an ancient methodology now embraced by modern medicine as an immediate and effective pain reliever. Sandra Carden, a registered and certified Yoga instructor and therapist, will conduct a hip-opening series of postures from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The workshop is suitable for all levels of students.

When individuals are frozen in the area of the hips, the entire body may feel stiff and painful, inhibiting even simple movement. A simple hip-opening series of postures will improve your flexibility and strength, relieve low back pain and leave you feeling calm, rejuvenated and at peace.

Carden is the director of UNION/YOGA in Traverse City and has taught Yoga for almost three decades. She conducts seminars for medical professionals, public classes, workshops and retreats. Visit her website at unionyoga.com or call her at (888) 881-YOGA.

The cost of the workshop is $25 per person. To register for the Yoga workshop, or for more information, please contact Connie Roland, Education Coordinator for Charlevoix Area Hospital at 547-8570.

BEACONS

By FR. JIM GUNN
Rector, Christ Episcopal Church

This past Sunday we had a reading from Paul's 2nd Letter to the Corinthians. Specifically, it was from chapter 3, verse 4 through chapter 4, verse 2. The first part of the passage is a strong reminder to us of the fact that we are only made powerful through God.

Paul goes on to say that our competence as ministers of a new covenant comes from the Holy Spirit. The Spirit is the fulfillment of the promise of Jesus to send another comforter like him to us from the Father. Jesus said that the Spirit would lead us into all truth because he would reveal to us the things of Jesus.

As we are made strong in the Spirit, we are made able to go forth in the name of God and minister to others in ways that God reveals to us.

In the last judgment story of the sheep and the goats, Jesus put the ministry of the new covenant on a totally different plane when he said that good works done unto the least of his brethren were done unto him.

When we join in the ministry of our Lord, then we draw close to him - we are brought into close communion with him. And that brings us to the latter part of the passage I mentioned earlier.

There are words there that should inspire us and truly raise our hearts to God.

Paul compares the splendor of the new and old covenants by speaking first of the glow on the face of Moses after he had been with God and how that glow would fade away. Paul also reminds us that Moses kept his face veiled while the glow was still there.

I can think of nothing stronger to do than to quote the words of Paul, when he said, "And we all, with unveiled face, beholding the glory of the Lord, are being changed into his likeness from one degree of glory to another; for this comes from the Lord who is the Spirit."

Just reflect for a moment on the implications of that statement for our life as servants of God. Our ministering in the spirit and power of the new covenant draws us nearer into the presence of the Lord and, in his presence, we are changed more and more into his likeness. What's more, this is not some burdensome checklist that we have to deal with - "Did I do my 'good deed' today?" Instead, it is an outpouring of the love that God has poured into our lives when he granted us forgiveness of our sins.

What better thought to leave off with than the words of Paul from verse 17 - "Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit is, there is freedom."

Employees' club donates over $150,000 to hospital

Charlevoix Area Hospital's employees have a reputation for their dedication to the hospital and its patients.

A new employee giving club recently was formed that speaks directly to the employees' continued dedication to the hospital. Called "The HERO Club," this recent addition is an employee contribution fund that allows any and all staff members of the hospital to pledge financial support to the future growth of Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The HERO Club has already raised $160,323.24 through employees' commitments towards future expansion of Charlevoix Area Hospital capabilities and continued success in the next millennium, Ken said.

"Employees have a unique opportunity to become a HERO in our community and to their co-workers," said Ken Forrester, certified registered nurse anesthetist and the employee-giving club chairman. "HERO stands for Hospital Employees Reaching Out, and was the winning suggestion by Sally Brown, Registered Nurse in the Surgical Department, in a contest to name the club.

"Quality care in a quality institution is no fluke," Ken said. "The kind of commitment that the staff of Charlevoix Area Hospital has to their patients is well documented, but we will see that same kind of commitment by each employee with this new giving club."

When employees return their pledge cards to their department representative, they receive a special pin designed exclusively for the HERO Club that says, "I'm a HERO."

Currently there are 195 members in the club.

The not-for-profit hospital plans to expand the Emergency Department this year as part of a $6 million hospital expansion project. The expansion will increase E.R. patient rooms from two to eight, provide two large trauma units and add a family waiting room in the Emergency Department.

To ensure that patients receive the fastest possible care and life saving opportunities, a helicopter pad above the Emergency Department and a drive-through emergency vehicle bay are also planned.

The hospital also is planning to expand the Obstetrics department and to relocate and renovate the Intensive Care Unit.

Charlevoix Area Hospital opened the first single-room birthing center in Northern Michigan in 1994 with four LDRP (labor, deliver, recover and post-partum) rooms. Plans include doubling the number of rooms.

The ICU would be moved closer to the Medical/Surgical nurses station and expanded, and would include a family waiting room.

Other improvements also would be made to the hospital during the construction of these three major projects, including adding more conference rooms and office spaces, something that currently is a challenge for staff to work without.

Wieland receives award for work with county planning

It was Smith's father, Carlton, who first recommended Wieland for chairman of the planning commission. Don Smith presented the award to Wieland.

"It gave me a great deal of pleasure because I've known him for a long time," Smith said. "It's citizens like Tom that make local government work. When he talks, people listen. He's an outstanding person and I really appreciate all the time and effort he's put in."

Wieland wasn't too overwhelmed by his award.

"If you hang around long enough, they either boot you out or give you an award," he said.

Wieland represents agriculture on the planning commission. He and his wife, Ardeth, have owned a farm on Paddock Road for many years. Not long ago he realized that there was a steady stream of cars traveling on a nearby road where traffic had been light.

"There's a lot of small lakes in the area and houses have been built all around them," Wieland said.

Seasonal housing has increased a great deal, he said. People who are buying lots and homes want all of the services and infrastructure, such as roads. He hopes the townships will create designs that make the best use of land.

Small fracturing of agriculture land is not wise, he said. Wilson and Hayes are examples of townships that need more responsible land use.

"Breaking up into five or 10-acre lots is bad because it eliminates the production of farming," Wieland said. "It's not good for foresting either."

"Cluster-housing is a very good alternative," he said. This type of housing is located on one larger piece of land. Many cluster developments share services, such as a community well.

Wieland describes the current growth in Charlevoix county as moderate. The county planning commission cannot regulate or pass ordinances, he said. It only makes recommendations to the cities and townships. He hopes local government will make wise decisions for future growth.

"As we look to the future if we're going to retain some similarity to what we have, we'll have to convince the townships that they must have better land use plans," Wieland said.

Nominations sought for Manufacturer of Year Award

The Michigan Manufacturers Association (MMA) is seeking nominations for the 2000 Michigan Manufacturer of the Year Award.

The Michigan Manufacturers Association and the Michigan Radio Network, a statewide network of 84 affiliated radio stations, sponsor the award program.

One award is presented each year to a Michigan manufacturer whose outstanding leadership and contributions have a positive impact on the quality of life in the state. Criteria considered for the award include innovative leadership, success in overcoming challenges, creation of jobs or increased opportunity, involvement in public policy issues and dedication to the manufacturing community.

Nominations will be accepted through March 31. Anyone, except MMA or Michigan Radio Network employees, may nominate a manufacturer operating in Michigan. Self nominations are encouraged.

A panel of distinguished judges representing Michigan corporations, universities, associations and manufacturing-related organizations will select this year's winner. Governor John Engler has been invited to present the award during the Michigan Manufacturing Week Legislative and Executive Reception, May 9, in Lansing.

To obtain a nomination form, call (517)487-8543 or fax your request to (517)372-3322.

Charlevoix Stingrays take third place at swim meet

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool's Stingrays took third place in a triangular swim meet Feb. 19 at the Harbor Springs High School Pool. Competing against the Stingrays were the Ogemaw Angelfish and host Harbor Springs Hammerheads.

The small numbers in the Charlevoix squad did not impact their performance. Among the Stingrays' 15 swimmers were state qualifying times for Natalie and Peter Carleton. Natalie qualified in the 11 and 12-year-old girls 50 yard butterfly and the 100 IM and Peter qualified in the 8 and under boys 100 IM.

The Stingrays will continue to practice throughout the spring and summer. If you would like swim team information please call 547-0982.

Mossman forms new anti-board committees

The board members are Allen Telgenhof, Ardeth Wieland, Barney Way, Scott Boss and Dennis Halverson. The remaining board members, Larry Levegood and Mike MacMillan, also voted for the Marion Center Road site, but are too close to the end of their board terms in June to be recalled.

Mossman said he has been accused of fighting the site because his land is across from the school site.

"The school across from us is a minor problem," Mossman contended. "It goes far beyond the fact that we live next to the 74 acres. That has no bearing. In fact, people have reminded us that property values go up when a school comes in."

Instead, Mossman cites other reasons. One is that he wonders if the entire 74-acres is usable because of wetness in the soil.

"I would like to see an estimate from a civil engineer as to how much of the acreage is usable," he said.

Mossman also cites the danger of the Marion Center Road, stating that it is dangerous by design and hazardous because of impatient drivers.

Neighbor Terri Hilton who supports the committees agrees.

"It's a terrible location," she said. "It ought to be in town. That road is terrible in the winter."

Hilton predicts that if the school is located at the site no one will use it after school hours because it will be inconvenient.

But some other neighbors in the area support the board and its site decision. One of them is Jerry Shupert who lives directly across from the site.

When he was approached to sign the recall petitions he asked the circulator if she would rather be near a school or a 100-home development with 50 barking dogs.

"It will develop," Shupert said. "The owners of the land have made it known that they intend to sell."

"I'd rather see a school there than an industrial park, a strip mall or a housing development," he said.

Shupert realizes that his 120 acres will increase in value, but says that's not what he's considering. "It's not our intent to sell," he said.

The board had a cross-section of people do the leg-work for a site, Shupert said and pointed out that with the growth going on in the area the school will be a neighborhood school.

"We must think about the future," he said. "It is short-sighted not to."

"If people opposing the school board with the pretense of concern for the school system would put half of the effort and money wasted on the recall into the schools, the whole school system would be a whole lot better."

Mothers can donate extra milk to bank

Most people know about whole blood donations, plasma donations and even organ donations. But, not everyone is aware that human breast milk can be donated and in some cases is necessary for healthy living by infants.

Milk banks exist because many babies will not thrive without human milk. Infants with Failure to Thrive (FTT), formula intolerance, allergies and certain other medical conditions may require real human milk for health and even for survival. About half a dozen milk banks exist in the United States.

Once the donor milk arrives at the milk bank, it is pasteurized. The pasteurization process destroys viruses while retaining most of the nutritional and allergy protection benefits. After pasteurization the milk is tested for bacteria.

While certainly the vast majority of breast milk is used to benefit babies and young children, donated breast milk is presently being used to lessen infections among adults who have undergone liver transplants with good results. Other important medical uses for this magical substance are being investigated.

Mothers who are breastfeeding their babies sometimes experience an excess in milk. When this happens, they can express it, keep it frozen, undergo a few blood tests to rule out any contagious diseases and then ship it to one of several milk banks.

One local mother who found herself able to help others is Tabitha Simpson, 22, of Charlevoix. When she and her husband, Tracey, recently became parents for the second time, Tabitha found she had an excess milk supply, so she stored it in her freezer until she could come up with a good use for it.

At the same time, Tabitha was attending the Mother's Circle support group meetings at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Organized by Debbie Kragenbrink, a certified lactation consultant, the group allows new mothers to talk to each other and share their joys and frustrations about infant children. The mothers tell each other ideas that have worked, endorse products and businesses that make life easier and give each other encouragement.

Tabitha had received breast-feeding advice from Kragenbrink after her second daughter, Kara, was born. The two women talked about Tabitha's excess breast milk and together they got in touch with a national milk bank that accepts donations of natural breast milk for those unique cases when a baby is allergic to synthetic formulas.

Tabitha said the process of getting approved or accepted by the milk bank was quite involved, but it was all worth it.

She underwent blood tests to rule out HIV, AIDS, Hepatitis and other major contagious diseases. Once the blood work was done, Tabitha had to research how to ship the milk to Massachusetts without spoiling and in a manner in which the milk bank would accept it.

"I kept thinking, if you have it and don't need it, and it can help other babies, then I want to do it," she said. "Babies need milk to live."

To learn more about making a breast milk donation or the Mother's Circle Support Group, contact Kragenbrink at 547-5601.

The Human Milk Banking Association of North America is a non-profit organization established in 1985 to review and revise guidelines for donor milk banking, share information among experts on human milk, provide information to the medical community, act as a clearinghouse for member milk banks and encourage research on the unique properties of human milk.

Cutlass Ciera takes top spot as most stolen car in state

The Oldsmobile Cutlass Ciera has overtaken the Dodge/Plymouth Neon as most-stolen car in Michigan, claiming the highest rank on the Auto Theft Prevention Authority's (ATPA) "Top 10 Most Stolen Car" list in 1999 (based on all models).

The Dodge/Plymouth Neon was at the top spot last year, but was not in the top 10 this year. No utility vehicles appear on this year's list.

This year's top 10 most stolen cars are:

- 1) Oldsmobile Cutlass Ciera
- 2) Chevrolet Caprice
- 3) Ford Mustang
- 4) Buick Regal
- 5) Ford Escort
- 6) Chevrolet Monte Carlo
- 7) Ford Taurus

- 8) Pontiac Grand Am
- 9) Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme
- 10) Cadillac Deville

Preliminary reports suggest that 1999 Michigan auto theft rates will continue to decline. In 1988, the number of thefts fell 4 percent from the previous year. From 1986 to 1998, Michigan thefts have decreased 21 percent. During this same time period, the national theft rate has increased 1 percent.

Janet Deni, vice president and chief claims officer for AAA Michigan, noted that 57,228 auto thefts occurred in Michigan in 1998. She added that a statewide vehicle identification number etching program conducted last summer may have helped reduce those numbers.

"Not only does VIN etching make a car less appealing to car thieves, but an etched vehicle may qualify for a discount on the comprehensive portion of an auto insurance premium," said Deni. AAA Michigan, for example, offers a 5 percent discount for etched vehicles.

City council grants 12-year tax abatement to Harbor Industries

By B. J. HETLER
 Staff Writer

Harbor Industries, Inc. has received approval for a 12-year tax abatement from city council, following a public hearing on Feb. 21.

"We're very pleased with council's decision to grant the abatement," Tim Parker of Harbor Industries said. "It will definitely help our plans and programs and help offset our investment in building."

Harbor Industries manufactures wood display and fixture products for retail stores. The building project has two phases, but the tax abatement is for phase one, which the company plans to begin in March. Completion is expected by December. The project cost is $7,088,486.

The company will replace the existing 155,000-square-foot facility with a modern 285,000-square-foot manufacturing facility, Parker said. It will house the woodworking operation and some assembly space and be constructed of steel and masonry.

The tax abatement means that the company will pay reduced taxes. For a 12-year period following completion of its phase one expansion, property taxes are reduced to one-half of the usual payment. The state equalized value for phase one is $337,417.

Approval for the tax abatement must also be given by the state, but city manager Mike Wiesner does not see a problem with the state giving the nod.

"It will definitely help our plans and programs and help offset our investment in building."

RDI and McLeodUSA come to an agreement

Review Directories Inc. (RDI), a Petoskey based independent telephone directory publisher and McLeodUSA Publishing Company of Cedar Rapids, Iowa agreed on Feb. 11 that McLeodUSA will not use or advertise its directories as PhoneGuide and RDI will not use or advertise J-Mar Publishing Company, Inc. (J-Mar) or Noverr Publishing Inc. (NPI), in their respective businesses.

In December 1999, RDI filed suit against McLeodUSA in federal court in the western district of Michigan alleging claims of trademark infringement, unfair competition, false advertising, trade disparagement and violation of the Michigan Consumer Protection Act.

McLeodUSA denied the allegations and counter-claimed against RDI for tortious interference of contract, conversion, breach of contract and false advertising.

RDI denies McLeodUSA's allegations.

Charlevoix takes sixth place finish at state championship

Try as hard as they could, Charlevoix just couldn't take the Northmen's spot as king of the mountain at the state championship Monday.

It was the powerful Petoskey Northmen who again captured the boys' state title at the Class B-C-D state championships hosted at Nub's Nob. Eight other teams had to take a back seat to the Petoskey boys, with Charlevoix taking sixth place.

While the Rayders hoped for a higher finish in the state meet, at least two Rayder boys came back to Charlevoix with state medals. Freidinger took seventh place in slalom, while Serrels took ninth place in GS. It was Freidinger's third trip to the state championships, and first time to be a state medalist.

"The thing to remember is that they got to the state championships, and that says a lot about what the boys have accomplished all season," Miller said. "With the conditions being so unpredictable, and with so many strong skiers on a lot of different teams, it could have been anybody's race that day."

The Charlevoix boys started the day with conservative, yet solid finishes in the GS event, with Steve Pirie and Todd Freidinger skiing in the first two flights. Number three seed Troy Smith embarked on his first run in the GS, only to have a little trouble in the upper part of the course.

Repeating his actions from the regional meet, Smith skied out of the course and did not finish his run. He was the only skier in a field of 68 boys not to complete the first GS run. Several other skiers found the icy slopes to be a challenge, yet even after falling, the other skiers hiked back up the hill to the missed gate in order to complete their races.

Sophomore Roscoe Serrels was the next Rayder skier, who completed an excellent first run. He was followed by freshman Brad Long, who fell two gates from the finish line, but hiked so he could complete the race.

Freidinger, Pirie, Serrels and Long all completed their second GS runs and after the GS event, the Charlevoix boys were in fifth place, 50 points behind the leader, Petoskey.

At that point in the race, coach Miller and assistant coach Kevin Meyer made the decision to scratch Smith from the slalom event. Senior Joel Trubilowicz skied in Smith's place. Trubilowicz hadn't skied in a slalom event all season, due to a knee injury.

In the slalom event Pirie had trouble near the finish line and had to hike on one run, while Serrels had even more trouble and hiked on both slalom runs. Long straddled the gate and was disqualified. The other Rayders turned in solid slalom performances.

The other final standings for the Rayder boys were: Freidinger, twelfth GS; Pirie, fifteenth GS, thirty-fifth slalom; Serrels, forty-seventh slalom; Trubilowicz, thirty-seventh GS, forty-fifth slalom; Long, forty-eighth GS, disqualified in slalom; and Smith, disqualified in GS.

Charlevoix senior Tiffany Fisher was the only Rayder girl to qualify for the state championships as an individual. Fisher completed a fine, four year high school skiing career with an eighth place finish in slalom and ninth in GS.

"Tiffany skied very well, as she has done for four years at the state championships," said coach Sue Miller. "I'm very proud of her."

For many members of the Rayder ski team, the state meet was the final event in their high school skiing careers. Freidinger, Pirie, Trubilowicz, Fisher, Kirsten Brendtro and Alisha Johnson are all four-year veterans of the team who will graduate this year.

"I'm sad to see my seniors go, it's been a good four years," Miller said.

"It's been an enjoyable year too, with the new seniors who joined the team this year. T.J. Christiansen, Kristy Shindorf, Lindsey Carland and Jessica Halverson really added to the team."

Rayders' Feb. 24 win ties the team with Kalkaska for first

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix varsity basketball team dominated Boyne City Feb. 24 in a 89-58 win.

This win ties the Rayders with Kalkaska for the first place spot in the Lake Michigan Conference.

"I thought it was one of our better efforts of the year. I was real pleased with our bench. They came off and gave us a real lift," said Coach Keith Haske of the win. "Our defense was also looking good."

Sean Stockman led the team with 20 points with Andy Granath adding 17 points and eight rebounds. They were followed by Shay Hutchison with nine and Adam Wood with eight points each. Patrick Gowell racked up six assists and seven steals, Doug Rieck had seven assists and Scott Parrish chalked up seven rebounds and three blocks.

"I thought it was one of our better efforts this year."

Keith Haske,
Basketball coach

The big test for the Rayders came Tuesday night when they faced Kalkaska for the league championship. Haske said since it was the last home game of the season and it was for the championship, he "couldn't have written a better script" in an interview Monday.

"It's a great setting for our seniors to go out on. It is going to be a lot of fun," he said Monday.

The Rayders were beaten 76-73 earlier this season when they played Kalkaska the first time. Results from Tuesday night's game were unavailable before deadline.

The Rayders will be traveling to Traverse City Friday night to face St. Francis in the last game of the season before district finals next week.

District finals start Monday, with Charlevoix taking a bye until the second seed games starting at 6 p.m. Wednesday in Elk Rapids. The Rayders will play the winner of the district game between Boyne City and Mancelona.

District finals will be March 10 in Elk Rapids.

Haske said his team is trying not to think about finals at this point and only concentrating on the remainder of this season.

"We are trying to stay focused on this week with the league championship," Haske said Monday. "We are trying not to put too much emphasis on (district fi-

Phelps' history comes alive through work of local man

By NANCY RITSEMA
Special to the Courier

While many people are aware of Charlevoix's past, many people do not realize there was another town in the county that had its boom much earlier, but ended up deserted in the 1900s.

The small northern Michigan town of Phelps in the southwestern corner of Charlevoix County was settled by hardy pioneers as early as 1867.

"When my grandfather came here," the late Charles Steven, Jr. said, "there wasn't such a place as Charlevoix. There were just a few little Indian huts there and you could walk across the river in boots where the big boats go now."

Phelps grew as more settlers acquired homesteads after the Civil War and then flourished while the timber was plentiful. Eventually, like other small northern Michigan towns, it quietly disappeared from the landscape.

The town was located two miles north of the Antrim County line where the Marion Center and Phelps roads intersect. Because of the efforts of local historian Bill Stevens and his wife Donna and others, Phelps' brief history has been well preserved and documented.

"There are probably people living in this area today who have no idea that the town of Phelps once thrived here," Donna Stevens said.

"Whenever my dad went to town when I was a boy, I tagged along," Stevens recalled. "I soaked up everything dad and the old-timers said and that's how I learned the history of Phelps."

"I grew up in Phelps and my dad, Charles Stevens, was born in Phelps in 1899. My great-grandparents, William and Caroline Stevens, homesteaded the land just north of Phelps Road in 1867 and my grandfather Charles Stevens, Sr. lived and worked his whole life there as a farmer and also as a team boss and logger when the sawmills operated in town," Stevens said.

"My dad told me his grandfather, William, felled the great maple trees on his farmstead, sindowed and then burned them, because maple logs weren't worth much of anything and it was difficult and costly to get any logs to market in the early days."

When the Pere Marquette railroad came through Phelps from Ellsworth and other points south in 1894, the town was called "Blue Siding." It wasn't called "Phelps" until Billy Phelps, a landlocker or lumber buyer for the Grand Rapids Bark and Lumber Company, came to town. Billy Phelps got the town set up for lumbering and local folks were so pleased with new opportunities for work and cash they re-named the town after him.

The Pere Marquette and then the C&O trains connected Phelps folk with Charlevoix. Local farmers who caught the northbound train to Charlevoix at 2 p.m. on any afternoon were home by supper when the southbound train picked them up again after it turned around at Petoskey.

There were two steam-powered sawmills built in Phelps around 1900. The Cooper Mill on the north side of Phelps cut up hardwoods while the Patton Mill on the south side of the road milled virgin hemlock logs and cut shingles.

The town of Phelps boasted 150 people at its peak. It had a general store, train depot, grain elevator and mill, tavern, telegraph office, church, school and post office. Mr.

Patton, mill owner, was the first postmaster.

"We had a Phelps School class reunion a few years ago," Stevens laughed. "I asked folks to share their memories of going to grade school in Phelps. There were some good stories and I wrote down a few."

There was the story told about Jake Vandenberg, who picked beans in 1917 so he could buy a pair of boxing gloves. All the boys took turns boxing during recess. On this particular afternoon recess, one of the Drost boys hit old Jake in his belt bucket and his pants fell down. Another Phelps' graduate told a story about remembering the smell of a rubber band burning on the old wood stove in the school. All the students missed a few recesses because they wouldn't tell that Irene Peters put it there."

The Phelps School with its 8 grades, operated until 1942. In 1942, the district consolidated with the Charlevoix Public Schools.

The Pilgrim Holiness Church was the only church in Phelps. The Rev. Euer and the Rev. Joppe were its first two preachers. The church closed about 1943, the building was moved and became part of the structure of the Wesleyan Church in Ellsworth.

When the trees were all logged off from the land around Phelps and the general store and its adjoining building burned in 1926, the small town was soon deserted. Charlevoix eventually became the center for trade and education for the small rural farming community the Stevens family homesteaded and helped to build.

Thanks to the interest and concern for local history of Bill and Donna Stevens and their families, the pictures and stories of Blue Siding, re-named Phelps, has been preserved for all of us in northern Michigan.

This school board does not deserve a recall. They have only done what we the voters asked them to do. We trusted them when we voted them into office and we can be proud of the job they are doing now. They have taken a lot of unjust ridicule and slander the past few months. Hold your head up high school board, I believe the majority strongly supports you.

How we must look to our neighboring communities.

Stop plutonium shipments

Editor:
We expect our state and national leaders to get involved in the decision to ship further plutonium shipments from Los Alamos Laboratory in New Mexico to Chalk River, Canada.

The Canadian people oppose this shipment as well as informed citizens in the U.S. Seven resolutions from Canadian cities and also one for the House of Commons in Parliament oppose this shipment.

The licensing and certification process for the containers by Nuclar Regulatory Commission must be the same one that certified the containers at Palisades that was supposed to last 100 years, but leaked in three years.

The hearings that Bart Stupak arranged for did not deter the Department of Energy (DOE) from their mind-set. At the hearing in Mackinaw City, where there was standing room only, all the audience opposed the shipment except those on the podium — the DOE. The other hearings did not change the DOE plan.

Not only Michigan would be involved with this shipment as a map clearly shows.

The March/April issue of the Sierra Club shows that this experiment is part of a larger deal between the United States and Russia. About 50 tons of surplus plutonium, which they agreed to dispose of simultaneously at about 4 tons per year, about half of which is planned to go to reactors.

Once the plutonium is "burned" it leaves 50 percent of the radioactive waste nobody wants. It likely will be returned to the U.S.; immobilization in glass called vitrification, would be the proper way to handle this plutonium. It also would be less expensive.

Several letters have been published in newspapers by Don't Waste Michigan, Northern Chapter explaining the problems involved with this shipment and urging your participation.

It should be the duty of Congress to make laws and directives not one committee. Congress take back your authority.

Get on with the school

Editor:

The neighborhood school committee in Charlevoix needs to see reality in our town. The word "neighborhood" is a relative term and I contend that the present site on Marion Center Road is in fact a neighborhood. Has the aforementioned committee presented us with a viable alternative? Those mentioned to this point were all sites considered by the board previously and found seriously lacking.

Why then is a recall of the school board being considered? I feel a good deal of the basis is that the school board did not initially give the neighborhood committee answers to their questions, time to understand the decision and did not treat them with respect. The board seemed rather smug in its decision, probably not a very tactful way of handling the situation.

The questions have now been answered. Now it's time to get on with it, to consider the students, to understand that negative feelings from both sides need to be let go.

So you say let the people decide where the school should be. That's already been done with a millage election, the site being known well in advance — 17 days.

Please, both sides of the issue, don't call each other names. For the neighborhood committee, please strongly consider the number of signatures collected in less than a week that supported the board — over 1,100 I am told — and realize that not only will a recall not be successful, but also continued efforts along these lines only serve the purpose of divisiveness.

Let's all get on the same page and get this job done for the kids. This issue is dead.

Lieberman leaves a fine example

By B. J. HETLER

The accomplishments of long-time community member Bob Lieberman are many and will live on in Charlevoix for years to come.

Bob died on Feb. 29 at the age of 75. He was a devoted husband to his wife, Jane, and a devoted father to their five children. While owning and managing Lieberman's Department Store, he made time to teach horseback riding, hunting and fishing skills to his children.

A charter member of the Lions Club, Bob was also active in the Downtown Development Authority, was instrumental in organizing the chamber of commerce and served as its president, was voted Citizen of the Year, served as president of the school board and coached junior varsity football.

"Bob was the community backbone with the chamber of commerce," friend John Michael said. "He cultivated and built up almost single-handedly the chamber into the professional organization it is today. He did an outstanding job in the community."

Another friend for many years, Bill Carey, agrees.

"Bob worked for the betterment of Charlevoix. He was always the first in line to offer his services."

Disruption of power a headache to businesses

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While Friday's five hour power outage may have left some residents with romantic feelings of simple times, the love was lost on area businesses.

"The one night I make money, I had to shut down," said Terry Left, owner of The Villager Pub. Left said he had his entire staff on duty in preparation for the usual Friday night rush and was forced to send them all home after three hours of waiting for the power to come back on.

"If I had any idea I would be shut down all night, I would have sent them all home when the power went out. That's my one night I make business, so I get hit twice as hard," he said.

Electricity to the entire city of Charlevoix was cut around 4:40 p.m. Friday when a front-end loader backed into a Consumers Energy utility pole and knocked it against a Charlevoix Light and Power utility pole just north of town near the Charlevoix Country Club. Power was not restored until about 9:40 p.m.

According to Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson, the driver of the front-end loader was busy talking on a cellular phone and was not paying attention to where he was going.

"It was quite a mess," Halverson said of the results.

Police can stop motorists for failing to wear their seat belts starting Friday

If automatically buckling up when preparing to drive isn't already a habit, it should become one by March 10. That's the date the new seat belt law goes into effect. The new law allows the police to stop and ticket persons not wearing their seat belt for that offense alone. Previously, the police had to have another offense evident, such as speeding, in order to ticket someone for not wearing a seat belt.

"I'm supportive of it," Charlevoix police chief Dennis Halverson said of the new law. "I never liked it being a secondary offense and have always felt it is important enough to be stopped for that violation. It's the only law that was a secondary offense on the books — the only one" he said.

Recall petition language appeal denied by court

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The decision by the Board of County Election Commissioners approving the school board recall petition language was upheld in 33rd Circuit Court.

Judge Richard M. Pajtas heard oral argument on March 2 and rendered his decision on March 3. The judge stated that the language of the recall petitions is of sufficient clarity, that board president Allen Telgenhof was in his current term of office when he voted for the high school site, and that the legal names of Scott Boss and Barney Way would not cause confusion.

"The Elections Commission did not abuse its discretion," Pajtas said in his decision.

The board members were represented by attorney Scott Beatty, while county prosecutor Mary Beth Kur argued for the Elections Commission.

The prosecutor told the court that she was not on either side of the school dispute, but was in court to represent the commission. Kur told the court that the recall petition language was not confusing and that the Elections Commissions' decision should

"The Elections Commission did not abuse its discretion."

Judge Richard M. Pajtas, 33rd Circuit Court

stand.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools states that it has collected the required number of petition signatures. Those signatures are being verified by the cities and townships in which the board members reside.

The petitions will be returned to the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office within the next two weeks. The county clerk will then set a date for a recall election.

At issue is the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education's vote to purchase a 74-acre site on Marion Center Road as the location of a new high school. Some members of the community said they disagreed with the site and formed the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools.

After unsuccessful attempts to get the school board to seek alternative sites, the committee commenced a recall drive of board members Allen Telgenhof, Ardeth Wieland, Barney Way, Scott Boss and Dennis Halverson.

The board members stand by their decision that the Marion Center Road site is the best available site. They state that they rely on experts, research and future school needs. They opposed the language of the recall petitions to the Elections Commission and then the circuit court stating that the language failed in clarity, as well as other issues.

OPINIONS

Language of recall petition was correct

While we do not support the current recall drive on some of the members of the Charlevoix school board, we do believe the recent ruling by Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas denying an appeal over the recall language was correct.

The school board is currently facing a recall for choosing a site near the corner of Marion Center and Veenstra roads on which to build a new high school.

This recall is an unfortunate blip in the history of Charlevoix. It is being conducted for the wrong means and is proving to be nothing more than a divisive tactic implemented by a special interest group. The school board did nothing wrong in its choice for the location of a new school and it did nothing wrong in standing up to the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools by sticking with its decision.

But, recently the school board members appealed the recall petition language in the courtroom of Judge Pajtas arguing — among other reasons — the language was not clear enough and listed improper names for some board members. Judge Pajtas disagreed, ruling the language in the recall was clear and the names were those that would be known by the community.

He was right. A recall is an important tool that average citizens can use to keep their elected officials in line. It is designed to be simple to allow every citizen to understand it, without having to get a law degree.

Such is the language in the current recall of the school board. Its wording clearly states what the recall is for and who it is trying to oust.

Furthermore, Pajtas was correct in his decision that Barney Way and Scott Boss could not be immune from the recall because the petition did not have their legal names "Mark A. Way" and "K. Scott Boss."

While "Barney" Way and "Scott" Boss may not be their true legal names, it is the names these school board members are known by in the public's eye. It is also the names they go by in school board minutes and even the names they gave to the court as plaintiffs in this appeal.

The bottom line is; if we were to allow an appeal of any recall because a lawyer feels the wording is not clear, because it is not written in lawyer-language, we would basically be saying the recall can not be used by regular citizens. Instead of it being a tool for the masses in a democracy, it would be a tool to be used only by people who have enough money to hire a lawyer to write language for the petition.

They arrive almost every day now: Brightly colored, slick and oh, so appealing. They come from almost everywhere, each reminding me that the year 2000 is well underway and that I had better get ready.

I'm talking about the annual blizzard of seed and plant catalogs, of course.

They arrive almost in synchrony with the other sorts of blizzards and remind us all of a world of the catalogs that almost damages the vision in the same way that loud rock damages the hearing.

My vegetables and flowers have never been like those brilliant illustrations.

Maybe this year each of my tomatoes will cover both my hands like the ones in the catalog. Maybe this year the morning glories will be three inches across. And the beans will really be a yard long.

It is much easier to dream before any seeds have been planted or even ordered. My dreams never have aphids or tobacco mosaic virus or damping off fungus. Neither do any of the catalogs.

All those magnificent plants and not a single disease or harmful insect among them. My dreams can occupy acres of fertile loam with just the right balance of humus and nutrients. My dreams can include that 1,000 pound pumpkin with the three little kids sitting on top of it with their feet dangling a yard off the ground.

As I come back down from my seed catalog induced high, I realize that there is only so much space and time in this non-virtual, out-of-catalog world. But, I could plant blue potatoes for the first time. Or I could grow some of the purple beans or yellow beets or even the chocolate colored bell peppers. And gourds: I haven't grown any gourds since I was in grade school. Every year there are whole pages of new perennials that I have never seen, much less grown. All those proud and happy people with their giant vegetables and unbelievable flowers. I want to be one of those!

Back to reality again. I only have room for a half dozen tomato plants, a few rows of the usual vegetables and a few squash and cucumber plants. I suspect my garden will look much like it has for some years now, with only a small experiment here and there.

In most circumstances we may object to the rushing of a season: Christmas beginning in October or Easter eggs available in February, but I keep hoping that the powers that be will send the seed and plant catalogs even earlier than they do.

A wise friend once told me never to make any important decisions in February. I don't order the seeds then, but I do love to think about it.

Nothing turns winter into spring like a good seed catalog.

Reason for dislike of site beyond the location

Editor:

One must look for rainbows after every storm, no matter how violent the storm may be. The rainbows for me, have been the wonderful people I have met in these past few tumultuous weeks. Most of the people received me with utmost respect and decency. For that I thank you. Even those who opposed the petitions received me with kindness and for that I thank you.

I am responding to the question of my registration and voting. My husband and I maintain property in Kentucky and I personally chose to make the Kentucky residence my primary residence. It was only recently that I finally decided to make Charlevoix my primary and permanent residence. I then applied for a Michigan driver's license and registered to vote. I voted last fall in Kentucky. If I had been able to vote in Charlevoix, I still don't know how I would have voted. To vote no would have meant no improvements for the schools in the Charlevoix community. I had been a volunteer tutor at the elementary school and observed the extremely crowded conditions. I am a retired elementary school teacher of 29 years. I understand about the needs of elementary schools. Because of my professional interest, I briefly visited both the middle school and the high school. I believed whom I talked to about the schools but I did not want the proposed site. As I have asked several times, how was I supposed to vote? Obviously, a no vote would have meant I didn't support the schools' efforts. Not true. A yes vote meant I supported the effort and approved the school site too? Not so. Is the reason for our strong opposition to the site because of our address? We were told that our property would double or triple in value with the building of a new school. Veenstra Road would be upgraded and no longer be a seasonal road. Maybe even tapping on the "main" water sewer line would be a possibility. Our neighbors on Marion Center Road seem to want the high school there. There must be more to our dislike of the site than its location.

Blood drive a success

Editor:

On Feb. 24 the Charlevoix High School students, faculty and staff really went all out for their winter Red Cross Blood Drive. Under the direction of advisor Gail Cherry, the CHS Student Council did a great job of organizing this drive. They surpassed their goal of 45 units of blood by a whooping 17 for a grand total of 62 units! Twenty-nine people gave blood for the first time which is remarkable and some members of the community also joined in this life-saving event.

The patients on the receiving end of these blood gifts would reach out and thank everyone involved, if only they could. In their place, allow me to thank all the first time and veteran donors for rolling up their sleeves and giving blood. You are all true heroes!

Students need a new middle school

Editor:

Should we consider building a new middle school instead of a new high school?

Why move the high school out of town when it seems to be a good place where it is now? Also, I feel the middle school should get something better like a new school.

I think they are building the new high school just because they want a fancier gym for basketball. Why spend the taxpayer's money on a big thing instead of a small thing because a middle school would be smaller? Why shouldn't the middle school get a better place and have an auditorium? All the lockers, halls and locker rooms in the middle school are bad. Last, the middle school is over 80 years old and the high school is newer. So these are the reasons we should build a new middle school.

Thanks for donation

Editor:

On behalf of the Charlevoix County Hospice I want to thank Xi Epsilon Gamma, Beta Sigma Phi Chapter in Charlevoix for their very generous donation of $2,000. This money is proceeds from the sale of their wonderful cookbook, A Taste of Charlevoix. They chose three groups to each receive $2,000 and we were one of the three and are most appreciative. These fine ladies have many fundraising activities and these activities are always to help someone or some group. They donate their time and talents to make these activities a success. They have sold out their cookbook and have ordered more to be delivered in the spring. If you haven't seen or bought one, do look for them to come in April — as they are a joy to add to your collection or give as a gift.

Recall hurts the school

Editor:

In the eyes of a sixth grader, this recall is not good for the school system. The biggest reason a sixth grader does not want the recall is because we want the new school built. The conditions we are in are down right bad to teach and learn in. The eighth graders are the only Charlevoix Middle School students with a real science room. All the others don't have lab tables. We need that school and we need it as soon as possible.

And also, what is wrong with this school board? They have done great things. For the sake of the school, please don't sign that petition. This is not good for the school.

Shanahan needs repairs

Editor:

Shanahan Field needs repairs. Lots of people have gotten hurt, including myself. One thing among many is that the people that work for Shanahan need to fix the fiberglass and wooden ramps. If you had a nasty fall, you'd get hurt really bad. If someone slid down the ramps, they'd either get caught on a nail or they'd get something like a rug burn.

Also the workers should make everyone pick up their trash and if they see any pick it up. Another point to make is that the workers should clean out the out-houses at least six times every two weeks. You shouldn't allow people to write graffiti and get away with it.

You should fix the benches so people won't get a sliver any time they move, it hurts. I, and probably most of the community, want it to be a safe and fun place for kids and themselves. Please fix it for every one. Thanks for your time and thanks for listening.

Bring snowboard store to Charlevoix

Editor:

I think that there should be a snowboard store in Charlevoix. One reason for this is that the closest snowboard store is in Petoskey. Also snowboarding is one of the fastest growing sports in the United States.

I think that a lot of parents will buy snowboards and snowboard equipment for their kids, if there were a store in Charlevoix. It would also save shipping and traveling time. A lot of people in Charlevoix snowboard, just go to Mt. McSaubia and you'll see them. There would also be a lot of tourists who would buy them due to all of the hotels that Charlevoix has. Charlevoix really needs a snowboard store.

We need a year-round Dairy Queen

Editor:

Do you know how many people in Charlevoix like ice cream? A lot more than you think. There is no other ice cream parlor that serves soft ice cream in Charlevoix either, so I think Charlevoix citizens would like it if the town kept Dairy Queen open all year.

Petoskey has two Dairy Queens and they're both crowded. Half the people who go to the Dairy Queen in Petoskey are from Charlevoix. Then Charlevoix citizens won't have to drive so far for good ice cream and gasoline isn't cheap. The citizens get laid off if they worked at Dairy Queen in the summer, when it's winter. There would be more jobs available in the winter for younger citizens looking for jobs. The town could build an indoor shed for people to eat their ice cream in. The workers who worked at Dairy Queen in the summer won't need to find a job in the winter. It would make ice cream lovers like me very happy.

Save the countryside

Editor:

I'm a student at Charlevoix Middle School. I don't think that there should be more residential dwellings or roads built in Charlevoix's township or countryside. I'm especially concerned about a large amount of land across from the township hall, which the township has declared residential. They also decided to build a road through it too. I know it sounds kind of dumb, not wanting Charlevoix to develop. However, if we don't leave a little plant life growing, Charlevoix won't be beautiful anymore.

It's not a very good spot to build roads and houses anyway — unless you want the first ever, "Leaning House of Charlevoix." The soil isn't very good. Also, it is home to many wild animals and building there would be destroying their habitat — I can just see it now, "Used to be a Habitat Lane."

Next, there will be a lot more people. That means there will be more traffic on Old Orchard Road. People already drive over the speed limit. It is also very crowded and dangerous during the soccer season in the fall at Shanahan Field.

Overall, my point is to keep Charlevoix beautiful and safe, leave some wilderness alone.

By PHILIP SCHAIRBAUM
First Congregational United Church of Christ

We've all heard about the huge amounts of time and money spent on making our computers technically compliant with the changing of the year from 1999 to 2000. Recently the thought crossed my mind that we ought to spend some time and effort considering whether our lives are spiritually compliant with God's intentions in this new millennium.

Are we prepared for all the challenges that lie ahead? Are we prepared for the tasks we will have to take on? Are we prepared for the changes that may come in our health, in our home, in the things that we have counted on that make us strong and happy?

This week many churches are observing the beginning of Lent, a time set aside for reflecting more intentionally on what it means to be a follower of Jesus. It is a time when we might ask ourselves whether we are spiritually compliant not only for the year 2000, but for all the years that God by his grace will give to each of us. Specifically, are we prepared to live as God in Christ Jesus would have us live?

There is a great story about the orchestra conductor Toscanini who found himself at a loss for words to describe the effect he wanted to achieve in a certain passage of music. After a moment, he took out a silk handkerchief from his pocket and tossed it into the air. The orchestra members watched, mesmerized as the silk square made a slow graceful descent, finally settling on the floor. Toscanini smiled and said, "There, play like that."

Our lives are pleasing to God when we live them unto Christ. It is as if God in sending Jesus is saying to us, "There, live like that."

To be spiritually compliant is to trust, as Jesus trusted, that God has a plan for us and for our world, a plan that extends far beyond our comprehension of it, but which is unfolding in our midst every time we commit ourselves to the ways of Godly living.

May this Lenten season be a time for strengthening our commitment to the life of Christ, through whom God continues to prompt and prod us to "live like that."

Robert G. Lieberman

Robert G. Lieberman, 75, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 29, surrounded by his family.

The memorial service was March 4, at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. The Reverend Philip G. Schairbaum will officiate and interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Lieberman was born May 4, 1924 in Toledo, Ohio, the son of Grant W. and Minnie (Schwartz) Lieberman. He graduated from Saginaw High School, then served in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II in the South Pacific and then graduated from Alma College in 1949.

On September 17, 1949 he married the former Jane Kohler in Charlevoix. They made their home in Charlevoix in 1954 where he owned and operated Lieberman's Department Store for 30 years, retiring in 1984.

Mr. Lieberman was a member of the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, a founding member of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and served as its president in 1960, '65, '66, '73, and '74. Before the Chamber organized he was involved with the Charlevoix Development Corporation. He was a charter member of the Charlevoix Lions Club. He served with the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority for 16 years and was Charlevoix School Board president for 8 years.

He also coached junior varsity football at Charlevoix High School, and enjoyed hunting, fishing and boating. Mr. Lieberman will always be remembered for his sense of humor and love of community.

He is survived by his wife Jane of Charlevoix; daughters, Kristin J. and her husband Thomas J. Schaperkotter of Charlevoix, and Kathryn A. "Kit" Askin of Lansing; sons, Kraag C. and his wife Cyndie of Charlevoix, Kirk R. and his wife Betsy of Petoskey, and Karl G. of San Diego, Calif.; 10 grandchildren and a sister Betty J. Power fails in Charlevoix, businesses close

A crew from Consumer's Power was immediately contacted, but it took them an hour to assemble and another hour to drive to Charlevoix from Traverse City. Another three hours were spent fixing the damaged poles and equipment.

While Halverson said there were no residential problems reported by the outage, he added there were several commercial issues. Businesses were trying to save their perishable items and factories, such as Harbor Industries, had to shut down and take losses for the day.

"Obviously people at first thought it was somewhat of a novelty. But the novelty started to wear off," Halverson said.

Store manager of Oleson's grocery, Bob Borths, said the store did not lose any of its perishable items due to the power outage, but it definitely took damage from lost business.

ness.

"My biggest fear was losing the ice cream, but it was fine in the morning because all the doors were shut and the fans were off," he said. "But, we lost business on the biggest day of the week."

Borths added the store will probably not be able to recoup those losses.

Aaron Moffat, co-owner of Giuseppe's, also said he will not be able to recoup after he was forced to close Friday night. He said he looked into his insurance policy, but in order for that to take effect, the power had to be out for at least 72 hours.

"It's tough. It basically screwed the entire weekend," he said.

Ten free white pine trees being given to new Arbor members

Ten free white pine trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during March 2000.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit foundation's efforts to support tree planting for the new millennium.

"The white pines will add year-round beauty to your home and neighborhood," said the foundation's president, John Rosenow. "They are fast-growing landscape trees with soft needles and graceful branching. You can use them as specimen trees or as a privacy screen or windbreak...even as a beautiful sheared hedge."

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between March 1 and May 31 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to 12 inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to Arbor Day, the foundation's bimonthly publication and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the foundation and receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution to TEN FREE WHITE PINE TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, Neb. 68410, by March 31.

Walter Kujawski fell through the ice when he attempted to help fellow fisherman, Edward Boatright, who had fallen through first. Both men were able to reach shore and suffered only minor injuries. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

Two Fishermen took a cold swim last week

Two men fishing on the ice on Lake Charlevoix near Iron-ton last week fell into the water when the ice broke beneath them.

Edward Boatright, 58, from Vanderbilt was fishing with Walter Kujawski, 22, from Charlevoix on March 1, when he began to walk from the fishing spot on the lake to shore.

He was approximately 200 yards from land when he fell through the ice late in the afternoon.

Kujawski left the fishing spot to help Boatright, Kujawski said. The ice broke under him and he also ended up in the cold water.

"You panic for a second, then you recover," Kujawski said.

Friends helped the two to land, he said. They had caught two fish.

Someone on the shore had

"Hopefully this will remind people to stay off the ice."

Lyle Gennett,
Charlevoix firefighter called 9-1-1 and several emergency personnel responded, including the Charlevoix Fire Department, the Charlevoix county sheriff's department, and the U.S. Coast Guard with its helicopter. The men were examined by Charlevoix EMS, but refused further treatment, the sheriff's report stated.

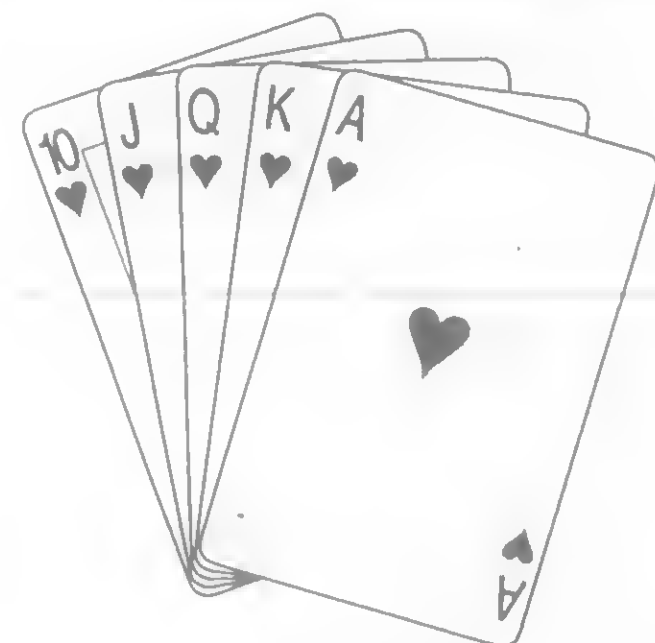

"The ice is in the process of warming up," Lyle Gennett of the Charlevoix Fire Department said. "Hopefully this will remind people to stay off the ice," Gennett said.

Deadline to enter school board election in April

Candidates for the two and four year term school board member vacancies may pick up nominating petitions at 208 Clinton and must have them filed with the secretary of the Board of Education at the board office at 208 Clinton, no later than 4 p.m. on April 10.

Tribe gives Charlevoix Area Hospital $200,000

The Tribal Council of the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians approved a grant of $200,000 to the Charlevoix Area Hospital to expand the emergency department.

As part of the grant application requirements, the hospital needed the support of a local branch of government. The hospital turned to the Charlevoix County Commissioners. The county commissioners fully endorsed the hospital's grant application and the band allocated the funds to the hospital.

County commissioners were thanked in person at their regular meeting Feb. 10 by Kathy Johnson, director of development and volunteer services for Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Grand Bay Marine opens Charlevoix store

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Grand Bay Marine is open and ready to serve customers at its Charlevoix location on U.S. 31 South.

The Traverse City-based company sold its first boat in Charlevoix on March 1, the day it opened for business here.

The largest Four Winns dealer in Northern Michigan is customer-oriented, said general manager Bill Kerns.

"We strive for convenience and customer satisfaction," Kerns said. The service department concentrates on getting people back on the water as quickly as possible, if service is needed, he said.

Grand Bay Marine also hosts an annual rendezvous party for customers on Power Island in Traverse City.

"We like to get to know our customers and have fun with them," Kerns said.

Owners Liz and Kevin Carney opened Grand Bay Marine in Traverse City in 1997 and say they are pleased to be in Charlevoix as well.

"We're excited to be in town," Liz said.

The Carneys say the Charlevoix dealership is in good hands with Kerns.

"Bill is very well-respected in the field," Liz said. "And he's very community-involved."

Kerns and his wife, Jolene, are in the process of moving to Charlevoix from Higgins Lake.

Grand Bay Marine has many boats to choose from. Wide-body boats and sports boats, to paddle boats.

Technicians go out with all new boats to acclimate the owners to their purchase. Every boat is safety-equipped without additional charge, Kerns said.

A grand opening is planned for some time in May.

Grand Bay Marine is located at 06798 U.S. 31 South. The telephone number is 237-5000. The hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. Summer hours will include Sundays.

Bob Lieberman passed away Feb. 29. He was known in town for his many community activities. (Courtesy photo)

Bob will always be remembered

But both his friends and his family remember Bob most for his kindness, loyalty, and sense of humor.

Founder of his department store, Bob never lost sight of his customers.

"He was always out on the floor with the customers," Jane Lieberman said. "He kept special clothes for people in his inventory."

If someone had a penchant for a particular item of clothing, Bob kept it in stock even if that customer was the only person to buy the item.

"If he knew someone was having a hard time paying a bill or they were sick, he wouldn't bill them," Jane said.

Bob's son, Kirk, worked alongside his dad at the store. "I remember asking dad why he didn't bill someone again if they didn't pay their bill. He said he figured if they didn't pay it was because they couldn't afford it and wouldn't bill them again.

"He also felt an absolute need to stay open year-around. He didn't feel it was fair to make money all summer and then go away and leave the locals high and dry during the winter.

"My dad applied good business ethics and passed them on to me and I appreciate that," Kirk said.

All of the Lieberman children knew a father that was active with them. Trips to Beaver Island were made yearly with friends. The trips were to hunt deer, but more time was spent socializing and story-telling than hunting.

"Bob never shot a deer," John Michael said. "After awhile out in the field I'd go look for him and always find him resting in the woods."

Kirk also said his father did not get a deer.

"In the early 1960s my mom gave my dad a deer rifle for Christmas," Kirk said. "The only bullets he used were for sighting-in. This past fall he gave the gun to my son Kyle with the original box of shells."

Sunday afternoons were spent with neighborhood families on a pontoon boat and Sunday mornings Bob went fishing with friends. Carey tells a story about Bob's sense of humor.

"The boat was ideal for the kids," Carey said. "We'd picnic, swim, fish and go camping with it. I recall during one Sunday out fishing in Lake Charlevoix when the kids captured by hand a big carp. Bob took it over to his great friend, the late Larry Wallace." Carey said he laid it in the bathtub at the Wallace house to surprise Larry, and he did.

People will remember Bob as a person who cared about family and community. At a time when Charlevoix had one policeman, Bob was the entire neighborhood watch, Carey said.

"Every morning before opening his department store, he'd ride around the neighborhoods in his forest-green 1939 Chrysler coupe to make sure everyone had made it through the night okay," Carey said.

AAA gives some tips for saving at the gas pumps

To help ease sticker shock at the gas pumps, AAA of Michigan offers a dozen easy-to-follow, money-saving suggestions:

- Slow down. Even a five-mile-an-hour decrease in speed can affect your gas mileage. Watch your tachometer to gauge engine performance.

- Keep tires properly inflated. Under-inflated tires can cut fuel economy by a half percent per pound of pressure below the recommended levels.

- Give your car a full tune-up, as recommended by the manufacturer, including a regular oil and oil filter change. A poorly tuned engine can increase fuel consumption by up to 50 percent.

- Do not purchase mid-grade or premium gasoline unless it is considered necessary by the vehicle's manufacturer. Using self-serve regular fuel compared to premium can save an average of 17 cents per gallon.

- Don't let the vehicle idle for more than a minute. Idling consumes half-a-gallon to one gallon of gas per hour and wastes more fuel than restarting the engine.

- Accelerate gently, brake gradually and avoid hard stops.

- Combine errands into one trip or go to the one location to take care of as many errands as possible.

- When traveling, avoid excess weight and reduce use of car top carriers and trailers. Additional weight and vehicle add-ons have a negative effect on aerodynamics, causing engines to work harder and burn more gas.

- Car pool when possible.

- Travel during off-peak times, avoiding rush hour.

- Check the engine oil level when buying gas to be sure the engine is lubricated properly.

- Large trucks — which pull heavy loads and are less aerodynamic than cars — see even greater gains in fuel efficiency with decreased speed. For every 1 mph increase above 55 mph, fuel efficiency generally decreases 2.2 percent.

NOTICE
Public Act 123 of 1999 Section 6002 states in part: "Not more than April 30, 2000 and April 30, 2001, the county treasurer may cancel the tax sale scheduled to take place on the first Tuesday in May 2000 and the first Tuesday in May 2001, respectively, if there are no outstanding bonds or notes issued by a county pursuant to sections 675 to 678 with respect to the delinquent taxes for which the sale is being conducted."

STATE OF MICHIGAN ANNUAL TAX SALE

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

ORDER FOR HEARING
No. 99-031-19-2

In the matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for unpaid property taxes.

The State Treasurer has petitioned this court for a judgment in favor of the State, against each parcel of land described in Schedule A, for the unpaid taxes, interest and charges on each parcel of land, and that the said parcels be sold for the amounts claimed due and owing.

It is ordered that the petition will be brought on for hearing and judgment at the April term of this court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, on the 3rd day of April, 2000.

In the opening of Court on that day, all persons who have an interest in the lands or any part thereof, who wish to be heard in person, or by counsel, shall appear in this Court and claim the said lands, and a judgment will be made as requested in this petition if the amounts due are not paid.

It is further ordered that the lands described in this petition, will be sold for the taxes, interest and charges on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10:00 A.M. on that day or on any day after, that is necessary to complete the sale of each parcel, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at a location selected by the Treasurer, at the County seat of the County mentioned above.

This sale will be open to the public and each parcel described in the judgment shall be separately offered for sale and sold to the person who pays the full amount claimed due and owing, and accepts the smallest undivided interest in the property. Any parcel of land that is not sold on the first offering shall be reoffered on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale. If not sold on the second day, the County Treasurer shall keep the parcel in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Richard M. Palles, Circuit Judge, and the seal of the said Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 3rd day of February, 2000.

Cecilia Bortis, Deputy County Clerk
Richard M. Palles, Judge
STATE TREASURER OF MICHIGAN

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for unpaid property taxes.

The Clerk of Court for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the Treasurer of Michigan and files this petition under the act of March 20th of 1893, as amended, and P.A. 380 of 1905, as amended.

2. That the attached Schedule A is the tax record required by the act and contains the description of all lands in the above county upon which taxes have been assessed for the years mentioned therein and have remained unpaid for more than one year and have been returned as delinquent or for land identified as certified special residential property under section 55a, 90 days after the lands were returned as delinquent.

3. That the amounts opposite each description of land are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes which may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest calculated as provided by law to the first day of May, (c) the County property tax administration fee of four percent, with a minimum of $1.00, and $10.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the act mentioned above.

4. That all of the taxes, interest and charges are valid and have remained delinquent for sufficient time to require the sale of the lands against which they were assessed for the next annual tax sale, and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land, and that a judgment be issued in favor of the State against the land for the payment of the amounts specified, and if not paid, that the lands be sold.

Therefore your plaintiff requests:

a. That within the time provided by law this Court determine that the taxes, interest, and charges on lands described in Schedule A are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land.

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of land for the payment of the taxes, interest, and charges, in Schedule A, and that the amounts in the column headed "Aggregate" shall constitute the amounts adjudged against the lands, unless amended by this court.

c. That if the amounts in the schedule are not paid, the lands, or the portion that is necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the lands, shall be offered separately at the tax sale as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief that this court finds just and equitable.

Basketball team prepares for districts in wake of win

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

After a disappointing loss Feb. 29 to Kalkaska, the Rayder varsity basketball team ended its season on a high note Friday with a 78-66 win over Traverse City St. Francis.

Sean Stockman led the team with 27 points against Traverse City, of which 15 of those came from 19 free-throws. Adam Wood added another 14 points and Scott Parrish added 13 points to the Rayders' final score.

"I thought we played very well. In my three years (in Charlevoix), that was the best we have ever played there," said Coach Keith Haske.

Haske specifically praised Wood's shooting from the three point line and Stockman's grace under pressure.

"They sent three different kids at Stockman and they all fouled out. They just kept hammering him," he said.

This came as no surprise to Haske, who said Traverse City is known as an aggressive team full of members of the school's championship football team.

"They are big bruisers," he added.

He added this game was great practice for the Rayders as they prepared for districts — which are usually very physical matchups — this week.

The Rayders will face Mancelona at 6 p.m. tonight in Elk Rapids.

Haske said he really has not prepared his players any differently for the districts than he does for every game.

"You just try to keep doing what you are doing all year. You do what the kids are used to," he said.

Along with his usual practice routine, Haske said he does try to remind his players the importance of each game.

"You try to impress upon them that every night could be their last and they can't have a bad night," he said.

And with six of his players graduating from Charlevoix High School this year, if they have a bad night it will mean it is the last night of their high school basketball career.

Charlevoix volleyball team looks to next year

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While the Rayders' varsity volleyball team may have ended its season having won only two matches all season, the team is looking at next season as its time to shine.

The Rayders' ended its regular season Thursday night with a loss to Traverse City St. Francis and were knocked out of district competition early on Saturday with a loss to Inland Lakes.

Both Owens and Kelly Reid were named best servers in Thursday's game. Owens was also named best offense. Taya Drost and Kelly Dreyer were named top defenders.

While the team's loss at the end of the season is a disappointment, Charlevoix Volleyball Coach Carolyn Loper said she predicts the team will be a lot more successful next year.

"(The players) did a really good job, the only thing they lack is experience. They play skilled, but they just don't have the confidence. So, when they are falling behind they just deflate and fall apart," she said.

She pointed to the districts competition as "I am not looking forward to try-outs next year."

Carolyn Loper,
Volleyball coach

an example. Loper said each of the Rayders played extremely well during the match against Inland Lakes and really showed signs of wanting to win. But, they fell apart when Inland Lakes would pull ahead of them.

After seeing how well they work together when they really want to win, Loper said the team will be much stronger next year.

And, with only four seniors leaving this year, Loper said she expects most of her team to be back next year having the experience of playing together for a season already.

"We also have a strong amount of girls coming up from the junior varsity level," she said. "I am not looking forward to try-outs next year. It would be a shame to cut a girl playing her senior year. There are going to be some tough decisions."

Freshman defeat Kalkaska in Feb. 28 match by two games

The Charlevoix High School freshman volleyball squad defeated Kalkaska Feb. 28.

The young Rayders lost the first game 15-10, but won the next two 12-15 and 1-15.

Top servers of the game were Natasha Kleiber and Krystal Meredith. Kleiber also had 12 aces.

Lindsey Miller and Lorna Kilborn were named the best offense. Beth Reeves and Erin Burns were named best defense.

Erin Buckner was also named the top setter for the Rayders.

Advertising Charlevoix in Michigan's many parades

Marilyn Boss

This will be the nineteenth year that Charlevoix will have petunias along its streets.

In 1982, the year we began the project, we used our son Bo's flat bed Ford truck to water the flowers. We put two open livestock water tanks, borrowed from the Kiwanis Club, on the flat rack and I rode along-side them, sitting on a folding chair.

Dale rigged a hose to the tank and the water flowed out into the petunia beds. I manually turned a valve on and off. I would get sloshed with cold water every time he would speed up or down a little. The temperature at 4 a.m. was usually in the 40s and I would get very cold from being drenched. I am sure some people must have heard me yell when a particularly big splash occurred.

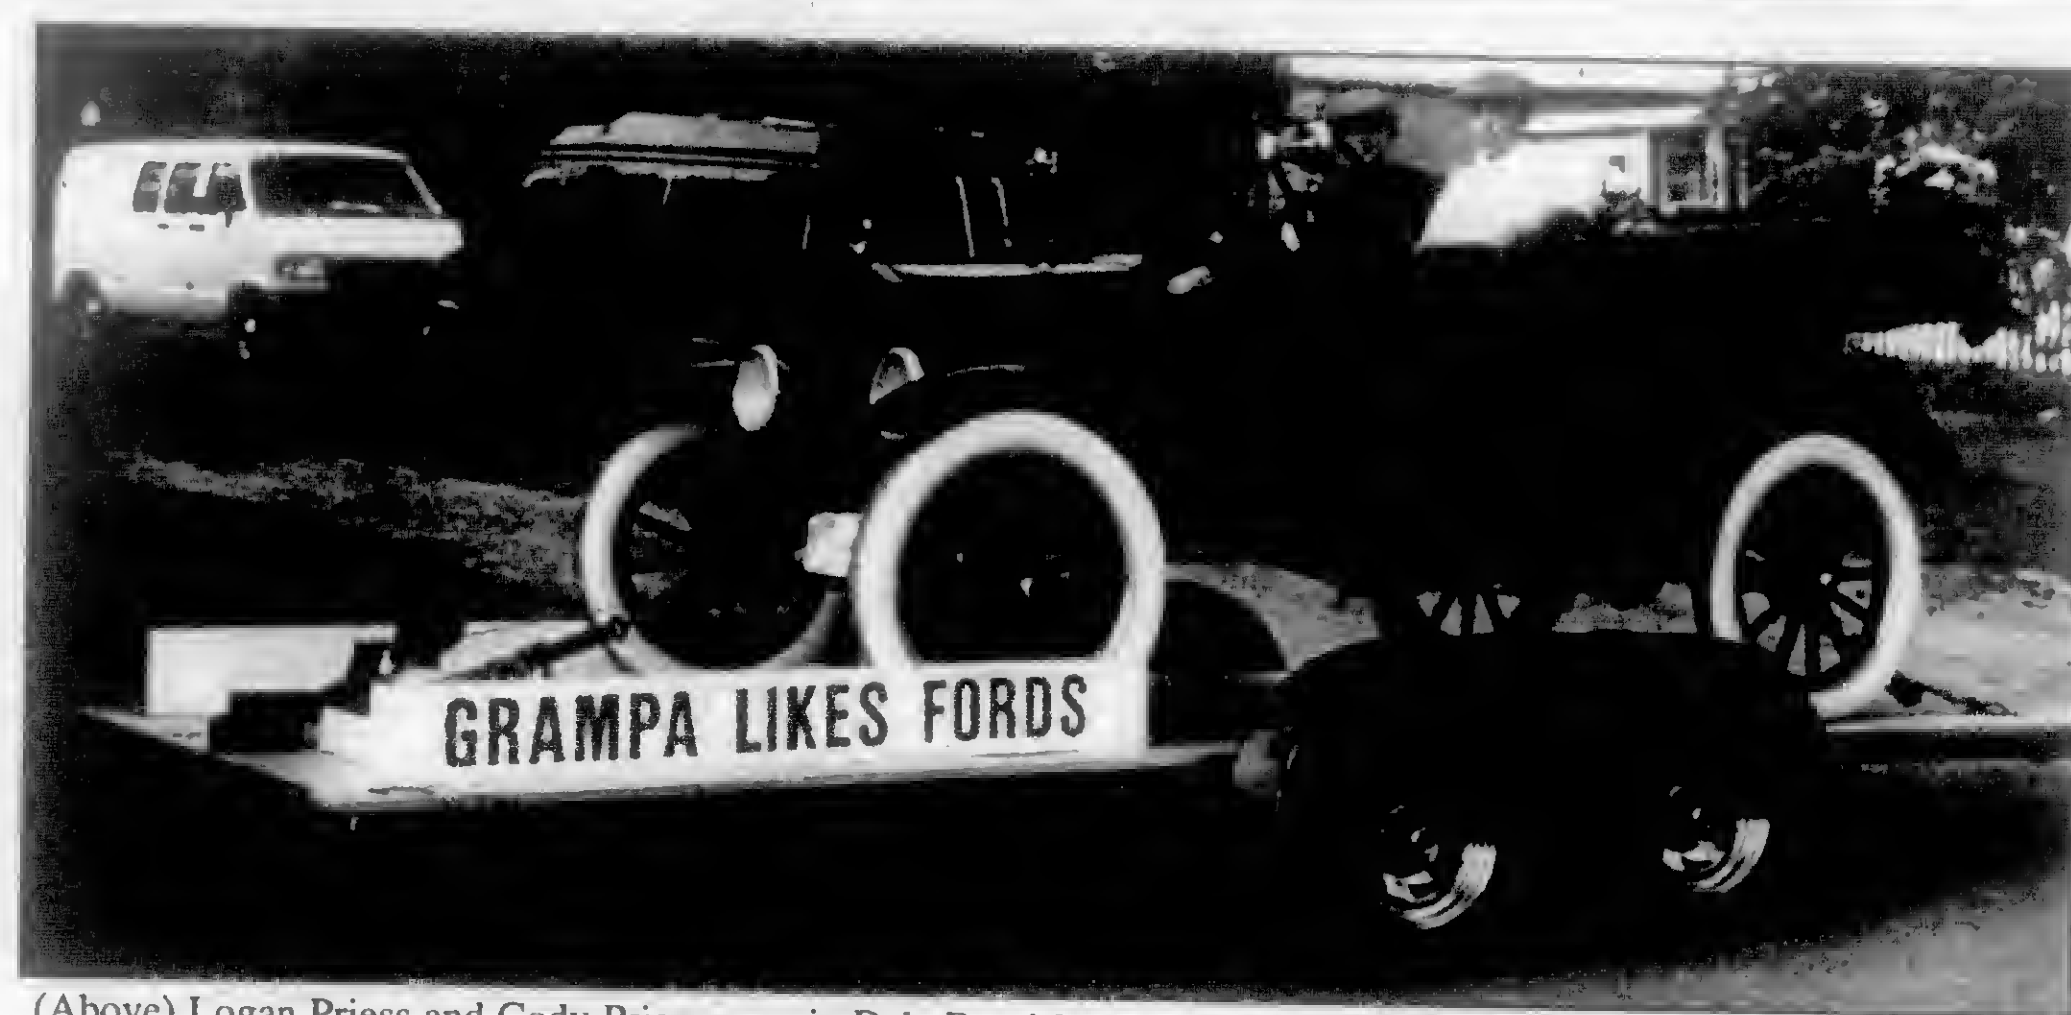

For the next four years, we used an old Ford gasoline truck, given to us by the Charlevoix County State Bank. We took the right front curbside door off and Dale rigged an apparatus on the side to dispense water. I sat crosswise in the seat and pushed a big pedal, hooked with a clothesline rope to a spring-loaded valve, so the water would flow.

That was a cold ride, also. In looking back, I sometimes wonder what kind of pat-sy I was.

Then, one day, we decided to see if we could get a new truck. Dale contacted the bank and asked them if they would pay for a tank, if we would put their logo on back.

"Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" raffled a new Mustang convertible, which raised enough money to buy the cab and chassis. In order to justify the expenditure, Dale said he would use the truck and the Chamber of Commerce float to go all over the state of Michigan to advertise the City of Charlevoix. We bought the truck and Dave Arnold crafted the water tank.

Hence, there have been hundreds of trips to parades, including appearing in the Detroit Thanksgiving parade for eight years. James Wineman always paid the fee to get in and was influential in getting us in this prestigious parade. The parade committee eventually raised the minimum fee to $25,000 and that concluded our participation.

The rules were that no queens could ride the floats, so we made up themes, and let the queen and her court ride the float as skiers one year, then snowmobiles and a theme of over the river and through the woods; I played Mrs. Claus and the court dressed as elves. We hauled the figures from my Christmas scene to Detroit.

At the present time, we go to parades in Lansing, Alma, Mackinaw City, Manelona, Frankenmuth, Traverse City, St. Ignace, Chesaning, Elk Rapids, East Jordan, Gaylord, Posen, Cedar Springs and Charlevoix. We also have gone to Grand Haven, Holland, Muskegon, Kalamazoo, Ypsilanti, Rogers City and Houghton Lake.

Sometimes, when we go a long distance out of town, we have to water the flowers the night before, as they need water most every day. One of the large parades in the area is the St. Ignace car show and parade. They have approximately 75,000 people along the two mile parade route. Last year, Dale pulled two floats, for a total length of 87 feet overall. He wanted to keep with their theme of old cars, so he put our 1919 Model T with Cody and Logan Priess — our grandsons — riding in the car on the second float behind the truck.

The biggest parade we got to now is the Frankenmuth Bavarian Festival the first Sunday in June. They have only about 100 floats, but more people come to this parade than ones in Traverse City.

It takes the same amount of work to set up for a half million spectators as for 2,500. Dale always arrives at the parade site a minimum of two hours ahead of parade time, as it is a lot of work to set up the float and see that the truck is clean enough to eat off.

He hand waxes the truck a minimum of three times a year and sees that it is kept in top condition mechanically. Our floats even have the tires high speed balanced for road travel, compared to most towns which mount their float on a farm wagon, with no springs. We have won many awards for best float.

The Chamber pays for the gas and mileage to the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful group, for allowing the use of the truck. Dale donates all of his time. Last August, the petunia truck was even used as a limousine for the wedding of Abby, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Vanuyne. It carried the wedding party from the Episcopal Church in Petoskey to their home on Michigan Avenue. They were then taken by our Model T to the Charlevoix Country Club for the reception. For this, they made a very substantial donation to the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful group.

The biggest surprise that Dale has encountered was at the Posen Potato Festival which he attended this past summer.

Posen is a little incorporated village of 270 people, with one road going down the center — and not even a side street. The spectators line the street in droves, along with about 50 portable toilets. It is quite a site to see.

They also had a huge carnival and a flea market in a hay field on the east side of the road.

The town is so small in population, that they had to borrow people from other towns to help them put on their festival. The people of Posen are an inspiration to what can be done with a few people putting their heads together and doing a lot of hard work.

This proves that if you set your mind to something, you can do big things — according to an old adage Dale was told by Bert Ingalls, when he was 12 years old. He has gone by that premise all through his life and is having a lot of fun and satisfaction along the way.

LOOK Who's Coming to Charlevoix

The hardworking Venetian Board has once again delivered for Charlevoix. For the first time ever, Charlevoix will be the location for the Michigan Festivals & Events Association Spring Seminar. Approximately 150 participants are expected. The Seminar is scheduled for April 7-9, 2000, with workshops taking place at the Charlevoix Country Club. The Festivals Association has reserved lodging at the Edgewater Inn and the Weathervane Terrace Inn.

A panel of national experts will be presenting a workshop on fireworks display and safety. Verne Blaett, Jr., of Glendale, AZ will present a seminar on "Ideas to Improve Your Events." Dean Davenport, chairman of the Venetian Games, along with City Recreation Director, Dwight "Ike" Boss will also present a seminar on incorporating into your festival community youth, school and city recreation programs.

The workshops will conclude Saturday evening with a "Shoot for the Moon" fireworks extravaganza at the Charlevoix Country Club, starting at 8:00 p.m. This show will be provided, free of charge, by Zambelli Fireworks Internationale, Fireworks by Grucci and the Pyrotechnica Company.

Sunday is featured as an "on your own" day for participants to visit our shops and restaurants and get to know Charlevoix. Chamber members should mark their calendars and consider promotional opportunities for this weekend.

Chamber President Jacquie Merta and the Chamber staff have been working diligently to coordinate arrangements for the largest group meeting which Charlevoix has hosted in many years. The Chamber extends a big "Thank You" to Charlevoix Venetian Festival, Inc., for co-hosting and bringing this event to Charlevoix.

Letter from the Chairman

On behalf of your Board of Directors, I'd like to wish everyone a Happy New Millennium!! As stated at the Annual Meeting, this is the Chamber of Commerce "Year of the Member" where your Board is focused on providing the best programs and service possible to our members. We are only doing a good job if YOU think we are doing a good job.

The first step in this program was the development of a member survey. Past Presidents Steve Andreae, Bob Kern and Lynn DeGrow gathered sample surveys from other Chambers to develop this short, comprehensive form.

The survey results will be tabulated by the Survey Committee and presented to the Board at the March meeting. The Board is eagerly awaiting the Committee report.

Your Chamber Board is here to ensure that you are a member of the best Chamber of Commerce in Northern Michigan. We appreciate your questions and comments and look forward to serving you this year!

Board calls for an early election

Petitions ok according to county clerk

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

While the recall petition signatures have been verified and are in the county clerk's hands, the school board members are getting ready for an election.

"We would like to waive our challenge period and ask you to schedule the recall election for the earliest possible date," board president Allen Telgenhof told the clerk in a letter.

"We are ready to bring this matter to a vote of the people," he said. "Although we have reviewed all of the petitions and signatures and believe there are valid legal grounds for challenge, the sooner the vote takes place, the sooner our community can begin the healing process."

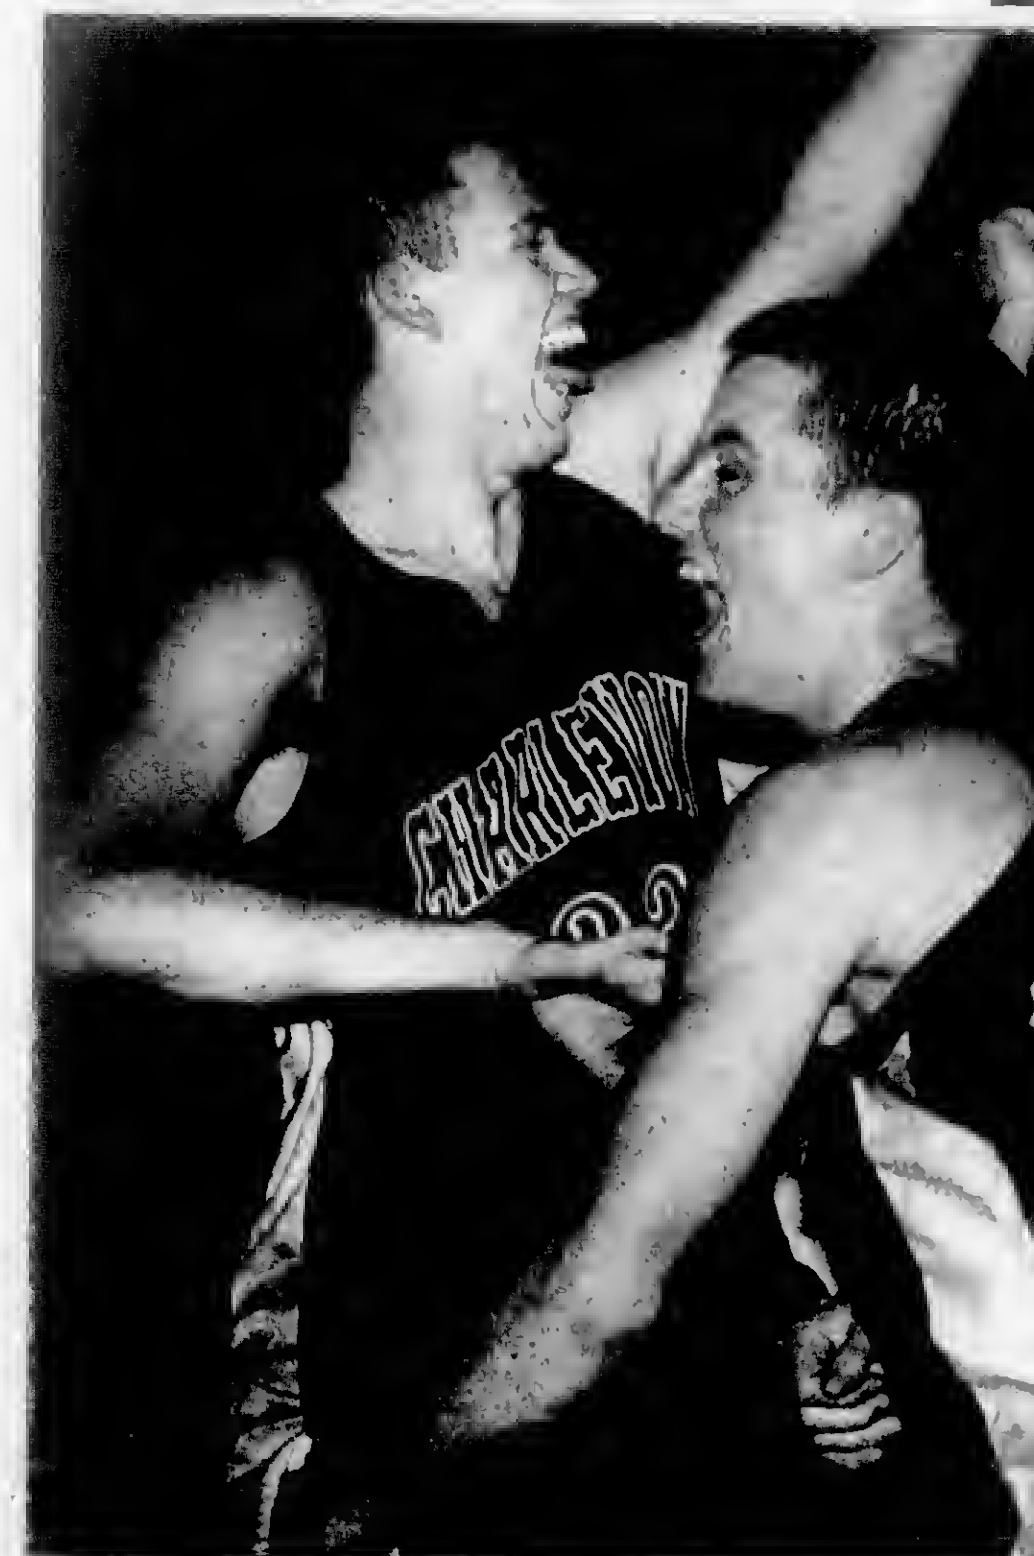

"The kids of Charlevoix are the reason we are building a new high school. All of the personal attacks, innuendo and untruths being spread have helped people forget that. We want to bring this matter to an end so we can move forward with this project to benefit our children," Telgenhof said.

Board member Dennis Halverson is among those who are concerned about school and community morale.

"I am concerned about what message is being sent to our children," Halverson said. "The adults of our community are locked in this fight over something that is supposed to benefit our kids. The kids are the ones lost in this whole thing."

Rayders repeat

Basketball team wins district title

The Charlevoix High School Varsity Basketball team was named district champions for the second year in a row following its win Friday against Harbor Springs.

The Rayders went on to play Mio last night in regional championship play.

The results of that game were unavailable before this paper went to press.

County jail crews to clean up yards

Crews from the county jail will be hard at work cleaning up the yard of senior citizens and handicap citizens once again this year.

This is the third year of Sheriff George T. Lasater's Spring Clean Up program utilizing inmates from the county jail to do spring cleaning for senior citizens and handicap citizens.

"There are multiple benefits to this. Senior citizens and handicap citizens are very appreciative. It gives the corrections officers a feeling of community. A feeling that they are doing something positive. And it means an awful lot to the prisoners involved," said Lasater.

The crews work according to the weather and are free of charge. In addition to cleaning up the yards of senior citizens and handicap citizens, the jail crews also clean cemeteries, parks and beaches.

"Most of it is spring cleaning. I do keep them away from power tools for liability reasons," Lasater said.

Each jail crew is made up of about four prisoners and a supervisor from the jail. The size of the crew depends on the population in the jail.

Lasater stressed he does not allow prisoners who are a security risk on the crews. Most of the prisoners on the crew are in jail for alcohol related offenses, he said.

The program has been very successful in the past and Lasater said he has already started receiving phone calls from interested citizens.

Anyone interested in this program can call Lasater at 547-4461 for more information.

Lake levels cause little concern in Charlevoix

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The Great Lakes state is watching its lake water levels drop each year, a result of too many light winters and dry summers.

But several marina owners around Charlevoix's smaller lakes aren't worried, and even see opportunity in lower water levels.

Northwest Marine is experiencing more business here because the downstate lakes are much lower.

"It's the first time we've had a waiting list," Harbor Master Eric Kammermann said.

Many of the downstate marinas are unable to accommodate boats and that is making more demand in northern Michigan, he said.

"We're just asking downstate people to each bring a cup of water with them," he said.

It's also the first time Northwest Marine has needed to dredge. It will dredge only the slips necessary.

"We'll take about two feet out of the shoreline slips," Kammermann said. He is philosophical about the low lake levels.

"It's a cycle. The only thing we can do is talk about it."

That cycle is still normal according to the Corps of Engineers and the Department of Natural Resources, City of Charlevoix Harbor Master Hal Evans said.

Evans measured Round Lake levels about two weeks ago and found the water 40 inches lower than three years ago. But he sees no problems for boaters this summer.

"Our harbor is 50-feet deep," Evans

"We're just asking downstate people to each bring a cup of water with them."

Eric Kammermann,
Northwest Marine Harbor Master

said. "Even the big boats need only eight feet, most need three or four feet."

"The only problem we'll have is the drop from the docks to the smaller boats," he said. But ladders will assist boaters.

The only dredging the city will do is the dredging they do every year at the end of Antrim, Mason and Clinton streets, Evans said. The city dredges in those areas because winter snow buildup is plowed to the end of the streets and affects the harbor.

The city marina officially opens on May 1.

Ward Brothers marina has a dredge permit request in the works for the area next to its gas dock, the only fueling station on Round Lake. Dredging at that dock is not unusual, Bernie Ward III said.

Ward Brothers are as aware of the lake levels as well as any other marina.

"It's got everybody's attention," Ward said. "Out on Lake Michigan you see rocks popping up where you didn't see them before."

But the company has little concern for area water levels, Ward said.

Ward predicts the water levels will come up six to 10 inches with the warmer weather and spring rains.

"I don't think it'll be a big deal," he said. "It's a cycle — it'll come back up again."

Why do Americans mix up cultures?

Jeremy
McBain

My Irish-Scottish eyes are smiling this week as I laugh at my fellow Americans.

Every year it gets a little more insane, every year more advertisers grab onto its icons and every year Americans pervert the holiday just a little more. I'm referring to St. Patrick's Day.

Yes, I know, I said I would probably write only one column a month and this makes two. But, this holiday deserves some comment from me.

St. Patrick's Day is a wonderful little Irish holiday celebrating St. Patrick and his work converting the Irish Celts into Christians. In Ireland it is a serious religious observance. Shops and taverns close as everyone heads to church to honor the patron saint of Ireland — who historians say was actually born in Scotland.

Things are a little different in America.

People leave work early — or just plain take the day off — to hit the bars and start drinking. In America, it is a day filled with green beer, drunken slob, leprechauns hocking everything from insurance to casinos, green clothing and good old partying.

A majority of Americans really have no clue who St. Patrick was and what the day actually means. To make matters worse, Americans also cannot seem to differentiate between the traditions of Ireland and the traditions of Scotland.

Let's address some of these errors.

Being a bagpiper — yes, I actually do play them — for the last seven years has taught me to cringe every time I see a St. Patrick's Day parade with bagpipes. The traditional bagpipes you see in parades are of Scottish origin.

The Irish, like many other cultures in the world, had their own style of bagpipes. But, the bagpipes being used in many St. Patrick's Day parades are called, "The Great Highland Bagpipes." And most of the upbeat songs played on these bagpipes are celebrations of Scottish victories in battles with the English, Vikings and Irish.

Next, the kilt. Every time I wear my kilt I always hear this comment, "Oh, you're Irish." I am always amazed when someone can guess I'm part Irish when I am wearing a Scottish outfit.

Another icon, leprechauns, are known in Ireland for being little elf-like critters who mend shoes. When I was young, my Irish grandmother used to convince my sister and I that she saw a leprechaun run across the living room floor. She would soon have us in a desperate search for the leprechaun, because we knew if we caught him by the ankle the leprechaun would have to tell us where his pot of gold was.

I think it was just my grandmother's way of keeping us busy for the afternoon.

Now, leprechauns can be seen selling automobiles, casino packages, insurance and many other items in advertisements.

To be fair, I must admit I have taken part in many of the erroneous celebrations Americans have on March 17. I have played the bagpipes and worn the kilt for this holiday — I was getting paid to do it — and I have done my share of reveling.

Why do I do this when I know it is wrong? Because I am an American and like many Americans, I am hypocritical.

So, until next year, "Erin Go Bragh."

Miles' book successful

Edith
Gilbert

D a v i d Miles was thrilled when he heard the good news. His father's book, "Bob Miles' Charlevoix," a collection of Charlevoix photographs, sold on e-Bay recently for $560.

This astonishing news was e-mailed to me by my friend and former summer resident John Loeb. "I lost out at the last second. I was amazed," he said.

So are we all! As a former board member of the Historical Society, I clearly remember the skillful guidance that Bill Ohle provided in having a limited edition of 2,000 copies printed in 1976 as a fund-raiser for new headquarters, presently located on State Street. Ohle was a former Chicago advertising executive and had the know-how to foresee the value of publishing this treasured book covering "a century of pictures." Most of the photographs were shot by Miles, who, Ohle said, "was a brilliant copy writer, having written most of the captions in the book." The original, numbered, bicentennial edition first sold for $25 and in addition it was given free with each contribution of $100 or more.

It is interesting to note that the bicentennial year of 1976 inspired two other Charlevoix area books, one by Ohle titled "100 Years in Horton Bay," of which I have a copy as well as the first edition of my book, "Summer Resort Life, Tango Teas and All," that includes a dozen pictures taken by Bob Miles.

I recall when Bob first started working on his collection, after his retirement. We were neighbors on Park Avenue and our children played ball together on the vacant lot next to the Congregational Church. One sunny afternoon, Bob invited me into his darkroom and with genuine enthusiasm ran off several hundred photos of early Charlevoix — the first wooden bridge, the Argo Milling Company which is presently the site of the Weatherline Restaurant, pictures of ancient tugboats, schooners and cruise ships going through the channel, lumberjacks, as well as turn of the century beach scenes from the Chicago Club and knickered golfers playing with wooden clubs on the Belvedere golf course.

Dave Miles tells me that his father was not enthusiastic regarding the future success of the proposed book at the time. However, he reluctantly agreed to go along with the idea at the urging of board members of the Historical Society. The book was published on the condition that all proceeds be given to the society.

We are fortunate to learn that a new committee has been formed under the leadership of the president of the Historical Society, Dr. Michael Bergeon. This group plans to publish a revised edition including additional Bob Miles' photographs. Let us hope that his project will meet with the same resounding success as the bicentennial project of 25 years ago.

Letters to the editor

Commend school board, don't recall

Editor: As the one year anniversary of the bond issue's inception passes, I would like to review some of the anti-board claims that have beset our community for the past five months.

They started with the assertion that members of the board would personally benefit from the Marion Center land deal. This assertion was subsequently refuted at the open forum in January.

Then it was declared that better, less expensive sites existed, though little concrete and accurate data has been provided to support these sites. Moreover, the board has demonstrated how the Marion Center site allows for long-term growth for the cheapest cost per acre (which was one of the goals generated by the March 9 community forum.)

The claim that the board did not sufficiently inform the public throughout the process has also been alleged. However, that fewer than five people have contacted the central office to find out the facts suggests the public is either well informed from the mass mailings and numerous meetings given or trusts the board to make such decisions. It was also maintained that the Marion Center site was too far out of town, though the other sites proposed were either not in town or lacked sufficient land to provide long-term growth. (To build a high school on Kipke Field will not accommodate sufficient parking, ball fields, an ice rink, practice fields or future flexibility.)

Another concern is a possible 80 home subdivision near the Marion Center site. Is it reasonable that we should hold the board responsible for land deals independent of their own?

Currently the assertion is that the Marion Center site is a wetland. I find it hard to believe that a wetland is capable of producing eight foot high corn.

It is interesting to note that as each of these assertions is refuted, another claim takes its place. What the committee's questions have done for me is solidify my already strong conviction that the board has been right all along.

Our board should be commended, not recalled.

Marion Center is not Charlevoix

Editor: The statement "Marion Center is Charlevoix" is as fuzzy and false as the ballot was.

Marion Center is not Charlevoix; it is in Charlevoix County. Is Iron-ton Charlevoix? No. It is in Charlevoix County. Is Horton Bay Charlevoix? No. It is in Charlevoix County. These places are not served by the Charlevoix city police; they are served and patrolled by the Charlevoix county police under Sheriff George Lasater.

This controversy could be resolved by one act; a referendum, not trickery nor fraudulently, but a simple, concise ballot; i.e. "Do you want Charlevoix High School on the Marion Center site?" and the options, "yes" or "no."

Democracy means rule by the people or majority rule. I quote Webster. Is the school board afraid to find out what the people, a majority of their constituents who placed them on a board to serve the people; are they afraid to find out what the majority wants?

Property tax too high

Editor: It is nice to be a property owner in USA. But each year tax goes up and we cannot vote on "school tax."

The first years we owned our cabin, tax was $35. We put in lights, put in a backroom and had a hand-pump and we kept it as the water we had tested was 100 percent pure. Now our tax is well over $1,000. I cannot believe this to be true, but thanks to our head of State of Michigan things are getting more and more in a mess.

It's time to think of the years we have owned our land and be more fair to these people that care for what they have, by it is high time we are noticed in our older years.

Lasater would not do harm

Editor: I have worked on George Lasater's campaign since the 1970s. George Lasater would never do anything with intent to do harm to anyone.

I have found George to be a man of integrity, honesty, compassion and love for his fellow man.

I have seen county sheriffs come and go since the 1920s. George gets my vote.

Band performance a success

Editor: What a pleasure it was to attend the festival performances of our local junior and senior high bands these past two weekends. As both a parent and community member I am proud to see so many young people represent our school and community with such a high degree of talent and maturity.

Letters to the editor

For those unfamiliar, this is a statewide event in which all schools in Michigan are invited to perform. Each band is critiqued by four judges who are highly regarded professionals in the music education field. The performance includes music they have been preparing for weeks, as well as music completely unseen before the performance!

Their hardwork and dedication was obvious as our own Charlevoix students received the highest ratings possible, placing them among the top groups in our district.

I congratulate both the students and their director, as well as the parents who support them. I would like to encourage the community and school district to continue to support the music program in it's efforts to provide an excellent educational experience for all our children.

It is programs such as this that will carry our young people into a successful future.

Public should be involved

Editor: Yes, we really want the public in site selection.

If the "general public is not qualified to evaluate and decide" on the site or sewer, how come we're "qualified" to pay for it while we have our noses to the grindstone to do so.

It seems like Charlevoix has enough construction "evaluators" and "deciders" in the general public.

We couldn't wait to get the country schools in for the money. Now we're in the big reverse.

If I remember we have valedictorians from there.

Bridge Street needs more lights

Editor: I know that hardly anyone listens to someone my age, but I really hope someone takes my letter into consideration. I really think that Bridge Street needs more traffic lights.

It would help slow down the traffic and make people follow speed limits. Also, it would make crossing Bridge Street a lot easier for Charlevoix Middle School students and citizens of Charlevoix, Michigan. Sometimes I wait on the curb for ten or fifteen minutes because of the traffic. Once, I waited there for forty-five minutes. That was not fun at all. It is especially terrible in the summer and spring because of the tourism.

Other than plain old stop signs, I would suggest pedestrian signs. (The ones that tell you when to walk and don't walk.) Some people have a lot of trouble seeing from the blind spots coming out of Antrim and other streets connecting onto Bridge Street. If there are more stop lights, it wouldn't be as risky to cross the road.

I really would like to see a significant change in this area to make Bridge Street much safer.

Marion Center a bad location

Editor: I am writing about the new location of the high school on Marion Center Road.

I think they should find a new position for the school because the road is very windy and in the winter it gets really drifted. Because of this there will probably be a lot of accidents or traffic back ups. In addition it will be exceedingly a long drive for people who live on the north side of town. Also you cannot hunt within two miles of it, that's what I heard. The fields and woods are very good for deer hunting and all of the activity will probably scare the deer away. Lots of coyotes like to run around there too. I really think we can find a more preferable place to build the high school. It would also protect the safety of kids playing and people who walk or live on that road. I realize the school wants to build on Marion Center, but I think they should reconsider it.

Hospital Guild scholarship

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild is offering a medical scholarship of $400 per year for a maximum of four years.

The scholarship is open on a competitive basis to anyone with a high school diploma who has been accepted into an approved school for a course of study leading directly into a health care profession.

It is open to employees of the Charlevoix Area Hospital who are already working in the health care field who wish to further their education.

Applicants must reside in the area served by the hospital — Charlevoix and northern Antrim counties. They must also have applied for admission to an accredited school before applying for the scholarship and be accepted into a medical program at the time the scholarship is awarded.

Students are eligible to receive scholarships for four years, so if a student has received a scholarship in the past, they should notify the scholarship committee of their interest in the 2000 scholarship.

Deadline for applications is June 1. To secure an application, persons should contact their high school counselor or write: Scholarship Committee, Attention Kathy Johnson, Charlevoix Area Hospital, 14700 Lakeshore Drive, Charlevoix, MI 49720 or call (231) 547-8502 for an application.

Farmers debate biotech crops

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Until recently, the debate surrounding biotech farming concerned the larger farms in mid and southern Michigan, as well as Illinois and other farming states. But the controversial issue is arriving in northern Michigan and area farmers differ in their opinions of it.

"I don't know if it's good or bad," said Norwood farmer Doug Warner. Warner grows 380 acres of alfalfa and corn, and does not intend to use biotech seeds at this time. He said he wants to see more research on the issue.

"It's a hard situation, because there are lots of unknowns. As far as making our decision, it's still too early," he said.

The Warner farm does not have a problem with corn-damaging insects and they rotate the ground faster than the large commercial growers, many of whom are planting biotech crops.

Agriculture biotechnology genetically engineers plants and alters the DNA so that the plants are not affected by herbicides and pesticides. Farmers are then able to spray and kill the weeds, but not the crops.

While Warner is still not sure of the method, local farmer Tom Wieland will plant 20 acres of biotech soybeans for the first time this spring. He will plant the seeds in an area full of grass and weeds.

"With the genetically-modified way, I can spray the soybeans and the grass and weeds will die, but the plants will be okay," Wieland said.

He is not concerned that the soybeans will be unsafe.

"I don't believe the seed companies would be putting it (biotech seeds) on the market if it wasn't safe."

Whether or not the biotech crops are safe for human health is a big part of the controversy. European countries will not buy the crops and recently Frito Lay said no to biotech crops, the Michigan Farm Bureau states.

But Bob Boehm of the bureau believes Frito Lay's decision was a public relations move made because it sees the public not accepting biotech farming at this time.

Frito Lay is one of the nation's largest snack food producers. The company told suppliers to stop growing genetically modified corn for use in its snack food products. It uses 22 million bushels of corn yearly to produce Doritos and Tostitos tortilla chips.

But more than 600 scientists from around the world signed a declaration supporting agricultural biotechnology, states the Michigan Farm Bureau.

Charlevoix County Farm Bureau representative and farmer Tim Matchett said that the Bureau supports biotech agriculture. He sees a safety-perception problem among consumers.

"People wonder if it is safe for human consumption," Matchett said. So even if the biotech crops are grown there may not be a market for them.

"If the market is limited — that's the question," Matchett said.

Rod Cortright of the Michigan State University Extension Service said he is not concerned about health safety, but admits that "the jury is still out on some of these things."

"Nothing has shown up on the radar screen," Cortright said. But tests of the pollen from genetically-altered corn show there may be an adverse affect on the monarch butterfly.

In the meantime, farmers such as Warner will wait and see.

"There's too much uncertainty," Warner said. He points out that it's the large corporations that are pushing biotech agriculture.

"They're trying to patent the genes, that's where the big money is."

Warner believes it will ultimately be the consumer that decides the acceptance or rejection of biotech crops.

"It's more what the consumer is interested in," he said. "The consumers will make the decision."

Band earns superior rating

The Charlevoix seventh grade concert band earned a superior rating at the District Two Band and Orchestra festival March 3 in Elk Rapids. The 60 member band will advance to the state competition on May 5 and 6.

The band performed, "A March on the King's Highway," by Pierre LaPlante, "Medallion Overture," by William Himes and "A Prehistoric Suite," by Paul Jennings.

Both the seventh and eighth grade bands earned a superior rating in sight reading, which indicates proficiency in reading new music at first sight. (Courtesy photo)

BEACONS

Have you ever wondered about the expression, "a mountain top experience?"

It could simply refer to the sense of awe that many people have when they stand on top of a high mountain and look down on the world around them. However, I think it is one of the many expressions that have come into our language from the Bible.

It is my belief that this comes from the Gospels of Matthew, Mark and Luke, where they describe Jesus on the Mount of Transfiguration. (If you would like to look them up, the references are Matthew 17:1-8, Mark 9:2-10 and Luke 9:28-36.)

At that time, Jesus is drawing near to the end of his earthly ministry and he goes up on the mountain to seek communion with the Father. He takes with him the "inner circle" of apostles - Peter, James and John.

As Jesus is praying, the disciples are dozing off. All of a sudden they become alert and are aware that Jesus is talking with Moses and Elijah, the personifications of the Law and the Prophets. At the same time they see that Jesus' garments have become glistening and intensely white, "his clothes became dazzling white - whiter than anyone in the world could bleach them" (Mark 9:3 NIV). In their semi-groggy state, the apostles are both frightened and overjoyed to find themselves in the presence of such an obvious and tremendous demonstration of the power of God.

Peter, ever the impetuous one, blurts out a plan to build little huts for Jesus, Moses and Elijah so they could all stay on that mountain top and enjoy fellowship together. However, a cloud overshadows the situation and they hear the voice of God coming from the cloud and telling them, "This is my beloved Son. Listen to him." When the cloud clears, the disciples realize that Moses and Elijah are gone.

How often are we like that? We want to hang on to our "mountain top" experiences. We want to hunker down on the spot and stay there and continue to enjoy the blessings that were coming our way.

However, that is not the intent and purpose of God when He allows us to have such experiences. It was not His purpose on the Mount of Transfiguration.

Look at Luke 9:30-31: "And behold, two men talked with him, Moses and Elijah, who appeared in glory and spoke of his departure, which he was to accomplish at Jerusalem."

In other words, God had brought about the visitation with the representatives of the Law and the Prophets in order to prepare Jesus to go forward to everything he must face in Jerusalem. God's will could only be fulfilled when Jesus came down from that mountain and set his face toward the cross.

I think that God often works the same way with us. He gives us mountain top experiences to help prepare us to go forth and do what He has called us to do. So receive such blessings from God and be thankful — and then go forth in His name.

Students invited to take part in state essay contest

In keeping with this year's Michigan Week theme, "Bridging the Centuries," Secretary of State Candice S. Miller announced the Department of State is sponsoring an essay contest for fourth and fifth grade students to encourage them to learn more about Michigan's history.

The contest asks students to write an essay describing the most important Michigan person, place or event of the Twentieth Century. Entries for the essay contest must be postmarked no later than April 14.

"This year's Michigan Week theme, 'Bridging the Centuries,' invites people to explore Michigan's past while imagining its future," said Miller. "The goal of Michigan Week is to encourage people to learn more about Michigan's rich and diverse heritage, something that is particularly important for young people who will propel Michigan into the Twenty-first Century."

Michigan Week 2000 officially begins May 20 and ends May 29. Elmore Leonard, noted writer and Michigan native, is the Michigan Week 2000 celebrity chair and honorary judge for the essay contest. Leonard's works include "Get Shorty," "Fifty-two Pick-up," and "Cuba Libre."

Six winners, three each from the fourth and fifth grade entries, will be announced at the Michigan Week 2000 kickoff at the state capitol in May. Winners will receive a $100 savings bond and an invitation to the Michigan Week 2000 awards reception and luncheon in Marshall on May 23. Winning essays will be posted on the Secretary of State web site and may be used in an upcoming video on Michigan in the Twentieth Century.

Guidelines for the contest are as follows:

- Any fourth or fifth grade students may submit an essay — only one submission per student. Children of Michigan Department of State employees or essay contest judges are not eligible to enter.

*Students must answer the question: "What do you believe is the most important Michigan person, place or event of the Twentieth Century and why?"

*Essays are limited to 500 words or less. Entries can be handwritten, typed or submitted electronically. Written or typed essays should be sent to: Secretary of State Michigan Week Essay Contest, 430 W. Allegan, Lansing, MI, 48918-1195. Electronic essays should be e-mailed to the Secretary of State at: MIWeekessay@sosmail.state.mi.us

*Judging will be based on originality, clarity, organization, use of descriptive language and correct spelling.

For complete contest rules, visit the Secretary of State web site at www.sos.state.mi.us/miweek or send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Secretary of State, 430 W. Allegan, Lansing, MI, 48918-1195.

Community Foundation accepting grant requests

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is again ready to make grants in support of worthy projects in the area — and nonprofit groups, schools and local municipalities in need of funds are invited to submit their grant requests.

During the next few months, the Community Foundation and its Youth Advisory Committee (YAC) will review grant proposals to help fund health initiatives, community development projects, education, the arts and cultural events, environmental efforts and human service programs. The YAC, which is made up of representative from high schools throughout Charlevoix County, will award grants to programs that serve children and teens.

Grant requests should be submitted no later than April 14. Application forms are available through the Community Foundation office and foundation representative are happy to provide advice and assistance to organizations interested in applying for funds.

The Community foundation was established in 1992 by a group of local citizens who hoped to build a charitable group for Charlevoix County. Since then, foundation assets have grown to almost $7 million, thanks to generous contributions from individuals, families and local organizations, as well as matching grants from the Frey and Kellogg foundations.

Like other Community Foundations throughout the country, the organization holds contributions in a permanent endowment and uses only part of the investment income to make grants. Thus, the endowment continues to grow and serve the area for many years to come.

So far, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has returned more than $1.9 million in the form of grants and scholarships.

For more information about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, grant applications and help for grant seekers is available by calling the foundation office at (231) 536-2440 or writing P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI, 49727.

Students receive solo superior ratings

Eighteen Charlevoix students recently competed in the District 2 Solo/Ensemble festival in Gaylord. They brought home 18 superior first division ratings. A woodwind quintet playing "Pachelbel's Canon," a brass quintet playing ragtime music, a clarinet choir performing a piece entitled, "Difference of Opinion," a brass sextet performing Bach and Wagner and two flute soloists were featured. Stroke patients at Charlevoix Area Hospital can now have endarterectomy surgery to remove hardened arteries that may cause a stroke. (Courtesy photo)

Charlevoix Area Hospital equipped to handle strokes

Stroke is the leading cause of death in the United States.

A stroke is a brain attack — as a heart attack is caused when part of the heart muscle loses its blood supply and dies — a stroke occurs when part of the brain loses its blood supply and dies. Two thirds of stroke patients are under 65 years of age and stroke is a major cause of long term disability in the U.S.

The warning signs of a stroke include a sudden and severe headache with no known cause; sudden dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye; sudden weakness or numbness of the face, arm or leg on one side of the body; loss of speech, or trouble talking or understanding speech; an unexplained dizziness, unsteadiness or sudden fall, especially along with any of these other symptoms.

If you or someone you know experiences any of these symptoms, seek medical attention immediately. Go directly to the nearest emergency room or call 911. Most acute care hospitals, including Charlevoix Area Hospital, have the capabilities to detect strokes with various technologies and to treat strokes with several medications that reduce or reverse the effects of a stroke.

C-T scanners are used in evaluating acute neurological disorders such as stroke in the first few hours. Medications such as TPA can be administered, depending on the results of the C-T scan and patient's history and examination. When administered early — within the first few hours of the onset of a stroke — the medications often can reverse the stroke. The key is to seek immediate emergency care in a hospital that has the capabilities to evaluate and treat the stroke has become irreversible.

Certain individuals are at an increased risk of stroke are people with a history of heart disease, history of previous strokes, high blood pressure, diabetes, elevated cholesterol and smokers. These people may benefit from early detection of hardening of the arteries (arterial sclerosis) involving the carotid arteries, which are the major arteries in the neck which supply blood to the brain. Twenty-five to 40 percent of strokes are due to arterial sclerosis of the carotid arteries. A duplex scan, which is a combination of Doppler and ultrasound technology, can examine the carotid arteries and determine if there is significant arterial sclerosis present. This test, which is an outpatient procedure, is painless and non-invasive and is available at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

If there is a significant narrowing of the carotid arteries, a carotid endarterectomy may be recommended by a physician. This operation involves removing the hardening of the arteries from the carotid artery, which then restores normal blood flow to the brain, decreasing the risk of stroke.

Carotid endarterectomy surgery is now being performed at Charlevoix Area Hospital by Drs. Richard S. Hagelberg, M.D., and Craig D. Wendt, M.D.

The major risk of surgery is the risk of a stroke during the operation. To minimize this risk, the oxygen level in the brain is monitored to make sure that the brain is receiving adequate blood. This is done using an instrument called a Cerebral Oximeter, which directly measures the oxygen level in the brain. Following surgery, most patients remain in a hospital for one to three days, and are fairly back to normal levels of activity within a few weeks.

For more information about strokes, the prevention and treatment of strokes, evaluation of the carotid arteries and surgery, speak with your physician or Charlevoix Area Hospital at 547-4024.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX Ordinance No. 659 of 2000

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING SECTION 5.261 OF THE CHARLEVOIX CITY CODE TO DELETE CRIMINAL PENALTIES AND TO PROVIDE THAT VIOLATIONS OF THE CITY ZONING ORDINANCE ARE MUNICIPAL CIVIL INFRACTIONS

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

Section 1. Amendment of Section 5.261.

Section 5.261 of the Charlevoix City Code is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

5.261 PENALTIES

- Any land, dwellings, buildings, or structures used, erected, altered, razed or converted in violation of this Chapter or in violation of any regulations, conditions, permits or other rights granted, adopted or issued pursuant to this Chapter are hereby declared to be a nuisance per se.
- Any person, partnership, corporation, or association who creates or maintains a nuisance per se as defined in subsection (a) above or who violates or fails to comply with this Chapter or any permit issued pursuant to this Chapter shall be responsible for a municipal civil infraction punishable by a fine of no more than $500.00 as determined by the court. Every day that such violation continues shall constitute a separate and distinct offense under the provisions of this Chapter. Nothing in this section shall exempt the offender from compliance with the provisions of this Chapter.
- Upon the request of the Zoning Administrator the City Police Chief or any City police officer is authorized to issue municipal civil infraction citations directing alleged violators of this Chapter to appear in court.
- In addition to enforcing this Chapter through the use of a municipal civil infraction proceeding, the City may initiate proceedings in the Circuit Court to abate or eliminate the nuisance per se or any other violation of this Chapter.
- If during an enforcement action an alleged zoning violator files a request for a variance, the enforcement action may be adjourned until a hearing is held on the variance request.

Section 2. Effective Date.

This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after enactment.

False alarms are a headache for area law enforcement

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The good news is the sheriff's department had no security alarms it needed to respond to in 1999 because of a crime taking place.

The bad news is the department received 113 false security alarms last year to which it needed to respond.

The reasons for the false alarms from businesses and residences in the county vary. Some alarms are incorrectly installed, others malfunction and the companies who sell alarms don't follow-up.

"Companies are selling these things and then wash their hands of them," county commissioner Don Smith said.

And then there's the people factor.

"Some of it is just irresponsibility," Sheriff George Lasater said. "People don't tell friends who come to visit."

Situations occur where friends have permission to enter the house if the owners aren't home, but the owners neglect to give alarm instructions to the visitors.

"Some people deliberately set off their alarms to see how long it takes us to get there," Lasater said.

In 1999, five residences accounted for 60 false security alarms, and three area businesses accounted for 53 false alarms.

The sheriff's department sends a letter to the owners or managers after the first false alarm, asking them to correct the situation. Any further false alarms solicit a fine.

City police chief Dennis Halverson estimates that the police responded to 60 false security alarms in 1999.

"More and more alarms are being put in," Halverson said. That makes for more calls, mostly because the alarms malfunction or maintenance people inadvertently set them off.

The city does not fine people for false alarm calls, Halverson said. "We deal with it on an individual basis. It's rare to have a problem."

The city has a much smaller area to deal with than the sheriff's department, Halverson said.

Muscle Menders will help rid you of aches

Mother, daughter offer therapeutic massages

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Have your aches, pains and stress rubbed away at Muscle Menders Therapeutic Massage and Bodyworks.

The new business, located at 12853 US 31 in the Elite Fitness Gym, is run by a mother and daughter team of certified massage therapists who want to help people feel better.

"Therapeutic massage is a different concept of massages. We can usually treat aches and pains and you will get off the table without them," said co-owner and massage therapist Janet Stutzman. Stutzman is also a registered nurse at Northern Michigan Hospital.

Stutzman's daughter, and certified massage therapist, Torre Ward added she really enjoys knowing her touch has helped someone. "I think touch is very beneficial in a person's life," she said.

Both Ward and Stutzman graduated from Irenes' Myomassology Institute of Southfield with their certificates in massage therapy. Myomassology is the study of muscle massage as a holistic approach to health.

Stutzman said Myomassology is an aid to healing, but it needs to be used regularly as a preventative method to keep the body healthy.

Using therapeutic massage, Stutzman said she helps improve all of the body's systems, such as energy flow, glandular function, circulation and neuromuscular functioning. This is called "whole body healing" because it works to balance the body, mind and spirit, she said.

Stutzman and Ward said they started talking about opening their own practice about halfway through their training.

Charlevoix is the perfect location for this type of business, Stutzman said, because there are very few certified massage therapists in town.

Customers at Muscle Menders have a variety of massages to choose from. Stutzman and Ward are trained in Swedish massage and Thai massage among others.

"Not everyone is enthusiastic about getting undressed and getting on a table," Ward said. In this case she suggested the potential customer try Thai massage, where the recipient is fully clothed. This massage is also known as a natural therapy for flexibility, relaxation and energy balance. It combines a very complex sequence of tissue pressing, stretching, twisting and joint manipulations.

JV players may add more power to varsity next year

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

After ending the season with a respectable 15-5 record, Junior Varsity Basketball Coach Brandon Bruce said many of the members of his team will be strong additions to the varsity team.

Bruce specifically pointed out four players who, with a little work, he feels will be great additions to the varsity team. One of these players, Jim Shepherd, has already been in a few varsity games.

"I think with his work ethic, he will be an excellent addition to (Varsity Coach Keith Haske)," Bruce said.

He added Rob Boss, Keith Daly and Ryan Rafacz will also be a great asset to next year's varsity team.

"(Boss) is a big kid. I think he could get in there and really bang with some of those kids next year. It will be really interesting...." Bruce said.

Bruce added all Daley and Rafacz need are to step up their games a little more and they will also be strong forces on the varsity team.

As for next year's JV team, Bruce said he thought this year's freshman team was "not bad."

The team started off kind of shaky, but Freshman Coach Tim Volovsek really drilled them on the fundamentals, Bruce said.

"They improved tremendously over the season. If they just continue to work on those fundamentals they can come up and be successful," he said.

Overall, Bruce said if all of the kids who played this year really put some effort into training this summer and improving their skills, they all will pretty much be strong players next year.

"It depends a lot on them and what they want. We'll have to wait and see, I guess," he said.

Bruce added, while this year's JV team ended the season with a very good record, he felt they could have done much better.

"While we ended up with an excellent season, in the back of my mind I was thinking, 'Man, if we just stayed focused it could be 17 and 3,'" he said.

While he may have felt his players could have been more successful this year, Bruce said he really thought it was a great year and his players were excellent to work with.

"They have a chance at really being successful next year," he said.

Rayders named district champions, second time

By JEREMY MCBAIN

The Rayders have repeated. For the second year in a row, the Charlevoix High School varsity basketball team took the district title. This year it came with a 99-73 win over Harbor Springs in Elk Rapids Friday.

"I thought we just played real well," said Coach Keith Haske. "Adam Wood started us off with five (successful) three point shots."

Wood ended the night with a total of 28 points. Sean Stockman came second with 27 points. Scott Parrish had 14 points and Shay Hutchison had 13 points.

This is the third time this season Charlevoix has played Harbor Springs. The first two times were during regular season play, with Charlevoix taking the win each time.

Before heading into Friday's game, the Rayders came off a big win March 8 against Mancelona with a lop-sided 90-52 score.

Haske said the Rayders played very well, especially in the second half of that game. According to Haske the two biggest factors in that win was the amount of pressure Charlevoix put on Mancelona and the Rayders' bigger size.

"I didn't expect it to be as lop-sided as it

"In a tournament you have to take one game at a time. If you have a bad night, you go home."

Keith Haske,
Rayders coach

was. But, I was real pleased with the way (the Rayders) played," Haske said.

Leading scorers for the March 8 game were: Parrish with 20 points — 18 of those were in the first half, Hutchison with 17 points, Wood with 16 points and Stockman with 11 points.

"The team is excited. They were very excited Friday night," Haske said Monday about the district wins.

While the Rayders may be basking in Friday's title win, the team had very little time to rest before heading off to regionals.

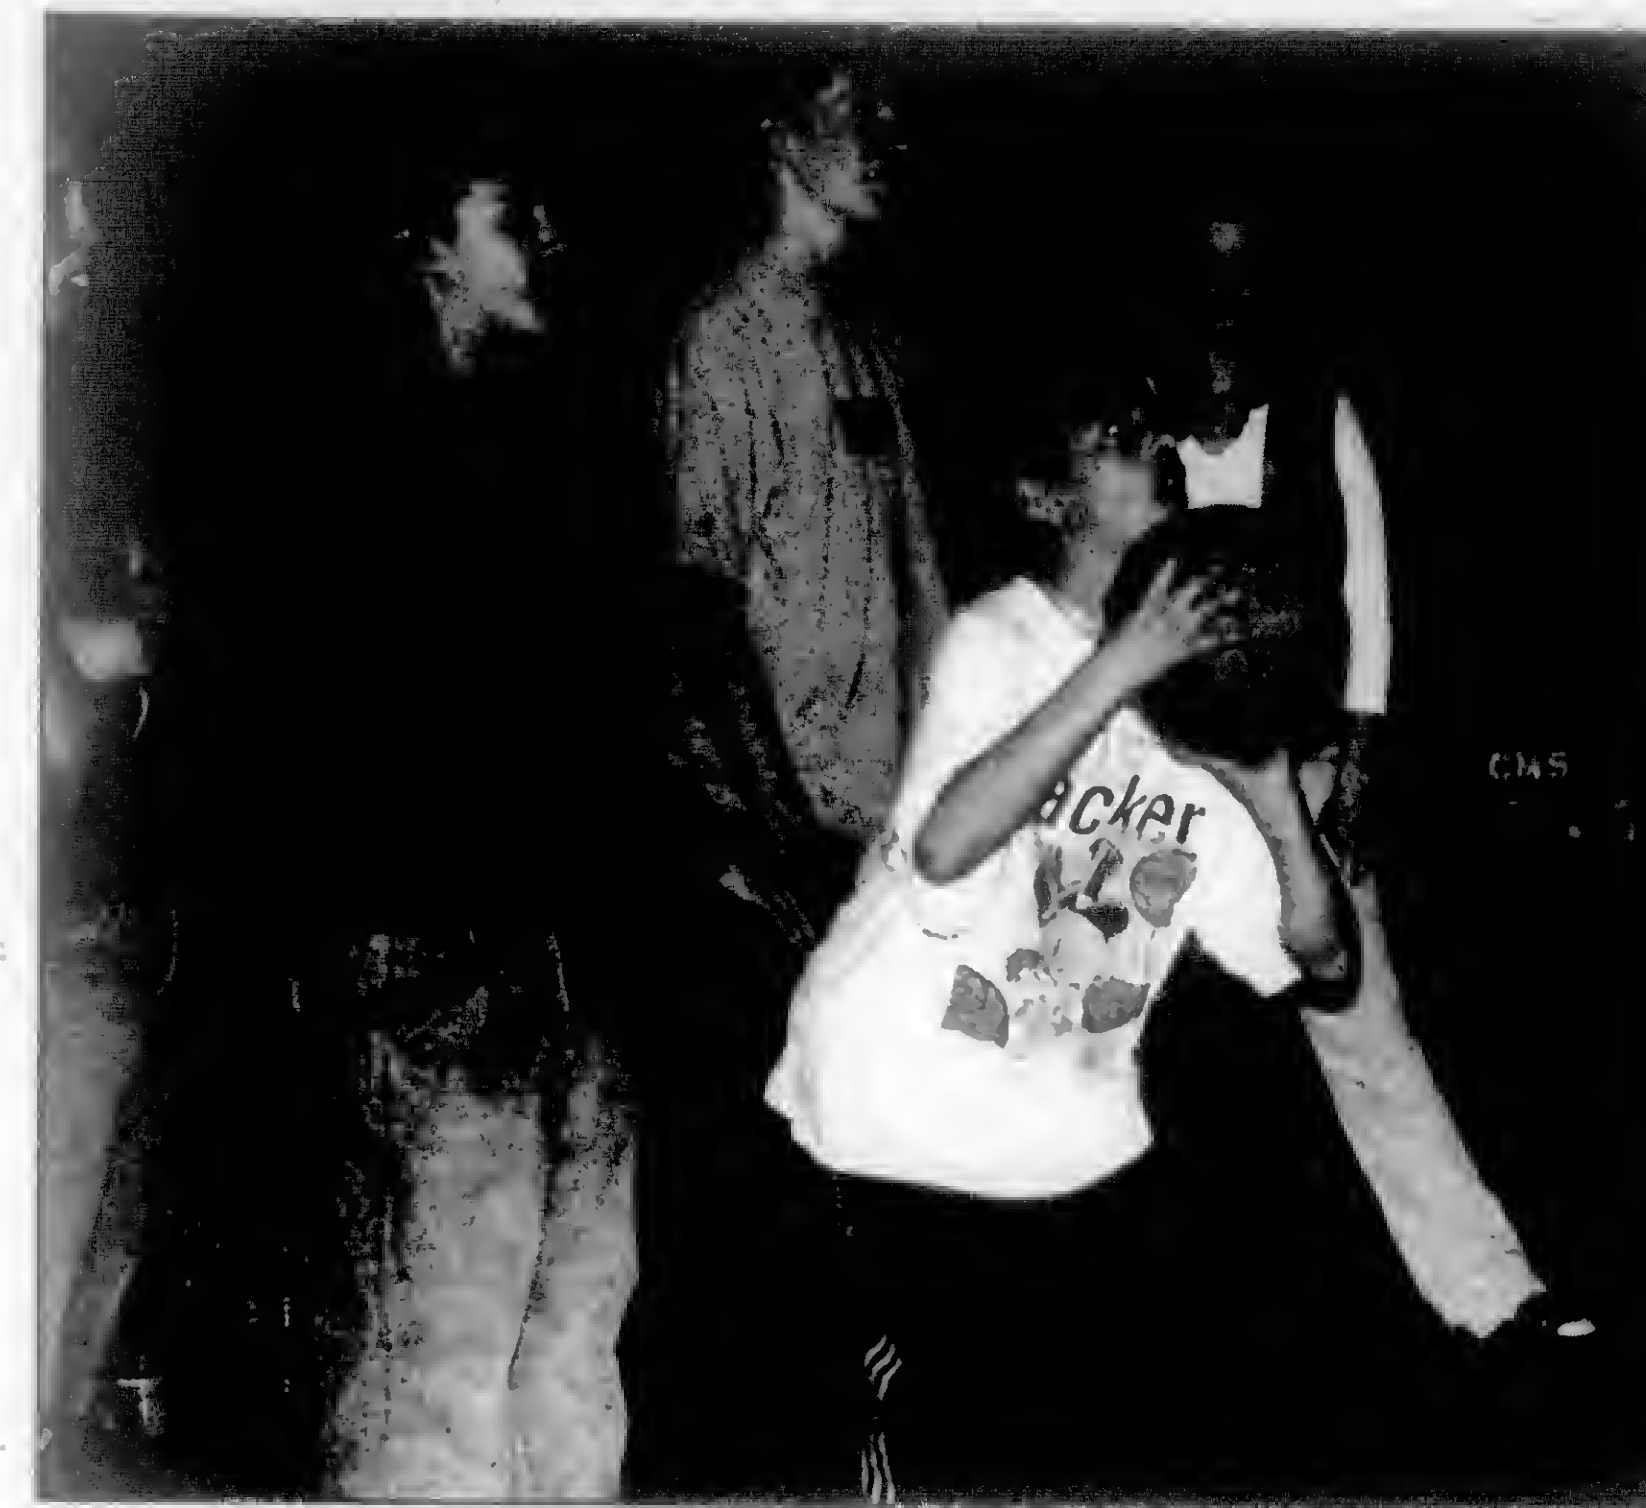

They played Mio last night in Gaylord. The results of this game were unavailable before press-time.

Haske said he had no predictions about Mio before the game. He added the Rayders will have to keep an eye on a certain Mio guard who is very quick and very good.

"In a tournament, you have to take one game at a time. If you have a bad night, you go home," Haske said.

The Rayders and their fans go wild after Friday's victory over Harbor Springs. The win gives Charlevoix the district championship title for the second year in a row. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

Several Charlevoix skiers named to All-State teams

It was the Charlevoix County girls who dominated the top selections for all-state honors in skiing.

Charlevoix senior Tiffany Fisher, Boyne City senior Andrea Gerling and Boyne City junior Meghann Gerling were named to the all-state first team.

Charlevoix senior Todd Freidinger was named to the all-state second team, while Charlevoix senior Steve Pirie and sophomore Roscoe Serrels were named to the third team.

Earning a spot on the all-state honorable mention team were Charlevoix sophomore Lexi Wilson, Mindy McCutcheon of Boyne City and Tarn Leach of East Jordan.

"It just shows how much skiing talent and competition there is in our county to have so many skiers named to the all-state teams," said Charlevoix Coach Sue Miller.

Also earning honors were Miller, who was named all-region boys' coach, and Bob Simpson of Boyne City, who was named all-region girls' coach.

Official Notice

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX Ordinance No. 658 of 2000 AN ORDINANCE TO COMPREHENSIVELY UPDATE THE CITY CODE

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

1. Section 1.8(1) is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 1.8(1) which shall read in its entirety as follows:

(1) "Person" shall include any individual, partnership, sole proprietorship, corporation, limited liability company, association, organization, club, estate, trust, and any other group or combination acting as a unit, and the individuals constituting such group or unit.

2. Section 1.11 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 1.11 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

1.11 Notice. Except where otherwise provided or when a different method of notice is required by state law, any notice required to be given by any section of this Code shall be served:

(1) By delivering the notice to the owner personally or by leaving the notice at his residence, office or place of business with some person of suitable age or discretion, or

(2) By mailing said notice by first class mail to such owner at his last known address, or

(3) If the owner is unknown, by posting said notice in some conspicuous place on the premises at least three (3) days before the act or action concerning which the notice is given is required or is to occur.

No person shall interfere with, obstruct, mutilate, conceal, or tear down any notice made pursuant to this section without the authority of the city manager, the chief of police, or the city officer responsible for placing said notice.

3. Section 1.12 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 1.12 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

1.12 Penalty. Unless another penalty is expressly provided by this Code, any person who violates any provision of this Code shall be responsible for a municipal civil infraction as defined in Public Act 12 of 1994, amending Public Act 236 of 1961, being Sections 600.101-600.993 of Michigan Compiled Laws, and shall be subject to a fine of not more than Five Hundred and 00/100 ($500.00) Dollars. Each day this Code is violated shall be considered as a separate violation. Any action taken under this section shall not prevent civil proceedings, or any other procedure or remedy for abatement or termination of the prohibited activity.

4. Section 1.52 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

1.52. The city manager shall see that all laws, ordinances, rules, and regulations adopted by the city council, and the provisions of this Code, are properly enforced. The city manager shall attend all meetings of the council, regular and special unless excused by the city council. During the absence or disability of the manager, the manager shall designate a qualified city employee to temporarily perform the duties of the city manager. The city manager may delegate to a qualified city employee any action or decision which the city manager is authorized to make pursuant to this Code.

5. Section 2.65(7) is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

2.65(7). Any person violating the provisions of this Section or the written order of the City of Charlevoix Water Department in pursuance of this Section is responsible for a municipal civil infraction.

6. Section 2.118 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

2.118. Notice to Remediate at City's Option. Prior to the imposition of the penalties set forth in Section 1.12 of this Code, the City shall not be required but may at its sole discretion, issue notice to a person in violation of this Chapter stating the nature of the violation and providing no more than ten (10) days for the correction of said violation.

7. Section 3.3 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

3.3. Fireworks. No person shall discharge or set off any rocket, firecracker, roman candle or firework containing any substance of an explosive or flammable nature in any public park or playground. This section shall not apply to special fireworks exhibitions made pursuant to a permit from the city.

8. Section 3.4 is hereby repealed.

9. Section 3.7 is hereby repealed.

10. Section 3.12 is hereby repealed.

11. Section 3.15 is amended to read in its entirety as follows:

3.15. Same - Possession or consumption prohibited in certain public places.

It shall be unlawful for any person to possess or consume alcoholic beverages between the hours of 9:30 p.m. and 6:00 a.m. in any public park, playground, recreational area or athletic field owned, leased or rented by the City of Charlevoix. Provided, however, that such restriction does not extend to privately owned vessels moored in the yacht basin nor does it extend to any specific location authorized by the city manager as set forth in Section 3.14 of this Chapter.

12. Section 4.9 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

4.9 Violation of this Section is a municipal civil infraction.

Upon determination by the city manager that a newsrack, planter, table or chair, goods or merchandise, or other article or object has been installed, used, or maintained in violation of the provisions of this chapter, a notice to correct the offending condition will be issued to the owner or operator of such newsrack, planter, table or chair, goods or merchandise, or other article or object. The notice shall describe the offending condition, request the action necessary to correct the condition and specify the time within which the offending condition must be corrected. If an offending condition is not properly identified by the owner or operator of the business premises located immediately adjacent to such section of the public street or sidewalk, the offending condition shall be removed immediately and processed as unclaimed property. An offending condition which is located on a public street, sidewalk or other public property shall be deemed a hazardous condition and an interference with the public's right to use such public places and shall be removed. The city manager or his designee may institute such legal proceedings as are necessary to enforce this Chapter.

13. Section 4.101 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

4.101. Trees on Private Property - Removal - Trimming. Every owner of any dead or diseased and dying tree upon the private property of such owner shall, upon notice, remove such dead or diseased and dying tree from such private property within thirty (30) days of receipt of such notice, or in such additional time as the City may in writing authorize. The owner shall be responsible for the cost of said removal.

Every owner of any tree overhanging any street or right-of-way within the City shall trim the branches so that such branches shall not obstruct the light from any street lamp, obstruct the view of any street intersection, obstruct City maintenance equipment, obstruct a portion of any sidewalk, or touch or interfere with any public utility line. Said owners shall remove all dead, diseased or dangerous trees, or broken or decayed limbs which constitute a menace to the safety of the public. The City shall have the right to trim any tree or shrub on private property which violates this section.

14. Sections 6.1 through 6.7 are hereby repealed and replaced in their entirety as follows:

6.1. Definitions. As used in this Section the following terms shall have the meanings prescribed in this section.

(1) "Building materials" includes but is not limited to lumber, bricks, concrete or cinder blocks, plumbing or heating materials, electrical wiring or equipment, shingles, mortar, cement, or cement, nails, screws, or any other materials used in construction of any structure.

(2) "Garbage" means rejected food wastes, including waste accumulation of animal, fruit or vegetable material used or intended for food or that relate to the preparation, use, cooking, dealing in, or storing of meat, fish, fowl, fruit or vegetables.

(3) "Junk" - By way of example and not limitation the term shall include used or salvaged metals and their compounds or combination, used or salvaged rope, rubber, tires or car parts.

(4) "Liquid industrial wastes" means any liquid brine, by-product, industrial wastewater, leachate, off-specification commercial product, sludge, grease-trap clean-out residue, used oil, or other liquid waste produced by, incident to or resulting from industrial or commercial activity except any liquid brine normally used in oil or gas extraction on a site permitted by the Michigan Supervisor of Wells.

(5) "Rubbish" means solid wastes such as paper, cardboard, metal containers, wood, glass, bedding, crockery, bags, rags, and demolished materials.

(6) "Sealed container" means a covered, closable container which is fly-proof and watertight such as garbage cans with property fitting tops or plastic garbage bags which have been closed or twisted shut.

(7) "Totally closed structure" means a building capable of being sealed on all sides such as a house, garage or storage shed with a roof, floor and walls or closure doors around its perimeter.

(8) "Motor vehicles" are hereby defined as any wheeled vehicle which is designed to be self-propelled.

(9) "Inoperable motor vehicles" are defined as motor vehicles, which by reason of dismantling, disrepair, lack of licensing or other cause are either incapable of being propelled under their own power or are prevented by law from being so propelled.

(10) "Dismantled and partially dismantled motor vehicles" are defined as motor vehicles from which some part or parts ordinarily a component of such motor vehicle has been removed or is missing.

(11) "Vermin" shall mean a skunk, raccoon, chipmunk or squirrel.

6.2. Nuisances. The following are hereby declared to be nuisances:

(1) The keeping or storage of building materials outside on private property unless (a) there is in force a valid building permit from the County Building Department for construction on that property and the building materials are for use in such construction, or (b) in situations where no building permit is required the building materials must be used for on-going construction and the cumulative time for the on-site storage of any building materials, including new building materials, shall not exceed six months.

(2) The keeping or storage of junk, garbage or rubbish outside of a totally enclosed structure on private property except in a sealed container designed for the purpose of holding such ashes, junk, garbage, or rubbish.

(3) The placing of ashes, junk, garbage or rubbish on private property without the owner's permission or on public property. This provision applies regardless of whether the ashes, junk, garbage or rubbish is in a sealed container.

(4) The keeping or storage of junk, garbage or rubbish on private property, including inside a building, in such a manner that the items, regardless of the method of containment, have become a breeding ground, food source or habitation of insects, rodents or vermin.

(5) Intentional depositing of liquid petroleum crude oil, liquid petroleum crude oil by-products and derivatives or liquid industrial wastes on the ground.

(6) The existence of any structure or damaged partial structure which because of fire, wind or other natural disaster or physical deterioration is no longer habitable as a dwelling, nor currently useful for any other purposes for which it may have been intended.

(7) The existence of any vacant building, garage, house or out-building unless such structure is kept secure from entry by the public.

(8) Except as required by law, the distributing, placing, posting, or affixing of posters, notices, or handbills on private property without consent of the owner or occupant or in a public right-of-way; provided, however, notices which do not cause a visual obstruction to traffic or pedestrians may be placed on public utility poles.

(9) The maintenance of any pond, pool of water, or vessel holding stagnant water which serves as a breeding ground for insects.

(10) The emission of fumes or gas in such quantities as to cause discomfort to a person of normal sensory acuity at an adjoining property or public place.

(11) Any vehicle used for an illegal purpose.

(12) Any use of public streets or public sidewalks, or both, which causes a crowd to gather and obstructs the free, lawful movement of people and vehicles along said streets and sidewalks.

(13) Spitting on any sidewalk or on the floor or seat of any public place.

(14) Keeping or housing any animals or domestic fowl within the city other than dogs, cats, birds or animals commonly classified as pets. For the purposes of this section the term "dog" shall include the male and female of the dog family or genus canis.

(15) The keeping of any abandoned, unattended or discarded icebox, refrigerator or similar lighted container having a door or excess with a magnetic seal, snap latch or other locking device, in a place accessible by children without first removing the magnetic seal, snap latch or locking device or doors, or securely locking same.

(16) The storage of inoperable or dismantled or partially dismantled motor vehicles outdoors. This Section shall not apply to garages and service stations openly and actively engaged in making service repairs for the public, nor dismantled, partially dismantled or inoperable motor vehicles stored in a closed building.

6.3. Prohibition. No person shall commit, create, or maintain any nuisance. No person shall knowingly permit the existence of a nuisance on the property owned or possessed by such person.

6.4. Industrial Usage. The storage or keeping of salvageable metal or wood shall not be prohibited on property on which is located a factory engaged in manufacturing, assembling or machining as long as the salvageable metal or wood is for resale or reuse by the occupant of the property.

6.5. Separate Court Action, Nuisance Per Se. Nothing in this Ordinance shall prohibit the City or any interested party from seeking such other relief as may be permitted in law or in equity regarding the existence of a nuisance. A violation of this Chapter is deemed to be a nuisance per se.

15. Sections 8.25, 8.28 and 8.29 are hereby repealed.

16. Section 6.47 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

6.47. Persons to Maintain Premises Free of Litter. The owner, occupant, or person in control of any private premises shall at all times maintain the premises free of litter. Provided, however, that this section shall not prohibit the storage of litter in authorized private receptacles for collection.

17. Section 6.48 is hereby amended to read as follows:

6.48. Enforcement. The chief of police or his designee is hereby charged with the enforcement of this Chapter. No person being the owner, occupant, or person in control of any private premises shall accumulate or permit the accumulation of any litter on the private premises owned, controlled or occupied by such person in a manner prohibited by the provisions of this Chapter.

18. Section 6.49 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 6.49 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

6.49 Nuisance Per Se. A violation of this Chapter is hereby declared to constitute a nuisance per se. Upon application to any court of competent jurisdiction, the court may order the nuisance abated and/or the violation restrained and enjoined. Relief sought pursuant to this section shall not operate to preclude the enforcement of this Chapter pursuant to Section 1.12 of this Code.

19. Section 6.91 is hereby amended to repeal the definition of "person".

20. Section 6.93 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 6.93 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

6.93 Nuisance Per Se.

A violation of Section 6.92(a) is hereby declared to be a nuisance per se and any action and violation thereof may be immediately enjoined in the Charlevoix County Circuit Court. Enforcement of this Section shall not preclude enforcement for violation of this Chapter pursuant to Section 1.12 of this Code.

21. Section 7.67 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 7.67 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

7.67 Nuisance Per Se. A violation of this Chapter is hereby declared to be a nuisance per se and any action and violation thereof may be immediately enjoined in the Charlevoix County Circuit Court. Enforcement of this section shall not preclude enforcement for violation of this Chapter pursuant to Section 1.12 of this Code.

22. Section 8.67 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 8.67 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

8.67 Nuisance Per Se. A violation of this Chapter is hereby declared to be a nuisance per se and any action and violation thereof may be immediately enjoined in the Charlevoix County Circuit Court. Enforcement of this section shall not preclude enforcement for violation of this Chapter pursuant to Section 1.12 of this Code.

23. Section 9.1 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

9.1 Definitions.

(1) The term "public place" as used in this Chapter shall mean any street, alley, park, public building, parking lot, body of water, any place of business or assembly open to or frequented by the public, and any other place to which the public has access.

(2) The term "public nudity" shall mean knowingly or intentionally displaying in a public place, or for payment or promise of payment by any person including, but not limited to, payment or promise of payment of an admission fee, any individual's genitals or anus with less than a fully opaque covering, or a female individual's breast with less than a fully opaque covering of the nipple and areola. Public nudity does not include any of the following:

(a) A woman's breast feeding of a baby whether or not the nipple or areola is exposed during or incidental to the feeding.

(b) Material as defined in section 2 of Act No. 343 of the Public Acts of 1984, being section 752.362 of the Michigan Compiled Laws.

(c) Sexually explicit visual material as defined in section 3 of Act No. 33 of the Public Acts of 1978, being section 722.673 of the Michigan Compiled Laws.

24. Section 9.2 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 9.2 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

9.2 Acts Prohibited. No person shall:

(1) Discharge any firearm, air rifle, air pistol or bow end arrow in the city, except when lawfully acting in the defense of persons, property or the enforcement of law or of a duly established range, the operation of which has been approved by the city council.

(2) Engage in public nudity.

(3) Engage in any disturbance, fight, or quarrel in a public place.

(4) Obstruct traffic on any street or sidewalk without the approval of the city manager.

(5) Refuse to leave a public meeting after having been validly ordered to leave the meeting pursuant to a rule or bylaw of the public body holding the meeting.

25. A new Section 9.3 is created which reads in its entirety as follows:

9.3 Misdemeanor. Each person violating this Chapter is guilty of a misdemeanor. A person convicted of violation of this Chapter shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500) and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment for not more than ninety (90) days, or both.

26. Section 9.11 is hereby repealed.

27. Section 9.16 is hereby repealed.

28. Section 9.21 is hereby repealed.

29. Sections 9.41 through 9.44 are hereby repealed.

30. Section 9.51 is hereby repealed.

31. Section 9.52 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 9.52 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

9.52 Possession or Consumption of Open Intoxicants. No person shall possess open intoxicants or consume intoxicants in a public place unless such possession or consumption is allowed by state law or this Code.

32. Sections 9.61 through 9.65 are hereby repealed.

33. Sections 9.94 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

9.94 Aiding Underage Children to Violate Law. Any person of the age of seventeen (17) years or over who shall assist, aid, abet, allow, permit, or encourage any minor under the age of seventeen (17) years to violate the provisions of section 9.91, 9.92 or 9.93 hereof, or shall harbor any such child in any other public place or on its premises, contrary to the provisions of sections 9.91, 9.92 or 9.93 hereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500) and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment for not more than ninety (90) days, or both.

34. Section 9.95 is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

9.95 Parents, Guardians, Etc. Any parent, guardian or other person having the legal care or custody of any minor child under the age of seventeen (17) years who shall allow or permit such minor child while in his legal custody, to loiter, idle or congregata in or upon any public street, highway, alley, park or other public place, contrary to sections 9.91, 9.92 or 9.93, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500) and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment for not more than ninety (90) days, or both.

35. Sections 9.121 through 9.124 are hereby repealed.

36. Sections 9.131 through 9.137 are hereby repealed.

37. Section 9.142 is amended to read in its entirety as follows:

9.142 Definitions.

(1) The term "animal" as used in this Chapter, shall mean a dog or a cat.

(2) The term "control" means the management of the location and/or direction of travel of the animal.

(3) The term "owner's property" shall mean land which is owned by the animal owner or which the animal owner rents as well as land on which the animal owner has permission to be with his or her animal.

(4) An owner of an animal includes a person who has a right of proprietorship in such animal, as well as a person who has possession or care of an animal even if such person has no right of property in such animal.

38. Section 9.143 is amended and shall read in its entirety as follows:

No person shall:

(1) While not on the animal owner's property have or permit his or her animal to be outside of a structure or vehicle unless the animal is on a leash and under control;

(2) Permit his or her animal or an animal under his or her possession to defecate at a location which is not the owner's property; provided, however, it shall not be a violation of this Chapter if the feces is immediately cleaned up and placed in a trash receptacle or taken to a location where the owner has permission to dispose of the feces; or

(3) Have or permit an animal required to be licensed, required to be immunized against rabies, or both to be outside the owner's property unless licensed as required by law and unless wearing its license tag and evidence of rabies immunization if required by law.

39. Section 9.144 is hereby repealed.

40. Sections 9.151 through 9.153 are hereby repealed.

41. Sections 9.201 through 9.204 are hereby repealed.

42. Sections 9.223 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 9.223 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

9.223 Penalty. A violation of this section shall be a municipal civil infraction pursuant to Section 1.12 of this Code.

43. A new Chapter 165 is hereby adopted which reads in its entirety as follows:

12.1. Definitions.

Section 1. As used in this Chapter, the following terms shall have the meanings prescribed in this section:

A. "Act" means Act No. 236 of the Public Acts of 1961, as amended.

B. "Authorized city official" means the City Police Chief, a City Police Officer and any other personnel of the City of Charlevoix authorized by this Chapter or any other Chapter of this Code to issue Municipal Civil Infraction Citations or Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notices.

C. "Citation" means a written complaint or notice to appear in court, upon which an authorized City official records the occurrence or existence of one or more municipal civil infractions by the person cited.

D. "Municipal civil infraction" shall have the definition set forth in MCL 600.113(c), as amended.

E. "Municipal civil infraction action" means a civil action in which the defendant is alleged to be responsible for a municipal civil infraction.

F. "Municipal Civil Infraction Citation" means a written complaint or notice on which an authorized City official records the occurrence or existence of one or more municipal civil infractions by the person cited and which directs the person cited to appear in court regarding the alleged municipal civil infraction.

G. "Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice" means a written notice on which an authorized City official records the occurrence or existence of one or more municipal civil infractions by the person cited, and directs the person cited to appear at the City of Charlevoix Municipal Violations Bureau to pay the fine and costs, if any, prescribed for the violation by the schedule of civil fines established under this Chapter.

H. "Municipal Violations Bureau" or "Bureau" means the City of Charlevoix Municipal Violations Bureau as established by this Chapter.

12.2. Municipal Violations Bureau.

Section 2.

A. Bureau established.

The City hereby establishes a Municipal Violations Bureau (Bureau) as authorized under Section 8396 of the Act.

B. Location, supervision, employees, rules and regulations.

The Bureau shall be located at the City of Charlevoix offices, and shall be under the supervision and control of the City Clerk. The City Clerk, subject to the approval of the City Council, shall adopt rules and regulations for the operation of the Bureau and may appoint any necessary and qualified City employees to administer the Bureau.

C. Disposition of violations.

The Bureau may only dispose of municipal civil infraction violations for which a fine has been scheduled pursuant to Section 10 of this Code and for which a Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice (as opposed to a Municipal Civil Infraction Citation) has been issued. The fact that a fine has been scheduled for a particular violation shall not entitle any person to dispose of the violation at the Bureau. Nothing in this Chapter shall prevent or restrict the City from issuing a Municipal Civil Infraction Citation for any violation designated as a municipal civil infraction in this Code, or from prosecuting any violation in a court of competent jurisdiction, as provided in this Code.

D. Scope of Bureau responsibility.

The scope of the Bureau's authority shall be limited to accepting admissions of responsibility for municipal civil infractions and collecting and retaining civil fines and costs assessed as a result of those admissions. The Bureau shall not accept payment of a fine from any person who denies having committed the municipal civil infraction or who admits responsibility for the municipal civil infraction only with explanation. In no event shall the Bureau determine, or attempt to determine, the truth or falsity of any fact or matter relating to an alleged violation. In addition, no person shall be required to dispose of a municipal civil infraction violation at the Bureau and may have the violation processed before a court of competent jurisdiction. The unwillingness of any person to dispose of any violation at the Bureau shall not prejudice the person or in any way diminish the rights, privileges, and protection accorded the person by law.

E. Appearance; payment of fines and costs.

A person receiving a Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice shall appear at the Bureau and pay the specified fine and costs at or before the time specified for appearance in the Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice. An appearance may be made by mail, in person, or by representation.

F. Procedure when admission of responsibility not made or fine not paid.

If an authorized City official issues and serves a Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice, and if an admission of responsibility is not made and a civil fine and costs, if any, as prescribed by the schedule of fines for the violation, are not paid at the Bureau within the time specified for appearance in the Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice, the authorized City official may file a Municipal Civil Infraction Citation with the District Court. The contents of the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation shall comply with requirements of Section 7 of this Chapter. A copy of the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation issued under this subsection may be served by first class mail upon the person named in the Citation at the person's last known address.

12.3. Commencement of Municipal Civil Infraction Action.

Section 3. A municipal civil infraction action may be commenced upon the issuance by an authorized City official of (1) a Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice directing the alleged violator to appear at the City of Charlevoix Municipal Violations Bureau, or (2) a Municipal Civil Infraction Citation directing the alleged violator to appear in District Court.

12.4. Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notices.

Section 4. Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notices shall be issued by authorized City officials under the same circumstances and upon the same persons as provided for the issuance of Municipal Civil Infraction Citations under Section 5 of this Chapter. A Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice shall contain the following information:

School board waives right to challenge

The county clerk's office stated that 891 signatures were needed for each board member up for recall, before a recall election could be set.

The local government offices have verified 930 signatures to recall Allen Telgenhof, 925 for Scott Boss, 924 for Dennis Halverson, 921 for Ardeth Wieland, and 918 for Barney Way. These are the final figures.

Many of the signatures were dropped by the county clerk's office because they were duplicates or people who weren't registered to vote. Between 80-90 signatures for each board member were dropped, reported the clerk's office.

The school board is entitled to a period of time to challenge signatures on the recall petitions.

The county clerk's office has not yet determined whether an election may be set earlier, due to the board waiving their time. It is checking with the state elections commission.

In waiving that period, the board is not making any predictions about the outcome of a recall election.

"I will say, though, that we have done our homework and researched all of the issues regarding the site for the new high school. The group seeking to recall us has had over five months to look and their spokesman told the newspaper just two weeks ago that they have no alternative site," Telgenhof said. "I think that is something people should weigh very heavily when they cast their vote."

Three community groups are seeking recall of Telgenhof, Wieland, Way, Boss and Halverson. The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools, Committee for Sponsoring Neighborhood Schools and the Committee for Supporting Neighborhood Schools, disagree with the Marion Center Road site approved by the board for the new high school.

The committees repeatedly asked the board to consider other sites, but the board refused to do so, stating that it chose the best site available.

Jeff Porter, of the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools, said he is surprised that the board is calling for an earlier election date.

But board treasurer Barney Way is concerned about delaying the construction of the new high school.

"Delay in this project could potentially cost the taxpayers over a million dollars in increased construction costs, not to mention causing us to miss the opening date for the new high school of the fall of 2002, which is what we promised the voters," Way said. "It's time to bring this issue to a head so we can get our community back focused on the positives of our school system."

B. The Municipal Civil Infraction Citation shall also inform the alleged violator that he or she may do one of the following:

- (1) Admit responsibility for the municipal civil infraction by mail, in person, or by representation, at or before the time specified for appearance in the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation.
- (2) Admit responsibility for the municipal civil infraction "with explanation" by mail, in person, or by representation, at or before the time specified for appearance in the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation.
- (3) Deny responsibility for the municipal civil infraction by doing either of the following:

- (a) Appearing in person for an informal hearing before the District Court Judge or magistrate, without the opportunity of being represented by an attorney, unless a formal hearing before a judge is requested by the City.
- (b) Appearing in court for a formal hearing before the District Court Judge, with the opportunity of being represented by an attorney.

C. The Municipal Civil Infraction Citation shall also inform the alleged violator of all the following:

- (1) If the alleged violator desires to admit responsibility "with explanation" in person or by representation, the alleged violator must apply to the 90th District Court in person, by mail, by telephone, or by representation within the time specified for appearance in the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation to obtain a scheduled date and time to appear for a hearing, unless a hearing date is specified on the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation.
- (2) If the alleged violator desires to deny responsibility, the alleged violator must apply to the 90th District Court in person, by mail, by telephone, or by representation within the time specified for appearance in the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation to obtain a scheduled date and time to appear for a hearing, unless a hearing date is specified on the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation.
- (3) A hearing shall be an informal hearing unless a formal hearing is requested by the alleged violator or the City.
- (4) At an informal hearing, the alleged violator must appear in person before the District Court Judge or magistrate, without the opportunity of being represented by an attorney.
- (5) At a formal hearing, the alleged violator must appear in person before the District Court Judge with the opportunity of being represented by an attorney.

12.8. Municipal Civil Infraction Citations and Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notices; Service.

Section 8. Municipal Civil Infraction Citations and Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notices shall be served by an authorized City official as follows:

- A. Except as provided by subsection (2) below, an authorized City official shall personally serve a copy of the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation or the Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice upon the person or persons named therein.
- B. If the municipal civil infraction action involves the use or occupancy of land, a building, or other structure, a copy of the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation or the Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice may be served upon an owner or occupant of the land, building, or structure by posting a copy of the Citation or Notice on the land, building, or structure and by sending by first class mail, a copy of the Citation or Notice to the owner or occupant of the land, building, or structure, at the owner's or occupant's last known address.
- C. If a Municipal Civil Infraction Citation is being issued pursuant to a failure to admit responsibility and pay the fines and costs to the City of Charlevoix Municipal Violations Bureau resulting from a Municipal Civil Infraction Violation Notice issued by an authorized city official, the Municipal Civil Infraction Citation may be served by first class mail upon the alleged violator at his or her last known address.

12.9. Municipal Civil Infraction Citations; Court Procedure. Section 9.

A. A person to whom a Municipal Civil Infraction Citation is issued under this Section shall appear at or before the time specified in the Citation and may respond to the allegations contained in the Citation as follows:

- (1) If the defendant wishes to admit responsibility for the municipal civil infraction, the defendant may do so by appearing in person, by mail, or by representation.
- (2) If the defendant wishes to admit responsibility for the municipal civil infraction "with explanation," the defendant may do so in either of the following ways:

- (a) Appearing by mail.
- (b) By contacting the Court in person, by mail, by telephone, or by representation to obtain from the Court a scheduled date and time for an appearance, at which time the defendant shall appear in Court in person or by representation.

- (3) If the defendant wishes to deny responsibility for a municipal civil infraction, the defendant shall do so by appearing for an informal or a formal hearing. If the hearing date is not specified on a Citation, the defendant shall contact the Court in person, by mail, by telephone, or by representation, to obtain a scheduled date and time to appear for an informal or a formal hearing. If the hearing date is specified on the Citation, the defendant shall appear on that date. The hearing shall be an informal hearing, unless a formal hearing is requested by the defendant or the City.

B. If the defendant fails to appear as directed by the Citation or other notice at a scheduled appearance to admit responsibility "with explanation," at a scheduled informal hearing, or at a scheduled formal hearing, the Court shall enter a default judgment against the defendant.

12.10. Schedule of Civil Fines. Section 10.

A. The City Council may adopt by ordinance a fine schedule and/or an ordinance may specify a fine for a violation of that particular ordinance. If no other fine amount is specified by an ordinance of the City Council, the fines for violations shall be as follows:

Offense	Fine
First Offense:	$50.00
Second Offense within 2 years of initial offense:	$75.00
Third or subsequent offense within 2 years of initial offense:	$100.00

12.11. Fine Sanctions. Section 11.

A. A person charged with a municipal civil infraction under any part of the City of Charlevoix Code and who is served with a Municipal Civil Infraction Citation or Notice under this shall, upon pleading responsible to the municipal civil infraction at the Bureau, be assessed a civil fine in accordance with the civil fine schedule established under this Chapter.

B. A person who is charged with a municipal civil infraction under an ordinance of the City of Charlevoix and who is served a Municipal Civil Infraction Citation under this Chapter shall, upon pleading responsible or being found responsible by the District Court Judge or magistrate, be assessed a civil fine pursuant to the civil fine schedule as established by the District Court.

C. In addition to the civil fines assessed pursuant to subsection (B) above, the District Court Judge, or magistrate (if expressly authorized to do so by the Chief Judge of the 90th District Court) may issue and enforce any order necessary to enforce the ordinance under which the municipal civil infraction was charged.

D. If a person who has pled responsible or has been found responsible for a municipal civil infraction does not comply with any Court order enforcing the ordinance under which the municipal civil infraction arose, then the City may take such other action authorized by law, including but not limited to seeking an Order to Show Cause why the person should not be held in contempt of Court for failure to comply with the Court's original enforcement order.

12.12. Lien on Property. Section 12.

A. If a defendant does not pay the civil fine or costs as required by the District Court Judge or magistrate within thirty (30) days after the date on which payment is due in a municipal civil infraction action brought for a violation involving the use or occupancy of land or a building or other structure, the City or occupancy of land or a building or other structure, the City may obtain a lien against the land, building or structure involved in the violation by recording a copy of the court order requiring payment of the fine and costs with the Register of Deeds for the County in which the land, building or structure is located. The court order shall not be recorded unless a legal description of the property is incorporated in or attached to the court order. The lien is effective immediately upon recording of the court order with the Register of Deeds.

B. The court order recorded with the Register of Deeds shall constitute notice of pendency of the lien. In addition, a written notice of the lien shall be sent by the City by first class mail to the owner of record of the land, building or structure of the owner's last known address.

C. The lien created by this section may be enforced and discharged by the City in the manner prescribed by the General Property Act, Act Number 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, being Section 211.1 to 211.157 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, or by an duly passed by the City. However, the property is not subject to sale under Section 60 of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, being Section 211.60 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, for non-payment of a civil fine or costs unless the property is also subject to sale under that section for delinquent property taxes.

D. A lien created under this section has priority over any other lien unless one or more of the following apply:

- (1) The other lien is a lien for taxes or special assessments;
- (2) The other lien is created before the effective date of the amendatory act that added this section;
- (3) Federal law provides that the other lien has priority;
- (4) The other lien was recorded before the lien under this section is recorded.

E. The City may institute an action in a court of competent jurisdiction for the collection of the fines and costs imposed by a court order for a municipal civil infraction. However, an attempt by the City to collect the fines or costs by any process does not invalidate or waive the lien upon the land, building or structure.

F. A lien provided for by this section shall not continue for a period of longer than five (5) years after a copy of the court order imposing a fine or costs is recorded, unless within that time an action to enforce the lien is commenced.

44. Section 2.6(1) is amended to read in its entirety as follows:

1) Burning and Burying. No person shall throw any trash, garbage or refuse upon the grounds or bury the same on any premises, public or private, or burn the same in any manner.

45. Section 6.30 is added to Chapter 61 of Title VI and shall read in its entirety as follows:

VIOLATIONS

6.30. Violations. A violation of Section 6.21(9) or Section 6.21(10) shall be a misdemeanor. A violation of any other provision of this Chapter shall be a municipal civil infraction.

46. Severability. If any section, clause, or provision of this ordinance is declared unconstitutional or otherwise invalid by a court of competent jurisdiction, said declaration shall not affect the remainder of this ordinance. The City Council declares that it would have passed this ordinance and each part, section, subsection, phrase, sentence and clause irrespective of the fact that any one or more parts, sections, subsections, phrases, sentences or clauses are declared invalid.

School superintendent's contract renewed Monday

Following an evaluation of superintendent John R. Sturock where he scored a 4.8 on a 5.0 scale, the school voted unanimously on Monday to renew his employment contract.

"John is doing a great job as a superintendent," board president Allen Telgenhof said. "We're very fortunate to have him. He's done everything we've asked him to do."

"The district could never attract another superintendent of his quality."

The approximately $90,000 contract is renewed through the year 2002. The board was required by the contract to make a decision by March 15.

"It's a real pleasure working with the board," Sturock said. "They've allowed me to do my job."

Hospital lab undergoes renovation and expansion

A newly renovated laboratory opened this week at Charlevoix Area Hospital, doubling the size of the former lab area.

For patients who visit the lab to have blood drawn for tests, the changes and expansion appear in the form of a bigger waiting area, increased privacy for blood draws and a patient restroom that is handicapped accessible.

In addition to doubling the floor space of the lab, other improvements include everything from new flooring to deeper countertops to proper lighting and adequate air conditioning. All the equipment for the more than 48,600 tests performed in the lab each year generate a lot of heat. Maintaining a cool work environment, as well as a proper temperature for the specimens, is critical in a hospital lab. Now each room in the lab has its own thermostatic controls. A new ceiling will absorb noise, new smoke detectors and built-in sprinklers will keep patients and personnel safe and a back-up machinery room will provide needed services in case of an emergency should the main equipment go off-line.

Lab technicians and personnel now have a quiet room to rest in when they are on call at all hours of the night and early morning, something the former lab was sorely lacking.

SCRAPBOOK

Carey twins athletic giants in Charlevoix

By GEOFFREY D. REYNOLDS
Special to the Courier

"Charlevoix Goes All Out In Honoring Carey Family" read the headline of the April 3, 1952 edition of the Charlevoix Courier as it recounted the event known simply as Carey Day.

A day planned over many months by many people to spotlight two young men eventually became an event to honor a very special family.

On March 28, 1952 the thought of the Korean War was on many peoples' minds as the town turned out to honor twin brothers Bob and Bill Carey. Leading off with a 3 p.m. parade of the "Careyville" business district (Bridge Street), the twins were treated to a ride in an open car with their famous Michigan State College Head Football Coach, Clarence "Biggie" Munn. As the car moved slowly through the crowded street the twins soaked up the cheers of their many fans and the music of the trailing marching band.

After the parade the young men were each presented a personally labeled key to the city by Coach Munn. Later that evening they were the honored guests at a banquet held at the high school gymnasium where over 400 persons were on hand to honor their accomplishments and those of their family. Only a stranger might have wondered what all the fuss was about.

The spark of the Carey twins athletic prowess was evident early in their lives as members of S.E. "Irish" Coleman's elementary age athletic gang affectionately called

"Coleman's Cats."

From there they steadily progressed athletically through the high school ranks under the experienced and encouraging tutelage of legendary Charlevoix football and basketball coach Ray Kipke and coach Coleman with track.

While in high school they repeatedly ranked high in athletic accomplishment in both football, basketball and track.

During their last year of high school both were steadily recruited by Biggie Munn. Once there they served as the offensive ends, with Bill playing quarterback as a junior. Bill would rejoin his brother as the opposite end during their last year at MSU (1951-1952) when the brothers led the team to the college's first undefeated and untied season.

With this effort Bob was voted an All-American by the nation's sportswriters, becoming Charlevoix's first college player to do so. The additional honor of playing in the college all-star game during the summer of 1952 was also bestowed upon him along with being awarded nine varsity letters in three sports. Bill earned four in two sports.

Earlier that spring both men had been drafted into the pro football ranks: Bob with the Los Angeles Rams and Bill the San Francisco Forty-Niners.

After graduating from Michigan State Bill entered the military where he played football instead with the Sixth Army while serving in California and Korea for one year. After being discharged he went on to a successful career in "Carey Day" in Charlevoix when the city honored its first All-American, Bob Carey, and his brother, Bill, brought together the three men who had done the most in molding him. Architect of this all-American were (left) S. E. "Irish" Coleman who started the twins on their athletic careers as members of Coleman's Cats when they were in elementary grades, Bob, Clarence "Biggie" Munn, Michigan State coach who put on the final touches after Ray L. radio in Dearborn for four years before returning to Charlevoix, where he ran an insurance agency for twelve years. Bill later changed careers and eventually retired from the real estate business after twenty-five years. Today he is enjoying retirement with his wife in Charlevoix.

Bob went on to graduate from

Los Angeles State College while playing one year with the Rams and earning the team Rookie of the Year award. His tenure ended at Los Angeles when his knee cap was crushed during a game in the 1953 pre-season. The Rams then traded Bob to the Chicago Bears in 1955 to serve under legendary coach George Hallas as his place kicker.

A task he also excelled at during his college playing days.

Unfortunately that position lasted only one season for Bob as he choose to retire from pro football and move on to a career in business where he also proved a success while serving several companies. Bob later retired to Cincinnati where he passed away in 1988.

Council adopts changes in punishment for city code

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Civil infractions have taken the place of misdemeanors for many of the offenses prohibited under the city's former and updated city code.

Now if a person consumes alcoholic beverages between 9:30 p.m. and 6 a.m. in a city park, athletic field, or other recreational public areas, the person is guilty of a civil infraction, rather than a misdemeanor.

Letting Fi Fi doo doo on other people's lawns without removing it did not change, as it was already a civil infraction.

The change from misdemeanor to civil infraction was the biggest recent revision in Charlevoix's city code and was made through ordinance 658 passed by city council on March 6.

"The system seemed cumbersome for the city and offenders," city manager Mike Wiesner said.

The code is streamlined so tickets are given instead of a citation.

"Some things don't really need to be a criminal offense," police chief Dennis Halverson said.

No longer will offenders need to show up at the district court office to settle up. Instead, the city created a Municipal Violations Bureau where people who have been issued a civil infraction violation notice may pay fines at the bureau if they do not want to contest the notice. People may also mail payments to the bureau.

The Municipal Violations Bureau is an administrative service at the city clerk's office. No additional staff will be hired and the clerk's office will handle the fines, Wiesner said.

Other revisions approved under the ordinance concern tree removal or trimming, burning, litter, parents who let minors loiter, and zoning offenses.

Residents with dead, dying or diseased trees on their property now have 30 days after receiving notice from the city to remove the trees, instead of 72 hours.

Residents may continue to burn papers and wood, but trash, garbage or refuse may not be burned or buried on public or private premises.

A significant change in the code concerning litter-free premises, section 6.47, states that not only the owner of the premises, but an occupant, tenant, or any person in control of any private premises shall maintain the premises free of litter.

Parents, guardians or other persons having legal custody of a minor child will be charged with a misdemeanor if the minor is under 17 and is allowed to loiter, idle or congregate in a public place, contrary to sections 9.91, 9.92 or 9.93 of the code.

City council also passed ordinance 659 that relates to the city zoning laws. This ordinance deletes criminal penalties for violations of the zoning ordinance and provides municipal civil infractions instead.

The ordinances go into effect 30 days from March 6. The city code may be viewed at city hall and the Charlevoix Public Library.

Official Notice

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR A CONSTRUCTION PERMIT FOR A NEW SOLID WASTE DISPOSAL AREA

Part 115, Solid Waste Management, of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act, 1994 PA 451, as amended, Section 11510 (2)(b), provides for a notice of application for construction permit for a solid waste disposal area.

On February 15, 2000, the Department of Environmental Quality received a construction permit application from Waste Management, Inc. for a proposed 11.5-acre horizontal and 2.0-acre vertical expansion of the Cedar Ridge Recycling and Disposal Facility (landfill). The landfill is located in the NE1/4 of the NW1/4, Section 19, T33N, R7E, Eveline Township, Charlevoix County. The landfill is located approximately five miles southeast of Charlevoix and one mile southwest from the Village of Ironton.

The landfill expansion would be licensed to receive domestic, commercial, and industrial wastes. An additional five years of disposal capacity would be added to the existing facility. The landfill expansion area would be constructed of a composite liner system and will be monitored with groundwater monitoring wells.

The complete application package consisting of the application, environmental assessment, hydrogeological monitoring plan may be reviewed at the Department of Environmental Quality, Waste Management Division, Gaylord Office, 2100 West M-32, Gaylord, Michigan 49734-5830, from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday except holidays (telephone number 517-731-4920) or at the Charlevoix County Courthouse Annex, 203 Antrim Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720 (telephone number 231-547-7200).

The Department will hold a public hearing at the Charlevoix County Courthouse in the Pinelake Room (basement) at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 26, 2000, in order to take public comment on the proposal.

The Department has until June 23, 2000, to make final decision on the construction permit application.

Ordinance section declared unlawful Judge rules against city in favor of development

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The city lost in round one of a lawsuit filed against it by developers who want to build subsidized housing units on May Street.

At a hearing in 33rd Circuit Court on Friday, Judge Richard Pajtas ruled that once zoning was changed it could not automatically revert back to the former zoning.

"The city must go through due

"The ruling doesn't give us the green light for the project."

Steven Bratschie, attorney for developers process," Judge Pajtas ruled. "Automatic rezoning is arbitrary and capricious."

Pajtas noted that other states have declared automatic rezoning unconstitutional because it violates due process. He agreed with that and said notice of zoning changes must be made publicly and a time must be set aside for public hearings.

In 1991, developers Robert Brooks and Scott Dietze received city council's approval of their site development plan for multi-family subsidized housing at 1007 May Street. The zoning was changed from R-1, single family, to R-4, multi-family, to allow for the development.

But Section 5.65 of the city's zoning ordinance states that the zoning automatically reverts back if construction is not commenced within one year. It is this automatic reversion that was declared unconstitutional.

School board gives OK to new high school design

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A conceptual building plan design for the new Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road was approved by school board members at its March 13 meeting.

"We met with staff, students and community members," Bret Kronlein of BETA Design Group said. "We started by kicking ideas around. The building is uniquely planned for Charlevoix county."

BETA Design Group is the planner for the project. Christman Company will manage construction.

The high school's first floor is designed with the administration area at the entrance, so that everyone entering the building will pass by school officials. Classrooms, a student services area, a media center, a special education area, the gym and the auditorium will be located on the first floor.

The media center at 4,320-square-feet will hold computer labs, a library and reading and leisure seating areas. It will contain a multi-media production room.

A 3,220-square-foot music room will contain a band room, practice rooms, a sound vestibule and a music library.

Sheriff, state police team up to make area roads safer

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater and Lt. Richard Killips of the Michigan State Police Post 78 of Petoskey have joined forces on traffic safety.

The two law enforcement agencies will work together with any concerned citizen of Charlevoix County who has a concern over traffic safety for any specific road for concentrated patrol consideration. The traffic concern may be speeders, careless or reckless drivers or drunk drivers.

One or more deputies or troopers in marked and unmarked patrol units will be assigned to the concentrated patrol for designated periods of time. The citizen or groups of citizens requesting the service will be supplied a written report after the concentrated patrol efforts as to the number of citations issued, traffic stops made, arrests and number of patrol hours spent on the problem area.

When the citizen is requesting this service, the agencies ask to please be able to give the name of the specific roadway requested for concentrated patrol, the nearest cross road, the types of violations the citizen has observed, suspects — if any — and the time of day or the day of the week the violations take place.

It should be noted this program will be in addition to regular sheriff and state police patrol activities.

Any citizen who would like to request this service may be made to Lasater at 547-4461. The sheriff will assign the patrol to deputies and forward requests to Killips for assignments to state police troopers.

Wojan named first Eagle Scout on Beaver Island

By COURTNEY MOORE
Special to the Courier

Along with looking at colleges to attend, doing homework and participating in extra curricular activities, one young man has found time to dedicate himself to the Boy Scouts of America.

Beaver Island High School Senior Ryan Wojan has been involved in scouting since his friends told him about Cub Scouts. After long years of determination and hard work, Wojan has had the honor of being named Beaver Island's first Eagle Scout.

"Besides my friends being interested (in scouting), I like the outdoors and it looked and seemed to be fun," said Wojan.

Wojan, the son of Ed and Connie Wojan, had to complete 21 merit badges, do a final service project to help his community and be judged by a Board of Review, which are required components to earning Eagle Scout status. The results from the review on the island were sent to another board to be reviewed, and after six weeks, Wojan and his family received word that he had passed both reviews.

He is now an Eagle Scout and thanks his Scoutmaster James Stambaugh for helping him achieve all his badges.

For his service project, Wojan made benches, a scoreboard and a scorekeeper's table for Beaver Island Community School's soccer field. After making all those assets to the field, he filled in all the holes and re-seeded the field.

He said he believes scouting is a wonderful thing for kids to get into.

"It teaches kids to be everything in the Scout law. For example, a person should be trustworthy, loyal, helpful, etc.," said Wojan.

After graduating in June, Wojan said he is probably going to attend the University of Michigan, where he has already been accepted. He plans on earning a degree in business, starting his own business, getting married and having a family...eventually. His other interests include student council (president), soccer, basketball and guitar.

Wojan added he gives a great deal of thanks to Mr. James Stambaugh, his family, and God for everything they have done in helping him get through the difficult process.

Community corrections may face funding cuts

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Local community corrections programs may be cut if the state's big daddy of corrections has its way.

The Michigan Department of Corrections, which is part of the state's Executive Office, is proposing a change in the law that may curtail or eliminate support from Lapsing for local corrections programs.

"The Executive Office suggests gutting counties' rights then the Department of Corrections will decide how to implement Public Act 511," said Dave Wells of the Northwest Michigan Regional Community Corrections Advisory Board. Wells is the project manager for the northern Michigan seven-county community corrections program.

What worries Wells and others is that the Department of Corrections favors the larger Michigan counties.

"The Department of Corrections is not a champion of small counties receiving funding," Wells said. "It's arguing for sending more money to the larger counties."

Public Act 511 was passed by the Legislature in 1988. It is a mechanism to provide options to serving jail time. Counties may choose another form of punishment for non-violent offenders.

Some of the options to jail time are electronic monitoring, community labor and substance abuse treatment.

"It provides ways to more effectively use jail space," Wells said. "The community corrections program saves money. It's cheaper for non-violent offenders to serve in the community than in jail."

It costs counties $35 to $40 a day to house jail inmates, Wells said.

OPINIONS

State should remain fair to all taxpayers

EDITORIAL

Every time you open up a newspaper lately it seems you find another story about the state punishing smaller counties and cities to benefit larger ones.

Lately an example of this can be seen in the proposal by the Michigan Department of Corrections to curtail or eliminate support from Lansing for local community corrections programs.

The community correction program was designed to give communities more punishment options for non-violent offenders than just sending them to jail. Under this program, rather than going to jail, the offender can be put on an electronic monitor, wash fire trucks or clean parks, among other punishments.

The state corrections department basically argues because larger counties have more people that take part in community corrections, funding for the program in smaller counties should be cut to give more money to the larger counties.

So, just because Charlevoix County is smaller than other counties, the state corrections department seems to be arguing that our community is not as important and citizens don't deserve the right to be given the same punishment as those living in Grand Traverse County or Oakland County.

This is simply discrimination based on size by a government body.

The last time we checked, residents in Charlevoix County had to pay taxes to the State of Michigan, just like residents in larger counties. It would seem Charlevoix County's residents should be entitled to the same state services and chances at state funding for these services as any other county, regardless of its size.

Sure, there may be fewer people in this county than Oakland County or Grand Traverse County, but that does not mean Charlevoix residents should be left out.

It's feasible that the county should get less funding than a bigger county with a bigger tax-paying population, but Charlevoix County and any small county in the State of Michigan should not lose funding outright for corrections programs in favor of the programs in bigger counties.

We're Michigan taxpayers too.

Make places of learning a second home for children

Roger Knutson

I have just finished reading an issue of Natural History Magazine in which three prominent scientists mention how their young lives were formed in large part by the American Museum of Natural History. Each of them considered the museum as a second home, spent much of their time there and in that time decided what they would do with their lives.

Two of them devoted their professional lives to astronomy and astrophysics and one to the study of the biological world. Each of them could have moved in a multitude of directions and would probably have been successful, but they acknowledge the museum as the place that made the difference; the place that helped them choose a future.

Education, the training of a young mind, is at least somewhat problematic. We do not know just how this one decided to become a paleontologist and that one an astronomer. But, we do know that if the places where they can imagine themselves as those things do not exist, then they will not become them. I believe this applies to education and educational institutions of all kinds. If a school or a museum can provide for the young person something like a second home: If it is a place where they can see themselves as almost anything their imagination can conceive, then it is a success. If it does not do those things then it might as well not be there.

I don't think that Steven Jay Gould or Carl Sagan or Niel deGrasse Tyson cared whether the American Museum of Natural History was in their neighborhood or whether they had to ride 45 minutes on three different subways to get there.

It was the place they wanted to be. It was the place they could imagine themselves being whatever their young minds could conceive. Where a place that informs and excites young minds is located is of less interest than what happens when they are there. If it is a place that makes them want to learn; that excites them to future possibilities; that lets them see themselves as adults, working, thinking and succeeding in the world, then it is a good place. If it does not give at least most of the young people involved that feeling for their future, then no matter where it is or how wonderful it might seem to others, it is probably not doing its job.

A museum, filled with stuffed, recently dead animals and skeletons of those dead for millions of years, along with star charts and planet mobiles can make possible the next generation of leaders and thinkers about those things.

A school can do the same thing for all our children. But what happens at the school or museum is more important than how handy it is. The real test is whether any of the students thinking of it as a second home where they can dream the dreams and think of themselves as part of a community none of us older folks will ever know. Where they can imagine themselves as scientists and lawyers and mayors and citizens.

A school or museum may house some of the past, but it is a place that mostly belongs to a future many of us will never live to see. Steven Jay Gould thinks of the American Museum of Natural History as the place that formed his life. Our children will think of their schools, their community's facilities and their other second homes as places that formed their lives.

Where those places are located is finally much less important than what happens there. Maybe we should concentrate on having the best school, not just the handiest.

Board must answer the public

Editor:

Three school board members and the superintendent chose a sight for the new high school on Marion Center Road. Some people agree with this decision and some do not agree. I personally think that this is a bad decision for several reasons and this is my right, just as those in favor have a right to their feelings. When the Charlevoix School Board is asked questions about their decision by citizens of Charlevoix — who will be paying for the school — the answer that these citizens get is "it is the policy of the Charlevoix School Board not to answer questions from the public." The only knowledge I have of this policy as stated is what I have read in the newspaper. If this is incorrect information, I apologize. However, if this is correct, then I believe it is not only inexcusable but should not even be legal. How in the world can any publicly elected board make a policy to not answer questions from those who elected them to office?

Perhaps, if any good can come from all of this mess, the next school board will change this policy and communicate with the public.

On the front page of the March 14 Charlevoix Courier, Allen Tegenhof is quoted as saying, "The kids of Charlevoix are the reason we are building a new high school. All of the personal attacks, innuendos and untruths being spread have helped people forget that." In all of the reading and listening I have done on this subject, I the overwhelming majority of personal attacks, innuendos and untruths have come for those supporting the property choice made by the school board. Hopefully this too will soon stop.

Frank Curtis
Charlevoix

(Editor's note: According to past stories on the policy brought up in this letter, the Charlevoix school board does not have a policy of not answering questions from the public. The board does have a policy of not answering questions brought up during the public comment portion of its meetings — as do many governmental bodies. We apologize if past stories misinterpreted this policy for our readers.)

Support the sheriff

Editor:

Supportive letters, regarding Sheriff George Lasater's recent problems, have appeared over the past few weeks in the newspapers. I wish I could have been the creator of the idea to use this media to help eradicate the undesirable tainting this negative press has portrayed. I can't take credit for being the first, but I will gladly jump on the "bandwagon" of faithful supporters and add to the accolades.

George Lasater is not only the epitome of accomplished professionalism, but a tender-hearted, compassionate, generous man of integrity. He has been an ever-present means of support, love and encouragement to our family since we arrived in the area nearly 20 years ago. He has worn many hats in his relationship with us. We've known him on that professional level, as well as a trusted, faithful and loyal friend. Loyalty is paramount to George; he expects it from his employees...deservedly so. But, additionally, he returns such loyalty unconditionally.

His lengthy list of achievements as this county's sheriff speak for itself. As another writer mentioned, why would someone with such an esteemed record jeopardize his reputation in such a matter as he was being accused of? It's simply ludicrous. Without even knowing this man, a stranger would have to agree. But, if you were at all acquainted with the George Lasater who I know, who insists upon being the one to deliver devastating news to families, regardless of the time of day or night, with such a deep sense of empathy; he is not just a message carrier or the George Lasater who has sat with my husband to comfort him, without ever being asked, through several surgical procedures I have experienced; or the George Lasater who has left his dinner table, traveling directly to ours to help us through another family crisis, you would be assured he could not possibly be guilty of any sort of crime. Other people generally call their clergyman or family patriarch when facing adversity. We've always called George and he's never failed us. This is certainly speaking of him, on a personal level, but it's vital to know he's not just an official who has done an excellent job in office. He's a man you'd be privileged to have as a friend. My point being, I know George Lasater's mind, heart and practices and I want to stand up and say loudly and clearly, "The accusations are absolutely false."

Letters to the editor

I wouldn't even have to have specific knowledge of any accusations in any case against George and I could emphatically declare it's erroneous. That's how much confidence I have in his abilities and character. Why is it men in high places are recipients of false allegations? So that the public will begin to doubt them? Don't listen. Don't let dirty words affect your opinion or vote. I cannot think of a soul who could step into his shoes. I for one will be out there gathering more signatures for petitions and hanging campaign signs for him and will continue to do so as long as he will serve us.

So the next time there is another large, nasty headline about Sheriff George Lasater, I implore you to chuckle at it, "fugateaboutit," as we New Yorkers would say, but remember my words and my confidence in this leader amongst men. Hey Charlevoix, take a break from the school property debate and stand behind your sheriff. He's the one who makes this county a safe haven for families to reside.

Save the manatees

Editor:

I feel that too many manatees are being killed or injured every year. Like dolphins, they are a gray or a grayish brown color and are completely harmless. They feed on mostly seaweed and give birth every two to five years. Their population is going down and if we don't protect them they could become extinct. I have seen manatees before and have learned a great deal about them. It hurts to see manatees who have been injured or have scrapes or bruises on them.

I have also learned that if anyone ever comes across one look but do not touch and do not feed them. If manatees become accustomed to being around people, that can alter their behavior in the wild. Perhaps causing them to lose their natural fear of boats and humans, this may make them more susceptible for harm.

Even though there may not be manatees in Michigan, I still think it is important to spread this advice and do all that we can to save them. Before I ever saw one I had no idea what a manatee was. Now I know that they are beautiful creatures and deserve to stay on this earth.

Make a football league

Editor:

Have you ever gone through other Northern Michigan cities and seen little kids playing football? Well when you go through Charlevoix you don't see that.

Kids want to play football but can't until seventh grade. By then some of the really good kids pick up a sport that they can play in a league. Kids also want to have fun and exercise at the same time. Other cities have teams and I think we should too. We have a great field and only the middle and high school use it.

Kids would supply their own equipment. The only thing we need is a coach. People of Charlevoix please take my thought of getting a coach into consideration.

Make a B.M.X track

Editor:

Charlevoix needs a B.M.X. biking track to have a league on and here is some reasons why. I think that we could fix up Shanahan Field so the jumps are better and the soil is really packed down. The town could have a track to race on at Shanahan.

B.M.X. is super popular in Charlevoix, that's why I think we need a track at Shanahan. Also, biking is great fun for everyone when you try. Another reason is it's not only fun it's challenging too.

Since biking is so popular you'd get a ton of racers to race. The league nearest to us now is in Traverse City and it takes us an hour to get there. If it was in Charlevoix it wouldn't take that long.

Building a B.M.X. track would save gas mileage, instead of going to Traverse City. Having a competition in Charlevoix would bring more kids from different cities in northern Michigan because it's in the middle of northern Michigan, not like Traverse City. That's why Charlevoix needs a biking track to race on.

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments of Charlevoix area people.

Michigan State University recently released a list of area students who have been named to its honor roll for fall 1999. Students named to the list must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better.

Charlevoix students on that list are:

•Nicole Marie Bunting. Bunting is in her first year at the university and is majoring in social science and international studies.

•Amy Lynn Freidinger. Freidinger is in her fourth year at the university and is majoring in accounting.

•Galen Smith Paxton. Paxton is in her second year at the university and is majoring in sociology.

•Jennifer Margaret Ricks. Ricks is in her second year at the university.

Scholarship offered to area students

The Charlevoix County Chapter of the Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel is inviting any graduating high school senior in Charlevoix County planning to attend a certified trade or vocational school program in the 2000-2001 school year to apply for a $500 scholarship.

This scholarship is offered through the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Applications may be obtained from local high school guidance offices or by calling chapter president Betty Walker at 536-2466. Applications must be returned by April 15.

MARSP is an association of retired school personnel who may have been employed as a teacher, teacher assistant, librarian, social worker, school psychologist, administrator or support staff such as secretary, custodian, cook, or bus driver.

There are more than 250 members in the Charlevoix County Chapter and more than 40,000 statewide.

Charlevoix named a Tree City for the eighth time

Charlevoix's trees just keep making the city proud.

For the eighth year in a row, Charlevoix has been named a "Tree City USA" by the National Arbor Day Foundation.

"It's wonderful. It says to outsiders (Charlevoix) is a wonderful place to live in. It's a beautiful city to raise kids and for retirees to live here," said Bob Irving, secretary of the Charlevoix Shade Tree Committee.

The Tree City program is sponsored by The National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the National Association of State Foresters and the USDA Forest Service.

To become a Tree City, a community must meet four standards. The community must have: a tree board or department, a tree care ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program and an Arbor Day observance.

"Trees are special to any city or town."

Bob Irving,
Charlevoix Shade Tree Committee

Irving said a lot of work goes on in the city to meet these requirements. The committee recycles leaves, trims trees and is in the process of planning a new landscape for the south side entrance to the city.

All this work is not just for the title "Tree City." Irving added trees add a special feeling to any city.

"There is nothing nicer than walking down a shady street in the summertime and feeling the cool breeze," he said.

"Trees are special to any city or town. They add beauty and add cool summers and dry roads."

"The spider looks for a merchant who doesn't advertise so he can spin a web across his door and lead a life of undisturbed peace."

Sailfish Club registration on for pre-kindergarten

The Sailfish Club is currently registering new pre-kindergarten students for the 2000-2001 school year.

Programs are available for children who are at least three years of age by Dec. 1. An open house will take place April 13 from 4 to 6 p.m.

This is an opportunity for parents to visit the new facility and gather more information regarding the programs available. Pre-Kindergarten Round-up and Registration will take place April 20 from 4 to 6 p.m. Children are welcome to attend both events. A special activity will be planned for them during the open house.

In addition to registering students for the next year, the Sailfish Club currently has openings in their afternoon Kindergarten Readiness program. This program meets Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 12:30 to 3 p.m. and is available to children who were 4 years old by Dec. 1, 1999.

Parents interested in enrolling a child for the remainder of this school year should contact the school as soon as possible. For more information, please contact Tricia Petrosky at 547-PLAY (7529).

Michigan's emerald isle

Beaver Island celebrates St. Patrick

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Like it has for at least the last 15 years, Beaver Island celebrated its Irish side with annual St. Patrick's Day festivities last weekend.

Every year, residents of the island host a series of events celebrating St. Patrick's Day and the island's Irish heritage. While there are always events going on during St. Patrick's Day itself, due to the holiday falling on a Friday, the party lasted throughout the weekend.

"I think it brings out the spirit in people. Just for one day everybody is Irish," said Rich Gillespie, island resident and master of ceremonies for the events.

Residents and visitors started the celebration on Friday with songs and an island gathering honoring the St. Patrick. Saturday was filled with more celebrations and a day of "athletic" events inside The Shamrock Bar and outside in a parking lot for the Beaver Island Boat Company.

Participants in outdoor events raced in teams in a shopping cart race and competed in a tug of war.

In the shopping cart race, one team member is placed in a shopping cart while the other members push the cart with two-by-fours strapped to their feet. Along the way the team must play leap-frog, run through tires and do the "hoky-poky."

After the outdoor events, spectators and participants gathered inside The Shamrock Bar for several more events.

Among these was an event called "The Fish Stomp." In this game, teams were composed of four people. Each member of the team took turns spinning three-times around with their fore-head laying on the end of a bat balanced on the floor. After this, the participant had to pick up a fish lying on the floor and run it across the room to another team member, who had to do the same.

The winner was the team that could get all of its players through the event with the fastest time.

The evening's entertainment was finished up with a competition for "king and queen." During this event, participants dressed up in outlandish costumes and answered questions about the island. After this they had to perform an Irish jig for the audience.

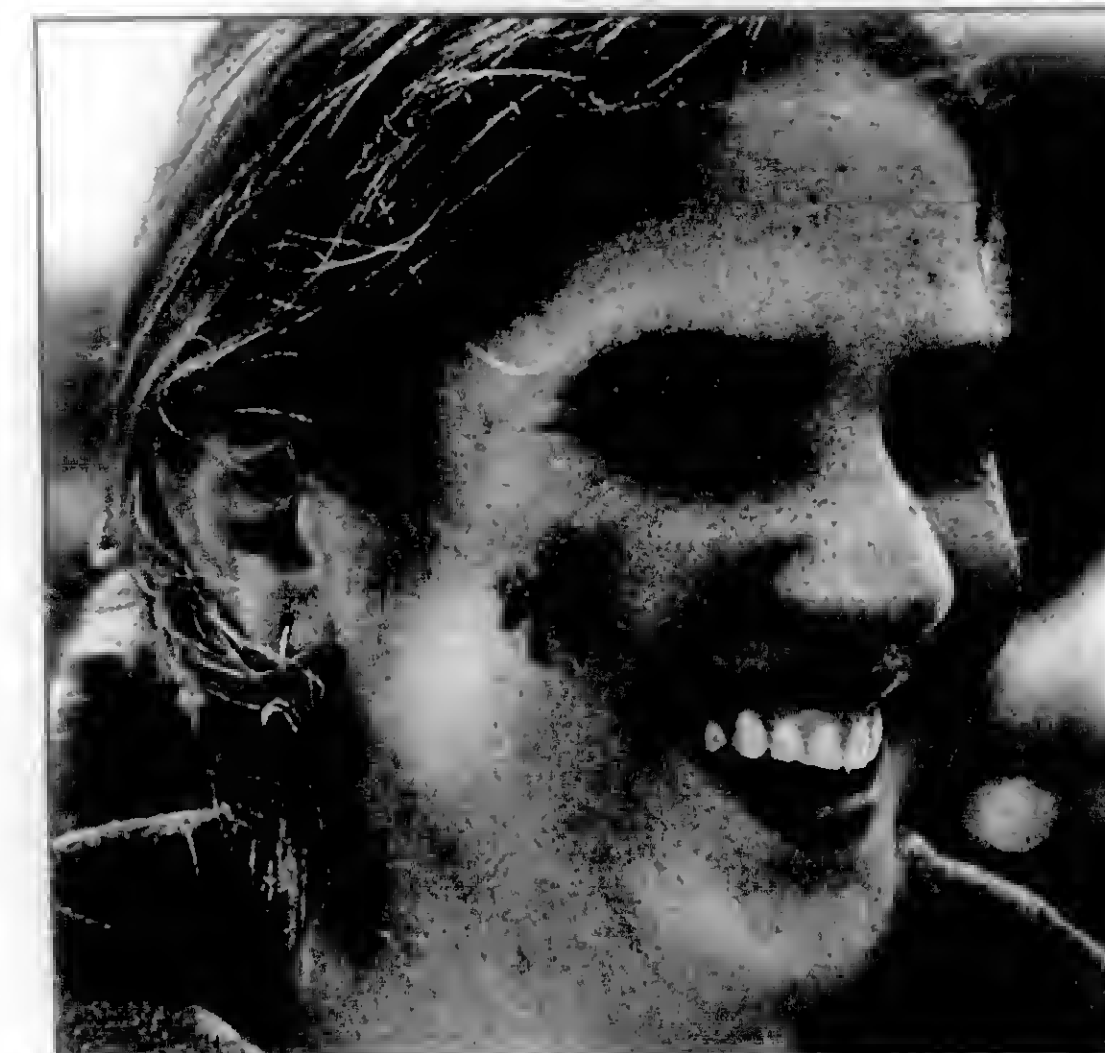

According to Gillespie, the events are planned and orchestrated by island residents; Denise Gillespie, Kathy Gillespie Maudrie and Lynn Cary.

New law relaxes residence requirements

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

City of Charlevoix employees who belong to a union are temporarily unaffected by a new state law. The law, which took effect on March 10, allows municipal employees to reside within 20 miles from where they work, rather than within the city itself.

"It will ultimately affect city employees," city manager Mike Wiesner said. But not until their current union bargaining contract expires on March 31, 2002. Departments represented by a union include street, sewer, water, electric and clerical. Department heads, separate contract employees and part-time employees are non-union.

The police and fire departments have their own union. The contract covers six full-time police officers and three full-time firefighters. It expires in 2001.

Charlevoix city employees who belong to the Communications

Workers of America union have a contract that already allows them to live anywhere within the approximate 120-square miles of the Charlevoix Public School District.

But the school district residency allowance has been negotiated with each new contract. Now when the next contract is negotiated, employees cannot lose the right to reside outside of the city, so long as they are within 20 miles.

The Michigan Municipal League, which represents 550 towns and cities, is against the law banning residency requirements.

"Our position is that it (residency requirements) ought to be decided by local governmental units themselves, rather than the state," said senior legislative associate Scott Schrager. "It's taking away the right of councils to make decisions and is upsetting city charters."

The state is also interfering in labor matters by taking the terms out of contracts, Schrager said.

The MML recognizes that housing in cities can be expensive and that some employees want to live where housing is more affordable, Schrager said. The MML does not take issue with the residence requirement itself, but with the state taking away local government control, he said.

The MML is considering a possible legal challenge, Schrager said.

The Charlevoix city offices have 48 full-and-part-time employees, 25 of whom currently reside within the city corporate limits.

Sheriff releases total arrests made over holiday weekend

While St. Patrick's Day usually means a celebration for most of the country, it sometimes results in a busy night or weekend for local law enforcement.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater compiled a list of arrest statistics for St. Patrick's Day and its following weekend. This list represents arrests by the sheriff's department, Michigan State Police, Boyne City Police Department, Charlevoix Police Department and the East Jordan Police Department.

The weekend total is:

- Operation of a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor: 13
- Minors in possession of alcohol: 8
- Traffic complaints and citations: 10
- Operator intoxicated in vehicle: 6
- Driving while license suspended: 1
- Disorderly person: 4
- Accidents: 4 (no injuries)
- Resisting and obstructing a police officer: 1
- Possession of marijuana: 1
- False identification: 1

• Turfing: 1

• Possession of a weapon: 1 (a knife)
Lasater said the biggest increase this year over last year was in drunk driving arrests. Arrests of people in possession of a controlled substance, such as marijuana, were down from last year.

He added the area of Charlevoix County with the most arrests over the weekend was Boyne Valley Township.

School site work to start in early July SCHOOL

The gymnasium will seat 1,200 and has a balcony. The auditorium area will include space for a 15-member orchestra and will have a scene room for theatrical productions.

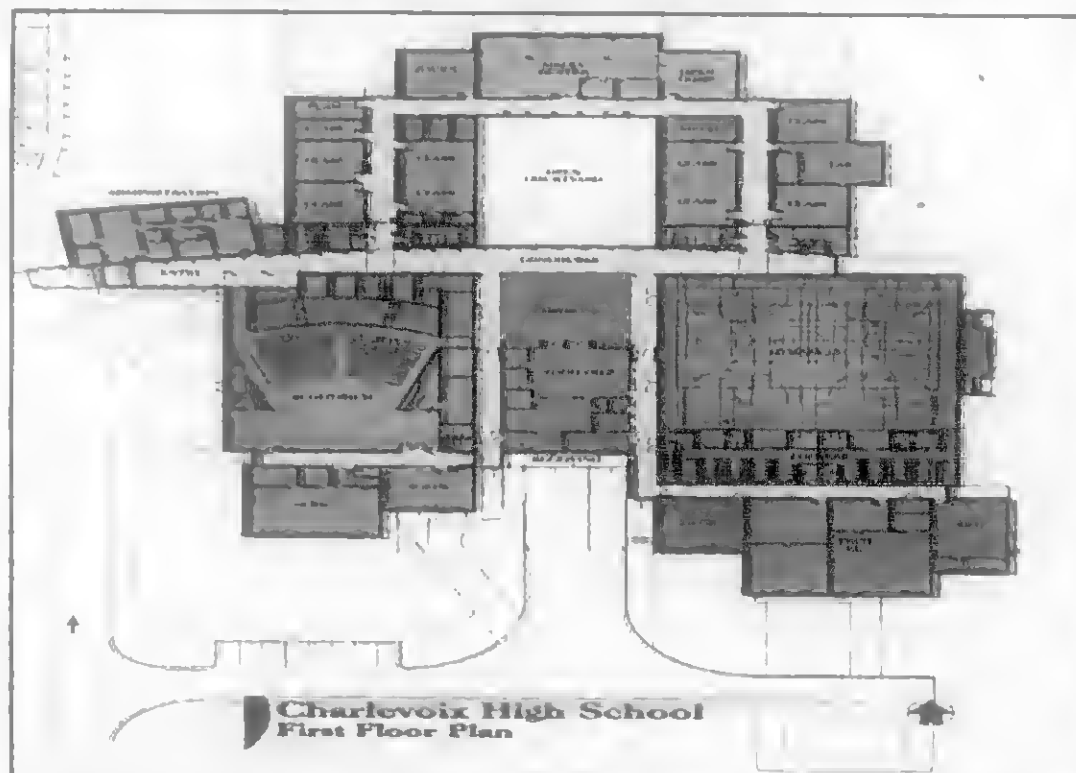

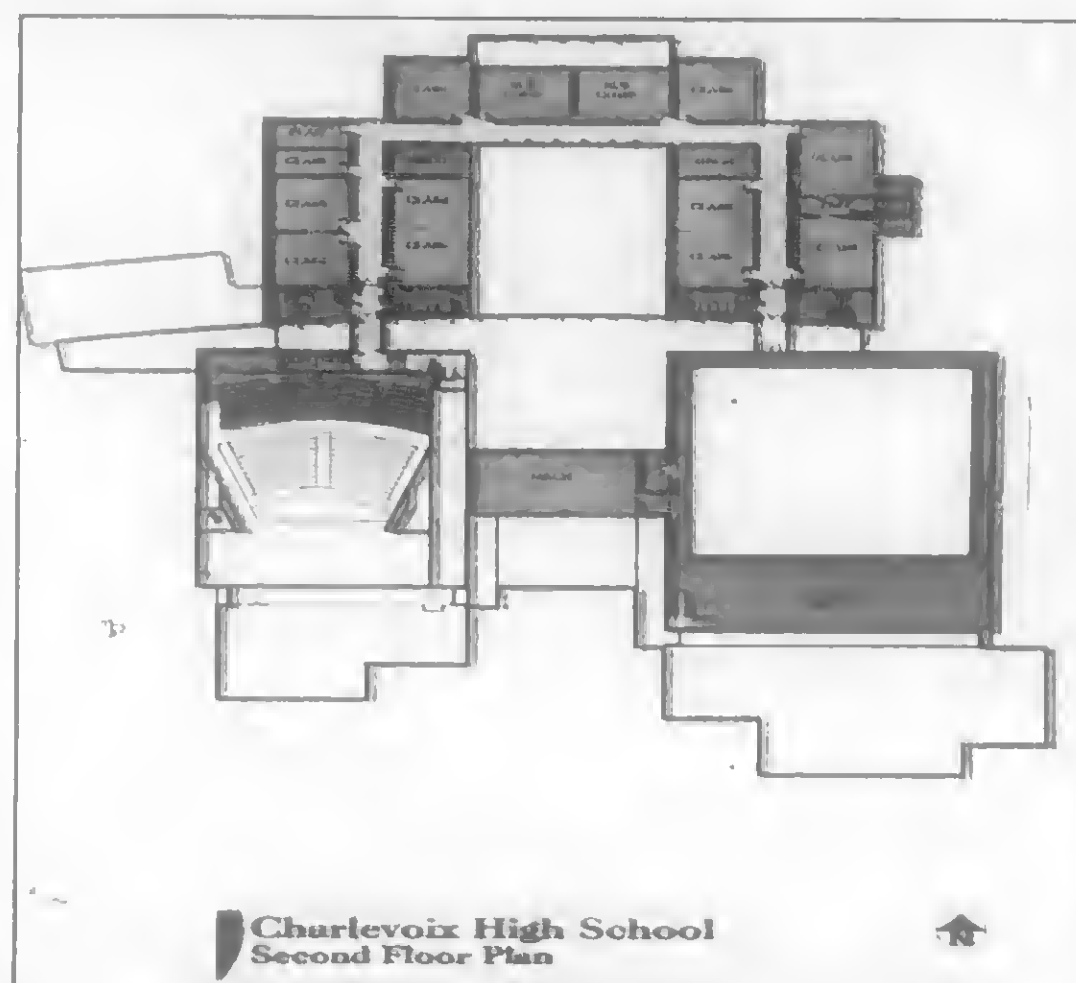

The high school's second floor will house classrooms, teacher planning areas, computer and chemistry labs, a physics department and a sports deck.

The 122,000 square-foot high school will have views of rolling hills and of Lake Charlevoix, Kronlein said. The building is designed for convenient expansion.

The site surrounding the high school includes hard and softball fields, football and soccer fields, cross-country skiing areas, and a track. Two parking lots will accommodate more than 300 cars.

The budget for the new high school is $15,310,197. The site is $1.6 million.

Site work is scheduled for the first of July, with building construction beginning in the fall, said school superintendent John Sturock. An early finish date is June 2002, which would mean that students could occupy the new high school in September of 2002.

City loses first round to developers in lawsuit CITY

The developers did not construct any housing units due, they said, to circumstances beyond their control having to do with government financing.

In June 1999, Brooks and Dietze approached city council with plans to begin construction and were met with rejection from the city.

The city relied on section 5.65 in denying the site development plan, stating the zoning had reverted back to single family housing.

That issue has been decided by the court in favor of the developers. But the city also relied on other factors to prohibit construction on May Street. "The ruling doesn't give us the green light for the project," said Steven Bratschie, attorney for the developers.

The city also claims that the site development plan is not consistent with city plans and that traffic generated by the housing would be a hazard, among other claims. This aspect of the lawsuit has not yet been decided.

"The judge expects us to meet with him in a couple of weeks," city attorney Jim Young said. The attorneys are expected to have worked things out for the court's consideration and decision.

Protect your well water from pollutants

If you are among the more than 2 million private well owners in Michigan, who depend on a well as your source of drinking water, you need to take steps that will ensure a reliable supply of good quality water and protect the aquifer and other water resources from contamination.

Well water that becomes contaminated can be a family health threat as well as a threat to others who depend on that groundwater source for their drinking water. Once groundwater is contaminated, it is nearly impossible or very expensive to clean up.

Your well's location in relation to potential sources of pollution — the septic system, fuel tanks, chemical storage and mixing areas — and whether the well is down hill from these sources are of primary concern. You should provide as much separation as reasonably possible between your well and those potential contamination sources.

Moving potential contamination sources away from the well may help protect your water supply, but it will not protect the groundwater or surface water if careless management practices are used. Any condition that is likely to contaminate any water source should be corrected.

Old or poorly designed wells increase the risk of groundwater contamination by allowing surface water to reach the water table without being filtered through soil. If a well is located in a depression or a pit, or it is not properly sealed and capped, surface water that carries nitrates, bacteria, viruses, pesticides or other pollution may flow directly into your well water.

You may want to consider upgrading an old well by eliminating a well pit, installing a tight fitting vermin-proof well cap or extending the casing to 12 inches above the ground surface. A licensed well driller can advise you on costs and appropriate upgrades to protect your water supply.

Each year, many wells are abandoned when they are replaced with new wells or when homes are connected to community water systems. An abandoned well that is not plugged, or is plugged improperly, can contaminate groundwater supplies by allowing the inflow of polluted surface or subsurface waters.

All abandoned wells, or those that are no longer being used, should be plugged. A licensed well driller who is familiar with plugging procedures should be hired. In some situations, the well owner can successfully close his own well with a minimum of specialized equipment.

Water testing is the only way to assure your supply is safe. Testing water for every contaminant is very expensive and unnecessary. Instead, annual testing for relevant water quality indicators is recommended. At a minimum, test your water supply annually for coliform bacteria and nitrates.

Because well equipment does not last forever, your well may require mechanical repairs from a qualified well driller or pump installer every 10 or 20 years. Signs of mechanical problems include low water pressure, frequent or extended pumping cycles, leaks and other indicators.

Rayders go on to quarterfinals

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Rayders are moving closer to the state championship with a 60-46 win over Glen Lake Thursday that gave them the regional championship title.

"It's awesome," said Charlevoix Rayder and senior Adam Wood after the game. "After last year and a repeat this year, being seniors this year makes it more special."

Fellow Rayder Andy Granath added, "It feels just as good as last year. But this year it's our team."

But both players were quick to point out there are still more games to be played before the team has the honor of playing in East Lansing for the state semi-finals and finals.

"Whoever comes out of the (upper peninsula) will be tough. But we definitely believe in ourselves," Wood said.

Rayder Scott Pair added after Thursday's game, the team is very excited about continuing on in the race to be state champions and is looking forward to the next game.

"We are just going to go out there and do what we can do," he said.

That next game was last night against Negaunee in Cheboygan. The results of the game were unavailable before press time.

In an interview Tuesday before the game, Rayders' Coach Keith Haske said Negaunee has a few very good and very tough players that Charlevoix will have to watch out for. Plus, he said he expects Negaunee to try and slow the game down to throw the Rayders off.

To prepare for a slower game,

Haske said he has been trying to teach the team more patience and keeps them throwing the ball around in practice. By building more patience, the Rayders will not get frustrated in a slower game and make mistakes.

Haske added the Rayders have shown they like faster games in the past and will continue to play fast in the future. "It is my philosophy of coaching. I think (faster games are) more fun to play for kids. If you have a lot of kids that play hard, you can be successful," he said.

For example, Haske pointed out the results of Thursday's game against Glen Lake were lower than other tournament games.

But, Glen Lake slowed the game down quite a bit compared to other games the Rayders have played in the tournament.

"Their whole game plan was to get it to their big kid and they were real patient," Haske said.

Because it was a slower game, the Rayders did not have the opportunity to score as many points as in past games that were a lot faster, such as the March 14 game against Mio.

In this game the Rayders were able to rack up a final score of 90 to Mio's total of 75.

"A lot of it had to do with the pace of the game," Haske said.

Leading scorers for Thursday's game were: Sean Stockman with 19 points and Adam Wood with 16 points. Leading scorers for the March 14 game were: Andy Granath with 21 points and Sean Stockman with 19 points.

The Charlevoix volleyball champions for the co-ed league and the men's league were recently named by the city recreation department. Winning the co-ed league was Lasting Memories (Left). They are: Annette Hosler, Tim LaBlance, Amy Herslie, Rob Hilton, Carrie LaBlance and Hush Hersha. Carol Hilton and Bill Paterge were missing. The men's champs were Waterfront Salon. They are: Sara Blair, Kent Seymour, Chris Pemble, Chris Seymour and Jordan Brandt. Quinton Walker and Carolyn Loper are missing from the photo. (Courtesy photos)

NOTICE
Public Act 123 of 1999 Section 60(2) states in part: "Not sooner than April 30, 2000 and not later than April 30, 2001, the county treasurer may cancel the tax sale scheduled to take place on the first Tuesday in May 2000 and the first Tuesday in May 2001, respectively, if there are no outstanding bonds or notes issued by a county pursuant to sections 87b to 87e with respect to the delinquent taxes for which the sale is being conducted."

STATE OF MICHIGAN ANNUAL TAX SALE IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

ORDER FOR HEARING No. 99-031-19-22

In the matter of the Petition of the State Treasurer of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for unpaid property taxes.

The State Treasurer has petitioned this court for a judgment in favor of the State, against each parcel of land described in Schedule A for the unpaid taxes, interest and charges on each parcel of land, and that the sale be held for the amounts claimed due by the State.

It is ordered that the petition will be brought on for hearing and judgment on the April term of this court, to be held at Charlevoix, in the County of Charlevoix, on the 3rd day of April, 2000.

And the county clerk of Charlevoix shall cause all persons who have an interest in the lands or any part thereof, who wish to contest the lien claimed by the State, shall appear in the Court and file their objections with the clerk on or before the first day of the term of this Court mentioned above, and a judgment will be made as requested in the petition if the amounts due are not paid.

It is further ordered that the lands described in the petition, will be sold for the taxes, interest and charges on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10:00 A.M. on that day or days after, that are necessary to complete the sale of each parcel, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at a location selected by the Treasurer, at the County seat of the County mentioned above.

This sale will be open to the public and each parcel described in the petition shall be separately offered for sale and sold to the person who pays the full amount charged against the parcel and accepts the smallest unbid interest in the property. Any parcel of land that is not sold on the first offering shall be resold on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, if not sold on the second offering the County Treasurer shall not offer the parcel for sale at the State.

Witness the Hon. Richard M. Pallas, Circuit Judge, and the seal of the Circuit Court of Charlevoix County, this 3rd day of February, 2000.

Cecelia Bontje, Deputy County Clerk

Richard M. Pallas, Judge

STATE TREASURER OF MICHIGAN

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

The State Treasurer of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for unpaid property taxes.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, State Treasurer of Michigan, shows:

1. That he is the Treasurer of Michigan and has been duly sworn to the office of said office since 1993, as amended, and P.A. 380 of 1965, as amended.

2. That the attached Schedule A is the tax record required by the act and contains the description of all lands in the above county upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein and have remained unpaid for more than one year after the taxes were returned delinquent or for land identified as certified special residential property under section 55a, 59b and 60 of the Michigan Tax Code.

3. That the amounts opposite each description of lands are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes which are due and owing at the time of the annual tax sale, (b) interest calculated as provided by law to the first day of May, (c) county property tax administration fee of four percent, with a minimum of $1.00, and $1.00 for recording fees, all in accordance with the act.

4. That all of the taxes, interest and charges are valid and have remained delinquent for more than one year to require the sale of the lands against which they were assessed for sale, and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land, and that a judgment be issued in favor of the State against the lands for the payment of the amounts specified, and if not paid, that the lands be sold.

Therefore your plaintiff requests:

a. That within the time provided by law this court determine the taxes, interest, and charges on lands described in Schedule A are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the parcels of land.

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of land for the payment of the taxes, interest, and charges, in Schedule A, and that the amounts in the column headed "Aggregate" shall constitute the amounts adjudged against the lands, unless amended by this court.

c. That if the amounts in the schedule are not paid, the lands, or the portion that is necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the lands, shall be offered separately at the tax sale as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief that this court finds just and equitable.

Done at Charlevoix, Michigan, this 24th day of January, 2000.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

WARDROP & WARDROP, P.C. IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Default has occurred in the conditions of a Mortgage made by ROY KITSON and SHARON MOUNT, husband and wife, Mortgagors, to COMMONPOINT MORTGAGE, Mortgagee, dated January 9, 1998, and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, State Of Michigan, on January 14, 1998, in Liber 330, beginning on Page 1, and assigned by said Mortgagee to THE CIT GROUP/CONSUMER FINANCE, INC. by an assignment dated January 9, 1998, and recorded on June 30, 1998, in Liber 340, beginning on Page 933, Charlevoix County Records, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of Fifty One Thousand Five Hundred Ninety Five and 53/100 ($51,595.53) Dollars, including interest at 11.870% per annum. Further, there are due and unpaid property taxes as follows: 1998 property taxes in the amount of One Thousand Fourteen and 96/100 ($1,014.96) Dollars; and 1999 property taxes in the amount of Nine Hundred Thirty Four and 21/100 ($934.21) Dollars. No suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been instituted to recover the debt or any part thereof secured by this Mortgage.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and the statute in such case made and provided, on Thursday, April 13, 2000, at 10:00 a.m., inside the front lobby to the Charlevoix County Building, 301 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, that being the place for holding foreclosure sales in Charlevoix County, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder or bidders at public auction or venue, for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid on said Mortgage, together with interest at the rate of 11.870% per annum, all allowable costs of sale, taxes, and includible attorney fees, the lands and premises situated in the City of Boyne City, Charlevoix County, State of Michigan, described as:

LOT 251, BLOCK 7, NICHOLL'S AND MORGAN'S SECOND ADDITION TO SOUTH BOYNE, AS RECORDED IN LIBER 1 OF PLATS, PAGE 11, CHARLEVOIX COUNTY RECORDS. COMMONLY KNOWN AS 811 DOUGLAS STREET, BOYNE CITY, MICHIGAN. TAX PARCEL NO. 15-051-467-251-00.

The redemption period shall be six (6) months from the date of such sale unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCL 600.3241a; MSA 27A.3241(1), in which case the redemption period shall be thirty (30) days from the date of such sale.

Charlevoix's City Hall an example of Great Depression programs

By LEONARD ZEHNDR
Special to the Courier

Sixty years after it was built by a government program designed to ease the employment problems facing the country during the Great Depression, the Charlevoix City Hall will soon undergo a face lift.

Regardless of its new look, the building remains a historical example of the government's efforts to put the country back on track.

Generally, the Great Depression is considered the decade of the 1930s, although the stock market crash on Wall Street occurred in Oct. 1929. It signaled the beginning of the largest economic decline in American history.

Surprisingly, the decline followed a decade of exceedingly good times, commonly known as the "Roaring '20s." The United States, in a relatively short time span, experienced both the best of times and the worst of times.

The poverty and hardships during those dark days of the Depression left an indelible impression upon all who lived during that era. In fact conditions were so distressing that democracy itself was on trial worldwide as a viable form of government.

At the time of the Great Depression there were no economic nor social safety-nets in place to help people cope. There was no Social Security, no Medicare, no Medicaid, no welfare and very few jobs, thus there was little money to buy the essentials for living. Every family had to fend for itself to survive.

In the business community, mortgages were foreclosed, farm prices plummeted, businesses went bankrupt and finally — because of a run on the banks — all of the banks in the country were ordered by the federal government to close. This left depositors without financial resources.

The "bank holiday," as it was called, was an attempt to salvage what remained of the financial underpinnings of our society.

However, many of the banks did not survive, leaving the depositors holding an empty bag and the bank owners broke and disgraced.

The Depression also had its political fall out.

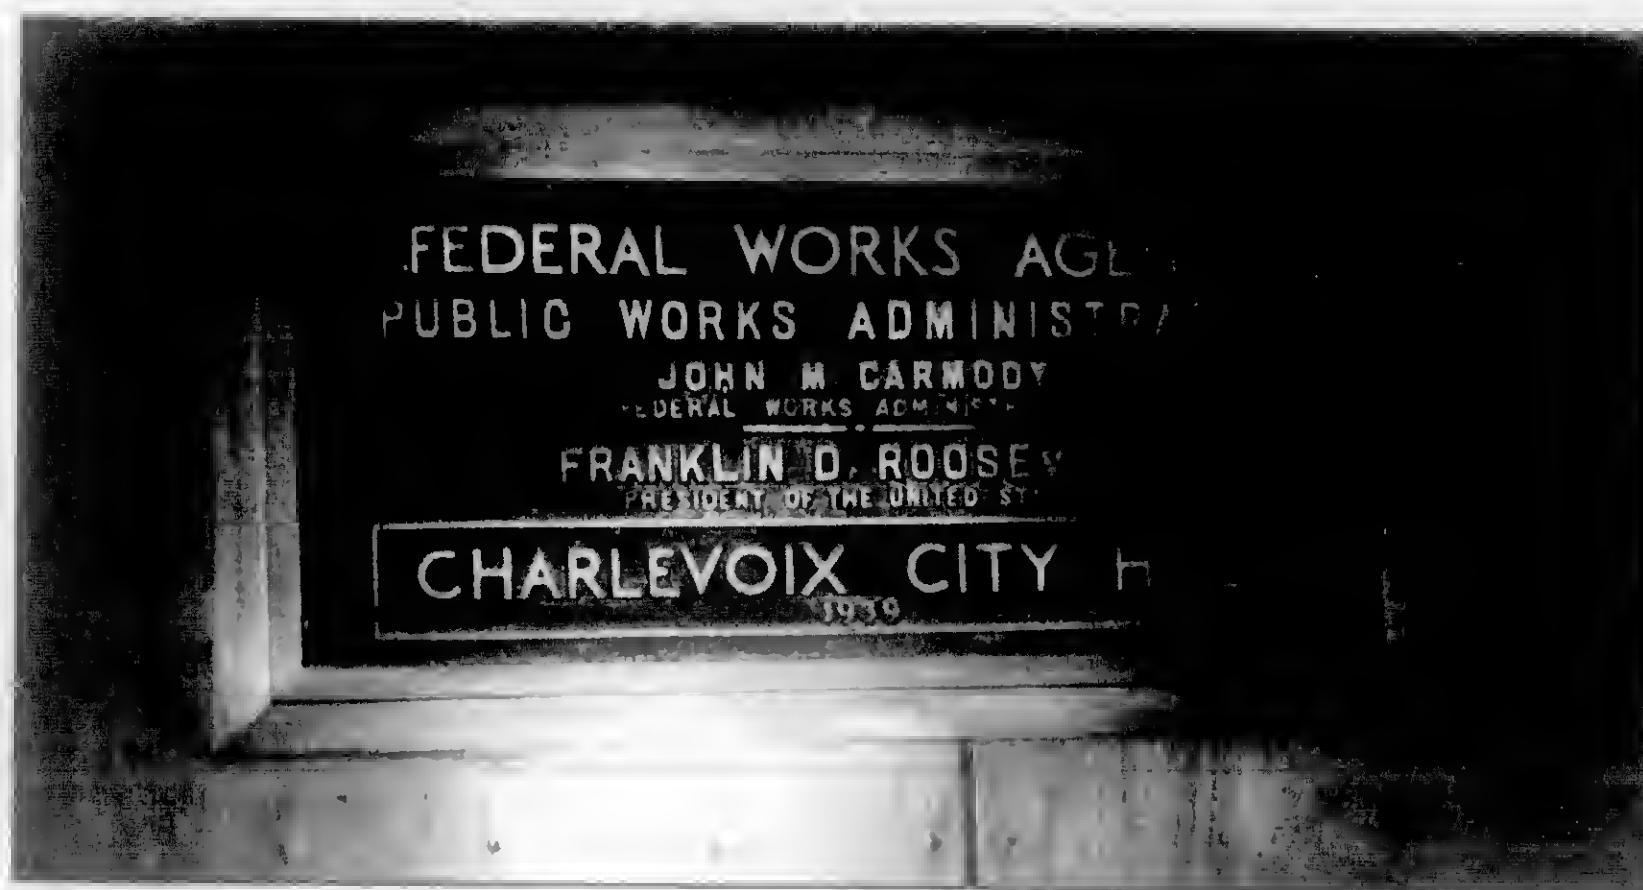

In 1932, Franklin Roosevelt defeated the incumbent Republican president, Herbert Hoover, by a landslide vote. The U.S. Senate and the U.S. House of Representatives were also both controlled by a majority of Roosevelt's party. Thus, the new administration was able to enact most of its social and political agenda.

In order to ease the huge unemployment problem, the government established numerous "make-work" programs. One of those was the Work Projects Administration (WPA). This was an extensive national network of construction projects funded by the government in cities throughout the country.

The Charlevoix City Hall was built by the WPA with the federal funds in 1939 and has served the community for over sixty years without major renovations.

State corrections wants to cut local funding

STATE

The Department of Corrections is seeking to remove sections in the act that aid counties in their corrections programs. It will then have discretion to fund only those counties it chooses. It argues that the lion's share of offenders are in the larger counties and the funding should concentrate on those counties.

The smaller counties will then have to find funding elsewhere and local community corrections programs may need to be curtailed or abandoned, Wells said.

Community corrections is an effective means for offenders to do time, Wells said.

"If they screw up, their original jail sentence hangs over their heads," he said. "The vast majority of offenders achieve completion of their sentences through the community corrections program. Charlevoix and Emmet counties have an 82 percent completion rate."

The program saves up to 20 jail beds a day between the two counties.

In the corrections programs, offenders on electronic monitoring wear a device that is range sensitive, said Babette Meggison.

Charlevoix county jail administrator. An offender must stay in an agreed-upon location, such as a residence. If the offender goes too far from the telephone, it signals the sheriff's office.

Offenders who qualify for the community work program serve their time by washing fire trucks, removing snow from sidewalks, cleaning up parks and weeding petunias, Meggison said.

The third program concentrates on substance abuse counseling and treatment, some of which is performed in-house, Meggison said. CHIP Counseling Center also provides counseling and treatment for the county.

The Northwest Michigan Regional Community Corrections Advisory Board recently passed resolutions urging the legislature to continue the sections in Public Act 511 that support all counties' community corrections programs.

Team learns inmate control

TEAM

There is no set procedure for handling difficult jail situations, the experts said. Each situation has to be evaluated as it unfolds.

The use of equipment was also discussed at the training session.

New equipment for the team and other law enforcement personnel is manufactured frequently. The equipment is becoming more technologically sophisticated in lightness and maneuverability, the experts said.

The equipment includes shields, helmets, protective vests and gas masks. It costs approximately $1,000 to equip an emergency response team member.

Zoning issue settled, lawsuit goes on

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The issue of the constitutionality of the city's zoning reversion law has been settled, but the May Street subsidized housing development lawsuit continues on other grounds.

City council had hoped the court would uphold section 5.65 of the zoning ordinance. That section states that property rezoned for development reverts back to its prior zoning if the property is not developed within a year.

The developers failed to build from the time their original development plan was approved in 1991 up to 1999. When they went back to council in 1999 with another plan, they were told the zoning had reverted to single-family from multi-family.

But 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas ruled on March 17, that the reversion zoning was unconstitutional because it does not allow for due process. In doing so, he followed the same conclusion of every other state in the nation. Pajtas had no recorded Michigan case law on which to rely, because Michigan as a whole has not decided this aspect of zoning.

City council knew that the reversion zoning law was probably unconstitutional before going to court. City attorney Jim Young stated in a memorandum to the city in September that:

"A rezoning is a legislative act. Constitutional and statutory due process procedures must be followed," the memorandum stated in part.

"From cases found, without specific statute authorization and compliance with due process procedures, the courts of this country have ruled automatic [reversion] zoning to be invalid," Young said.

Firefighters kept busy with recent grass fires

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Area firefighters are responding to a high number of grass and brush fires this month.

Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township, East Jordan and Boyne City reported that they have responded to approximately 20 grass and brush fires within the last several weeks.

The largest grass fire burned approximately 20 acres on Friday, at 6577 Upper Bayshore in Hayes Township. Charlevoix Township firefighters responded, with mutual aid from the City of Charlevoix Fire Department. About 10 acres were wooded and 10 field.

"It was started by juveniles," said Curt Thompson, township fire chief. "They were kids on spring break."

But Thompson thinks the fire was an accident and said the boys were camping on their own land. They lost a tent and a bicycle to the fire. There were no injuries.

Firefighters are urging caution when burning anything outside.

"Ninety percent of our fires are due to careless people and inadequate burning containers," Boyne City Fire Chief Henry Erber said.

School board responds to recall group's questions

While the community gears up for a recall election, School Superintendent John Strock gave a written response to questions submitted to him by the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools.

The recall election has been set for May 9. Five school board members are facing a recall started by a group of citizens angry about the board's land-choice for a new high school on Marion Center Road near Veenstra Road.

One of those citizen groups, The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools, presented a list of questions to Charlevoix Public Schools concerning the high school site March 13. Strock sent back a written response from the school board to those questions.

The following are the exact questions asked by the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools in bold print, followed by the answers given by the board.

"Why has the board chosen to spend $900,000 on the services of a construction manager: a duplication of services provided by architects and contractors?"

The services of the architect and construction manager are not a duplication of service. The architect designs and puts together all design documents to meet standards and construction codes. The construction manager is in charge of managing the bidding process based on the design documents, managing the contractors building the school and overseeing the construction of the building to ensure a quality project. A good construction manager will save his fee by generating multiple quality bids for a project.

The board of education has chosen to use a construction manager for our building projects. Our architect and construction manager, BETA and Christman, have a history of bringing in projects 2 percent under budget, a savings to the district. If we hired a general contractor, the fee you are talking about would be the profit a general contractor would charge us to handle all the sub contractors.

Do you intend to use competitive bidding? Why has the board hired an architect firm from Grand Rapids? Was this contract put out for bids?

Yes, the district is required by law to use a bidding process. In 1996 the board of education spent a considerable amount of time interviewing five architects and four construction manager firms. Through that process it was decided that BETA Design Group would do the architect work and Christman Company would be hired as the construction manager for the new school project. Part of that decision was their good track record of bringing in buildings under budget.

BETA Design and Christman Company managed the 1999 asbestos abatement project at the current high school. The school district's decision to use the BETA/Christman team was affirmed by the project being finished on time and under budget for savings to the district and taxpayers.

What basis is there to reports of annexation by the city of certain parts of Charlevoix and Marion townships as a result of the sewer extension?

This question should be directed to the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township or Marion Township.

Is it true that the board has abandoned the idea of fuel oil heat in favor of natural gas and, if so, at what cost?

The board has studied all types of systems to service the new high school building. Early in the investigation, natural gas was thought to be too expensive and that fuel oil could be used. Final natural gas costs have come in well within the district budget so natural gas will be used to service the building.

Has the board submitted a site plan to Marion Township, and if not, why not?

At the present time a formal site plan has not been submitted to Marion Township. (Strock) met with the Marion Township board on Nov. 16, 1999. The district and the architect are in the process of detailing the site plan and will share designs with the township when final designs are complete.

Has the board had any contact with either the DEQ or the DNR for the purpose of addressing wetlands concerns associated with the Marion Center Road site, and if not, why not?

There are no known wetlands on the Marion Center site. The architect firm has met with the appropriate people with regards to impact the building might make on the environment. As always we are very concerned about the environment and will make sure what we do is what is appropriate and right.

Car wash catches on fire

Monte's Auto Wash, at 850 Petoskey Ave., caught fire early Monday evening. Charlevoix fire crews arrived on scene around 6 p.m. and cleared the scene around 9 p.m. While the fire is under investigation, it appears it started in a laundry room near a dryer. The business opened last August. (Photo courtesy of The Petoskey News-Review)

Don't take chances with taxpayer money

EDITORIAL

Do you feel like you're playing Russian Roulette? As a city taxpayer, you should.

On March 17, Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas ruled section 5.65 of the Charlevoix zoning ordinance was unconstitutional because it did not allow for due process. According to this section of the ordinance a property rezoned for development would revert back to its prior zoning if the property was not developed within a year.

While Michigan has no recorded law on this issue, every other state has ruled this type of ordinance is unconstitutional. City Attorney Jim Young warned council that the law was probably unconstitutional back in September.

But, even with these warnings, the Charlevoix City Council kept it in place and used it to deny a development on May Street. Thus, sending the city into court against the developers to defend it.

Once in court the city is forced to use taxpayer money to defend its ordinance, even though council had already been warned by its own attorney that the law was unconstitutional.

So why make the taxpayers pay for a lawsuit that probably could not be won? Many council members are saying they went ahead with it because it had not been seen in Michigan courts.

Council Member Valerie Barnes stated now that it has been tried and defeated in a local court, council knows it is unconstitutional and can strike it out from its zoning ordinance.

What about the warnings by the city's own attorney that it was unconstitutional? Is he not paid taxpayer money to give legal guidance to the city, thus keeping the city out of costly lawsuits. And what about the rulings of other states saying it was unconstitutional? Is the Michigan Constitution so different from others that council actually had a chance of winning this one?

Council basically used taxpayer money so Charlevoix could be Michigan's lab rat and sent the city into the unpredictable maze of the court system. Just recently a southeastern Michigan city, Novi, was slapped with a $53 million lawsuit when it played around in the courts with a developer.

The Novi City Council thought it could win the lawsuit. Even if it didn't, Novi's council thought the cost of losing would not be very much. It was wrong and now that city is scrambling to find ways to pay the bills if it loses its appeals.

Next time council should just listen to its attorney when trying to determine the constitutionality of its ordinances or it too could suffer Novi's fate.

Does technology really make our lives easier?

Edith Gilbert

As if we don't already have enough gadgets, planners are now proudly adding more high-tech gadgetry to showcase houses!

Builders are introducing "wiring closets" and "energy rooms" so that with a touch of a button by your bed, you can turn on every light and appliance that you may need in the morning.

The kitchen offers a remote controlled refrigerator that assists in meal planning, grocery lists and shopping. The house has a built in big screen television, fireplace and grill, as well as a walled off pool and patio area called a "courtyard oasis" that are operated by the click of a finger.

Deliver me from all these time saving devices!

I don't know what you do with all the time saved, but I know what I do — spend time getting things fixed. Whenever something malfunctions, I am forced to hang on the phone for 20 minutes here and 30 minutes there waiting to talk to a live person.

All this time saved by gadgets adds up to time lost fixing them.

The telephone's press 1, press 2, press 3 routine has gotten worse instead of better since some geek decided to add a pony express system. This means that after you have selected the service you need, you are again presented with more choices, press 1, press 2, press 3. Then if you are not by chance connected, you are given the option of voice mail, "I am sorry, but I am not at my desk right now." So where is everyone?

Guess what will happen when the remote control refrigerator starts doing our meal planning. By the time the order is delivered, the milk would be sour, the pizza would be stale and the ice cream melted.

Instead of turning on the morning coffee pot and stereo, chances are 100 to 1 that the security system will go off by itself for no reason in the middle of the night. Picture the swimming pool being filled again and flooding the yard, instead of turning off the grill in the "courtyard oasis."

Much as I love my computer, printer and fax machine, there is nothing more aggravating than when there is a glitch on these lifelines. One can't call someone like the Coast Guard to come to our rescue with the magic word, "Mayday." Instead, one can pour over the impossible manuals with a lingo all their own.

What would happen if we all rebelled and fouled up the system by everyone just staying on the telephone line when we need help and never pressing any requested numbers? We could form an organization and call ourselves "PLUG" for Phone Lines Up for Grabs.

Would that Alexander Graham Bell were still alive to get us out of this mess. I for one can do without all these future time saving devices.

What's behind recall?

Editor:

The school board-recall movement has reminded me of an old folklore tale. As I recall, it's about a cat and a monkey, back in the days when animals could talk and did people stuff. The two were sitting by a fireplace, roasting chestnuts in the hot embers. I can't remember which, but one of them sweet-talked the other into pulling the chestnuts out of the fire and scorched his paws in the act. Whoever got burnt, the message was that one of them benefited at the expense of the other.

I turn now to the recall effort (blazing fire) and motives (hot-chestnuts) behind it. It would appear that a neighbor (the main cat or monkey), whose land is next to the new high school campus, had sweettalked a few better-knowns (big-time cats or monkeys) who in turn got to a thousand or so unsuspecting folks (ordinary cats or monkeys) to sign a petition for a board recall and thus stop the building project (the paws of all these cats or monkeys were the one's scorched when they pulled this one person's chestnuts out of the fire he started).

What's actually behind this person's (main cat or monkey) full-page diatribes is unclear to me. Is it possible that this after-the-fact recall scheming is because he did not have a crack at out-bidding the school district for this site? If so, it points up even more strongly, a board's need to keep site searches confidential, until a site is selected and the deal consummated.

Having as a neighbor, a tree-lined landscaped school facility with an annual crop of well schooled graduates is to me a better choice, far into the future, than being next to a farmer who might at any time decide to raise hogs on a grand scale.

An exciting time for schools

Editor:

Wow! This is really exciting, a new school with everything the teachers and students want and the proposal will come in under budget. Who ever heard of such a thing? Certainly none of us who have lived in Charlevoix for more of our lives can remember this ever happening before.

I would have to say each and every one of us have to take our hats off to the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education who has really done a super job. This means hours and hours of research. We could all do this, yes each one of us, but we elected these people to do that for us. What a great job they have done. Marion Center! Ah yes, I remember when we were going to put the present high school way out there where there was nothing, near a horse track, later a grade school way out in Charlevoix Township. Where was everyone when they unveiled the new high school plan on a beautiful large piece of land near town? Let's learn from our students, if we all work together we can have a winning team. This is a school we can all be proud of and we can continue to turn out wonderful students.

Charlevoix needs a sports store

Editor:

We should have a sports store in Charlevoix. The reason for this is people have to travel out of town to get sports equipment. It also takes too long to order the equipment, so it would bring more money to Charlevoix, because people from Ellsworth and East Jordan would come and buy things from this store. More people would come here to buy things from the other stores in town, too. Also, more sports are becoming popular so that is another reason we should have a sports store. Finally, it would make people happy because they don't have to pay shipping and handling fees when they order from catalogs because we don't have a store in town. That is why we should have a sports store in Charlevoix.

Dare to dream

Editor:

In celebration of the twentieth anniversary of National Crime Victims' Rights Week, Mothers Against Drunk Driving, Michigan (MADD, Michigan) is asking that all victims of crime "Dare to Dream."

This year's "Dare to Dream" theme offers victims, advocates and everyone else the chance to reflect on the tremendous strides that have been made toward victim justice. These strides emerged from victims who dared to share their personal pain so that others might learn from their experiences - from victim advocates who dared to push for significant reforms that have resulted in more consistent and comprehensive assistance for crime victims, to justice officials who dared to pursue a system of justice that balances the rights of the accused and convicted offenders with the rights of crime victims.

MADD, Michigan also would like to use National Crime Victims' Rights Week, April 9-15 to thank the police officers, the prosecutors, the probation officers and the judges who work every day to make sure that the victims are treated with the dignity that they deserve. We thank these law enforcement officials for sharing our dream of a world where "justice" includes crime victims and where we do our community justice every time we help a victim of a crime.

Work begins on Charlevoix Municipal Airport terminal

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Construction of a new airport terminal at Charlevoix Municipal Airport began on March 20, a week ahead of plans.

"Work is underway," airport manager Loraine Luepnitz said. "It's great to have started after two years of talking about it."

During construction, people must drive to the west side of the building to drop off luggage, and then walk into the terminal from the north side of the building, Luepnitz said.

The new 3,400-square-foot terminal will double the current space. It will be handicapped accessible and have automatic doors. A heated sidewalk leading up to the terminal is planned for winter use.

The project is estimated to cost $362,000. The State Bureau of Aeronautics will grant $75,000, and the city is responsible for the remaining $287,000.

The municipal airport accommodates single and twin-engine airplanes and small corporate jets. The runway is 4,550 feet.

Luepnitz expects an October move-in date for the terminal. The old building may be removed from the site or torn down.

St. Mary's honors 100 volunteers with dinner

St. Mary's Parish of Charlevoix honored more than 100 volunteers March 4 in the Parish Center with an appreciation dinner following 5:30 p.m. Mass.

Each ministry and their volunteers were mentioned and thanked including those unable to attend.

Father Tom Neis presented Mary Lavary with the "Marian Award" for her continuous dedication and commitment to serve the Lord by serving others.

Mary will celebrate her 94-year birthday on Easter. Mary serves as sacristan, assists at all funeral luncheons in the kitchen and attends daily Mass driving her own car.

As Father Tom said, "May her witness inspire all of us to do the same."

Donor gives $250,000 to county humane society

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A Charlevoix couple impressed with the love and attention given to animals by the staff of the Charlevoix County Humane Society are donating $250,000 to the society.

The husband and wife contributing the gift wish to remain anonymous. They presented a letter to the humane society board of directors and staff on March 22.

"I was particularly impressed with the love and attention that the entire staff gave the animals ... It was truly heart rendering," the letter stated.

The donors were pleased with the new animal shelter in Boyne City. The building is designed so that cats have a separate room from the dogs. A conference room is used for a variety of purposes, including teaching sessions on animal care for children and adults. A small room is available for a private introductory visit with an animal a person is considering adopting.

BEACONS

By FR. JIM GUNN
Rector of Christ Episcopal Church

Be a part of the Body of Christ. Evaluate the choices of your life in the light of Holy Scripture. Aim for the highest good in your life and those around you. Consider others as better than yourself, as the Bible tells us. Open your heart to the direction and power of the Holy Spirit. Never turn away from those in need. Sincerely believe in the good news of new life in Jesus Christ.

Obliterate your attachment to the things of this world. Fulfill all of the promises that you make to God.

Begin each day with prayer and Bible reading.

Lift your heart and voice to God every time you feel down.

Examine your actions that you may know when you have sinned. Sing the praises of God.

Save the best of your energy for the tasks God calls you to.

OF BLESSINGS

Invest your time, talent and treasure in the work of God.

Never lose sight of the fact that God loves you.

Give God the glory for the good things in your life.

Support, in prayer, all of your brothers and sisters in Christ.

If we faithfully follow the directions above, then we will "spell out" Beacons of Blessings in our lives. God will be glorified in the world and others will be drawn into His kingdom.

Obituaries

Harvey N. Cole

Harvey N. Cole, 63, of Charlevoix, died March 25 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral service is today at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. David Behling officiated. A burial will follow in Brookside Cemetery.

Harvey was born on October 6, 1936 in Port Huron, Mich., the son of Harvey Norman and Ruby (Gordianer) Cole. He attended Elk Rapids High School graduating in 1954.

Following graduation he entered the US Coast Guard and was stationed in Charlevoix where he met Betty Blissett. The two were married in Petoskey, on September 3, 1959.

Harvey began working for Burns Security at Consumers Energy's Big Rock Plant in 1975. Illness forced him to retire, in October 1999, until that time he served as a supervisor.

Mr. Cole was a member of the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post 226, the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club and the National Rifleman's Association. Survivors include his wife, Betty; two sons, David and his wife Bernadette, of Charlevoix, Brent and his wife Dianne, of Marshall; five grandchildren, Katelyn, Cristin, Jared, Matthew, and Samantha; four brothers, Ty, Jack, Mick, and Russ; one sister, Marilyn. He was preceded in death by his parents, three sisters and one brother.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the Harvey Cole Memorial Fund at the Charlevoix State Bank. Funds will be used to purchase a lap top computer system with voice synthesizer for a resident of Northern Michigan who became unable to talk due to ALS (Lou Gehrig's Disease).

Louie August Thiel daughter of Francis and Esther Thompson of Ashley at Christ Evangelical Lutheran German Church in Brady Township.

He resided his entire working life and early retirement years on the family homestead farm in Brady Township, as a dairy farmer, milk hauler, and in later years as mechanic and driver for Brady School. Late in his retirement years he and Frances moved to the Charlevoix area to be near his son, Frank and his daughter-in-law Connie.

Survivors include his wife, Frances; two sons, Robert L. and his wife Patricia, of Saginaw, Frank and his wife Connie, of Charlevoix; daughter, Sherry Flagg and her husband, Richard, of Vancouver, Washington; eight grandchildren; six great grandchildren; brother, Robert Thiel and his wife Helen, of Chesaning; sister Lillian Thiel, of Owosso; sisters-in-law, Edna Ward-Scully and her husband Pat, of Chesaning, and Sylvia Kerr, of Ashley; twenty-three nieces and nephews. Louie is preceded in death by a brother, Albert and his wife Evangeline, of Vassar, and a sister, Evangeline Hunt and her husband, Martin, of Owosso.

The family is being served by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

"The man who fails to advertise just because conditions are a little uncertain is on par with the farmer who refuses to feed his cows because the price of butter has gone down."

Donation to be used over 20 year span

DONATION

Humane society director Martha Weisler was surprised and thrilled to hear about the donation.

"I was overwhelmed," Weisler said. "He [the donor] called himself to let me know. I asked him if he was pulling my leg. We had no idea he was going to do this."

The funds will be used for operating costs, especially staffing, Weisler said. The donation will fund the shelter for 20 years at approximately $1,000.00 per month.

The donors both grew up with dogs in their families. The donation letter speaks of their love of animals.

"There is nothing more rewarding than being able to return love to animals that need help for there is no better characteristic that an animal shows than unconditional love to its owner and helper. A dog or cat is always there for you during the rough times and the good times. They will always be your friend and they will always help you," the donors said in their letter.

Fire danger higher due to less snow FIRE

All firefighters say the area's dry conditions necessitate more care than ever.

"It's definitely dangerous," said Lt. Steve Hall of the East Jordan Fire Department. His area has seen about 12 acres burned this month.

Not having a heavy snow season affects the land in other ways besides dryness, Elber said.

Because the grass isn't packed down after a light winter, fire spreads quickly, he said.

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) decides on a day-to-day basis whether to permit burning. Don Klingler said. Klingler is a forest fire officer at the DNR.

"We're issuing permits one day at a time," he said. The permits are for burning leaves and brush only. No burning of trash, stumps or trees is being permitted.

Fines for runaway fires vary. If the DNR responds to a fire, it charges a reimbursement cost of $100 on average, but has charged up to $1,000.00.

To inquire about a burning permit, call the DNR at 547-0086 on the day you wish to burn.

Dive into spring activities with the Charlevoix pool

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool will offer a wide variety of classes, programs and recreational activities this spring.

Programs include swim school (lessons), swim team, lifeguard training, a water safety instructor course (swim teachers), Twinges in the Hinges (arthritis) and Aqua Exercise, lap swims and open recreation. Rental times are also available during the school day, as well as on weekends for field trips, groups or organizations.

Registration, by mail, fax and drop off is now going on for all spring programs. Mail registrations to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, 11905 US 31 North, Charlevoix 49720 or fax to (231) 547-1754.

Water Safety Instructor Course: An American Red Cross certified course for those interested in becoming swimming instructors will be offered from 6 to 10 p.m. on Fridays starting April 14 through May 5 and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays, April 15 and 16 and May 6 and 7. Students need to be 17 years of age and have an intermediate swimming ability. The fee is $150 for the course and required books. Several scholarship programs are available; call Al Gooch for more information.

Lifeguard training: An American Red Cross certified course for those interested in becoming lifeguards will be offered from 6 to 10 p.m. Fridays from May 12 to May 19, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 12, 14, 20 and 21. Students need to be 15 years of age and be able to swim 500 yards. The fee is $150 for the course and the required books. Several scholarships are available.

Swim school: School starts April 8. These classes are Red Cross certified and meet once each week for six weeks. They are available on Saturdays at a cost of $36. A class is also available for adults who would like to learn to swim or improve their swimming skills.

Swim team: The team starts a six week session April 3. This is a competitive swim program designed for ages 7 through 18. The blue group meets from 4:15 to 5 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday for 7, 8 and 9 year olds. Fees are $36 for one day a week or $45 for both days. The gold group meets from 4 to 5 p.m. Monday through Wednesday and Friday with swimmers attending three times each week. There is a fee of $60.

Aqua-Aerobics: This class, taught by Michael Smith, is offered eight times each week. They meet from 8:15 to 9 a.m. Monday through Saturday and 5:15 to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday. Participants can pay each time or purchase a six week pass.

Twinges in the Hinges: This class, taught by Linda Shomin, is offered three times a week. They meet from 9 to 10 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The class is designed for people with arthritis. Shomin is a certified instructor with the National Arthritis Foundation. Participants can pay each time or purchase a six week pass.

Water Polo: A drop in program that meets from 8 to 9:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Thursday of each month. The fee will be $2 and players must be at least 16 years old. The last session until fall will be April 27.

Please pass the mustard...

Council explains why city went to court for ordinance

"I was unable to find any legal authority for the reversion language ... unable to find any Michigan cases supporting such language. Therefore ... the reversioned language of Section 5.65 is invalid ..."

Despite the advice of the city attorney, city council relied on that section, in part, when it denied the 1007 May Street development plan.

But Council Member A.J. Witthoef said relying on the reversion zoning section was a valid choice.

"There was that chance to be taken ... We weren't sure because there is no case law. We wouldn't go foolishly spending money," Witthoef said.

The city's attorney fees for the May Street lawsuit are $3,006.00, thus far.

"We all felt we should leave it up to the judicial system," Council Member Bernie DeVries said. "I know what our attorney said, but zoning is there for the people and if the people speak, judges, politicians, whatever, should listen."

Witthoef and DeVries represented the third ward where the May Street property is located.

Now that reversion zoning has been tried and defeated in a local court, council knows it is unconstitutional and can strike that section from its zoning ordinance, said Council Member Valerie Barnes.

"We also needed to have that decided," Barnes said. "We still have the ordinance on the books. We decided we wouldn't take it off until we had a case to decide it one way or the other."

Barnes and the other council members still believe the development should be denied.

"I think we're still justified because of the other factors," Barnes said.

One of the other factors stated by council in denying the development plan is traffic concerns. The development may mean up to 100 more cars a day in the area, one estimate states.

Council Member Gabe Campbell is concerned about the road. "That road is a very narrow, heavily-traveled road," Campbell said. "People are afraid to go out and get their mail."

Campbell and Bellows also voted to rely on reversion zoning.

Campbell said it was his belief that the zoning should not have been changed from single-family to multi-family in the first place.

Bellows said he voted for relying on reversion zoning because it didn't make any difference.

"I was the sixth voter and knew it would pass." But, he noted "I thought the city attorney was right."

Council Member Norman Carlson was not on council at the time of the vote.

Other factors in council's decision in denying the development plan were that single-family dwellings exist on three sides of the proposed development, making multi-family housing inconsistent with the area. Also that the city's master plan discourages clustering of multi-family dwellings.

These claims remain part of the lawsuit. City attorney Young and the developers' attorney say they will meet soon to discuss these matters.

The multi-family subsidized housing project is presented by developers Robert Brooks and Scott Dietze of LeDay, Inc. The project would be located at 1007 May Street.

USAF Det. 6 of Bayshore planning summer reunion

Veterans of Detachment 6, First Combat Evaluation Group, which was located on Town Line Road in Bayshore from the 1960's through 1985, will have their reunion in Charlevoix beginning June 30 until July 3.

Expected are vets who are traveling in from around the country as well as the many who settled in the area after their military careers. Det. 6 provided strategic readiness and electronic warfare training for B-52, FB-111 and Canadian Royal Air Force aircrews. Most of the people who served at Bayshore lived in the area for three years or more and have kept ties with those in the community.

The reunion begins with a cocktail reception at Whitney's of Charlevoix at 8 p.m. on June 30. All are welcome to come and say hello to old friends. A golf outing and picnic at Depot Beach are scheduled for Saturday, dinner on Sunday evening at Whitney's and brunch on Monday at Nanny's on Ferry Beach.

Detailed information can be found on the Internet at www.d66.com or by calling Mike Jensen, the reunion coordinator at (856) 488-0700.

McDonald's restaurant to move to smaller space

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix McDonald's restaurant may soon be moving up Bridge Street to the site of the present Archway Motel.

Despite the motel's name, that is not the reason McDonald's is moving. Rather, a new restaurant will be built that will be smaller than the present building.

"The current building is too large and inefficient," Tom Holka said. Holka is a Kalkaska resident who is the operator of the Charlevoix McDonald's. He became operator a year ago, he said.

The restaurant will scale down from approximately 4,000-square-feet to 2,000-square-feet. More than 50 percent of McDonald's business is from its drive-through window. The new building will seat 44 customers.

Whether or not it will have a play land is yet to be determined.

The new restaurant will sit on the front portion of the 2.52 acre site. The proposed building will need 2.3 percent of the site. No plans for development of the remaining rear portion of the parcel have been made, McDonald's Realtor Roger DeHock said.

The city planning commission approved the development plan following a public hearing on March 20, but McDonald's still needs city council approval. Council will consider the plan at its April 3 meeting, following a public hearing.

If approval is granted, the restaurant will move from 1400

Bridge Street to 1440 Bridge Street. It will be located next to Blarney Castle's E-Z Mart and have a pass-through drive to each business.

While the planning commission passed the plan, some planners were not favorable of it.

"I'm sick of the abandonment of buildings in this town," City Planner Shirley Gibson said. "I don't believe we need to abandon buildings for the sake of the almighty dollar."

Gibson voted against the development plan. At this time there are no plans for the current building to be demolished.

"Hopefully, another restaurant will buy it," DeHock said.

Venetian Fest expands its board of directors by three Exactly one year ago the Venetian Festival became a nonprofit organization, separated from the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. As the group enters its second year, the board of directors has been expanded to accommodate the increasing demands of festival organization.

Joining the board are Anne Golski, John Taylor and Laurie Lounsbury. The three new members each bring their unique expertise to the board that will allow the Venetian Festival to grow.

Taylor, formerly the Venetian Festival chairman when it was part of the chamber of commerce, will offer his wealth of experience from past festivals.

"John's the type of guy who isn't afraid to roll up his shirt sleeves and dig right in to get the job done," said Board President Dan Barron.

Anne Golski will assist the board with new plans to offer a wider variety of Venetian merchandise. Golski has a strong background in retail merchandising.

She is a co-owner of My Sister's Closet, and handles marketing for the Bullfrog Light Company.

Lounsbury joins the board to help with publications and press releases for the festival. As former newspaper editor, her knowledge of media will benefit the festival organizers.

"I'm really pleased that these three community-minded and talented people have agreed to serve on our board," Barron said.

Along with the three new board appointments, the original six board members were reappointed to their positions. They are: Dan Barron, president; John Winn, vice president; Dave Novotny, secretary; Brownie Flanders, treasurer; Dean Davenport, Venetian Games chair; and Steve Andrae, chamber liaison.

At the board's last meeting, a tentative operating budget for Venetian Festival 2000 was adopted. The budget includes $50,000 for fireworks and $40,000 for entertainment and concert production equipment.

But with the first signs of spring, people are motivated to leave the confines of their homes. In the same way, the Neighborhood Ford Dealers say, they are motivated to offer exceptional values at this time of year in order to get a new Ford vehicle easier for the public. Given the scope of the Break Out sales event and the savings being offered, it is likely that many will heed their invitation. Break Out of their old, cold ways and get into a new Ford.

Rayders quest for state title ended with a loss last week

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

"We just didn't have enough in the end"

Sean Stockman,
Rayders varsity basketball player

After a hard fought fight for the lead, the Rayders were stopped in their quest for the state championship title with a 63-59 loss to Negaunee March 21.

"It was a tremendous high school basketball game," said Rayders' Coach Keith Haske. "It was just a tremendous quarter-final game. The kids really battled."

He said the game was back and forth between the two teams throughout, but the Rayders lost in the end due to a couple of free throws.

Senior Rayder Sean Stockman said he felt the game could have gone either way.

"We just didn't have enough in the end," he said. "Personally, I thought we could have gone out of there with a win. It was a really good game, but we had some bad turnovers."

Haske added Negaunee was a very good team with three players who were great at playing the perimeter. Negaunee has only lost three regular games this year, one against a Class A team.

"I think they will be in the state finals," Haske said. In fact, Negaunee was named State Champions in Class C on Saturday.

Haske added he is very proud of his players, saying they all left the court with their "heads held high."

"I told them in any of the 16 years of my coaching, this was the most fun year and I had a great time coaching," Haske said. "(The Rayders) were hard working throughout the year, they were unselfish and team oriented." Haske added he was very impressed with the community support for the team. "It makes it special to the kids to know the community is behind us," he said.

Stockman repeated Haske's appreciation to the community.

"I thank them, because they have been behind us all the way," he said. "It helped us a lot in our games seeing everyone there. It's been great for the whole community."

Leading scorers for the Rayders were: Stockman with 22 points, Scott Parrish with 16 points and Adam Wood with 11 points.

Ski season comes to an end at Olympics for Hurricanes

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Three area students wrapped up this year's ski season by competing in the United States Junior Olympics with the Hurricane Racing Team early this month.

Tiffany Fisher and Troy Smith, both Charlevoix High School seniors, competed at the Junior Olympics in Beaver Creek, Colo. March 7 through 11. While York Smith, a 14-year-old Charlevoix student, competed at Steamboat Springs, Colo. March 12 through 18.

Fisher competed in the giant slalom, slalom and super giant slalom. She finished 42 in the super giant slalom and 44 in the slalom. Fisher did not finish the giant slalom.

Hurricanes Coach Bob Vial said overall Fisher did pretty well at the competition.

"She is always very consistent and always finishes consistently. She always does well in training and always does well in racing," he said. Vial pointed out Fisher had never competed in the super giant slalom until the Junior Olympics this year.

Troy competed in the super giant slalom, the giant slalom and the slalom. He finished 36 in the super giant slalom, but did not finish in either the giant slalom or the slalom.

"Troy didn't do so well," Vial said. His problem was that he was trying to go too fast, which caused him to fall in two of his events, he said.

"(Troy's) focus is trying to do well, sometimes too well," Vial added. "Troy might be capable of getting a higher score than (Fisher), but (Fisher) will get to the finish line more often."

Troy's brother York fared a bit better in his competition and came in 23 out of over 100 competitors. York competed in the downhill, super giant slalom, giant slalom and slalom.

He finished 45 in the downhill, 16 in the super giant slalom and 12 in the slalom. York did not finish the giant slalom.

"(York) is a very good skier," Vial said. "He is pretty stylish. Everybody always makes comments on how good he looks when he comes down a mountain."

Vial said he was very happy with the Hurricane's overall performance this season. While the season was shortened due to warm weather, ten skiers on the team qualified for the Junior Olympics this year.

Questions on site answered by school board

In view of the budgetary woes of Traverse City and Gaylord as a result of cost overruns, what measures has the board taken to guarantee the voters there is sufficient oversight in place to protect the operating budget from such overspending?

We are not familiar with the exact Traverse City and Gaylord woes. To ensure that the Charlevoix High School project stays on track, the board has taken the following actions: Hiring a construction manager to oversee the building process to get the best competitive bids from contractors and sub contractors, conducting periodic cost evaluations throughout the design process to make sure we are within budget and building in a contingency of over $800,000 in the budget to cover any kind of cost overrun.

Identify the long-term needs of the district, please be specific. Can the board cite specific demographic studies to support "future expansion?" Does future expansion include plans to move the elementary and middle schools to the Marion Road site?

The March 9, 1999 community forum and the facilities steering committee both addressed the need to purchase property not only for today, but for the long term so future boards wouldn't be placed in a situation of having no room for expansion. The population studies done for a new high school indicates slow growth over the next five years. The facilities steering committee recommended that future boards maintain and periodically update a long-range facilities plan to respond to future growth in the area. At present there is no plan to move any other school to the site, however, a portion of the Marion Center site has been reserved for future projects. Future boards will have many options for future facility needs with the Marion Center Road site.

Will the developers move Clark Road?

This question should be directed to the property owners.

How much of the millage proceeds has been expended or obligated to date?

$1,095,259.81

How much of the millage proceeds has been approved for payment but not disbursed?

None.

List the contracts approved regarding the three buildings by contractor, dollar amount and purpose.

The district hasn't let any contracts yet. Contracts will come up later in the year.

What is the renovation schedule and date of completion for the elementary school building?

The preliminary projected completion schedule is to start in June 2001 and completion in the fall of 2001.

Do the soil boring tests show that there are wetlands on the Marion Center Road site? If so, how many acres are wetlands? Are they regulated or unregulated wetlands? Can it be built upon? When will an environmental impact study be filed with the Marion Township Planning Commission?

Will the speed limit remain 55 mph after the opening of the school?

We have met with the Charlevoix County Road Commission about the speed limit on Marion Center Road. The school has no authority to lower the speed limit; however, we will continue to meet with the Charlevoix County Road Commission to review traffic safety concerns.

What are the projected costs of road construction at the Marion Center Road site? Who will pay the cost of widening the south and northbound lanes at the projected high school site?

* Safety of the Marion Center Road site continues to be a top priority of the Board of Education. The school district has met with the Charlevoix County Road Commission and they have asked us to provide turnouts for the south and northbound lanes at the site entrance, use a single entrance for the site and to locate the driveway to maximize sight lines and safety at the site. We have complied with their requests and the costs are included in the site work budget.

Has the sewer easement been secured from the Belvedere Golf Club?

The city is responsible for the construction of the sewer.

What is the projected route of the sewer to the Marion Center Road site? Will the school reimburse the city $47,000 for going under US-31?

According to the city the sewer line will cross US-31, go under Marion Center Road and run south to a north point on the school district's Marion Center Road property. The projected site of the lift station is on the west side of US-31 near Harbor Industries.

The cost to the district for the sewer is projected to be $517,831.75. The $517,831.75 will include going under US-31, engineering fees, running the line along Marion Center Road to the north side of the Marion Center Road property including a pumping station, previous fees, the school's portion of the lift station and an allowance for contingencies. Of the $517,831.75, $404,437.75 is subject to partial reimbursement to the Charlevoix Public Schools. If we assume an estimated 75 percent hook up rate, this equates to a $303,028 reimbursement to the schools. The sewer extension could eventually cost the district only $214,000.

Is the board renewing (Sturrock's) contract to the year 2003 at this time? Wasn't a long-term contract an issue with Roberta Jackson? Is this a wise policy?

This question has been answered and information released by a previous FOIA request to (Porter).

Who is the owner/developer of the 80-house project? Are the developers paying for only sewer hook-up fees or is the total sewer cost being prorated between the 80 home sites and the school?

The only thing the district knows for sure is who owns the property. As far as sewer hookup fees, anyone who hooks up to the sewer will be dealing with the City of Charlevoix. The city will then reimburse the school system a portion of the cost for the hookup.

Who will pay for restructuring of the Marion Center Road? What will this cost?

Roadwork at the school site has already been addressed. The Marion Center/US 31 intersection is a city project. Any questions about that work should be directed to the city.

Has the board let any contracts? If so, to do what?

That question has already been answered in a previous question."

Jordan Nystrom has been chosen to goaltend for TeamUSA this April in a Canadian tournament. (Courtesy Photo)

Student to compete in Canadian tournament

Charlevoix student, Jordan Nystrom, was recently chosen to goaltend for TeamUSA — also called the Warriors — at the Canadian Cup Tournament for Bantam division hockey in Montreal, Quebec that runs throughout the month of April.

This is the sixth year the team, sponsored by United Scholastic Achievers, has gone to the tournament in Montreal. It is also the third year Nystrom has competed as a goal-tender for TeamUSA in the tournament.

The team will be receiving guidance and support at the tournament from Micke Hartman, a 13-year veteran of the NHL and a Stanley Cup Champion in 1994 with the New York Rangers.

The Canadian Cup Tournament is sponsored by Canadian Hockey Enterprises, the largest hockey company in the world. In addition, while the team is in Montreal, they will have a chance to speak with former hockey stars, including: Gilles Gilbert, Dennis Hull, Jean Beliveau, Yvan Cournoyer and Darryl Sittler.

While playing for TeamUSA, Nystrom is also very active in hockey in Traverse City. He just completed his seventh season in the Grand Traverse Hockey Association on the Burger King Flames AA Bantam team.

Attention Businesses:

Beware of "Bogus" Billing

Each year, businesses lose millions of dollars to "bogus" Yellow Pages billing schemes. Often bearing the famous (but never trademarked) walking fingers logo, misleading and fraudulent yellow pages solicitations look like bills — and they routinely get paid by many unsuspecting businesses nationwide. Examine your bill carefully before you pay it.

What to look for on a "Bogus" Bill

This universally recognized logo was never trademarked by AT&T, so anyone can use it.

If it's a solicitation, not an invoice, federal postal law requires that it must state this very clearly.

Another committee joins in foray

Group claims the school district is 'at risk' with Marion Center property

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Yet another committee has surfaced to fight the Charlevoix Public School Board of Education's land site choice for the new high school.

The Charlevoix Area Natural Resources Preservation Association comes against the site from an environmental standpoint and it has hired a law firm from Traverse City to advance its cause. An attorney from the firm has written to school board president Allen Telgenhof and superintendent of schools John Sturrock.

The group is a non-profit corporation, incorporated on March 22. Its registered agent is Robert G. Mossman. The preservation association is based at 14197 Veenstra Road.

The letter of March 29 written by attorney Karen Ferguson states only that the preservation association: "...is comprised of residents in the Charlevoix Area and nearby property owners who are concerned about the proposed development ..."

The letter from the attorney to the school board and school superintendent claims that the school district should have applied for and received a special use approval from Marion Township. The preservation association contends that this is necessary because the site is in an agricultural zone.

Board president Allen Telgenhof stated that the board has always intended to submit its site plan to Marion Township. It wasn't until the last school board meeting in March that the plan was ready.

He expects that it will be submitted in the near future for the township's review and approval.

Further, Telgenhof said that superintendent Sturrock has talked frequently with Marion Township officials and kept them advised of the school's plans.

Fireworks to light up the sky Saturday in Charlevoix

April showers will come in the form of brilliant fireworks showers at 9:15 p.m. Saturday as a part of the Michigan Festivals and Events Spring Convention.

In conjunction with the convention, which will be hosted April 7-9 in Charlevoix, two of the nation's premiere fireworks companies will be providing a spectacular fireworks display at the Charlevoix Country Club.

The public is welcome to attend the display. Those interested in attending may enter the country club off U.S. 31 and a parking and viewing area will be marked along Country Club Drive.

"The display will be an excellent opportunity for our residents to get a sneak preview of what will be in store for them at this year's Venetian Festival," said Venetian board president Dan Barron.

The fireworks being set off Saturday will be low level aerial fireworks, which the Venetian Festival will propose to be shot off in Charlevoix as part of this year's summer festivities. These types of fireworks are similar to those used in stadiums during concerts and sporting events.

Earlier in the day, a panel of national fireworks experts will be providing a seminar on pyrotechnic shoots. Many area police, fire chiefs and fire marshals have been invited to attend the workshop.

Spend a night in jail and help raise funds

In an effort to raise funds for the K-9 Unit and the Sheriff's Auxiliary, Sheriff George T. Lasater will be putting people in jail.

For a $35 per person donation to the K-9 program and the Auxiliary, a participant can tour the new county jail, have a "prisoner's" meal in one of the cells and spend the night at the new facility. In addition, participants will receive a mug shot to take home and a t-shirt signifying the time they spent in the Charlevoix County jail.

Lasater added the cell doors will not be locked during the stay, so — unlike future occupants of the new cells — participants in the fundraiser can leave at any time. There will be separate cells for males and females.

There will be two other open houses to present the new jail to the public besides this one, Lasater said. One of those will be just for residents who live near the new jail.

While work on the new facility is almost finished, Lasater said work on renovating the old section of the jail will continue for at least another month. Construction on both projects is on schedule, he added.

"I'm very impressed (with the new jail)," Lasater said. "I think the citizens will be proud of it."

He said the ease of the project's completion can be attributed to the County Commissioners in office when the current facility was constructed in 1971.

The commissioners at that time looked ahead to the future and bought a large piece of property to build the facility on, Lasater said. When it came time to build an addition onto that old jail, the county already had land to build on.

The spirit of looking into the future that started with that county commission in 1971 has continued with today's county commission, Lasater said.

"When they started this (construction), they looked ahead 20 years. They have done a wonderful job for the community," he said.

Anyone interested in staying a night in the jail as part of the fundraiser can contact Lasater at 547-4461.

Fire alarm alerts couple in time to escape burning home early Sunday

A simple smoke alarm may have saved the lives of two Charlevoix residents early Sunday morning.

Around 4:30 a.m. Sunday, Scott Louisell and his wife Samantha were awakened by the sound of the smoke alarm in their home at 909 Norwood Road.

When they tried to go out of the bedroom, the couple discovered the bedroom door was hot. So, they exited their home through the bedroom window.

The Louisell home was fully engulfed in fire, with flames shooting through all of the windows and through the roof when members of the Charlevoix Fire Department arrived.

"It was a wall-to-wall fire when I arrived. I am sure everything was destroyed," said Fire Department Shift Commander Bob Roloff.

The Louisell's were transported to the Charlevoix Area Hospital and treated for smoke inhalation and a small cut. They were later released.

There was no one else in the home at the time of the fire.

Roloff said while nothing seems suspicious about the fire, its cause is under investigation. It is unknown at this time where the fire started in the home.

Charlevoix land use plan ready for public comment

A public hearing is scheduled for April 10 on the city's land use plan.

The plan is the city's vision of how the area should be planned out for land use, said city planner Gerry Harsch.

A 1993 map that the city is using shows the areas of the city used for residential, commercial, industrial and recreational purposes. The map and plan were never officially adopted, but the planning commission will vote on its adoption following the public hearing.

"The only controversial aspect of the plan will be multi-family housing," Harsch said.

The map is available at City Hall. It should be noted that the map shows parts of Charlevoix Township, Harsch said.

"We have no city-owned land to develop, except six or seven acres over by the Secretary of State," Harsch said.

Privately-owned acreage that could be developed totals no more than 20 acres. Portions of that land are on May Street and Petoskey Avenue.

Charlevoix has 1,630 acres of land in its geographical limits. A major land use is for residential which occupies 813 acres, or nearly 50 percent of the land.

Approximately 70 acres of land are used for commercial purposes, such as retail, services, offices, and recreation.

Hotels and motels cover approximately 19 acres of the city, and industry uses approximately 40 acres of land.

City wants to buy Wharfside

By B. J. HETLER
 Staff Writer

A new view to Round Lake is being planned.

City council gave approval on March 30, for the city to request a grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Recreation Trust Fund. The request is for $200,000 and would be used toward the purchase of the Wharfside building at 330 Bridge St.

The city plans to demolish the building to open up more of the view of Round Lake. The waterfront park area would be extended another 3,300 square feet.

Opening up the waterfront area began in 1896, city manager Michael Wiesner said.

"Before that it was all buildings from the bridge to Belvedere Street," he said. "Personally, I think the Charlevoix forefathers had a lot of vision."

It was in 1896 that the city bought the first building and piece of land to begin opening up the view of Round Lake. Prior to that there was no public land along the waterfront.

The city has already applied for other grants for this project from state and federal agencies for a total of $1,270,000 in grant requests. April 1 was the deadline for submitting grant requests. The project meets the objectives of several state and federal funding programs.

It is the community's strategy with this project to seek relatively small amounts of funding from several sources, both public and private, in order to have sufficient funds, said city planner Gerry Harsch.

The city must raise $250,000 in private sector funds, which resident John Winn has volunteered to raise.

The city obtained an appraisal several years ago of $800,000 for the Wharfside building. Asking prices on businesses are going up 10 percent each year, Wiesner said an appraiser advised.

Make your voice heard on land use

Now is the time to say how you want Charlevoix to grow.

Many times throughout the year we hear people complaining about urban sprawl, buildings going up next to their homes and zoning issues. Yet, these people are nowhere around when the issue of future growth is discussed by city officials.

This happens in cities across the state of Michigan and the United States.

Citizens complain about growth in their areas, but when the planning for that growth took place, they were not around. Many of these people "forgot" about the meeting, were too busy or just plain too lazy to come.

But when they find out the land next to their homes was rezoned to heavy industrial, only then do some of these people finally take a stand. But others will still stay on their couches complaining even as they hack up bits of their lungs thanks to the air pollution spewing out of the chemical plant next door.

EDITORIAL

Urban sprawl is another concern many residents in Michigan are facing, many times this is because their local governments did not plan enough for the future. These governments did not have stringent enough zoning laws and did not understand what its citizens wanted and where they wanted it.

Now cities that were once beautiful vacation paradises are nothing more than a sprawling wastelands of buildings. Remember this next time you visit Traverse City.

If you don't want that to happen to Charlevoix, or do want that to happen to Charlevoix, get out to a city council meeting or planning commission meeting when these government bodies are discussing land use and let your opinion be known.

We urge you not to sit around when vital decisions about land use are being made for Charlevoix. Only you can stop sprawl or start it.

Frankenfoods or future foods?

Roger Knutson
"Ear to the ground"

What has become an increasingly acrimonious debate over the safety of genetically engineered crops and the foods that are made from them, needs clarification.

For more than a decade, it has been possible for geneticists to extract genes from one kind of organism and insert them into another kind. One of the early demonstrations of what dramatic changes could be made was the introduction of the genes that help produce the materials that make fireflies glow into a tomato plant.

Sure enough, under the right circumstances the tomato plant gave off a small but detectable firefly-like glow. Such a tomato plant has no particular use, but as a demonstration it was hard to beat. Except for the glow, the tomato was perfectly normal in every respect.

It quickly occurred to those engaged in the development of better ways to grow and protect our food crops, that we might be able to produce plants that make their own insecticides. A gene from one of the world's common bacteria has been transplanted into corn, potato, tomato, tobacco, cotton and some related insect forms.

The reduced use of insecticides on those crops has made the environment and our food safer for everyone. How safe is this caterpillar toxin? Safe enough so that it is legal and proper to spray the bacteria themselves on your garden to control the worms that eat the leaves.

Disease resistance in crops, frost resistance, drought resistance and improvements in storage, along with mosquito control and a host of other benefits have been the product of genetic engineering methods like those used to control caterpillars on crops.

No harm to humans from any genetically engineered crops or food has ever been documented during the decade or more that some of these plants have been in use. Certainly the cautions that are in place for any new material in our environment should be observed, but there is no more reason to fear genetically engineered or modified crops or food than there is to fear nylon or microwaves, which were once very new and caused concerns. Even tomatoes, when they first arrived in Europe from South America, were considered poisonous by many and were not widely eaten.

The only certain documentation of harm to any part of the environment from genetically engineered insecticidal corn is the report that consuming the pollen shed by that corn causes diminished growth and health of monarch butterfly caterpillars.

Monarch butterflies are beautiful and dramatic and they are in no danger from genetically modified corn plants. Pollen is shed from corn plants for a few days in mid-summer and most of it stays in the corn fields away from the monarch caterpillars. No harm to monarch butterflies in nature has even been demonstrated. The harm came to caterpillars in a laboratory who were fed a diet high in corn pollen.

The techniques of genetic engineering could of course be used for evil purposes, as can any of the processes of modern science. There is, however, nothing evil about growing crops with the use of fewer insecticides, nor growing crops that can be stored for longer periods of time, nor even with harming a handful of monarch butterflies in the corn belt. The evil would be in not making proper use of the knowledge that is available to use to grow better, more abundant crops to feed a world that will never have too much food.

Unreasonable fear is not an appropriate response to new things in our world: Reasoned use of new things is an appropriate response.

Construction managers just as good

Editor:

As a local general contractor, I have been watching the Charlevoix — and Boyne City — school situation quite closely. I believe people have a few misconceptions on construction management versus general contractors.

Construction management does not offer any more than a general contractor. In fact, they offer less. A general contractor is bonded and legally responsible to see that the job is properly completed. The construction manager is an agent of the school and the school assumes many of the risks and liabilities that would be a part of a general contract.

General contractors put prices together the same way construction managers do. We use the same pool of subcontractors and suppliers.

Perhaps, the board should open the bidding to general contractors. This would allow for competitive bids — definitely in the best interest of the Charlevoix Public Schools — and still allow Christman to put their package together.

Thank you Charlevoix

Editor:

My Irish eyes are smiling because Charlevoix has done it again! Thousands of area residents — when they patronized their favorite convenience stores, supermarkets, restaurants and other retail businesses — brought the luck of the Irish to families affected by muscle-wasting diseases. By purchasing the Shamrocks Against Dystrophy mobiles, they turned these high-traffic venues green with good fortune for St. Patrick's Day.

Thanks to these caring customers and all the service personnel who added humanitarian value to cash register transactions by asking patrons, "Would you like to buy a Shamrock to help families served by the Muscular Dystrophy Association?" Charlevoix made an incredible contribution to the seventeenth annual campaign.

I'm sure that St. Patrick is as grateful as are the million Americans served by MDA for the $9 million that Shamrocks raised nationally this year. This sharing of the green has helped speed MDA-funded research at the University of Michigan, Wayne State University, Michigan State University and around the globe.

Moreover, this pot-o-gold is helping maintain the national network of 230 MDA clinics. The services of these hospital-affiliated clinics, along with MDA research, resulted in MDA becoming the first organization honored by the American Medical Association with a Lifetime Achievement Award "for significant and lasting contributions to the health and welfare of humanity."

In Michigan, MDA has eight clinics, including the MDA clinic at Mary Free Bed Hospital in Grand Rapids.

By taking part in Shamrocks and other local MDA events, by calling pledges to the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon broadcast, Charlevoix Courier readers continue to make a huge difference for families throughout Michigan and across the nation. On behalf of my niece and others living with neuromuscular diseases, I thank you!

Poems wanted for contest

Poems are now being accepted for entry in Sparrowgrass Poetry Forum's new Poetic Achievement Awards poetry contest.

Cash prizes totaling $1,000 will be awarded, including a $500 grand prize. The contest is free to enter.

Poets may enter one poem only, 20 lines or fewer, on any subject, in any style. The contest closes May 31 and poets are encouraged to send their work as soon as possible. Poems entered in the contest will also be considered for publication in the Winter 2001 edition of Treasured Poems of America, a hardcover anthology to be published in December 2000. An Anthology purchase may be required to ensure publication, but is not required to enter or win the contest. Prize winners will be announced on July 31, 2000.

"Interest in poetry continues to grow," says Jerome P. Welch, Publisher, "and our contest offers a public forum for new poets who want to share their work. We welcome poetry of all subjects and themes and judge on sincerity and originality, giving inexperienced poets an opportunity to be a prize winner. In fact, many of our winners are new poets with new ideas."

Poems should be sent to Sparrowgrass Poetry Forum, Dept. E, 609 Main St., P.O. Box 193, Sisterville, WV 26175.

Letters to the editor

to the youths of Charlevoix and in the end it will be harmful to Charlevoix businesses.

I am 14 years old and I know I might not have much say in this, but I have a paying job and I have to pay taxes just like everyone else. I help pay for the city just like everyone else with their taxes, so why shouldn't I be allowed to just go hang out downtown with my friends?

I know in the summer a lot of people come to visit Charlevoix and all they do is loiter around town. Do you think the police are going to ticket the summer tourists that fund most of Charlevoix businesses in the summer? If you don't ticket them and you do ticket Charlevoix residents, isn't that unfair?

Where does the council expect youths to go in their free time and in summer? If they don't want us to loiter in public places, which is most of the places people hang out right now, then they should make us somewhere that we can.

Kids in Charlevoix help the businesses downtown; they eat as much as adults and buy as much clothing as adults.

The council doesn't have the right to make our parents' decision either. If they allow us to go and hang out downtown or at the beach, that is their choice, not the council's.

I think that the council should seriously rethink this rule. Because in the end a lot more people are going to be mad at them than just the kids of Charlevoix.

Council members learn the basics and the issues

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

City council's newest member learned the basics for local government officials at the Michigan Municipal League's annual convention last week in Lansing.

Norman Carlson learned about the Open Meetings Act, Roberts Rules of Order, ethics, and dealing with the press when he attended the convention on March 28-29. Veteran council members Bill Bellows and Gabe Campbell also attended the convention, as well as city manager Mike Wiesner.

"It was very interesting, very beneficial," Carlson said. "I learned the most on the first day."

The main focus of this year's convention was the drive to amend Article IV of the Michigan Constitution. A new Section 55 would require a two-thirds vote in each chamber of the state Legislature on bills to restrict or eliminate local authority.

Currently, a simple majority vote decides issues.

The Michigan Municipal League is behind the amendment to add Section 55. It states that local control is being eroded by the state in areas ranging from local right to regulate noise and odor of farming to removal of the local prosecuting authority.

A recent proposal would create "Politics seems the same across the state."

Norm Carlson,
Charlevoix City Council Member

regional planning authorities that would supersede township, city and county planning.

Carlson found a two-thirds vote requirement would give more control to local government.

"I agree with it," he said. "It'll give more power to councils."

Carlson believes that local control makes more sense because local officials are the people close to the community and its needs.

"Local officials will listen more. People have more access to us and we're more accountable," Carlson said. "We know what's good for Charlevoix, not (what's good for) Detroit."

Bellows also found the workshops on changes in the laws beneficial.

"Things change over time and it updates you," he said. Bellows strongly approves of the amendment to a two-thirds vote of the Legislature.

"I think it's a good idea, it gives more local authority. The state is passing more and more laws that should be controlled locally. If the issue is on the ballot in November, everyone should vote for it," Bellows urged.

The Michigan Municipal League is circulating petitions and hoping for the requisite number of signatures to put the issue on the ballot.

Campbell agrees with the amendment for the most part.

"Municipalities should have more control over things like speed limits and zoning," Campbell said.

"We wanted the speed limit at 25 (miles per hour) out by the golf course and unfortunately the state raised it to 45."

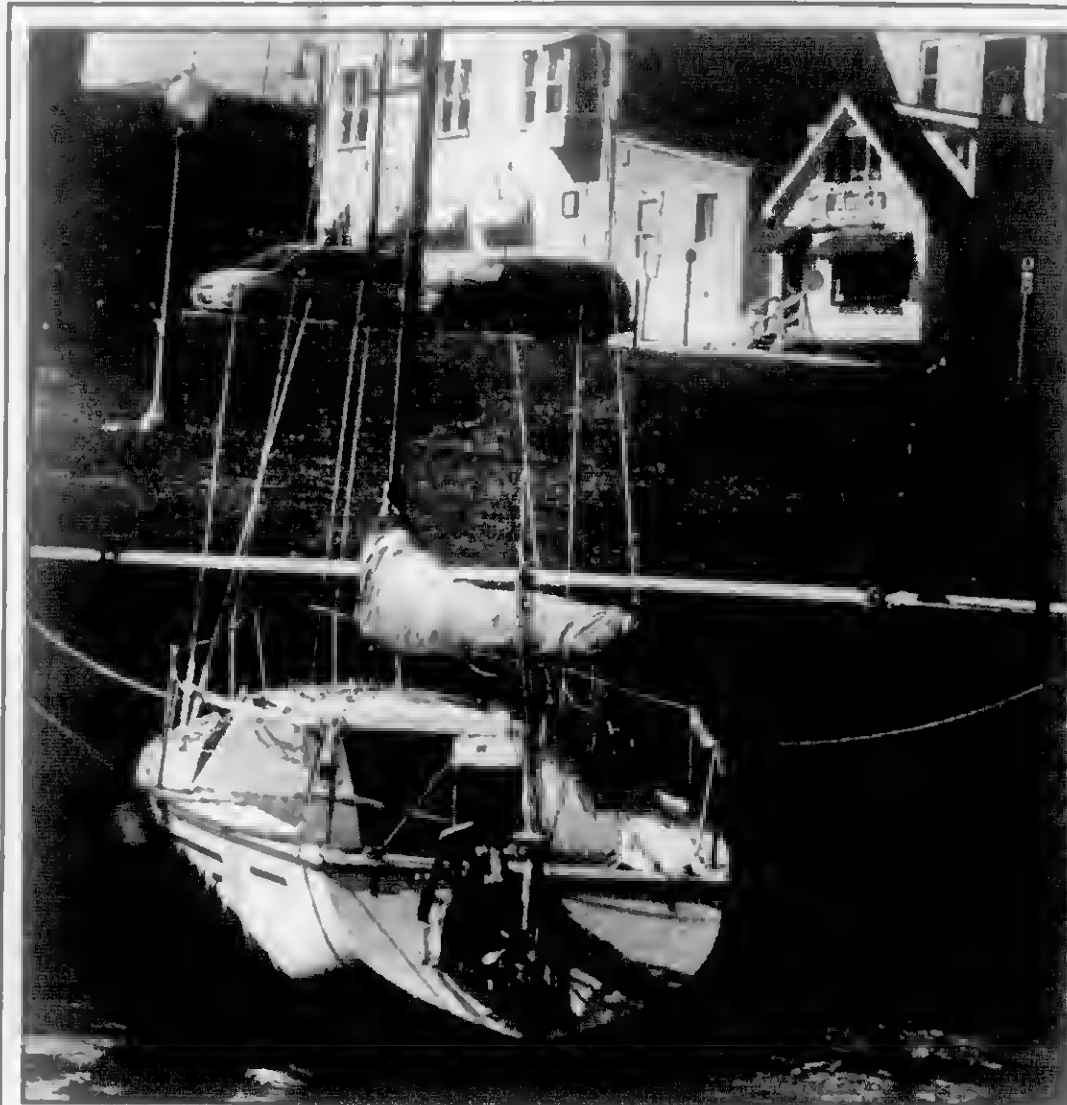

Campbell also said a light is needed at Bridge and Garfield streets or Bridge and Carpenter streets, but that decision cannot now be made locally.

But he disagreed that building codes should be under local control.

"It would be a disaster. Building codes should be statewide," Campbell said.

The convention provided a time for Carlson, Bellows and Campbell to meet and talk with municipal officials from other areas. Many of the experiences were similar, Carlson said.

"Others deal with the same things," he said. "Politics seems the same across the state."

Monte: Cigarette the cause of March 27 car wash fire

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

The careless use of a cigarette is believed to have started the fire that destroyed almost the entire building at Monte's Auto Wash on March 27.

It was believed that the fire was caused by a faulty dryer in the laundry area. But insurance investigators later determined that a cigarette left burning or carelessly discarded near a plastic container filled with lint is the probable cause. It is believed that one of the employees is at fault.

Monte didn't say whether or not employees would be disciplined, but did say there will be one change.

"There won't be smoking in the building any longer," owner Chris Monte said.

Most of the fire damage occurred in the roof area, but with the smoke and water damage the building is 85 percent destroyed, Monte said.

The car wash equipment was not damaged. The company will be able to use the poles, windows and doors.

"We were just getting into our busy season," Monte lamented.

An employee who lives near the car wash discovered the fire when he saw smoke billowing from the building. He called 9-1-1.

City of Charlevoix firefighters responded to the 6:15 p.m. call. They were on the scene until about 9 p.m.

The insurance company has approved the loss and rebuilding began a couple of days after the fire.

"In six to eight weeks we'll be back in operation," Monte said. The new building will be identical to the former car wash.

Monte's Auto Wash at 850 Petoskey Ave. opened in Charlevoix in August 1999.

Deputies to visit seniors once a week for program

Charlevoix County senior citizens may get a weekly visitor soon.

Under a new program for community policing, Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater will have each of his deputies check in on at least one senior citizen in the county each week. The assignments will be generated from local senior citizen centers and from volunteers who would like to have a deputy sheriff stop in weekly to check on their well being.

"It's kind of an exciting concept," said Lasater.

He added the deputies involved in this program are very enthusiastic about meeting with the seniors and establishing a rapport with them.

"It's nice to go to a house and have someone very glad to see you," Lasater said.

Lasater has introduced the new program in various letters to churches he has sent in Charlevoix. From these letters, he said he already has two seniors that are visited each week by two of his deputies.

He said the seniors taking part in this program have been giving him very positive feedback.

"They like to have someone checking in on them," Lasater said. "They like to have a rapport with law enforcement.

Any senior that is interested in the program will be interviewed by Lasater and matched up with a deputy that patrols the area around the senior's residence. When the deputy arrives for the visit, they will give the senior a packet of useful information on fighting crime and staying safe.

The length of each visit will vary, depending on whatever time the senior needs and how much time the deputy has that day, Lasater added.

This program is part of department's COPS Fast and COPS Universal grants for community policing.

Any senior citizen who would like to participate in this program can contact Lasater at 547-4461.

Bridge Street Books to host poetry reading for April 14

Inaugurated by the Academy of American Poets in April 1996, National Poetry Month brings together people to celebrate poetry and its vital place in American Culture.

In this spirit, Bridge Street Book Shop is inviting the public to participate in poetry reading from 7 to 9 p.m. April 14 at the bookstore, located in downtown Charlevoix.

There is no cost to attend, refreshments will be provided and seating will be on a first come, first seated basis — with standing and floor sitting allowed.

"A microphone will be available as we are expecting a large turnout for this event," said Dianne Foster, owner of the Bridge Street Book Shop. "Word of mouth has spread news of this event throughout the region and we're getting calls from folks in Bellaire, Mount Pleasant, Traverse City and Grayling who plan to attend."

All ages are welcome. People may read or recite from memory, a poem they've written or a favorite poem written by another poet.

"Reading is optional, listening is required. Otherwise there are no rules," Foster said. All participants who share a poem will be eligible for one of three $25 bookstore gift certificates to be drawn at the end of the evening.

"National Poetry Month comes at a good time for northern Michigan," added Foster. "April is a pretty quiet month, spring break is over, people are eager for something to do and poetry is making a comeback. It's been fun to see the enthusiasm for this event. If it's as well attended as we anticipate, it'll likely become an annual event — or maybe more frequent than annual."

For more information, call Bridge Street Book Shop at 547-7323 or (800) 729-3949 or visit the bookstore's web site at www.bsbooks.com.

LAST DAY OF REGISTRATION SCHOOL ELECTION

NOTICE OF LAST DAY OF REGISTRATION OF THE ELECTORS FOR THE SPECIAL RECALL ELECTION OF CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOLS CHARLEVOIX AND ANTRIM COUNTIES, MICHIGAN

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that pursuant to the direction of the County Clerk of the County of Charlevoix, a special election will be held in Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, Michigan on Tuesday, May 9, 2000.

TAKE NOTICE that the purpose of the special election is to vote on the following recall questions:

I. RECALL QUESTION

Shall Scott Boss be recalled from the office of school board member of Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, Michigan?

REASONS FOR RECALL OF SCOTT BOSS FROM CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOLS BOARD OF EDUCATION

That in choosing the Marion Center/Veenstra Road site for a new high school, outside the City of Charlevoix, he: Disregarded the results of the Board of Education sponsored Community Forum, held March 9, 1999, that overwhelmingly favored an in-town site. Refused to involve the public in a meaningful way in the site selection process. Failed to inform the residents of Charlevoix School District of the responsibilities and costs arising out of the purchase of this property. Failed to consider and address traffic safety concerns of the public. Failed to disclose accurate utility costs to the taxpayers. Refused openly to respond to public questions about this site at Board of Education meetings.

JUSTIFICATION OF CONDUCT IN OFFICE OF SCOTT BOSS

We thank you, the voters of the Charlevoix School District, for electing us as members of the Charlevoix Board of Education. In doing so, you entrusted us with a great responsibility which we take very seriously.

Over the past few years, we have accomplished much. In fact, we believe that our school district is in the best shape it has been in for years.

This recall concerns the location of the new high school approved by voters last October. In selecting the site, we conducted an extensive search of available property utilizing experts in various fields and using objective criteria provided to us by a citizens' committee. The Marion Center Road site was our unanimous choice. We publicized the location prior to the election and the voters approved the bond proposal.

A group is now seeking to recall us because we are not willing to set aside this democratic election of the people of our school district. We believe that the trust you have shown us by giving us this position brings with it the responsibility to abide by a decision of the voters and it is for this reason we have stood firm on the new school site.

II. RECALL QUESTION

Shall Dennis Halverson be recalled from the office of school board member of Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, Michigan?

REASONS FOR RECALL OF DENNIS HALVERSON FROM CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOLS BOARD OF EDUCATION

That in choosing the Marion Center/Veenstra Road site for a new high school, outside the City of Charlevoix, he: Disregarded the results of the Board of Education sponsored Community Forum, held March 9, 1999, that overwhelmingly favored an in-town site. Big Rock manager leaves for new job

Big Rock is in search of a new general manager.

Kenneth P. Powers, site general manager of Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project, has accepted a new position with Kaiser-Hill Co., a federal contractor at the U.S. Department of Energy's Rocky Flats Environmental Technology Site near Denver, Colo. He will assume his new position in May.

Powers was named Big Rock Point site general manager in Jan. 1997. He led the plant through its closing in Aug. 1997 and has led the restoration project which will return most of the 600-acre site near Charlevoix to a natural state by 2005.

"Ken Powers' vision and leadership have established Big Rock Point as a leader in restoring former nuclear plants to a natural state," said Robert A. Fenech, Consumers Energy senior vice president of nuclear, fossil and hydro operations.

"His efforts over the past three years have positioned our company to meet our goal on time and on budget."

A replacement for Powers will be named in the near future.

Big Rock Point was the world's first high power-density boiling water reactor and a research site for the nuclear power industry. The plant was shut down on Aug. 29, 1997 after 35 years in service, making it the nation's longest running nuclear power plant.

Cedar Ridge reopened to the public

Cedar Ridge facility has reopened to the public.

With spring clean-up season here, residents in Emmet, Charlevoix and Antrim counties can have some place to take their discarded materials. Cedar Ridge Recycling and Disposal Facility re-opened to the general public Monday.

Cedar Ridge was closed to the public in May of 1999 due to capacity concerns.

The diversion of waste to conserve space over the past year has helped to make the re-opening possible, said Site Manager Dave Barron.

"We're pleased to once again make the facility available to area residents, especially with so many people cleaning up their homes and yards this time of year," said Barron.

Cedar Ridge Recycling and Disposal Facility is located near Charlevoix at 11633 Saunders Road. Hours of operation are 7:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Anyone with questions about acceptable materials or fees should call the facility at 547-4606.

District claims school construction lawful

Marion Township has made no known public statement that it is against the Charlevoix school board's site for the new high school nor that it has any problems with the school board.

The letter from the attorney also states that the school board has not shown that it meets general development standards, that the school district has not received approval of the Marion Township Planning Commission and that the school board's site is not immune from the township's zoning ordinance.

But Telgenhof says these claims are irrelevant.

"The school board's plan is in compliance with the township zoning ordinance so it's a moot issue," Telgenhof said.

The letter from the preservation group's attorney further stated an environmental impact study has not been prepared for the school project, including the impact of the sewer project.

"The Master Plan shows that there are concerns over unsuitable soils, aquifer vulnerability to pollution, areas that provide wildlife habitat, and agricultural lands that may be impacted," Ferguson stated in her letter. "There is no language in the Revised School Code to exempt the schools from MEPA." MEPA is the Michigan Environmental Protection Act.

But, Telgenhof said an environmental study was completed on the site.

"We have had an environmental study on our property and have no environmental problems on our property," he said. "We're not spending taxpayers' money to find out how neighboring properties will be affected."

The board's attorney, Gordon VanWieren, also advised the board that a study of the neighboring properties is not required.

"One of the purposes of this letter is to try to force us to do an environmental impact study at taxpayers' expense for the benefit of a few people," Telgenhof said.

The letter from the attorney repeatedly states that the school district is "at risk" if it proceeds with the planning and development of the Marion Center site.

"It is proceeding at the risk of an injunction if it continues to violate its duties under MEPA," Ferguson states.

But school board attorney VanWieren states that the board has followed the laws in its purchase and development of the site.

"Based upon my review, the Board of Education is in compliance with Michigan law," VanWieren said.

Disagreements between school districts and municipalities about school construction is not new to the state. The argument that a school board's site is not immune from the township's zoning ordinance is one that has been used in a lawsuit in a southeastern Michigan township.

In 1998 Northville Township sued the Northville School District because it believed the school district was in violation of its zoning laws.

Northville School District won the suit on the claim that it was exempt from local zoning ordinances. The case is now in the state Court of Appeals.

Skier looks back at career as she prepares for college

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While she looks to the end of her senior year at Charlevoix High School, Tiffany Fisher is remembering her love for skiing snow-capped mountains.

"It is a fun thing to do. I really can't explain it," she said. In addition to skiing, Fisher is also a pole vaulter with the Charlevoix High School track team and a runner with the cross country team.

These endeavors have placed her on the state running team from Charlevoix and the All-State team. She also traveled to China to take part in a race over last New Year's Eve.

Even so, Fisher's first love is skiing. "I don't get as serious for track," she said.

Fisher was a member of the Charlevoix ski team, as well as the Hurricane Racing Team. With the Hurricanes, she competed in the United States Skiing Association (USSA) Junior Olympics in early March at Beaver Creek, Colo.

She was also named All-State this year, which she modestly says, "It wasn't that special because I did that as a sophomore."

The list of accomplishments Fisher has accumulated with skiing is no surprise considering she has been skiing for most of her life.

Fisher started skiing when she was 4 years old and turned to competition skiing when she was 8 years old.

"I started competing because it was boring to just free ski on Boyne Mountain," she laughed. But, this life of competition does not come easy.

Generally in the winter, Fisher trains for the high school team from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Two or three times a week, she gets just an hour break after her high school practices before she starts training for the USSA from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Additionally, Fisher travels twice a year for further USSA ski practices. One is for a week around Thanksgiving and the other is a month long training session during the summer.

Even though she spends so much time involved with the USSA, Fisher said she enjoys high school skiing better.

"It is not as serious and has a lot lighter atmosphere," she said. But, USSA provides her with better competition that, in turn, forces her to become a better skier, Fisher added.

Regardless of all this training and competing, Fisher said she really does not see herself continuing serious competitive skiing in college.

While all of the places this 4.0 student has applied — Harvard, Princeton and the University of Michigan — have a ski club, none of them have an actual ski team.

As for Olympic contests in light of her past showings at the Junior Olympics, Fisher said she will probably not continue on past the Junior Olympics, because it is too expensive.

"As far as the Olympics and skiing, there really is no future, unless you have the funding or unless you don't want to work and go to school," she said.

So, after she leaves Charlevoix High School it seems as though Fisher will also be leaving behind competitive skiing.

However, since each of the colleges she has applied to have club skiing, chances are Fisher won't stay off the mountains for long.

Charlevoix hospital to test hearing on babies

Identifying the possibility of a hearing problem early in infants is important so that proper treatment can begin as early as possible. An Otoacoustic Emission Device is a screening tool that can help physicians and nurses to identify the possibility of a hearing problem in newborns.

With a $5,000 grant from the Carl's Foundation in Detroit, Charlevoix Area Hospital has purchased an AUDX I from Bio Logic Systems Corporation.

The AUDX I is an Otoacoustic Emission Device, which uses sound waves administered to a newborn's ears to detect the possibility of a hearing problem.

If a newborn receives a "Pass" on the device, there is little reason to suspect a problem. If the baby receives a "Referral," the parents are encouraged to have follow-up visits with a pediatrician, because there may be a hearing problem.

The Pass rating indicates that there is a 99 percent chance of the baby growing up to have good hearing.

Nurses in the Charlevoix Area Hospital Obstetrics department have been trained in the proper use of the new equipment and currently are using it on newborns.

For more information on the hearing screening equipment of the Obstetrics department at Charlevoix Area Hospital, call 547-4024.

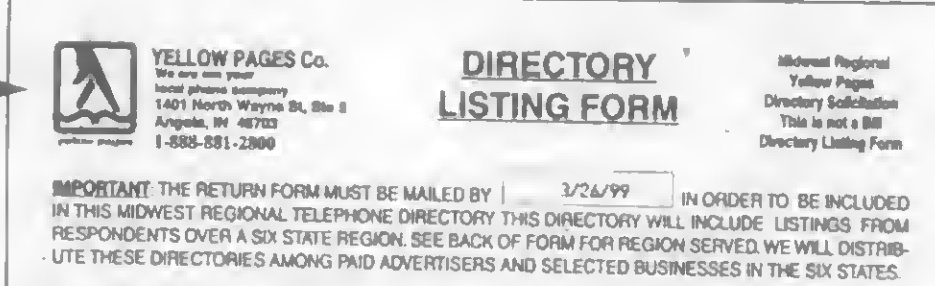

Attention Businesses:

Beware of "Bogus" Billing

Each year, businesses lose millions of dollars to "bogus" Yellow Pages billing schemes. Often bearing the famous (but never trademarked) walking fingers logo, misleading and fraudulent yellow pages solicitations look like bills — and they routinely get paid by many unsuspecting businesses nationwide. Examine your bill carefully before you pay it.

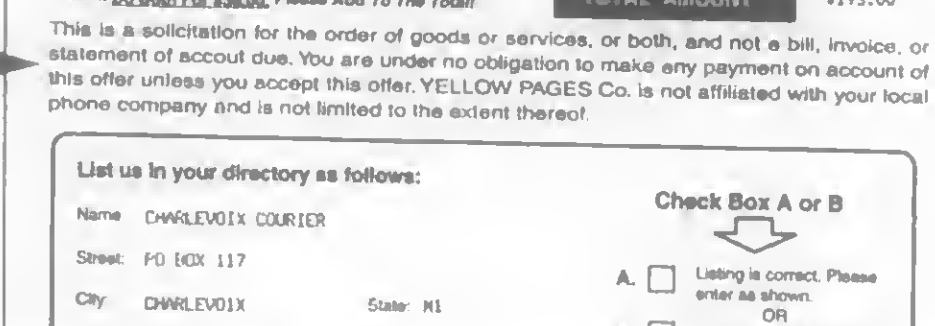

What to look for on a "Bogus" Bill

This universally recognized logo was never trademarked by AT&T, so anyone can use it.

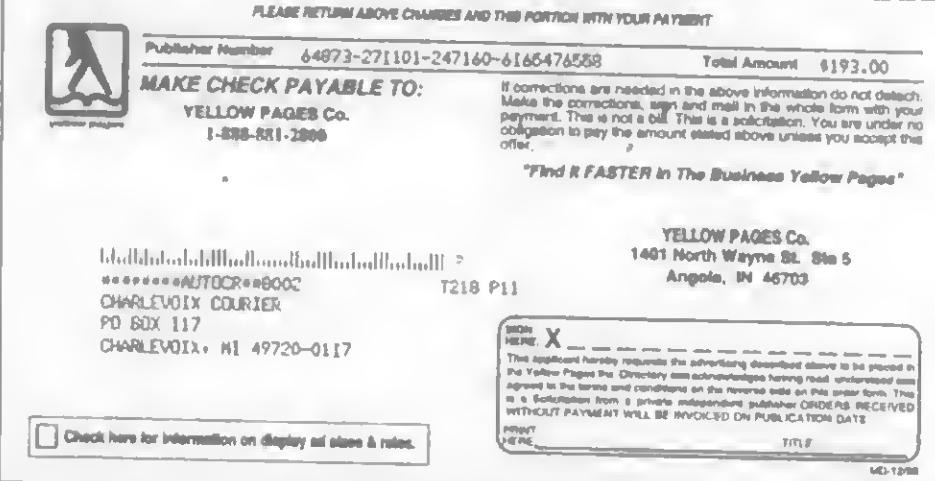

If it's a "Bogus Bill" solicitation, not an invoice, it must state "THIS IS NOT A BILL"

If it's a solicitation, not an invoice, federal postal law requires that it must state this very clearly.

"Amount Due" generally between $100 and $200.

Again, look for the print stating that the form is a solicitation and not a bill.

Marion super discusses school site

By B. J. HETLER

Marion Township residents voicing their opinions to the township supervisor about the site of the new Charlevoix High School are about even in numbers for and against the school site.

Concerns about the Marion Center Road site, near Veenstra Road, are mostly about the impact on the environment and about the traffic increase, said supervisor Jerry Dohm.

"I do know there are wetlands close to the property," Dohm said.

"I don't know what effect a large facility will do to the area."

The natural farming community will be disrupted if the city is extended out a couple of miles, he said. But the biggest difficulty that Dohm sees is the increase in traffic.

"Marion Center Road is a connecting road from Ellsworth and Central Lake, so there's that traffic already," Dohm said.

Other concerns are the inaccessibility for students to walk or bike to school and the potential for sprawl in the area.

Fireworks successful despite grass fires

The Michigan Festival and Events Spring Convention in Charlevoix concluded Saturday night with a fireworks display that lit up the sky and scorched part of the ground.

Hundreds of people were at the Charlevoix Country Club to see the two fireworks displays, provided by Pyrotechnico and Zambelli International.

Pyrotechnico put on the first display, showering the skies for 30 minutes with intense fireworks, including both low level aerials and four-to-six inch shells. After the first display, spectators waited about 30 minutes while a few grass fires were extinguished.

"With the extremely dry conditions we've had lately, we anticipated that there could be a grass fire," said Venetian Festival board president Dan Barron. The Charlevoix Township Fire Department, country club officials and pyrotechnicians planned a staging area for the fireworks that would provide containment for any potential grass fires. It really wasn't a big deal, since we were ready for it."

Barron added, "I'm sure the problem looked far worse than what it was."

Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Curt Thompson agreed.

Fireworks lit up the night sky Saturday above the Charlevoix Country Club. The fireworks were part of The Michigan Festival and Events Spring Convention that weekend. The show was designed to give examples of different kinds of fireworks that are available. After the show a small grass fire broke out on the dry golf course greens, but it was quickly extinguished by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department. (Photos by Jeremy McBain)

Sheriff's deputies find illegal immigrants in investigation

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office apprehended three illegal immigrants in Charlevoix Twp. on April 5 at approximately 3 p.m.

Deputies were investigating a complaint from residents in the Charlevoix Estates subdivision concerning damage to property. Three of the suspects were located and detained for investigation.

It was determined that all three were Mexican citizens who were employed locally doing floor maintenance. None had any immigration documentation nor could their employer provide it.

One of the suspects also had in his possession a credit card belonging to a woman from Grosse Pointe Farms. Contact with this victim determined that she was not aware it was even missing.

All three illegals were turned over to the INS-Border Patrol who are processing them and then deporting them back to Mexico.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's road patrol and detectives were assisted by the Charlevoix City Police.

Developers of multi-housing open to negotiations

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

"They want to go ahead with the development and are not trying to get money from the city."

Jim Young,
City attorney

Developers who want the city's approval of their subsidized housing plans are open to negotiations in a quest to settle their differences with the city.

"They're not requiring money damages from the city," Charlevoix city attorney Jim Young said. "They want to go ahead with the development and are not trying to get money from the city."

Robert Brooks and Scott Dietze filed a lawsuit in late 1999 against the city for its denial of their development plans. They seek approval to build a 24-unit subsidized housing project at 1007 May St.

The city had rezoned the area in 1991 to allow for multiple-family dwellings. When the developers did not build within a year, the city said the land reverted back to single-family zoning. The matter ended up in circuit court where on March 17, Judge Richard Pajtas ruled in favor of Brooks and Dietze. Pajtas ruled that reversion, or automatic, rezoning was unconstitutional because it denies due process.

Because the developers prevailed in court they are entitled to ask for monetary damages, but have not done so, Young said.

The lawsuit continues on other grounds, but the city and the developers are hoping to resolve the case before it goes to trial.

"I've been authorized by the city to review the development plans to see how to begin to meet the general concerns of the public and then talk with their attorney to see if we can reach an agreement," Young said.

The other grounds the city has based its case on are that the resulting increase in traffic would be hazardous and that the development is not consistent with the area of single-family housing surrounding it.

The city also contends that the development is not in line with the city's master plan, because it discourages clustering of multiple-family dwellings.

Some area neighbors have voiced their concerns to city council. Much of the concern is about the increased traffic which will result from the project. Neighbors questioned the need for another 24 units of housing.

The city will attempt to work through the neighbors' concerns while resolving the matter with Brooks and Dietze. The developers are willing to amend their development plans, Young said.

The case is set for a May 8 scheduling conference with Judge Pajtas. If the matter is not resolved before that date, the court and counsel will schedule times for discovery, motions and trial.

Fado singers to perform at Charlevoix High School

Charlevoix will be getting a taste of Portuguese music next week.

About 20 Fado singers from the University of Oporto in Portugal will be visiting Charlevoix High School April 20 and 21 to perform for residents and students.

Fado is described as a "flamingo-type" of upbeat music.

The group coming to Charlevoix have performed for audiences throughout the world. This will be their second visit to the United States and their first visit to Charlevoix.

A performance for the public will be offered at 7 p.m. at Charlevoix High School for a donation at the door. The singers will perform around 10 a.m. for Charlevoix students the next day.

They will also be giving a 7 p.m. performance at Tapawingo in Ellsworth. There is a $100 charge for this concert, which will also include a dinner.

Part of these proceeds will be used to help cover the transportation costs of bringing these singers to Michigan.

OPINIONS

Do we really want to annoy the taxpayers?

Jeremy McBain

'Just a Thought'

It just keeps getting worse. The issue over the construction of a new high school on Marion Center Road just keeps developing into some ugly horror-movie creature that just won't die. If it continues, those involved are just going to create a monster they never dreamed could live.

It started with the creation of the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools (CPNS). This group's attempt to force the school board into changing its mind about its choice of Marion Center Road quickly developed into a recall election.

This prompted school board supporters to form Citizens for the American Way to fight the recall.

Then two more groups jumped into this fray with full page ads in area newspapers, the Committee Supporting Neighborhood Schools and the Committee Sponsoring Neighborhood Schools. Both groups were formed by Marion Township resident Dr. Robert Mossman.

Now another group has entered the picture, the Charlevoix Area Natural Resources Preservation Association. This group was incorporated by Charlevoix resident Kenneth (Richard) Tunison and Hayes Township resident Paul Richards.

I was thinking the other day about all the time and money these various groups — on both sides of the issue — are putting into their campaigns. They are all spending a lot of their hard-earned money and free time to push their agendas.

While the economy is reportedly great in America right now, I know there still are a lot of people out there who are homeless and going hungry. There are even children in Charlevoix who never really see their parents, because both parents must work two jobs to make ends meet.

Yet, Charlevoix is full of people who are spending tons of their money to fight, or support, the construction of a high school on Marion Center Road.

And soon, taxpayer money will be involved. Who do you think pays for a recall election?

This latest "preservation" group's efforts may be a bit more for taxpayers. A letter sent to the Charlevoix schools superintendent and the school board president, by a Traverse City attorney paid for by this group, basically states it is the attorney's opinion that the school must get approval from Marion Township before it starts construction.

But, this may not be entirely correct. This issue has been to court in a southeastern Michigan case very similar to Charlevoix's situation and it has been thrown out twice. The judge ruled the schools have precedence over township building codes and zoning ordinances.

The case, Northville Charter Township versus Northville Public Schools, is currently on appeal. Just this debate means the school construction law is not so clear cut. So it seems until the law is changed in the state legislature, schools may not have to comply with township and city zoning ordinances.

Just to get to this current verdict, piles of taxpayer money have been tossed into the litigation surrounding this case.

Now, Charlevoix could be facing this same tax-sucking creature thanks to this preservation group. If it goes to court, it will cost Charlevoix a lot of taxpayer money, just as it did in Northville.

This entire issue of a recall is very interesting considering these anti-school board groups seem to be angry at the way the school was using taxpayer money over the building of this school.

The monetary burden for their recall is already on the shoulders of the taxpayers and if this preservation group or Marion Township wants to push this new issue into court it could cost even more taxpayer money.

This is taxpayer money that could be used to buy books for the schools, food for the needy, shelter for the homeless or medicine for the sick. Instead, all this money is being used to create a division in this community.

The monster has been made and the jumper cables are hooked up waiting for the electricity.

Where are the torch-carrying taxpayers?

Letters to the editor

General contractors just as good

Editor:
As a local general contractor, I have been watching the Charlevoix — and Boyne City — school situation quite closely. I believe people have a few misconceptions on construction management versus general contractors.

Construction management does not offer any more than a general contractor. In fact, they offer less. A general contractor is bonded and legally responsible to see that the job is properly completed. The construction manager is an agent of the school and the school assumes many of the risks and liabilities that would be a part of a general contract.

General contractors put prices together the same way construction managers do. We use the same pool of subcontractors and suppliers.

Perhaps, the board should open the bidding to general contractors. This would allow for competitive bids — definitely in the best interest of the Charlevoix Public Schools — and still allow Christman to put their package together.

Thank the volunteers

Editor:
On behalf of the Board of Directors, we would once again like to thank our most wonderful group of volunteers who work diligently at the Rainbow Shoppe. Mere words cannot express the gratitude of the Board for each and every volunteer that faithfully supports this organization. Without all of them — including the Board — the Rainbow Shoppe would not be able to function.

The week of April 9-15 is National Volunteers Week. So, if you happen to stop in at the Rainbow Shoppe, remember to say thank you to the volunteers you see. They have unselfishly given of their time to help this organization fulfill its vision to reach out to our community.

And if you are or have been a volunteer for the Rainbow Shoppe, Little League, the hospital or any other organization, thank you also for your generosity. This community is better because of what you have done.

Board would rather waste money

Editor,
How do you figure the Charlevoix School Board? They'd rather spend $1,500 on a recall election when the same money, way back when, would have paid for a vote to decide the issue of the Marion Center school site. They would rather spend a million dollars on a sewer because they got some farm land relatively cheap, instead of saving a million on a site in or near the city with sewers already in place. And to add insult to injury there is no natural gas to the site, so it's either run an expensive line out there or start chopping wood, because we sure can't heat by fuel oil at today's prices.

Still no word on who's going to pay for the curves to be taken out of the Marion Center Road, and how much of the site is too wet to build on?

New committee to fight recall

Vote No on Recall is a new committee formed to oppose the recall of five Charlevoix School Board members.

The committee members include more than 30 business, community and civic leaders within the school district, said organizer Richard Joseph.

"This committee believes that the School Board has done a terrific job," Joseph said.

A rally is scheduled for 7 p.m. April 17, at the high school gymnasium. The rally will kick-off the campaign against the recall and provide factual information in support of the school board.

The initial organizers of the committee are John Winn, Dennis Kusina, Chris Wilhelm, Cheri Hoffman, Joe Vogelheim, Bern Cannan, The-da Williams, Bill Jackson, Bud Boss, Jan Boss, Lowell Anderson, Terry Left, Richard Joseph, Bonnie Wagner, Dave Strawbridge, Vance Smith, Jay Balasz, Bonnie With-row, Scott Beatty, Bob Potter, Nate Boss, Carol Martin, Tim LaBlance, John Laney, Chris Bentley, Chuck Bentley, Rich Kelly, Merle Vandenberg, Cara Hochhalter, Bill Trubilowicz, Joan Buday, Bill Gnodtkac, Reed Freidinger and Conrad Klooster.

"Anyone wishing to participate on this committee may contact one of the committee members or attend the rally on Monday night," Joseph said.

The Vote No on Recall committee is defending school board members Allen Telgenhof, Ardeth Wieland, Barney Way, Scott Boss and Dennis Halverson. The recall effort began by a group opposing the board's site for the new high school on Marion Center Road.

Seniors learn to play at center

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Mary Mosoryak grew up in a home without music — no evenings with friends singing around a piano, no Saturday morning violin lessons. But she grew up loving music.

"I actually feel music, physically feel it in my body," she said.

Now, Mary is learning to play the piano — the first instrument she's ever tried to learn. Her lessons are free at the Charlevoix Senior Center because she's of an age when there should be some benefits.

Mary's favorite music is big band. She sits at her keyboard next to another student, Martha Morgan, who is also learning the piano for the first time.

"I never wanted to learn the piano really, but I thought at my age I'll see if I can," Martha said with a nod.

Martha came from Germany in 1963. Her favorite music choices are marches, folk music, and waltzes.

"But no rock and roll," she said.

Their teacher, Ev Wujcik, sits behind the two and after the chat she leans forward slightly. The students automatically poise their hands over the keys and gather their concentration to play.

"Let's play the piece we've been practicing," Ev says. "Begin."

A successful mini-performance brings chuckles and smiles of satisfaction from the students.

Mary and Martha have the good fortune of an accomplished musician as their teacher. Ev's teaching spans 32 years, 27 of them at the Charlevoix Middle School. She plays the trumpet and is a member of the Up North Big Band. Ev gives music lessons twice a week at the senior center.

"I volunteered to come in so we would have music at the senior center," Ev said. "It's important for everybody and as we age we get in a rut. I'm not saying it's depression, but people get down. Music is the greatest thing to keep people happy."

Mary and Martha have some age-old advice for success in playing an instrument: "Practice, practice, practice," they said in unison.

Music lessons are given at 1 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays at the senior center. Ev teaches other musical instruments and hopes to form a choir. Call the Charlevoix Senior Center at 547-5361 for information.

National poetry contest announced

Emmy Award Winner Montel Williams has announced the establishment of The Cure for Multiple Sclerosis Poetry Contest.

The contest is open to all amateur poets and entry is free. The winner will receive $1,000 from The International Society of Poets and an all expense paid trip to New York City to be part of The Montel Williams Show. An additional 114 prizes will also be awarded.

"I feel truly honored to unite with

The International Society of Poets in providing this creative way to raise funds for this charitable cause," said Williams. "I'm pleased to announce that ISP will be donating one dollar to the Montel Williams MS Research Fund in the name of each poet who enters this contest, with a minimum of a $25,000 donation."

The International Society of Poets, dedicated to bringing the works of amateur poets to the public attention, has published the works of over 1.4 million amateur poets on its web site (www.poetry.com), and is the largest organization of its kind in the world with members from over 60 nations.

"I urge every poet to enter this contest. By entering, you will not only have a chance to win, but you will be contributing to research in hopes of finding a cure for this debilitating disease," added Mr. Williams.

Any poet may enter this free contest simply by sending one poem, 20 lines or less, any subject (your poem does not have to be about MS), any style to Montel Poetry Contest, 1 Poetry Plaza, Owings Mills, MD 21117, or by entering online at www.poetry.com/montel. New poets are encouraged to enter. All entrants will receive a response and autographed picture as personal thanks from Williams.

Wedding

VanderHeide-Wilkinson

Heidi VanderHeide and Michael Wilkinson, both of Lakeland, Fla., were joined in marriage March 5 at Oak-K Farms in Lakeland, Fla.

VanderHeide is the daughter of Sam and Julaine VanderHeide of Charlevoix. Wilkinson is the son of Barbara Talbott of Lakeland, Fla.

The outdoor wedding was attended by 60 guests.

Officiating the double-ring wedding was Ms. Ray Clarkston. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The maid-of-honor was Marcy Borth, a friend of the bride. The best man was Tim Wilkinson, the brother of the groom.

The bride wore a white full-length gown with short sleeves and carried a bouquet of fuchsia, light pink, champagne and white roses, accented with baby's breath.

She was brought to the wedding in a carriage pulled by a white horse. Both the bride and the groom were carried away from the ceremony in this same carriage following the wedding.

A wedding trip is being planned for this summer in northern Michigan.

The bride is a 1993 graduate of Charlevoix High School and the groom is completing training in auto detailing prior to launching his own business.

Bad apples spoil the fun

City looking to ban bikes, skateboards

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

With the snow gone, bicyclists, skateboarders and roller-bladers are venturing out downtown, sometimes prompting calls from irate merchants and residents.

"There's property damage in some areas that's attributed to a few irresponsible people," said police chief Dennis Halverson.

Just this week one business-owner complained to the city that kids roller-skating near the waterfront destroyed flower beds he had recently planted.

Past summers have generated similar calls.

"The city has had a lot of complaints from people having to dodge skateboards down by the city marina," said Halverson.

A public hearing is scheduled for 7 p.m., April 17 at city hall

"The city has had a lot of complaints from people having to dodge skateboards down by the city marina."

Dennis Halverson,
City of Charlevoix police chief on plans to pass an ordinance to curtail the ardent athletes. It seeks to amend section 3.4 of the Uniform Traffic Code.

The proposed ordinance prohibits riding a bicycle or skating apparatus on a public sidewalk, public land or public curbing. The boundaries in the ordinance are Bridge Street (U.S. 31) between the highway bridge on the north and Hurlbut Street on the south, and Bridge Street between the Pine River Channel and Belvedere Avenue. Hoffman Park on Park Street is also off-limits.

A bicycle may be walked and a skating apparatus may be carried in any of those areas, the proposed ordinance states.

Securing a bicycle or skating board to a sign post, street light post or tree will be prohibited, because it may interfere with pedestrian or vehicular traffic.

Violations of the ordinance will be a civil infraction with fines ranging from $50 to $100. The city will take public comments at the hearing or in writing to the city manager's office.

Zonta announces winner

Sarah E. Jones, a senior at Charlevoix High School, was named the winner of this year's Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award.

The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award competition is designed to encourage women to pursue decision-making positions in their communities in order to impact the policies that affect the lives of women locally and throughout the world. Applicants are asked to reflect on their lives, their commitment to the communities in which they live and the role models that have inspired them to become involved in the community or in a specific prospective career.

The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs program looks to the young women of today who will be the leaders of tomorrow.

Jones was chosen as the Charlevoix Area Zonta winner because of her involvement with her community and her focus on her career goals. Jones plans on attending Northwestern Michigan College and receive her degree as a registered nurse. Eventually, it is her desire to become a midwife.

Jones demonstrates her commitment to the community through her volunteer work at Charlevoix Hospital, working in the food pantry; being a volunteer child-birth companion for mothers without a support system and as a cub scout assistant for Den. 4.

In addition, she is the president of the newly formed local Health Occupations Students of America chapter at Charlevoix High School.

Obituaries

Admiral Willard J. Smith

Admiral Willard J. Smith, former Commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard from July 1966 to June 1970, died on April 1 in Atlantic Beach, Fla., and will be buried at 2:00 p.m. in Arlington National Cemetery on April 27.

He was the oldest living former Commandant. His cremated remains will be buried with those of his wife, the former Harriet A. Lary of Los Angeles, Calif., who died on February 2. A memorial service took place at the Fleet Landing Officers Club in Atlantic Beach, Fla., on April 7.

Admiral Smith was born in Suttons Bay, on May 14, 1910. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1927. During his tenure, Admiral Smith oversaw the service's transition from the Treasury Department to the Department of Transportation in April 1967.

Even in those years, the Coast Guard's missions had expanded to the extent that Admiral Smith was quoted as saying the words "Coast Guard" gave only a limited picture of the service's responsibilities.

"People are surprised, for example, that we have ships and men in Vietnam," he said in a 1970 interview.

A 1933 graduate of the Coast Guard Academy, Admiral Smith is the first aviator to have the post of Commandant. During his career, he had major sea commands and served in posts that included Commander of the 9th Coast Guard District in Cleveland, Ohio; and Superintendent of the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn., where he earned the Legion of Merit.

During World War II, while serving as commanding officer of the Coast Guard Air Station at San Francisco, he made a daring open sea landing in rough water to bring a stricken naval officer ashore for medical treatment, an act that earned him a Letter of Commendation.

Admiral Smith retired from the Coast Guard on June 1, 1970, and spent most of his retirement in Traverse City. Prior to leaving Washington, he was invited by the Secretary of Transportation, John A. Volpe, to head, as Assistant Secretary, the newly created Office of Safety and Consumer Affairs. He served in this post from October 1970 to July 1971.

Admiral Smith is survived by his daughter, Lary; son, Jeffrey; and grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Cards and other written condolences can be sent to 5516 Rigel Court, Atlantic Beach, Florida, 32233 or HC77 Box 58 Hancock Point Road, Hancock, Maine 04640. In lieu of flowers, the family wishes that donations be made to the Coast Guard Foundation.

John H. Wineman

John H. Wineman, 50, prominent builder of custom homes in the Birmingham-Bloomfield Hills area, died at home April 9 after a lengthy struggle with bone cancer.

A third generation Charlevoix visitor, he spent much of his vacation time at his parent's home on Michigan Avenue. He has many friends in this area. He was a devoted fisherman and fished regularly for trout in the Jordan River and for bass in Lake Charlevoix.

Wineman is survived by his wife,

Jennifer "Duffy" Wineman; his sons, Benjamin, Andrew and James; his parents, Constance and James Wineman; a sister Constance Jacob; and a brother, Henry.

Funeral services were today at Christ Church in Bloomfield Hills.

Council votes against request to close street

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A resident's hopes that the city would close a strip of road that divides his land was disappointed when city council said no on Monday.

Jim Uhrick, who owns Uhrick's Motel and Campgrounds, at 801 Petoskey Ave., asked the city to abandon a 345-foot portion of Division Street, between Mercer Boulevard and U.S. 31.

But council wants to keep the section of road open.

"It's good as it is," council member Gabe Campbell said. He uses the street section frequently and said he knows others do also.

Uhrick wants the stretch closed so his property is contiguous, and because traffic is hazardous on that section of the road.

"It's a dangerous road," Uhrick said. People drive too fast on it and drivers disobey the "do not enter" sign at the south end of the street, he said.

"I don't know why the city won't close it — the state's closed a lot of these types of roads," Uhrick added.

Risa Rasch from the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) said that the department tries to limit or at least control driveways onto highways. Rasch stated that if new development resulted from the closing of the street, that development should use Mercer Boulevard for traffic access, instead of U.S. 31.

Uhrick has no immediate plans to appeal council's decision, but said he will move his motel and campgrounds sign closer to U.S. 31.

Leave your pets at home during vacation this year

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Instead of sending your dog or cat to a strange kennel when you are away from home, try hiring a "baby sitter" for your pets.

New resident and experienced veterinary assistant, Kammi Richardson, will come to your home to feed, water and love the furry members of your family while you are away.

"I provide a pet-sitting type service. Although there are many wonderful boarding facilities in this area there is a need for the service I provide. Some animals physically and emotionally respond better in their own comfortable environment," she said.

Richardson added some pet-owners are also more comfortable knowing their animals are at home, rather than locked in a kennel.

For those pet owners who are concerned about their animals getting proper medication or special treatment, they can take comfort in knowing Richardson is a certified animal care specialists with a degree from the Institute of Animal Science in Atlanta, Ga.

Richardson's services can include several visits to the pet's home many times a day to feed, water, medicate, walk and spend time with the animal while its owner is away.
A minimum visit is 20 minutes and a maximum visit is 2 hours.

"I feel it's necessary to stay at least 20 minutes each visit. The animal needs to feel secure, not abandoned. Breezing in and out in five minutes is not my style," she said.

In addition to her in-home visits,
Richardson currently works one day a week at the Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital.

Richardson is new to Charlevoix, having just moved to the area from Pensacola, Fla. due to her husband's career. She was born in Alabama and was raised on a small farm where she tended to several animals.

"After completing my education
I've always worked in veterinary hospitals. What I am offering Charlevoix is more than just a ser-

Kammi Richardson poses with one of the pets she takes care of. Instead of leaving their pet at a kennel while they are away, its owners have hired Richardson to come to their home to feed, water and love it. (Photo by Jeremy McBain) vice. I'm giving 100 percent of my knowledge, love and care to every pet that my path crosses," Richardson said.

Richardson said she has experience to care for dogs, cats, reptiles, rodents and avians (birds).

Kammi's Pet Service is available

24 hours a day and seven days a week, throughout the year. For more information contact Richardson at (231) 547-3878.

Students nominated for Youth Arts Festival

Marcy Bennett and Dena Seldon earned top honors at the State Solo/Ensemble festival recently at Ferris State University.

Both Bennett and Seldon are flutists and have participated yearly in the festival. Marcy earned a 98 out of a possible 100 points in the proficiency 1 category and Dena earned a 97 out of 100 in the proficiency 3 category.

Students must play a solo and are then asked by the adjudicator to perform several scales from memory, as well as a sight reading excerpt.

The state festival is also the site where students are recommended to the Michigan Youth Fine Arts Festival as orchestra members or soloists. The room adjudicator makes the recommendation based on the proficiency score and the overall quality of the performance.

Bennett was awarded the high honor of being nominated as a soloist candidate, which places her in the company of the best high school musicians in Michigan. Bennett also has the distinction of being nominated as a sophomore, which is a rare event.

Most nominees are juniors and seniors.

Bennett studies privately with Bonnieta Benn of Harbor Springs and is the first student from her studio to advance in the Youth Arts Festival.

High school spring sports season kicks off this week

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

This year's high school spring sports season has already been a hit for students.

According to Charlevoix High School Athletic Director Keith Haske, participation in spring sports is at its highest.

"We've had more kids coming out to play softball and track than in previous years, which is exciting," Haske said. He added participation for boys track has particularly increased over past years.

"Things are going real well," he said. Perhaps part of the reason is the addition of new coaches in each of these sports. Phil Butler has been named the new girls varsity softball coach and Ken Plude is the new boys track coach. Plude was the girls track coach last year.

Butler said he loves his new position. "They are a good group of kids," he said about the team. "I expressed to them that we will have a different mind set. I wanted more commitment from the girls. They like that idea and want to win."

The spring sports season kicked off yesterday with several games. The varsity baseball and softball teams faced Glen Lake at home, while the tennis team met Traverse City St. Francis at home and the track teams were at Boyne City.

Scenes like this high-jumper will be a common site around the Charlevoix track, now that spring sports have started back up. (File photo)

Charlevoix Golf Club set for another season of play

The Charlevoix Golf Club officially opened all facilities on April 9.

New this year is the addition of a fourth set of tees. Golfers can now choose to play anywhere from a 1307 yard course to 3019 yards.

In addition the course has received a G.A.M. (Golf Association of Michigan) U.S.G.A. course rating. The black tees have a rating of 68.8, a par 36 with a 122 slope.

Through the G.A.M. the Charlevoix Golf Club will offer a handicap service to all interested golfers. This service will also be offered to junior golfers. A waiver in handicap services will be given to any child who has completed a Junior Golf program or comparable clinic.

Golf instructor Tom Dorsek is working out final details with Charlevoix's Golf Coach Jim Glynn on a middle school student golf orientation/clinic targeted for this spring.

The course now has yardage indicators on all fairway sprinkler heads.

The Second Annual Keith Carey Memorial City Tournament will be back again at the municipal course with a final playoff scheduled during the Venetian Festival.

A new Tuesday afternoon/evening men's league will start up on April 25 and run for five consecutive weeks.

For further information you may call the clubhouse at 547-3268.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

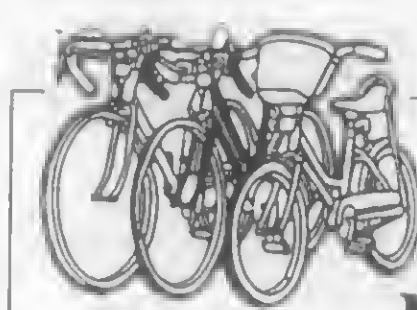

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE
Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by ANNETTE M. VANDER MEY, whose address is 615 Adams Street, Boyne City, Michigan 49712 to THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, acting through the United States Department of Agriculture, Rural Development, with its District Office being located at 1501 Cass Street, Suite A, Traverse City, Michigan 49684, the Mortgagee, such Mortgage being dated February 27, 1997 and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan on February 27, 1997 in Liber 312 of Charlevoix County Records on Pages 635 through 638, inclusive, and by reason of such default the Mortgagee elects to declare the entire unpaid amount of such Mortgage due and payable forthwith, on which Mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of EIGHTY-NINE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED EIGHTY AND 86/100 ($89,880.86) DOLLARS, and no proceedings having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;

Now Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described or so much thereof as may be necessary, at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the front lobby of the Charlevoix County Building located at 301 State Street in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court in and for said County, on Thursday April 27, 2000 at 10:00 o'clock local time, in the forenoon of said day, and said premises will be sold to pay the amount so as aforesaid then due on said Mortgage together with 7.25 percent interest on such Mortgage, legal costs, attorneys' fees and also any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee does pay on or prior to the date of said sale; which said premises are described in said

Mortgage as follows, to-wit:
Lands and premises situated in the City of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix, and State of Michigan: Lot 39, William H. White and Company's Addition to the Village of Boyne, now City of Boyne City, according to the recorded Plat thereof, as recorded in Charlevoix County Records. (Also commonly known as 615 Adams Street, Boyne City, Michigan 49712)
The redemption period shall be six (6) months from the date of sale unless the property is abandoned in which case the redemption period shall be thirty (30) days from the date of sale. This is an attempt to collect a debt. Any information obtained will be used for that purpose.

For further information with regard to this foreclosure contact the local office of Rural Development, 7192 E. 34 Road, Cadillac, Michigan 49601, telephone (231)775-7681; facsimile (231)775-0938.

APRIL 2000

9th Annual Easter Bunny Lunch & Easter Egg Hunt Saturday, April 22, 2000

The Easter Bunny is coming to Charlevoix! The Ninth Annual Easter Egg Hunt in downtown Charlevoix will be held on Saturday, April 22, 2000. The fun begins at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant with the Easter Bunny Luncheon from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. with the opportunity for the children to have their photograph taken with the Easter Bunny. Adult meal prices are $7.95 and a special children's meal will be served for $4.95. Call 547-4311 for reservations. Following the luncheon and photographs the Easter Bunny will be downtown Charlevoix for the Easter Egg Hunt, which begins promptly at 2:00 p.m. in East Park. The children will be hunting for over 5,000 eggs, each with a special prize inside. The children will be divided into age categories. Don't forget your Easter Basket to collect your eggs! The Easter Egg Hunt is made possible by the Retail Promotions Committee of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the following sponsors: Ace Hardware, Central Drug Store, Charlevoix Camera, Charlevoix Harbor Wear, Currier Lawn Maintenance, Interior Motives, Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant and Whitney's of Charlevoix.

Disney comes to Northern Michigan

For one day only, Disney Institute is bringing its renowned brand of professional development to our area. It's your chance to learn proven Disney success strategies that you can easily adapt to your organization. Dynamic presentations and relevant case studies bring each program topic to life in true Disney fashion.

It's an information-packed session that will challenge you to look at your business in a whole new light. More importantly, it will provide "key" information to help you begin affecting positive change in your organization. Attend with others from your management team and be prepared for a morning full of insight, ideas and inspiration.

This half day of training will be at The Inn at Bay Harbor, 3600 Village Harbor Dr., Bay Harbor, MI. on Tuesday, May 16, 2000 from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The Charlevoix Area and Petoskey Regional chambers of commerce are co-sponsoring this event. The cost is $150.00. Call the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce for more information at 547-2101.

Business Briefs

Kris Rasmussen has been hired as Charlevoix's Downtown Coordinator.

Omo's Restaurant is expanding into the area previously occupied by the kitchen shop. They will now be able to offer a non-smoking dining room. Watch for details about Omo's Grand Opening on Memorial Day weekend.

On April 1st, Lindo and Bob Hoffman re-opened Interior Motives for the 2000 season of their new location, 405 Bridge Street.

Marrell Staffel added new equipment to provide a new service at Charlevoix Camera. You can now get one hour service to develop APS/Advontix film. What a great development to have in town.

Matthew Greimel, DVM and Julie Soorm-Greimel, DVM have announced that Bay Shore Animal Hospital will officially open with a ribbon cutting ceremony on Friday, April 14th.

Dale Hull is the new Executive Director of the Crooked Tree Arts Center. He and his wife Ruth Ann moved to Petoskey from Grand Rapids.

Powers site general manager of Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project, has accepted a new position with Kaiser-Hill Co., a federal contractor at the U.S. Department of Energy's (DOE) Rocky Flats Environmental Technology Site near Denver, Colo. He will assume his new position in May.

Jack Uhrick has sold The Lodge to Tracy Sell, Jon Hlsay and Leo Quinn. The Lodge is open for business and has not increased room rates.

Retail Promotions Meeting

You are cordially invited to attend the next Retail Promotions Committee meeting which will be held on Thursday, April 20th at 9:00 am, at the Weathervane Restaurant.

Your thoughts and ideas for this year's promotions are needed and appreciated!

We will be discussing the Easter Egg Hunt, Lake Charlevoix Trout Tournament and how retailers can be involved and benefit from this event, review preliminary plans for Christmas 2000, report on banners and advertising opportunities on kiosks and at the HarborMaster's office along with any new ideas, thoughts, concerns, etc...

National Employee Health & Fitness Day

The Fitness Council of Northern Michigan, Healthy Workplace Coalition, would like to encourage local businesses to participate in this May 17, 2000 event.

Registration forms are available at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office. The forms need to be filled out and mailed by April 24th, so that a planning packet can be sent by May 1st to all interested businesses.

Important Date to Remember

If you want your business or organization listed in the 2000 Community & Visitors Guide, you must join the Chamber or renew your membership by Thursday, May 18, 2000! We go to print the next day!

Council member resigns from post

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A city council member and a planning commission member traded seats on Monday at the city council meeting.

Bernie DeVries resigned from city council because, although he is still in the city, he moved out of his Third Ward district. But not wanting to leave local government, he took the seat of planning commissioner Sherm Chamberlain who was asked by Mayor Alvin Russell to fill DeVries' seat.

When Russell offered the council seat to Chamberlain he hesitated about the change, but not for long.

"I debated, but agreed to it during the same conversation,"

Chamberlain said. The change will be good because after nearly four years he was getting too comfortable on the planning commission, he said.

DeVries said he will miss city council.

"I'll run again," he said. "It's a good group."

His special interests are the welfare of senior citizens, the city's infrastructure, the streets and sidewalks.

DeVries added he is disappointed that he will not be involved in the changes underway at Charlevoix Municipal Airport and he said he feels bad he didn't see city hall improvements move farther along.

Board hopefuls prepare for June

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix voters will have four choices to pick from this June for two open seats on the Charlevoix school board.

Running for the four year seats are incumbents Mike MacMillan and Larry Levensgood and newcomers David S. Smith and Tamar Lynn Whitley. The list of candidates was finalized following a brief questioning of Whitley and Smith's petitions.

Petitions turned in by these two did not have the correct date. However, it was determined this error was not significant enough to confuse people who signed Whitley's and Smith's petitions, so they were allowed on the ballot.

Levensgood said he has two goals for his next term in office. The first of these goals is to have the facility plan completed.

"It's been kind of an exciting time with the prospect of new facilities, not just a new high school but also in the middle school" he said.

He said his other goal would be to keep the districts academic standard up.

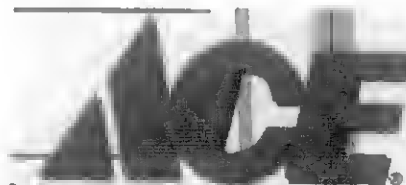

If elected for another term, Levensgood said at the end of that four years he pictures the school district being in better shape as far as facilities and he pictures the students doing a lot of good things for the community.

North-side developers meet with residents over housing

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A roomful of north-side residents paid close attention to a developer's presentation at Giuseppe's restaurant on April 11. The developer, Smith Equities, plans to build a 48-unit multiple-family housing project on land located near the residents' homes.

Eight acres of land that runs between Petoskey Avenue and Division Street is the site of the potential development. The land fronts onto Petoskey Avenue just north of Don's IGA. It is owned by Warren Shadko.

Smith Equities is a Mount Pleasant-based developer that typically meets with residents in the area where it plans to build to hear their concerns and answer their questions. It has targeted Charlevoix for a multi-family housing development because of the city's shortage of affordable housing.

"We offer reasonably-priced housing," said Staci Smith, vice president of Smith Equities. "It's housing for younger people who need prices low."

The two-story units will be two-and three-bedroom apartments with eight apartments in each building. The apartments will range from approximately 1,000 square feet to 1,300 square feet. Each apartment will have a garage, plus an additional parking space. The project will have on-site management.

The housing is used by young couples who are saving for a home and by resort industry service employees who cannot afford high rents, Smith said.

"We promise a beautiful environment for local people who want to live in town, but are priced out," she said.

Residents' concerns include the increased traffic that would access Division Street. It would jeopardize the safety of the nearby elementary school students, they said. Smith Equities will work with the city on traffic patterns, Smith said.

Many people expressed opposition to multi-family housing in a predominately single-family neighborhood. Another audience member complained that property values will go down, but taxes will go up. One person suggested the developer put the project out by the

Charlevoix students graduate from DARE program

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Parents crowded onto bleachers across the elementary school gym from their fifth-grade students on April 13 to watch their children graduate from DARE.

Before receiving their certificates of graduation, the students listened to city police chief Dennis Halverson talk about the importance of staying away from drugs and congratulated them on completing the DARE program.

Halverson pointed out the number of parents who were attending their graduation as proof that this was a momentous occasion.

Halverson then introduced police officer Jim Schlappi to the audience. The students already knew Officer Schlappi well because he has been their teacher and friend for the last 17 weeks.

Schlappi has conducted Drug Awareness Resistance Education programs for six years. He's been enlightened by the students during those years.

"They're not stupid," Schlappi said of the 10-12 year-old students. "They know what's going on."

A growing problem are inhalants, Schlappi said. Some children use cans of spray whipping cream that are easily accessible at home or at the grocery store. The sniffing of the gas from the spray device causes a euphoria when it robs the brain of oxygen.

Other potential problems for Charlevoix's youth are alcohol, cigarettes and marijuana.

"I know of some kids that are really at risk and have a difficult home environment," Schlappi said. "If the home environment is not healthy, the situation is exacerbated by the tremendous pressure from other kids who are using drugs."

It takes the combined efforts of parents, the police and schools reinforcing the same message to combat peer pressure, Schlappi said.

The DARE officer approaches the kids in a practical manner and uses real-life situations to hit home with them.

"I go in and I don't do the cop thing," Schlappi said. "I talk to them in a way that is easy to relate with them. Anyone can stand up there and say 'don't do it,' but you have to put it in a way they can understand."

In addition to the health risks, Schlappi gives examples of the financial costs of drugs. Instead of spending more than $3 a pack on cigarettes, the money could be saved for sports equipment or site of the new high school.

Another concern was developing low-income housing in the area. But the developers explained that the project was not a low-income housing project, as defined by the state.

Housing applicants must fit within income levels, but the levels are higher than for the state's Section Eight low-income housing.

Smith Equities president Sid Smith said. However, these projects are funded through the Michigan State Housing Development Authority.

Rents would start at $389 for people earning $7.48 per hour and rise to $641 for people earning $12.33 per hour.

The developers mingled among the residents to address individual concerns following their presentation. They hope to begin meetings with the city in May.

other items desired by the child. Students in the DARE program write essays about drugs. The class votes on their favorite essay and the school staff then chooses the writer of the best essay. Student Marleah Dean won this session and was taken out to lunch with prior essay winners by Officer Schlappi.

One of the most important things adults can do for the kids is give of their time, Schlappi said.

"I encourage the kids that if Battle this bug by talking to your kids

There is a virus claiming the youth in America.

It catches them when they are young. They can be either rich or poor, have two parents or one, this virus doesn't discriminate.

Once this virus has a child, it slowly kills them. It starts by convincing the child that it is harmless. Once the child accepts this falsehood, the virus gets inside and slowly eats away the child's life until his or her death.

The name for this virus is drugs.

Usually the child becomes infected through peers. Seeing others around them using drugs makes a child think the chemicals are harmless or cool to use.

But, there is a vaccine for this virus — information.

Children need to know about the real effects of drugs on their lives. They need to know how dangerous drugs are, not what is said by their peers on the playground.

Programs like DARE help give children this needed information. This type of information arms our children when they are faced with peer pressure to try a drug.

EDITORIAL

But, just graduating from a Drug Awareness Resistance Education (DARE) program is not enough. Children need to be told about the dangers of drugs from someone they respect above all others, someone above police officers and teachers. They need to hear this from their parents.

Some parents may think, "Why bother? My child just does the exact opposite of what I say." This is not true.

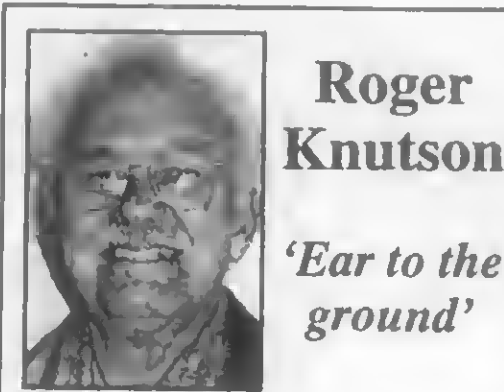

Your child does listen to you. Regardless of what you think, when you say something to your child that information stays with them throughout their lives.

We encourage you to sit down with your children and talk to them about the dangers of drugs and drinking. Get involved with your children and discover what your children think about all sorts of topics, not just drugs and drinking.

You may just be surprised at what your children have to say or how much of what you say your children will listen to.

Only then will we as a society truly eradicate this virus.

A little-known holiday that's worth remembering in spring

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

With the coming of May we should be prepared to observe one of those little known holidays.

Arbor Day is nearly upon us and I want to be sure you have enough warning to appropriately observe it. Arbor Day is mainly supported by the National Arbor Day Foundation located most meaningfully in Nebraska where they really do appreciate trees. Nebraska is the home to the only National Forest which was totally planted by humans.

Considering Charlevoix's location and history we are far more likely to take trees for granted than are the folks in Nebraska. Next time you are driving or preferably walking around our Charlevoix, consider the trees you see. Nearly every one of them was planted and purposefully maintained by somebody in the distant past. Most of our larger trees have likely outlived even the memory of whoever planted them. They are nonetheless here because of the efforts of those who came before us. We live in an urban forest that was planted here by people just as surely as was that anomalous forest in Nebraska. The problem with an urban forest is that new trees have to be planted continuously or the forest will just get old and die out.

The City of Charlevoix both plants and removes trees on the property it controls, but that still leaves most of the forest in the hands of individuals. Does your part of our forest need some renewal? Are your trees getting just a bit long in the tooth, or over the hill, or past their prime or filled with dead wood?

Arbor Day for us is about renewing that forest. People used to plant a tree to celebrate the arrival of a baby, certain that with care, the tree would be around for the child and the later adult to be proud of as "their tree." We don't often celebrate that way any more, but we likely should.

Other events in our lives of long-term consequence could also provide the occasion for planting something that will likely last longer than we will. Marriage, a college scholarship, a new home — pick your occasion, but plant a tree to acknowledge it. We all know just how important trees can be in the collective lives of all of us. Shade, cool clean air, noise abatement, increased property values and oxygen to breathe are all the gift of trees. And marvelously, that gift is precisely incremental. Each single tree adds to all those positive effects. Don't miss celebrating your own Arbor Day. Spring is a good time to plant trees, don't worry about which specific day. Pick a day convenient to you and yours.

Where are you going to find a tree to plant? Of course nurseries have trees of many kinds and sizes, but they are far from the only possibilities. Is there a young maple tree growing along the alley right of way in your block; one that has no future in its present location? Probably. Do the woods and roadsides harbor trees of many kinds? Certainly.

Some caution is of course required in selecting a place to dig up a tree. Well-groomed private property is not a good choice. And some caution is appropriate in determining the right size. Think small is the best advice. A small tree can be dug up and replanted in a few minutes and has a much better chance of survival than its larger relatives. A tree a couple of feet tall will be a tree ten feet tall in a few years.

Finally, don't expect to sit in the shade of a tree that you have planted; expect your children in their mature years to sit under it. Nearly all the trees in our urban forest were planted by people who are long gone. Use Arbor Day as an excuse to add your contribution to that long-term goal of making the place we all live more livable.

Taxpayers deserve answers

Editor:

As a torch bearing, card carrying voting citizen, I would like to respond to your comments in last week's paper.

It is a shame that you have attempted to vilify those of us who oppose the new school site. We, as taxpayers and full time residents of the area, have a right to be fully informed as to how our money is being spent and how the final decision was arrived at. We are not spending $18 here, this is more than $18 million that we will be paying out for a very long time. I feel we have a right to choose where that will be spent. We also have a right to take action if we feel we have not been given a full accounting.

If wetlands mitigation costs were such an issue, why was a study not done so we could see if it off-set the costs of putting utilities out to the site? What about zoning? I do not recall the Marion Township board or anyone else for that matter changing the zoning ordinance to accommodate a school? I would also like to know what the results of the soil samples were after decades of fertilizing and spraying. I also live on Marion Center Road and wonder if any of the other residents of our township are concerned about who would be expected to cover the cost of the road improvement that would be needed to support a school and 80 new home sites? That may not be a school board concern but it is one of mine.

Why do you seem to feel that only those of us who oppose the school site have no right to use tax dollars to support and/or pursue our legal rights? Why do you seem to feel we should roll over and play dead while you are using not only your tax dollars but ours? All of us bear the cost of a democracy and all that that encompasses, whether it is a vote on a school issue, a recall issue or any issue. We would have few of the rights and privileges we have today if one vote at one level said it all, if opposing forces were not allowed to express themselves. Where public monies are spent the public, all the public for and against has the right to know the facts. Discussion and division occurs when one group feels only they have that right.

Support our Grandchildren

Editor:

I have been reading advertisements in our local papers supported by the Committee Sponsoring Neighborhood Schools. I voted for the new high school and I knew exactly what I was voting on. I received the information ahead of time in my mailbox just like every other voter. If these three men did not know, I suggest that from now on they pay a little bit more attention.

I have always believed that any project a community needs, such as a new school, should be put on the ballot. If you win, so be it. If you lose, accept it and make the best of it.

Thanks for the help

Editor:

"And the new Miss Michigan Teen USA 2000 is..." (drumroll please)... Is it just wishful thinking on my part? Maybe... but come April 20-22, this dream could come true. In an attempt to capture this title, I will be traveling to Ypsilanti where I will be joined by approximately 50 other girls from Michigan all representing not only our town, but our community, as Miss Charlevoix Teen USA. Where does it go from here? The nationally televised Miss Teen USA pageant in Shreveport, Louisiana!

Throughout the last two years, I have received much support from all of you in this community while I have been involved in pageants. At 15 years old, during the 1998-1999 year, I held the title of Miss Teen Northwest Michigan, and after winning my second pageant at 16 years, I currently hold the title of Miss Northwest Michigan. During these last two years I have had the opportunity to meet many wonderful people and to be involved in countless events around the state. What really stands out though, when I think about all of the things I have done, is the thousands of smiles, hugs and, of course, support, that I have received throughout every city that I have traveled to. And so for this, I want to thank you all.

Gail L. Seidel
Marion Center Road Resident

Now only a few days before this pageant, I think back to when I first realized that accumulating the money to do this was something I could not do alone. With that, I would like to thank all the businesses who have supported me, any future supporters, and to my friends, family and of course all of you: Thanks for everything. Wish me luck!

Marion is unconstitutional

Editor:
Dr. Robert Mossman, registered agent of the Charlevoix Area Natural Resources Preservation Association (CANRPA) asked the law firm of Olson, Noonan and Bzdok in Traverse City to review the Charlevoix School Board's selection process for the Marion Center site.

Attorney Karen Ferguson responded with an 11 page document addressed to the Charlevoix School Board and superintendent. Here is a summary of attorney Ferguson's comments. Please note points 6 and 7.

1) The Charlevoix Public Schools must obtain Land Use approval from Marion Township.

2) The school board is not immune from the Township Master Plan.

4) Decisions of the township, the Board of Education and the superintendent are subject to the Michigan Environmental Protection Agency.

5) The sewer expansion to the Marion Center Road site is a tax that was not approved by a vote of the people as required by the Headlee Amendment.

6) The school board's use of the bond proposal money to extend the sewer is in violation of the Headlee Amendment. The school board cannot disguise a tax for public improvement as a school bond proposal. Such action is unconstitutional.

7) Attorney Ferguson warns the school board that the decision to purchase the Marion Center Road site without voter approval is also unconstitutional and, therefore, null and void.

Attorney Karen Ferguson also wrote to Jerry Dohm, the Marion Township Supervisor and Tim Matchett, chairman of the Marion Township Planning Commission.

Copies of the full letters are available by calling Dr. Jeff Porter.

Recall group needs to show proof

Editor:

How do you figure these folks who seek recall? No matter how many times their concerns are addressed, they find new concerns or simply repeat the same ones. I'd like to respond to last week's letter to the editor written by one of the gentlemen in charge.

1) Please provide evidence that the board "would rather spend $1,500 on a recall election" than on something else. It's a strange assertion that the board has sought to recall itself.

2) Please provide evidence that the sewer system will cost "a million dollars." How many times must your committee be provided with facts before you accept them? Again: The estimate for sewer construction is $517,800. There is no additional tap-in fee and this cost is not hidden. All costs associated with site development — like utility expenses and necessary road improvements — are within the $1.6 million budgeted for this purpose. This was the amount stated on the ballot in the Oct. 11 election, which, as you know, passed.

3) Please provide evidence that the district would've been able to save "a million on a site in or near the city." Which alternate site do you suggest? What objective data do you have to support that your in-town site is comprehensively superior to the Marion Center site? And how can you in good conscience suggest an alternate site located "near the city" — as opposed to "in the city" when your very own ballot language demands that the board be recalled for "disregarding the results...that overwhelmingly favored an in-town site?"

4) Please provide evidence that supplying the site with natural gas will be "expensive." Is it possible to provide evidence for such a vague statement? Watch...I can do the same thing: The Hoffman property is expensive. Moving Kipke Field is expensive. Buying a new lot in 15 years for an additional elementary school is expensive. Not too impressive, is it?

5) Please provide evidence that the Marion Center property owned by the school district contains wetlands. If you can't do this, at least come to a consensus amongst your own committee about which fictitious number you'll publicize. Your letter admits not knowing "how much of the site is too wet to build on"; a colleague of yours claims that need to mitigate all 74 acres. Which, if any, is it? Using your experience in wetlands analysis, you could perform a similar evaluation of the Hoffman property and let the community know what you find out.

6) Please direct questions regarding county roads to the proper authorities. While you've got them on the line, you might ask about the 55 mph speed limits on Waller Road and Martin Road and confirm the traffic statistics for US-31 between Carpenter Street and Garfield Street. Then, perhaps they'll repeat to you that any actual road improvements necessary for the school be built and to operate will be covered from within the budget approved in the bond issue.

Sorority to observe 69 years of service to communities

The Charlevoix chapters of Beta Sigma Phi will host chapters from Boyne City, Gaylord, Lewiston and Petoskey to celebrate the sixty-ninth year of Beta Sigma Phi.

The Northern Michigan chapters will meet April 24 at the Charlevoix Country Club for a social hour, dinner and program.

Charlevoix now has four chapters with a total membership of 65. The Kappa Sigma chapter does the Home Tours each year donating thousands of dollars to area charities such as the Charlevoix Hospital, Charlevoix Historical Society, Camp Quality, Hospice and that's only to name a few. The Xi Epsilon chapter recently finished their 3rd Taste of Charlevoix cookbook.

They recently donated $2,000 each to the Charlevoix Hospital, Hospice, and food pantry. Preceptor Beta Mu and Laureate Beta Xi organized the Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Breast Cancer Walk. Last year over $18,000 was raised for research. Besides the major projects all chapters do Christmas for needy families and other service projects during the year.

Beta Sigma Phi was founded in 1931 in Abilene Kansas, by Walter W. Ross, who thought women needed a social and cultural outlet. Sixty-nine years later with nearly 200,000 members all over the world, Beta Sigma Phi has taken on major service projects through an endowment fund. Millions of dollars have been donated to health research, disaster areas and other worthwhile causes.

Taking part in this year's celebration will be Pat Pence, president of Laureate Beta Xi, Terry Rowe, president to Preceptor Beta Mu, Linda Hoffman, president of Kappa Sigma.

This year's Founders Day chairman is Thelma Dittlow. Other committee members are Linda Atkins, Lori Mitchell, Vicki Greyerbiehl, Cyndie Leiberhan, Denise Pointer, Barb McKeown, Vivian Mettler and Ann Hufford.

In the next step towards recycling in Charlevoix County, members of the group instituting a recycling program requested funds and county commissioners' approval of their plans.

County commissioner and chairman of the recycling committee, Shirley Roloff, and member Nancy Ferguson, reported on their research at the county commissioners' meeting on April 12.

In anticipation of county residents approving the funds for the recycling program, Ferguson asked the commissioners to advance the amount needed to purchase the recycling bins.

The bins take approximately six weeks to arrive after they have been ordered, Ferguson said. Because the group wants to have a recycling program operating by this summer, they want to get the bins ordered.

Ferguson said 14 to 16 30-yard bins are needed at a cost of $3,500 each. They would be placed at various locations within the county and would hold newspapers, plastic and glass.

Roloff and Ferguson are seeking commitments from each of the county's cities, Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan to purchase a recycling bin. They are also working with the area civic groups to obtain contributions toward more of the containers needed.

But commissioners balked at advancing funds to purchase the bins when the county residents have yet to decide how they will pay for recycling. The group supports seeking a millage so that both residents and commercial entities would pay for recycling. The millage election would be in August.

"It sounds like we're putting the cart before the horse," commissioner Phil Johnson said. "We need to find out if Charlevoix County people want this. I have no problem with putting something on the ballot. We need to find out."

Another option is for the county to utilize Public Act 138 which allows a county to assess up to $25 per year to each resident for recycling.

Other costs for a recycling program are the cost for processing, estimated at $36,000 annually and the cost of trucking the recyclables to a recycling center. This cost is estimated at $32,000 per year.

"We've got to go into this step by step," commissioner Don Smith said. "This is a leap. If the millage failed, $40,000, plus $32,000, would have to come from the general fund of the county. I do support recycling, but I'm not comfortable with the way it's going."

The recycling committee is seeking approval by the commissioners to allow them to enter a contract with a hauler to transfer filled bins to a recycling center. A contract with a recycling center must also be approved.

Commissioners asked the recycling committee to present their requests in writing at the next commissioners meeting on April 26 for further consideration.

By LOWELL ANDERSON
Charlevoix Assembly of God

The cross is more than a symbol of death. It is even more than the symbol of the sacrificial death of Jesus Christ who atoned for our sins. The cross is a symbol of God's Love. Even more, it is a symbol of God's love for His enemies!

Through the pen of Paul the Apostle the truth is expressed this way: "...Christ died for us sinners who had no use for Him" (Romans 5:6 Living Bible). He continues by adding, "...God showed His great love for us by sending Christ to die for us while we were still sinners" (Romans 5:8 TLB).

So God's love for sinful mankind was not based on any merit whatsoever. The sacrificial death of Christ on the Cross was not an expression of God's love for those in whom He saw any merit or for those who had any salvageable qualities. Christ died for those who had no use for Him!

So God's love, expressed in the Cross of Christ is unconditional. I cannot do enough good to earn it! I cannot do enough evil to spurn it! Even though I do not merit God's Love, and cannot earn it, I am not worthless. I am only unworthy. The fact that God would love me so much to send His Only Son to die for my sin indicated that He assigns fantastic worth to me even though I have no worth of my own.

This leads me to the concluding point. "And since by His blood He did all this for us as sinners, how much more will He do for us now that He has declared us not guilty?" (Romans 5:9 TLB).

Christian, hold your head high, square your shoulders! If God loved you when you were His enemy, how much more are you an object of His love as His child?

Watch your blood pressure for dangerous signs

High-blood pressure is something we all need to keep an eye on.

Around 50 million Americans have high blood pressure. High blood pressure, also known as hypertension, is a major risk factor for heart disease and stroke. In fact, it is the number one risk factor that contributes to stroke.

Hypertension is blood pressure readings greater than 140 systolic and 90 diastolic over a length of time. Increased pressure on the arteries is often due to inner build-up and the inability for the arteries to expand. This creates an increased workload on the heart, causing it to work harder in order to move the blood throughout the body.

You should keep track of your blood pressure, getting it checked once a year.

If high blood pressure runs in your family or if your blood pressure readings exceed normal recommendations, follow up with your health care provider. The following guidelines may help you achieve and maintain a desired blood pressure.

1) Avoid eating foods high in sodium and fat.

2) Exercise 3-5 times a week for 20-30 minutes.

3) Avoid using tobacco and nicotine.

4) Maintain a healthy body weight of no more than 30% above ideal weight.

5) Try to eliminate consistent high levels of stress from your daily routine.

High blood pressure has a great impact on stroke possibility. If a blood clot was to get lodged in an artery narrowed by build-up, it could prevent the oxygen and nutrient enriched blood from traveling to the vital organs. When blood supply is blocked off to the brain, a stroke results.

Fortunately, the body gives us warning signs when this is occurring:

•A sudden weakness or numbness on the face, arm or leg on one side of the body.

•Sudden dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye.

•Loss of speech, trouble talking or understanding speech.

•Sudden, severe headaches with no known cause.

•Unexplained dizziness, unsteadiness or sudden falls, especially if combined with one or more of the above.

If you or someone you know is experiencing any of these, seek medical attention immediately.

For more information on blood pressure and stroke contact your local hospital, health department, or physician.

Messages from your brain travel up to 186 miles per hour.

Can your neurologist keep up?

When you're dealing with something as serious as a brain or spinal injury, it's a question you don't want to think about. The neurology specialists at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey are continually on the forefront of new medical treatments. Planner, councilman switch

But, DeVries is looking forward to serving on the city planning commission and believes he will benefit the commission with the knowledge he's gained from city council. DeVries served for three years on the planning commission prior to his city council seat.

Chamberlain said he sees senior housing and low-income housing as important issues for the city. Blending the needs for more housing in the city with single-family neighborhoods is the challenge.

"Both are needed," he said. The city will have to decide how to meet the need for multiple-family housing without detracting from single-family property owners.

Chamberlain will complete DeVries' term which expires in November, 2000. He said he is likely to run for election to the council seat at that time.

DeVries' planning commission appointment expires April 2001.

Two months 'til hospice auction

With two months until the auction, plans are already underway for this year's auction. The auction will be on June 9 at the Boyne Mountain Civic Center. As in past years, the evening will include both silent and live auctions, a $500 grand prize, hors d'oeuvres and entertainment. Tickets are $20 and will be available shortly.

The main event will be the drawing for a 1930 Model A Ford Sedan that was donated by Reginald Bird of Eastport. The car is a Bronson yellow and is in "perfect running condition" and has been valued at $7,000.

To participate in the drawing, the purchase of a $100 ticket is needed of which about half of the original 250 are still available. The tickets are available at Great Lakes Motor Works, Ace Hardware of Boyne City, Don's IGA in Charlevoix and the East Jordan hospice office in the Family Health Center or by calling 536-2842. A separate ticket for the auction is needed to attend the auction — although to win the Model A one does not need to attend the auction.

The annual auction is a major financial source for hospice that provides volunteer services and bereavement care, at no charge, to the terminally ill and their families in Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet counties.

Grandvue nurses accepted as members of NAGNA

Grandvue's Competency Evaluated Nursing Assistants (CENA's) are now members of the National Association of Geriatric Nursing Assistants (NAGNA).

NAGNA is a professional Association of Certified Nursing Assistants in long term care facilities, providing continuing education, recognition and respect for its "front-line caregivers. There are many benefits associated with being a member of NAGNA, for the professional staff, the residents in care and the facility itself:

- CENA's sense of personal worth and self esteem
- Healthier workplace morale
- National deserved respect and recognition of CENA's
- Residents will receive highly skilled, professional care
- Stable, satisfied staff increases resident's security and comfort

•Resident feels valued when staff feels valued

•Monthly staff inservice will yield professional, dedicated staff

•Better communication between departments within facility

•Enhanced community reputation

•Reduced staff turn-over through NAGNA preceptor training and mentoring programs

Grandvue's NAGNA Leadership Team's focus is on representing NAGNA and it's mission within the facility on a day-to-day basis.

The NAGNA sponsored Heart sale and Bake sale sent its CENA's off to a good start within the facility. The proceeds from these sales will be used to sponsor future events to recognize and support employees of Grandvue, as well as financing upcoming events within the community of East Jordan.

Host families needed to house exchange students

Pacific Intercultural Exchange (PIE) High School Program is seeking local host families for international students for the 2000-2001 high school year.

Local representatives would like to place the students with an American host family as soon as possible. The family and student can get to know each other by writing, e-mail and by telephone before the student arrives.

PIE is a non-profit, education program designated by the United States Information Agency. The students are from 35 countries.

The students are 15 to 18 years of age. They bring their own spending money and have full medical insurance. The host family is responsible for love, guidance, room and board.

PIE representatives match students with host families by common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the "perfect match."

For more information about hosting a student, or outbound program or if you would be interested in being a PIE representative please call your regional coordinator, Patricia Blundy at (800) 382-7439. Or call its international office at (888) PIE-USA1.

Soccer kicks off to a great start following first week

Rayders girls' soccer kicked off last week with two wins and a loss.

The season opened April 13 in a game against East Jordan at home. The Rayders won the contest 12-0 and allowed only two shots on goal. This was the first year East Jordan fielded a soccer team.

Scoring for the Rayders were: Taya Drost with one goal, Erika Kammermann with one goal and three assists, Lindsey Carland with one assist, Jill Ramsey with two goals, Kristy Shindorf with one goal, Kelly Dreyer with two assists, Abby Schaperkotter with one goal, Karlee Barnard with two goals and two assists, Kate Madison with one goal, Danielle Vogelheim with two goals and Elissa Wood with one goal and one assist.

"Despite the score, the East Jordan goalie played a great game and made some great saves. Their first year program is where we were six years ago. They have good numbers and are well coached," Charlevoix Coach Hagen Manker said.

The Rayders were on the road the next night, April 14, playing in St. Johns. The Rayders lost that game 2-0.

St. Johns got on the board 11 minutes into the first half; scoring on a corner kick and again midway through the second half.

Despite several opportunities, the Rayders were not able to put the ball in the net.

"We were in this game to the end. Their goalie made some good saves; they were able to capitalize on our mistakes," Manker said.

Rayder goalie Shindorf recorded 12 saves during the game.

The Rayders did not let this loss get to them and came back April 15 to beat Owosso 6-0.

Scoring in that game for the Rayders were: Drost with one goal and two assists, Kammermann with one goal and one assist, Karlee Barnard with one goal, Madison with one assist, Danielle Vogelheim with one goal and one assist and Michelle Yaldo with two goals.

"We were pretty beat up coming into this game, so I was pleased that the girls came out hard from the start. Even though we dominated Owosso, we made a lot of mistakes that we will be working on this week in practice. I was pleased with our senior leadership on the field and with the effort of our bench players in resting our starters, especially Yaldo stepping up and scoring two goals," Manker said.

EVENTS IN BRIEF

Probation mentors needed

Volunteers-In-Probation (VIP) is one of the Charlevoix and Emmet County Probate Court's special programs. It tries to recruit adult volunteers to work one-on-one with probationers, a few hours a week, in an activity that is enjoyed by both. It is the court's experience that often during these sessions, a positive relationship develops; something that may have been lacking in the young person's life, which is one of the possible contributors to delinquency. The court is always looking for more of these mentors, especially males because it has more male probationers.

Anastasis presentation

The Ragamuffin Theater Troupe presents a special event. "The Anastasis" Easter Drama Production at 7 p.m. April 20, 21, 22, and 23 located at the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus Hall at 15144 Bells Bay Road. Admission is free - but tickets are preferred. They are available at Charlevoix Glen's Market, Morning Glory Store, Trademark Clothiers, Village Inn Pizza, All Churches.

MDA testing

At 1 p.m. on April 20, the Charlevoix County office of MSU Extension shall be offering MDA testing for those needing to become certified or recertified as pesticide applicators. This test is given at the Boyne City Hall Auditorium. Test study manuals are available for purchase from the MSU Extension office located in the City Hall Building at 319B North Lake Street, Boyne City. To reserve a spot for this test please call 582-6232.

Good Friday service
The Good Friday Service is at 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. on April 21. The cross processional begins at noon from Oleson's parking lot. The speaker is Mark Hofstra and the theme is Suffering Servant (Isaiah 53).

Master Gardeners gathering

The Northern Michigan Master Gardeners Association members will be gathering on Saturday, April 22 for a tour of the Pine Hill Nursery in Eastport. If you are interested in car pooling opportunities you should meet in the Charlevoix Glen's parking lot at 9:15 a.m. The tour will begin at 10 a.m. Following the tour, members are invited to lunch at Sneakins Roadhouse Restaurant at US-31 and M-88.

Easter festivities

The Easter Bunny is coming to Charlevoix! The Seventh Annual Easter Egg Hunt in downtown Charlevoix will be on April 22. The fun begins at Stafford's Weather-vane Restaurant with the Easter Bunny Luncheon from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. and then the opportunity for children to have their photograph taken with the Easter Bunny.

Following the luncheon and photographs, the Easter Bunny will be in downtown Charlevoix for the Easter Egg Hunt which begins promptly at 2 p.m. in East Park. The children will be finding over 5,000 eggs, each with a special prize inside. The children will be divided into age categories. The Easter Egg Hunt is sponsored by the Charlevoix Retail Promotions Committee of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

North rep. to visit

State Senator Walter H. North (R-St. Ignace) announced that his District Representative, Don Weeks, will be in Charlevoix County May 2.

Weeks will meet with constituents at the City Hall in Boyne City from 2 until 4 p.m. For more information, contact Senator North's office at (517)373-2413.

SCRAPBOOK

Names on the wall bring back memories for writer

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

When you are just 17, and in love, some of the things you write, may in later years, come back to haunt you.

A few days ago, Jo Anne Beemon called me to say that the First Congregational Church was in the process of renovation, and that in the mechanical room behind the pipe organ, the workers had found names written on old boards on the side of one wall. This room was supposed to be off limits, but there was a small door to access it.

There, written in all its glory, were the words, "Dale Boss plus Marilyn Ikens." This was done 50 years ago, almost to the day that we went down to see it. I wrote it on March 26, 1950. At that time my girlfriends, Lorna Lewis, Phyllis Mason and I sang in the choir. I don't remember going in there, but it was typical of me, the dreamer, concerned with keeping things for posterity. After all, other choir members had signed their names in the years before us, so it was of course, the logical thing to do.

Rick Beemon was on the job at the site, with several other men, ready to tear out the wall between the main sanctuary and the fellowship hall which was constructed several years ago. He let me take pictures of the boards. But, they are going to save them, as so many people had signed their names and dates on them.

The names we found on the boards were as follows: Charlie Hamlin, a local insurance agent, Gilbert Saltonstall, who became one of Charlevoix's surgeons, Runt Cellner, with the date "20", Cecil Burns, and the date, 1909. In later years, Cecil was the church custodian. Archie Shearer, "20" was another, along with Willie Meyer "08", Pearl Smalls "08", Warren Kibbe, Albert Widdifield, Robert Bridge, "07", Forrest Fowler "12", Pearl Smith "08", Richard Saltonstall, Bump Faulkner "20", Phyllis Mason and I, who wrote on it in 1950. These dates were either their birth date, or the date they inscribed it.

Rick had a couple of men tearing windows out of the basement at the front of the church. Dale informed him that the basement wasn't always there. He said the early pictures of the church show it sitting almost on the ground. He remembers talking with the late Ralph Bacot, who passed away in 1987 at the age of 96. Ralph used to come down every day to John Norton's gas station, at the corner of State and Antrim, next to Judy's Restaurant. He would sit on the old steel red stool, which was a fixture in the gas station from the mid '20s to the early '80s. Fellows from all over town would come down and discuss local politics.

If the stool could talk, it would have more stories to tell than you could imagine. I remember sitting on it when I was a little girl and my dad owned the station. In later years, when the stool came up for sale at an auction, Dale bought it for me for $29. It isn't worth 10 cents, except for the memories he and I gleaned from the elderly people who came in and told their stories every evening. Dale and his dad spent many evenings down there, as did our kids.

Ralph Bacot told Dale the story of the summer he worked on his stomach under the old church. This was in 1908, when he was 17 years old. He moved blocking around, and turned jack screws to elevate the building to its present height. Mr. Munyon, the local building mover in town, had the contract, and he hired young Ralph, who was a tall and agile boy, to get under there and do this work. They then installed the stone foundation and the basement which have held the building up since 1908. He said it was one of the hardest jobs he had ever done.

Dale, being very inquisitive, has spent his lifetime gathering information from elderly people about the history of Charlevoix. Many of the memories came from people who sat on that old Standard Oil stool.

How To Kill A BUSINESS ... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

Road construction scheduled to begin in May will affect portions of US-31, M-66, Marion Center Road and Stover Road.

A public meeting is set for 7 p.m. on Thursday at City Hall. Officials will be available for questions from the public. The city is sending out notices to area residents.

The City of Charlevoix and the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) are working together on the project, which will total $629,000. The highway department will pay $462,000 and the city will pay the remaining $167,000.

The city's portion will come from various funds such as infrastructure, utilities, water, schools and sanitary sewer funds, said City Manager Michael Wiesner.

City Street Department Superintendent John Martin, said that MDOT is proposing the changes to the roads because they are currently dangerous sections.

"The whole project is based on safety," Martin said. "MDOT has determined it's unsafe and it needs to close intersections."

The project affects US-31 from Stover Road to M-66, Marion Center Road to the east of US-31, Stover Road from M-66 to Marion Center and M-66 from US-31 to Stover Creek.

A center lane for left turns on both US-31 and M-66 will be added. Marion Center Road will intersect US-31 opposite the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The Stover Road intersection southwest of M-66 will be closed and Stover Road will be realigned to the north-east of M-66. (See graphic.)

MDOT advises that traffic flow on US-31 and M-66 will be restricted at times to one lane of traffic alternating in each direction. The highway department will use flag control. A temporary two-way traffic run-around on US-31 near the airport entrance will be in place from mid-May to June.

Some local streets may be closed during various stages of construction and traffic re-routed on other roads.

But, access to businesses and residences will be maintained at all times and no work will be performed on holidays or festival weekends. All work will take place during daylight hours.

The construction project is scheduled for completion by the end of July.

City agrees to help group keep petunias weed free

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Following last summer's petunia weeding crisis, the city will contribute approximately $12,500 to keep the city's renowned plants free of weeds.

Joanne Curtis president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. reminded city council at its April 17 meeting that Charlevoix's petunias are nationally famous. The condition of the petunias last season was an embarrassment to the city, she added.

"The businesses and citizens of the community find it increasingly difficult, with their busy summer schedules, to participate with voluntary weeding," Curtis said.

This is the first time the city has contributed funds for the petunias, although it participates in other ways, such as digging the ditches for the plants. The $12,500 is based on 500 hours of work at $25 per hour.

Council Member Gabe Campbell voted against the cost to the city.

"To pay $25 an hour is too much," Campbell said. "I think the city should donate up to $5,000. I don't think it's right for the city to pay that much."

City manager Michael Wiesner told council the funds will come from the community promotions portion of the budget.

"It won't have an adverse affect on any of the funds," Wiesner said.

Fifty percent more petunias will be planted this season to provide less space for weeds to grow. Peggy's Gardening of Petoskey will weed the plants and apply herbicide.

Dale Boss has organized the purchase of the plants and performed other responsibilities for many years. The petunias run from the city limits for 2.5 miles on each side of the street.

This year volunteers will plant 1,200 flats in about two hours, Boss said.

Curtis and Boss both said they are pleased with the city's decision to help fund the petunia project.

"It's absolutely wonderful that the city is joining hands with Keep Charlevoix Beautiful ... We're delighted to have this boost in the arm through the city," Curtis said.

Volunteers will plant the petunias on May 25. Anyone interested in helping may call Joanne Curtis at 547-5494. A picnic is held the day of planting for the volunteers.

Donations may be sent to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc., P.O. Box One, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Internet scams hitting area computer users, sheriff warns

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is warning area residents about a new version of an old scam attempt that is currently circulating locally via the internet.

Potential victims are receiving e-mail requests to assist in helping to transfer money from a "frozen" foreign bank account. The most recent e-mail letter claims to be from Nigeria and the recipient is promised a 20 percent commission if they allow their bank account to be used in the transfer of these funds. If the victim complies with this request and supplies their account information, the suspect then accesses the account and transfers out funds instead of depositing. A second variation requests a "good faith" deposit into the account by the victim to ensure that money is there.

It is never a good idea to provide any information about your identity to a stranger that can be used to "clone" your identity. This includes social security, driver's license, bank account or personal ancestral information.

Additionally, internet computer users should ensure that they have installed the most recent computer software security upgrades, so that if a suspect attempts to remotely access sensitive files within your computer, this is denied.

Lawsuit's casualty will be the students

Last week was a very sad week for the students of Charlevoix public schools.

Thanks to a "preservation" group and a bunch of Traverse City lawyers, the school district may have to use money from the school's general fund to fight what appears to be a frivolous lawsuit. Money in the general fund is used to supply students with teachers and books, as well as a variety of other useful learning tools.

With the signing of his signature on a legal complaint against the school board, Robert Mossman, Charlevoix Area Natural Resources Preservation Association president, has started a process that could serve nothing more than to punish the students of the district.

If the school district's insurance carrier does not cover the cost to defend against this lawsuit, School Superintendent John Sturock has said the money will have to come out of the general fund.

At this point he said he is not sure how much it will cost the district to defend itself against the preservation group's lawsuit. What is certain is, if this lawsuit is not dismissed right away the costs to the school district could rise substantially. A while back the Petoskey school district had to defend itself in a similar lawsuit that racked up about $18,000 in legal costs. Imagine if the Charlevoix school district had to pay $18,000 in legal fees. That is a good portion of a teacher's salary or a lot of school books that Charlevoix will never get.

To add insult to injury, the lawsuit is also requesting the school district pay for all legal fees and attorney fees this preservation group incurs in its pursuit of this lawsuit. There goes more money that could have gone to student education.

It is interesting to note, that one of the anti-school board groups placed an ad recently in an area newspaper claiming Charlevoix's school situation could cause the district to suffer the same budget-woes as Traverse City or Gaylord.

It is ironic that a lawsuit by one of these anti-school board groups may just be the thing to make it happen.

This preservation group should be ashamed.

School issues infecting the news throughout country

Edith Gilbert
'Behind the news'

My new neighbor, Kay Heise — no relation to the other Hiseys in town — handed me a newspaper from Lyons, Colo. with the heading "School site still in question." Not only is this the same hot issue out west as it is here, but the paper's editor and founder is a former graduate of Charlevoix High School, Susan de Castro McCann, and Kay Heise's cousin.

Susan's mother Irene used to be one of a threesome that ran the HIP shop on the foot of Park Ave. along with Polly Ver Wys and Helen Belding. I sure miss Irene! Not only was she delightful, but she used to knit the most wonderful thick winter gloves for me that seemed to never wear out.

Susan writes via the internet (sdcmcm@bouldernews.info.net) that as a practicing journalist she was asked to start this new paper by a group of friends and agreed "in a moment of sheer insanity." The name of the paper, Redstone Review, refers to the red rock mined in the quarries all around Lyons, founded in the 1800s. Red rock is still mined there today and used all over the country. Lyons is a community of 1,700 in-town residents and about 3,000 residents who live in the surrounding area of the Rocky Mountain foothills.

Among other journalists, she corralled experienced writers through her Charlevoix network, including Jon Stewart, also a high school classmate, who writes about health care from San Francisco, a Heise cousin Doug, who sent her an article from Kazakhstan and another cousin, Roger Knutson, who appears regularly in the Charlevoix Courier with his "Ear to the Ground" column.

"The paper has been wildly successful with my local readers. It has far exceeded my expectations with the first two issues of 3,500 copies," she wrote.

As for the previously mentioned issue regarding the high school site in Lyons, Susan states, "It is further complicated by an access problem because it is located across the St. Vrain River. If there is a flood, rescuing the children would be difficult." Ha, now that's a problem! "The elementary school is also a controversial issue.

Some say a new school is badly needed and others claim the old school can be remodeled." Sound familiar?

A board member in Lyons commented, "I went to the school board and asked how feasible it was to put $2.8 million into a school that was defective." And the reply was, "I don't recall that conversation." Hmmm!

It seems the school site issue is taking place not only in Colorado and Michigan but also in North Carolina. According to the Island Packet published in Hilton Head Island, "Now is the time to plan a vision for the public school campuses. Taxpayers can benefit from developers who donate land, but future school locations must be based on a plan and a vision for the community, not the needs of developers."

It's comforting to know we are not alone in wrestling with these tough issues of selecting a school site.

Marion board speaks out

Editor:
To the voters of the Charlevoix School District:

The Marion Township Board has not taken an official stand on the location of the future high school or the recall of the Board of Education. A letter stating this was authorized to be sent to the Board of Education at the Dec. 21, 1999 meeting of the Marion Township Board.

Although we are members of the township board, we are writing this letter as individuals because we feel certain misleading statements and falsehoods have been circulating the area. As members of our school district, we feel accurate information is important. Here are the facts as they pertain to Marion Township:

1) When the school purchased the Marion Center Road property, the lost tax revenue to Marion Township was approximately $84.

2) Neither the Planning Commission nor the Township Board has received a proposed housing development or proposal for moving any roads.

3) Marion Township has a good and up-to-date zoning ordinance to control development in the township. To our knowledge, the school board has not violated that ordinance.

4) We have made great progress on our road repair and road updating in the past five years, thanks to the residents of Marion Township passing a road millage. Pops Road and Lake 26 Road are to be completed this year, with Black Road next in line. Funds are in place to do these projects. Marion Township is not in financial stress.

5) The school bond issue passed in Oct. 1999. The rate of 2.84 mills will be levied on your tax bill this year, whether the school board is recalled or not.

Letter deserves response

Editor:

The thoughtful letter from Gail L. Seidel deserves some answers. Yes, you do have a right to choose where your money will be spent. The Sept. 20, 1999 Petoskey News-Review, the Sept. 22, 1999 Charlevoix Courier and the school board flyer all announced the selection of the Marion Road site. The same information that was later "shared" was provided way back then. We all did have a right to approve or not approve that decision. I voted in favor because of the site selected. Dr. Jeffrey Porter voted against for the same reason and urged others to do the same. It was approved and the bonds issued and the tax increase of about 2.8 mills was levied to pay off the bonds.

At that point, where and how the bond proceeds would be spent was limited to those stated purposes. Just as I have to — not too quietly — put up with a president that I voted against, so now the losing voters have to put up with both the millage and the site, as approved. To change the site now, or in the future, would probably constitute fraud. Surely, there were at least 51 voters like me who would have voted "no" had the issue been to put the new high school on one of the existing school sites.

Site purchases are typically "price locked" before being announced. I'm sure you can see why. Wetlands mitigation on this site is a myth, it is simply not required. One million, six hundred thousand dollars is provided in the bond issue for the site and its improvements; it will run just about exactly that, including water and gas.

I'm not sure who is using tax dollars to "support and/or pursue our legal rights." I'm not, the committees against the recall are not and I'm quite sure that the committees in favor of the recall are also not using any tax dollars.

On the issue of zoning, don't take James H. Hisey's letter at face value and don't expect Janet Reno to show up in defense of the Constitution. Through his experience last year, the editor of this paper can better tell you of the complex issues involved. I believe that the Marion Township Supervisor and the Charlevoix schools will be totally comfortable together.

Eighty home sites has nothing to do with the issue except that, should they ever be built, a good chunk of their sewer fees will endear to the benefit of the school system. Those sites do not influence the sewer cost — a bit over $500,000.

In responding to your letter, I do not attempt to vilify, only to clarify. Most readers, like me, do respect your expression of your thoughts. Unlike some other recent ads and letters, yours contains no untruths.

Site is dangerous

Editor:
As a mother of three and a grandmother, I am asking you, the people of Charlevoix and the school board members to find another site to put our kids in. I sit in the mornings and afternoons on the corner of Veenstra and Marion Center roads waiting for the school bus. I have a child in the elementary school and in the middle school. What I have seen has frightened me. People young, old and in-between, are speeding to work, passing every car, school bus, truck, and farm equipment! I have watched some incredibly irresponsible driving and risk-taking maneuvers, that could cause serious accidents and even death.

Veenstra Road is no different, in fact, it has blind areas caused by the road not being completely flat. My driveway enters onto Veenstra Road and many times cars are traveling so fast on that dirt road they don't even know I'm there. We take walks on Veenstra Road, we ride our bikes and because it is a seasonal dirt road it is not patrolled and people young, old and in-between use it for a fast cut through. Veenstra Road is not big enough for any two vehicles to pass each other without one pulling over to the side.

Why do you, the people of the board, want to put our children in an area that is highly dangerous?

On April 20, four high school boys rolled their vehicle on Veenstra Road at about 3:15 p.m.

The conditions were dangerous, it had been raining all day the road was muddy with soft shoulders. With a little speed the young driver got caught in the soft shoulder and flipped and rolled his vehicle. Thank God no one was seriously injured this time.

I witnessed these four boys in shock, scared, with cuts and bruises. When their parents arrived, I also witnessed the fear, the shock and the emotions that run through a parent when their child could have been killed.

The emotions between the boys and their parents hit me so hard I felt a responsibility and a need to educate the parents on how dangerous this site can be.

I have read most letters for and against this site, but what I witness every day and what I witnessed April 20 hit me hard. I believe that this incident is just the tip of the iceberg. I believe it is a sign, a wake up call. I am telling you, if you build a high school-auditorium out here, you are putting our children in danger and everyone else that travels to this site!

Board did its job

Editor:
In spite of and possibly because of all the rhetoric and full page ads, I still support the Charlevoix School Board and the new high school proposal and its location on Marion Center Road.

I voted for them when they were elected to the board and I expected them to do exactly the job they have done. That's why we have a school board.

Dissenting opinions should be and have been heard, and the board should listen — which it has.

Letters to the editor

When the committee appointed by the board to study and make recommendations gave their presentation at two consecutive board meetings, I was one of the two "outsiders" at those meetings. The other 25 in attendance were the committee members. Not present at those meetings were any of the dissenters, now listed by name in newspaper ads. If they had been there, they would have known first hand what was included in the proposals and what was not included. All of the plans had been spelled out by the board, several times, since the dissenters started and continued their propaganda campaign.

We have an excellent board of education which deserves the voter and taxpayer support. Everyone of your votes is needed to vote down the recall, May 9.

Marion site not wet

Editor:

We had a pretty good rain April 20. It rained most of the day and evening. Friday morning there was lots of standing water around town. I saw some flooded driveways and puddles along the shoulders in the country. I thought to myself, this would be a good time to see just how wet that school site on Marion Center Road really is. So at about 8:30 a.m., after my morning coffee, I stopped at the site.

I hadn't really planned ahead because I had on my old Topsider loafers with the sole on the left foot coming loose and flapping. Hey, not a problem! I spend a good half hour walking all over that corn field. I didn't even have to wipe my feet afterward before I got back in my truck.

There were a few curious holes that had been bored into the ground with an auger. I couldn't see the bottom; they were at least five or six feet deep. I dropped a pebble in one and listened. I heard a "thunk" — no splash!

I've got to be honest. Way over on the far side of the property opposite the road I found a spot not much bigger than a tennis court that had some water in the furrows. Obviously, even that spot was not too wet to farm. Ninety-plus percent of the property looked plenty dry to me.

By the way, about the traffic, fourteen vehicles passed by during the time I was taking my morning stroll.

I hope that folks will take the time to check out some of the wild claims being made by the recall bunch.

Also, concerning their "legal opinion", it is my "non-legal opinion" that they don't believe their own "legal opinion". Because if they did, they wouldn't need to have a recall. They could just petition the various governmental units whose rules they claim are being violated and ask them to stop the project. Their "legal opinion" is propaganda.

May I remind the "neighborhood schools" group that the school is not a city school. The "neighborhood" of the school extends out to Ironton, past Norwood, almost to Horton Bay, clear to Bay Shore and several miles out toward Ellsworth.

Vacant property in town is practically nonexistent. Even several churches have gone outside of town to find room to build.

Recall is shocking

Editor:

During the past several months, we have followed the efforts to recall the Charlevoix School Board with shocked disbelief. The current board is composed of solid citizens from the Charlevoix area, each of whom has a reputation of honesty, integrity and commitment to the student body and the citizens of the school district. They have contributed a great deal of time and energy on behalf of the school district. The citizens should be very proud of them and their work.

We should all continue to steadfastly support these dedicated and hard working board members. We trust that the tactics being used by the proponents of the recall will not sway the citizens of the Charlevoix School District. Please do the right thing and send the right message by supporting the current board members. Vote no on the recall on May 9.

Taxes will not go down

Editor:

As the vote to recall the school board members draws nearer, I would like to clear up or reiterate a few facts. The voters of Charlevoix need to realize that the vote on May 9 is to recall the school board members. The vote has no bearing on the school site or taxes. The bonds have been sold and can not be redeemed. The future of our taxes is set, regardless of the outcome of the recall. If you, the reader, are one of those who were deceived into signing the recall petition because you were told it was to recall the Marion Center Road site and not the school board, now is your chance to correct the mistake. Again, this is a vote to recall the five school board members. This is not a vote to change the site.

I fully stand behind the school board members. These five community members have put forth an incredible and unselfish amount of time, energy and heart to do the best job they can for the children and future of this community. They made a tough, educated decision that a few selfish people did not like. The school board has done nothing wrong. These friends, family members and neighbors did not deserve to undergo the stress of the recall petition and certainly do not deserve to be recalled from their positions. They are innocent of any wrongdoing.

Ardeth Wieland, Barney Way, Allen Telgenhof, Dennis Halverson and Scott Boss have done an outstanding job in their service to the Charlevoix community. They deserve our respect and our support. Please join me in voting a big "NO!" on May 9.

Board did what is best

Editor:

To all the registered voters of Charlevoix Public School District:

We believe that the healing for our community can only be reached by voting "no" at the recall election.

We elect seven school board members to do a job. They put countless hours into researching what is best for our students and community. They have or have had children in our school system and would not do anything to put them or any student at risk. They need our support by voting "no!"

Anyone who has taken the time to talk to our school board members will find out that they are open and honest and have not done anything to justify being recalled.

It is sad any time there is a conflict. This recall is unjust, because we all know in our hearts, that to recall five school board members for sticking to their moral obligation to uphold the decision of the voters in their school district is the only thing that we should accept. Votes should have been based on information that all postal patrons had prior to the election, which included the site of the new high school.

Recalling the board does not mean that we do not have to pay for the bond, it will be on the July tax bill and will not go away for twenty years.

Please vote "no" and show support for Scott Boss, Dennis Halverson, Allen Telgenhof, Barney Way and Ardeth Wieland.

What is writer missing?

Editor:

In the heart of, and an integral part of, the Ann Arbor community, the core of the University of Michigan central campus is a large square on which the university was originally founded, for decades commonly referred to as the Diag for the long sidewalk that runs from the southeast to the northwest corner. The Diag area contains at least fourteen buildings, many of them of considerable size, that house scores of classrooms, auditoriums, lecture halls, teaching and research laboratories, offices, an art museum, at one time a small atomic reactor for nuclear physics and medical research, a naval architecture testing tank and many libraries, three of them huge, that house hundreds of thousands of books and other publications. For over 70 years, on the northeast corner sat a building that held two full-sized gymnasiums, one of which had a balcony running track.

On a normal day, the Diag's facilities and grounds are utilized by, at a conservative estimate, at least 15,000 students and several hundred faculty and staff.

The Diag covers forty acres of land. The Charlevoix Board of Education proposes to build one very modestly sized two-story structure with an attached gym and an attached auditorium, plus a parking lot and a few nearby sports venues. This facility will provide educational and athletic services to a student population that, for quite a time in the foreseeable future, will total much less than 600. For this facility, they have told the community and taxpayers that they need 74 acres of land, virtually twice the size of the University of Michigan campus core.

Am I missing something here?

CSNS is wrong

Editor:
I am writing about the advertisements which were placed in your newspaper by the "Committee for Sponsoring Neighborhood Schools", Paul Richards, Robert Mossman and Richard Tunison. (Petoskey News-Review, April 11; Charlevoix Courier, April 12.)

I do not understand how anyone, particularly those persons whom I know circulated recall petitions, could want to have their names associated with this group. I understand that some people do not want to have the new high school located on Marion Center Road. What I do not understand is the mentality of the people who will stoop to any level in order to accomplish this goal. It is inconceivable to me that anyone would want to be associated with a group of people who are willing to print statements which are damaging to the reputations of five wonderful, caring and giving people in order to dictate where a high school should be built. This is particularly the case when the school board members do not have anything personal to gain from the location of the high school.

Most of the statements contained in those ads are misleading. For example, the statement about the extension of the sewer system to the Marion Center Road site fails to mention that the developers/purchasers of the 80 homes will have to reimburse the school for the costs of extending the sewer to that site. The net cost to the high school — if these 80 homes are actually built — will be roughly equal to the cost to tap into the city sewers, no matter where the school would be built. Equally important is the fact that the amount to extend the sewer to the Marion Center Road site was part of the budget which was voted on last October.

This group continues to claim that the Marion Center Road has wetland. Specifically, in their advertisement, they claim that all 74 acres are wet. None of the 74 acres of the Marion Center Road site are a "wetland."

They claim in their advertisement that the school system — i.e. the taxpayers — will have to pay to improve Veenstra Road. The school does not intend to do any work on Veenstra Road. Similarly, they claim that the taxpayers will have to pay to relocate and improve Clark Road. The school site does not even border on Clark Road. These people know this and yet continue to try and mislead you, the voters.

As with the above statements, each statement in those ads is, at best, a gross misstatement of fact. We are being misled by the recall group.

Please become informed on the facts on this issue. Ask yourself, why do these people care? Does Mossman care because he really does not want a high school adjacent to his property on Veenstra Road? Does Dr. Jeffrey Porter really care about sprawl when his company is being paid so much to do a feasibility study for a capital fund campaign to build a performing arts center miles outside of Petoskey? After you have learned the facts, I am certain that you will agree that a no vote on the recall is the only vote which you can make in good conscience.

Stop Waste Management

Editor,

It's not over, until it's over.

They're at it again.....

Cedar Ridge Landfill is applying for a 12.5 acre expansion on their Type II landfill.

Last time WATCH and supporters like you fought against this expansion. Waste Management withdrew their expansion request....but they're at it again! We need your help! Call, fax, e-mail or write a postcard stating your rejection of this proposed expansion. The people in Lansing need to hear from all of us.

Russell Harding, Department of Environmental Quality, P.O. Box 30473, Lansing, MI 48909-7973, Fax: 517-335-4729 Phone: 517-373-7917, E-mail: www.DEQ.STATE.MI.US.

Complaints should be addressed to Mr. John Ozoga, DEQ Gaylord, Senior Environmental Engineer. Phone 517-348-6381 ext. 7205.

Waste Management Inc. is trying to circumvent the Charlevoix County Planning Commission who refused to hear this request again. The planning commission has already turned WMI down and stated they would not support a letter of consistency. Eveline Township — where the landfill is located — has repeatedly indicated they don't want this expansion. Many adjacent landowners and concerned citizens like you have repeatedly opposed this expansion, yet WMI continues to push for 12.5 more acres.

Join us! The DEQ Public Hearing on this issue will be at 6:30 p.m. today in the basement meeting room of the Charlevoix County Building — known as the Pine Lake Room.

If you have an interest in joining us for our next meeting before this public hearing, call our Hotline number 547-5530. Send your financial support to WATCH, P.O. Box 615, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

We can't give up! Thank you for your continued support in keeping Charlevoix County a healthy place to live.

American Elm orders being taken by scouts

The members of Boy Scout Troop 11 are taking orders for American Liberty Elms.

These are a hybrid American Elm Tree with a 20-year guarantee against Dutch Elm Disease.

These trees are part of the Johnny Elmseed Program, which is done in conjunction with the City of Charlevoix. This is a national program with the purpose of reestablishing the grandeur of the American Elm.

Several of these trees have been planted around the City of Charlevoix, most prominently on Elm Street.

The trees vary in size and the price includes delivery. The funds raised will be used to pay for trips and supplies for the scouts.

The number of trees is limited, so orders should be placed immediately. You can make arrangements to pick out your tree by calling Scoutmaster Tim May at 547-0979.

Recall may be negative for business

Editor:

As a business owner here in Charlevoix, I am very concerned about the effect that the recall election will have on the Charlevoix area. I am very concerned that a recall of our school board will send the wrong message to businesses thinking about locating in our area. I do not believe that our school board has done anything which would warrant their being recalled. This is a very serious matter and sends a message not only to the business community but to other elected officials as well. This school board has done a terrific job for the school system and has provided our children with a great place to learn and grow.

Another troubling aspect of the recall effort is the misinformation which is being circulated. I have heard from several people that a successful recall will lower their property taxes. I have looked into this issue and I can tell you that nothing could be further from the truth. The recall election, whether successful or not, will have absolutely no effect on your property taxes. The millage passed last October, the school sold the bonds and our property taxes will increase, starting in June, by 2.84 mills.

In my opinion, the only effect that the recall of the school board would have on our property taxes is to increase them. If the school board is recalled, it will cause a delay in the construction of our new high school. This delay can do nothing more than to increase the amount of the cost of construction, resulting in higher taxes. The other alternative is that we get less school for our hard earned tax dollars.

People should ask questions and investigate the facts concerning the recall. After doing this, I am sure that you will agree with me that the school board has done nothing deserving of a recall. Please look, into the facts and then vote "no" on May 9.

Terry Left

There are still questions

Editor:

An answer to the editorial in the Charlevoix Courier, April 12.

I think that many taxpayers have voiced their opinions by signing the petitions and attending the meetings throughout the winter and spring. As a taxpayer and resident of Charlevoix and Marion Township for the past 29 years, I still feel many questions have not been addressed and answered about the school site.

Why 75 acres of land? Why an out-of-town location when the questionnaire sent out last spring about school location was answered by the citizens that they wanted an in-town location? Was traffic and road hazards ever a consideration — not only for the school population — but for the people that travel that road every day? I have traveled that road for 29 years and I am well aware of its dangers. When is work going to start on the elementary school for additional space that is badly needed now? I thought part of the millage was for that purpose? Where is an accurate budget for the cost of land improvements and construction? Why could East Jordan build a new junior high, remodel the elementary school and add on to the high school for far less money? Then there is the very real concerns of Marion Township residents increased taxes for improvements of roads.

I think that the citizens have a right to voice their opinions, pro or con, and that they should be listened to. I have always believed that was what a democracy was all about.

Joni Mitchell wrote a song that goes through my mind as I drive down Marion Center Road daily, "You don't know what you've got 'til it's gone...they take a paradise and put up a parking lot."

There are reasons for diversity in communities as we all need each other. The farmers fields for the produce that feeds rich and poor and homeless. The orchards rich with cherry and apple trees that blossom in the spring filling the countryside with beauty and perfume and cherries and peaches and apples to nourish us. The openness of the farmers fields so you can feel the stars at night. Forests of pine and maples for their color...to provide places for animals and the children in all of us to be free.

Schools and teaching are the very center of our humanity. Our children need knowledge about their world and the larger world around them. Money should go toward that very important goal...buildings are a place, but knowledge goes with the individual forever and that is how I want my tax money spent.

Susan Bolt
Marion Township

Thanks from Grandvue

Editor:

During this National Volunteer Week, Grandvue Medical Care Facility wishes to extend a sincere thank you to all our volunteers and members of local community organizations whose many generous and caring efforts have improved the quality of life for our residents over this past year. These volunteers came to share music, visit, go on outing, write letters, read, play games, work on projects and crafts, pray, help with special events and help with countless other activities...all for the benefit of our residents. We feel very blessed to enjoy the continued support of so many wonderful people living in our area. We value and appreciate their involvement.

Recall will raise taxes

Editor:

In the course of their attempt to recall the school board, recall supporters have told citizens that if the school board is recalled, our property taxes will be lowered. This is not true.

After the bond election, the school sold bonds to investors to raise the $18.8 million for the school construction and improvements. The school has to pay these investors back through our tax dollars. This debt will not go away because of a recall election.

The tax increase we voted on will appear on our June tax bills, recall or no recall. If you don't believe me, call your city or township treasurer.

The only way that our taxes will increase further is if this board is recalled. The recall group has said that their goal is to have the school built upon another site. The board has already spent over $1 million in planning for the Marion Center site. The sewer will soon be run to the property. If this group is successful in delaying this project and changing the location of the school, this $1,000,000 will be lost and the 2000 building season will be lost as well, due to the amount of planning necessary to build the new school.

Construction costs have been increasing historically at a rate of about 5 percent per year. A delay of one year in this project could cost the school district — and us taxpayers — over $1 million. What will we do with this $2 million shortfall? Either vote in another tax increase — not likely — or end up with a smaller school with no auditorium.

The issue of a tax increase has been decided. If you are against higher taxes, vote "no" on the recall and let us have the school we are paying for.

Baseball team wins three

The Charlevoix baseball team started off the week of April 18 with a double-header that left them with one win and one loss, but poor weather kept the team off the field for the rest of the week.

The team-hosted Rudyard and won the first game 12-8, but lost the second game 4-3.

Shay Hutchison was the winning pitcher for the first game, with Tony Williams and Dennis Avery in relief. Hutchison had a no-hitter for four innings.

"(Hutchison) pitched a very strong game before tiring out in the fifth inning as he got over 70 pitches," said Coach Scott Kelly.

Leading offense in this game were: Chris Loper with a double and three singles with two RBIs, Jeremiah Tiescher with a double and two singles with two RBIs, Hutchison had two hits and Nate Tiescher and Matt Kochanny each singled.

"It was nice to see our bats come alive this game with solid defense behind (Hutchison's) pitching performance," Kelly said.

In the second game, Charlevoix's Kreg Wager was the losing pitcher with Matt Horon in relief.

"Our youngest players did a good job in this game and battled back to have the tying run on second in the bottom of the fourth. Following the completion of the fourth, the game was called due to darkness," Kelly said.

Rob Boss led the offense with a fourth inning RBI single that broke a no-hitter.

Charlevoix's regularly scheduled game for April 18 was canceled due to rain. However, the team was back at home Monday night hosting Elk Rapids for a double-header.

The Rayders won both of these games.

In the first game, Charlevoix beat Elk Rapids 3-1. The winning pitcher was Chris Loper with three hits, eight strikeouts and no walks.

Leading the offense were: Hutchison, Loper, Jeremiah Tiescher and Matt Horon each with singles. Loper and Horon also had RBIs in the first inning and Jeremiah Tiescher scored an unearned run in the second inning.

Charlevoix won the second game 6-5. The winning pitcher was Hutchison with Avery in relief.

Leading the offense were: Loper with a double and a single, Cole with a double, Avery with a double, Jeremiah Tiescher with a single and Hutchison with a single.

"This was a fantastic game for our guys to come back from an early deficit and scrap out a win by playing great fundamental baseball," Kelly said.

Soccer team wins one and loses one at Suttons Bay

The Charlevoix Rayders' soccer team added one win and one loss to its record last week, despite the cancellation of one game due to bad weather.

The Rayders started off the week playing in Suttons Bay April 17. They lost the game 1-2 after a hard fought match.

Suttons Bay got on the board at the end of the first half, with Charlevoix answering early in the second half when Danielle Vogelheim headed the ball in on a cross from Abby Schaperkotter.

However, Suttons Bay scored the winning goal with 15 minutes remaining.

"We were really beat up coming into this one and I was pleased with the intensity the girls started with.

We dominated the first 20 minutes of the match and then just quit," said Coach Hagen Manker.

"We played a better second half, but we just got beat to the ball. You can't win against a decent team if you don't beat them to the ball."

Due to poor weather conditions Thursday, the Rayders scheduled game against Harbor Springs was canceled and rescheduled for May 1.

But, the Rayders were back on the soccer field Saturday morning in Alpena for a game.

They won this game 2-0.

The score was tied 0-0 at the end of the first half, but Charlevoix came alive in the second half and scored a goal 20 minutes in when Schaperkotter put the ball in the net after a pass by Erika Kammernann.

The final goal came with just seconds to play when Kate Madison redirected a shot of Schaperkotter's.

"They finally played as a team. We marked up and pressured the ball, creating turnovers. We played a good team and came up with the win," Manker said.

"Our senior leadership was the difference. (Kammernann) led the Rayders to victory. It was one of the best games I've seen her play. She totally controlled the midfield."

The Rayders' senior goalie, Kristy Schindorf, earned the shutout and recorded 15 saves for the day.

The team played in Roscommon last night. Results of that match were unavailable before press-time.

Track team gets running start to season in Roscommon meet

The Charlevoix High School girls' and boys' track teams both took second place finishes April 12 at Roscommon High School in a meet with Roscommon and Grayling.

The boys' team scored 174 total points, while the girls' team scored 196. Roscommon won the meet in both the boys' and girls' divisions with 221 points and 213 points respectively. The Grayling boys' team finished with 61 points, while the girls' team finished with 49 points.

The following are Charlevoix students who placed in the top three at the meet and the events they placed in:

It's time to register for Michigan Senior Olympics for this summer

Michigan Senior Olympics (MSO) registration books for this summer's games are now available by calling (248) 608-0250.

This summer the MSO Olympic-style games for men and women ages 50 and older will be hosted in Battle Creek June 13-17. Registration deadline is April 28. A late registration deadline is May 12.

Over 1,500 mature athletes will participate in such sports as: Basketball, tennis, golf, badminton, swimming, road races, cycling, softball, volleyball and others. For the more cerebral are stimulating events including dancing, baking, scrabble, arts and crafts, and more. Key sponsors of the Games include Consumers Energy and John Hancock Financial Services.

Michigan Senior Olympics, the organization that dramatically utilizes the adage, "You're as young as you feel."

MSO began its 21 year history based on the sweeping awareness that in America people are living longer, more productive, healthier lives than in previous generations. Due to better food, medicine, access to information and a closer, more stimulating world, there is more opportunity than ever to remain "young" and vital throughout life. MSO has created a venue for the way to do this — participation in physical activity after age 50.

For a registration booklet and more information about participating in the games, volunteering to help, or joining Michigan Senior Olympics, call (248) 608-0250.

Middle school boys' soccer team gets its first win ever

The Charlevoix Middle School Rayders boys' soccer team recorded a victory in its first ever soccer match April 20.

The boys dominated an older, but less experienced, Concord Academy Boyne City team for a 12-0 win.

Leading the offense were: Bryce Daly with four goals and Cody Crain with two goals. Steve Andree, Ezra Bakker, Kelsey Barnard, Andrew Mailloux, Adam Wagner and Michael Wojan each scored one goal.

The shutout in goal was shared by Wojan and John Curtis.

The first year middle school teams for both boys and girls are a cooperative effort between Charlevoix schools and the Charlevoix 4-H soccer club.
